GE'S DOXEY TALKS; AIEE FILLS POSTS

At their last meeting the student members of the Villanova Branch A. I. E. E. were addressed by Mr. G. A. Doxey of the General Electric Company.

Mr. Doxey's lecture titled "Tools of Atomic Research", began by giving a general discussion of the makeup of the atom, and traced the development of researchr to the present time. He described the cyclotron, betatron, and the linear amplifier, supplementing his talk with slides and diagrams.

After the lecture, plans were made for last Thursday's field trip to the Bell Telephone Company.

This week, election of officers was held, and the results were as follows: Bud Hunter, Chairman; Nick Fetti, Vice-Chairman; Al Pentany, Secretary; Frank Doyle, Treasurer.

ATTENTION SENIORS

All Seniors who will graduate in June are requested to report to the Placement Office, 221 Mendel Hall, for interviews in regard to full-time employment contacts. Interviews may be had between 9:00 a.m. and 12 noon, also 1:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m. this week.

By McManus and Kaiser

The footlights of the Field House stage went up last week on the revived, annual production of the Turf and Tinsel Club. The student musical under the expert direction of Bob Whelan and George Noake was a howling success. "John Smith, Esq." owes its success to the hard work of everyone involved. The words and music by Bob Whelan can certainly compete with the best of Tin Pan Alley. Among the best of these were "Sweet Sioux", "Bow on My Bonnet", "Outing in the Offing", "Lady of the Forrest", "Hungry for Huggin", the Byrn Mawr number, and the finale "It's Been Nice". The "ladies" of the chorus were beautiful and danced like the Rockettes of Radio City fame. It would be impossible to list the names of the individual performers, because the cast is so large and talented.

As this is the last issue of the Villanovan for the school year, a general review of the plays of the year is in order. Among the best in the dramatic class was the revival of the Euripidean tragedy "Medea". Judith Anderson was her usual raving, dramatic, self in the role of the Clochean princess. Her work in this play showed that she is the foremost Lady Menace on the stage to-day.

Katherine Cornell, though miscast, was the star of a very creditable revival of Shakespeare's "Anthony and Cleopatra. It was gaudy, but generally well acted. Geofrey Tearle was a forceful Anthony.

A British repertory group brought a fine play to Philadelphia; "The Winslow Boy" was an imaginative study of a sensitive lad and his problems.

To the list of gaudy revivals is added "Lady Windermer's Fan" by Oscar Wilde. This play was interesting chiefly because of its lavish sets and glimpses into the lives of the Victorian smart set. The involved witty speech somehow seems rather faded, and the epigrams have aged.

Among the revues offered was a harmless, unpretentious opus called "An Angel in the Wings" starring Paul and Grace Hartman. The whole performance was underkeyed, and perhaps it is just that quality that keeps the show running. Theatergoers have been seeking just such a play as a relief from the over-glossy fare usually handed them on visits to the theater.

Another revue, "Inside U. S. A.", with Beatrice Lillie and Jack Haley delighted huge audiences this season. It is composed of good and bad skits, but most of the moments are amusing, some are hilarious.

Noel Coward also had a revival; his "Tonight at Eight-Thirty", starring Gertrude Lawrence, brought back the clever short plays that displayed the many talents of Miss Lawrence. The producers, however, were very disappointed by the short run that the series of six plays had.

"High Button Shoes", that recaptured the nostalgia of the 90's, made the bid for one of the best musicals of the year, with "Allegro", and "Look, Ma, I'm Dancin'"

Literary Quarterly

It is expected that the magazine will be about the size of the Readers Digest. As yet the title for the magazine has not been decided upon by the staff.

Next year the staff plans on publishing four editions of the magazine. Since many of the members of the staff will graduate, men interested in writing for the quarterly will be welcomed. Any writing conforming to the standards of the magazine will be gladly accepted.

Have you made up your mind on what you'll do when you graduate this June? If not, consider the opportunity available to you in the Aviation Cadets.

Few jobs anywhere can match this offer. When you win your wings and a Second Lieutenant's commission, you're paid as high as $336 per month to start. The training you get before and after you're commissioned is recognized as the world's finest—and it equips you for a well-paid lifetime career in military or commercial aviation.

You're eligible for appointment to the Cadets if you're single, between 20 and 26½ years old, and have completed at least one-half the requirements for a degree from an accredited college or university (or pass an equivalent examination).

Talk the program over with men in your class who have been Aviation Cadets. And for full details, ask at your nearest U. S. Army and U. S. Air Force Recruiting Station. Why not drop in today and discuss it?

But to the majority this summer'll just be an interlude in education with big things to look forward to next year. Before the VILLANOVAN "hits the street" next year, school will have begun—and the Wildcats will have played at least 2 of their ten game schedule.

Without trying to prophesy, it can be truthfully said that this year's football schedule will be the toughest any Villanova team has yet faced. Many of last year's eleven will be on hand at the kickoff against Texas A.&M. at Franklin Field, but a quick rundown will show that Coach Jordon Olivar lost almost a complete team; to wit, Captain Al Barker, Cap Capriotti, Bill Carlin, Len Conches, Don Griffith, Bill Lilienthal, Tom McCarthy, George Orsini, Roy Schleicher, John Siano, Tom Smith, Frank Temple, Jack Tulskie, Al Veling, Chick Welde, Bill Wolff, and Zip Zehued.

However, with most of last years regulars back plus a good number of freshmen who performed nobly during the spring, Coach Olivar is inclined to be just slightly optomistic. Look out A.&M.!

REVIEW

Orchids to George Noake, Bob Whalen, & Company for a grade "A" job on "John Smith, Esquire" . . . . Definitely tip top entertainment. . . . Should be made an annual affair. . . . We were humming "Outing in the Offing" all weekend . . . . P.S. Let future dramatic endeavors take note of Turf & Tinsels "Student rate policy" . . . a very hep idea!

Odd and Ends.

Best wishes to Ed Fitzgerald . . . After a long and gruelling race he's finally overtaken Sally Farrell. She said "yes" . . . They'll tie the knot on June 26.

Joe Heck has a summer job, too. . . . As per last year he'll be Medical Technician on the O. C. Beach Patrol. . . . Job's a carryover from his Navy experience, but with a mixed clientele to take care of the work is much more enjoyable than passing pills in a Navy Sick Bay.

Speaking of the Navy, Joe Topper is taking a six week cruise right after graduation . . . Careful of those sultry San Juan senoritas, son.

"Odds & Ends" . . . We're odd and this is the end! . . . We've enjoyed it tho, and hope that we've helped to keep you informed (and sometimes mis-informed) on who's doing what, and when, etc.

Summertime will also find Paul Judge playing at the Chez Vous. He's the lad who pleased the boys here with his smooth, economical music.

Radio Station Finale

Tomorrow evening, WVIL, the campus radio station, will hold its last program of the year in the Field House, to give the student body the chance to see a live broadcast in operation.

The entertainment to be presented will include a large audience participation program, together with music and talent to be supplied by the band, glee club, and various other campus organizations. All students are invited to attend.

The show will start at 8:00 P.M.

IC's WEEK'S HIGLIGHT —

"Uncle" Jim McKenna leading the way home in the freshman mile relay event. The time was 3:26. McKenna had a busy day winning the 100 yard dash in 9:9, the 220 in 21:2, and the 440 in 48:9.

BARRACKS 1 and 4 STILL ON TOP IN SOFTBALL LEAGUE

By MONDSCHEIN INC. AND KLUCSARITS

Plagued by bad weather, an abbreviated four-game schedule was played last week. Monday's games were wiped out because of Ol' Jupe Pluvius and Tuesday's game between Mendel and the Day Hops was moved to a later date.

One game was played on Tuesday, as the Doms downed Fedigan 13-7. The victory was not as easy as the score indicates. Fedigan came back to tie the score at the end of the first inning after the Doms had taken a 4-0 lead. They remained within striking distance until the top half of the final inning when the Doms pushed across four tallies to sew up the ball game. Harry Knecht, Doms pitcher, was touched for 12 safeties including a double by Ed Neary, and was in hot water throughout the contest. But Harry helped his own cause by hitting his 4th home run of the season in the second inning. Kirschner was hampered by poor support and slammed for 15 hits including three hits apiece by Steele and Doriety.

On Wednesday evening, Bks. 1&4 captured their fourth successive win to remain unbeaten as they subdued Austin 12-6. Ray Artz gained his fourth victory with his best offort thus far and was aided by the brilliant defensive play of "Little Lou" Maiero and Joe Juliana. Jess McCabe, Bks. powerr hitter contributed a homer and a double and "Little Lou" also chipped in with a triple and two singles. "Happy Hal" Diot hit a homer in a losing caushe and Dallago was charged with the defeat.

Thursday's tilts produced two thrilling pitchers' battles. Schreiber of Bks. 2&3 had a no-hit, no-run game for 4½ innings before Don Welland, golf ace, drove a single through the box. In the sixth inning the Bks. defense fell apart as they committeed six errors coupled with four hits to produce six runs for Alumni. Bill Scharle matched the shut out pitching of Schreiber for five innings and yielded single tallies in the sixth and the seventh. He allowed five hits in notching his second win.

Nearly 150 fans witnessed a marathon 12-inning contest between the league leading Bks. 1&4 combine and the runner-up Doms. The game was called by umpires Pavalko, Sandusky, and Conches, on account of darkness with the score tied at 5 all. Bks. 1&4 drew first blood as they tallied one run in the 2nd and four in the 3rd off the offerings of Harry Knecht. However, Lang of the Doms, hit a round tripper with two mates on in the bottom of the 6th to knot the count. Both hurlers tightened up after this and were helped in the tight spots by the fine defensive play of their teammates. Jack Jamison, Bks. catcher, was outstanding as he picked 4 men off the bases and hit a triple which resulted in the first run. Ray Artz, Bks. pitcher, hit a double to start off the big 3rd inning. Lang and Fessler hit doubles

SPORTORIAL

By JAMES PLUNKETT

The biggest sports item of the week was a statement by our new Director of Athletics, Bill Connelly. In an exclusive interview granted to this reporter last Wednesday, Mr. Connelly informed us of 1.) the adjustment of the student's bigbest sports gripe last fall—why they weren't getting seats on the 50-yard line at the home football games and 2.) the new system of distribution of tickets for next season s opener with Texas A. & M. at Frank Field.

Last season, Joe Student and his date on arriving at the park would find the best seats in the supposedly strictly student field stands reserved. According to Mr. Connelly, the students have seen the last of that type of discrimination. This coming fall, in all the home games, whether at Shibe Park, Franklin Field or Villanova Stadium, the choice ducats will go to you—the students. From the 40 to the 40, the students will have their own section, the best in the house.

The reason for the change is obvious. Mr. Connelly is the biggest Villanova booster this school has ever had. It was mainly through his initiative that the latest Wildcat fight song —V for Villanova—was released. It is his earnest belief that by giving the student a square deal such as seats on the 50-yard line, a better, more loyal Villanovan will be the result.

The new system of ticket distribution for the Texas A. & M. game is pretty simple. On Registration Day next fall, (sometime during the week of the 13th) along with schedules, rooms, matrics, et. al. tickets to the game will also be handed out—all through one source we are told. Only students will be allowed in on these tickets.

If any of you are planning on dates for the weekend, we would strongly urge that instead of waiting until after registration to get your ticket, that you write in advance for your reservation. Sale has been arranged so that seats will be available in the student reserve section for their friends.

Because of the late baseball season, the game with Duquesnne Dukes will be played out on the Main Line. The whole north stands have been reserved for the students and their friends. Until Monday of the week of the game, sale for these stands will be to students only.

Guida to defend crown; Mile relay team to run

By HARRY RANGE

On Friday and Saturday, May 28 and 29, the track team will travel to New York for the IC4A championships at Randalls Island. This meet will feature the best in Eastern Intercollegiate track and field, and although the Wildcats are not expected to capture the team trophy, a considerable number of places will definitely be taken.

Among the defending champions is Villanova's speedy sprinter, George Guida, who hopes to retain his title in the quarter. George has been out of action for most of the season due to a leg injury sustained after the Seton Hall Relays. However, he returned to competition last Saturday against Seton Hall and hopes to be in condition for the 'C's.

At the Seton Hall meet George ran in the quarter and the anchor leg on the mile relay. In the quarter, which was his first race since April 17, he was nosed out by Frank Fox of Seton Hall, who hit 49.0. However, the time is not indicative of either runner's ability since there was a strong head wind which slowed them down considerably on the far straightaway. When Guida received the baton on the mile relay he was seven yards behind Fox, who was anchoring for the Pirates. He remained behind Fox for the first turn and the straightaway and as both rounded the final turn, George started his kick. The race ended in a dead heat, and had George started from scratch, he would have beaten Fox.

Guida's competition in the quarter mile feature Reggie Pearman, of N. Y. U., Hal McDonnell, of Fordham, John Hammond, of Army, John Bigley, of Navy, and John Quigley of Manhattan.

In pole vault, Buck Coleman's only competition should come from Potochnak of Marquette. Buck was runner-up to him in the indoor IC's at Madison Square Garden and this will be a chance to beat him since they have not faced each other since. In meets with members of the IC4A, Coleman has not been defeated and, as he is now in top condition, is expected to win.

George Thompson and Browning Ross will be the Cat's entries in the distance events and, as a result of previous exhibitions, are expected to place in the half, mile and two-mile.

Probable starters in the mile relay are Jack Holmes, Browning Ross, Ed Fitzgerald and George Guida, who hit 3:21 against Seton Hall. In this event the teams to beat are N. Y. U. and Seton Hall who have won numerous times both indoors and outdoors.

The great freshman mile relay team will appear in the only freshman event of the meet. Tom Irish, the fastest starter on the squad, will lead off, to be followed by Bill Shelley and Gene Osborn. The anchor leg will be run by "Uncle" Jim McKenna, the stellar sprinter, who has broken :48 for the quater.

The weekend following the IC's will again find the Wildcats at Randall's Island. This time for the Knights of Columbus games.

The last meet of the regular season will be the National A. A. U. championships in Minneapolis. Then a few members of the team will attend the Olympic tryouts in Chicago in July for the climax of the outdoor season.

Ross, McKenna score Triples in Seton Hall meet

Despite the outstanding individual performances of Browning Ross and Jim McKenna, both Villanova's varisty and freshman teams were defeated last Saturday at the windswept Bloomfield Decantholon field by Seton Hall's crack outdoor track team.

Ross took the mile in 4:24.5 just edging teammate George Thompson after they had both teamed to outrun Seton Hall's stellar performer, Phil Thigpen with a blazing 58 second gun lap. In th two-mile run, Ross, Jim McGehrin and Jim Kennedy romped home hand in hand 60 yards ahead of the nearest Pirate runner for a three-way tie. In the pole vault, Browning gained a surprise, first as he, Joe McNulty and Bucky Coleman tied for 1st. Because the wind made jumping difficult, the Blue and White trio stopped at 10 feet after they had outjumped the Seton Hall entry. Besides scoring a after they had outjumped the Seton Hall entry. Besides scoring a triple win, Ross also garnered another point with a third in the discus behind Watson of Seton Hall and Vince O'Sullivan.

"Uncle" Jim McKenna turned in the fastest individual performances of the day winning the century dash in 9.9, the 220 in 21.2, just six-tenth of a second over the world's record and two-fifths of a second faster than the winning varsity time. McKenna also anchored the winning freshman mile relay team as they turned in a 3:26 performance besides winning the 440 in 49.8.

The meet also marked the return of George Guida after being shelved for over a month with a pulled muscle. The last time Guida ran in college competition was in the Seton Hall Relays on April 17, and so although he finished a step behind Frank Fox of Seton Hall, Guida's performance was remarkable under the circumstances. In the mile relay, Guida, 7 yards behind with only 50 yards to go unleashed a terrific kick to catch Fox at the tape for a dead heat.

A decided lack of good hurdlers and field event entries spelled the downfall for the Wildcats. Gene Kelly placed second behind Harry Shedd in the 120 high hurdles while in the 220 lows, Larry O'Brien trailed Shedd and Brogan.

The 'Cats were shutout in both the broad jump and in the pavelin.

Jack Vulp of Seton Hall won the 100 yard dash in 9.9, while Jack Holmes finished third. Vulp also gradded first in the 220-yd. dash in 216 followed by Holmes and Dick "Black Jack" Muscelli.

Thigpen recovered some of the prestige he lost in the mile run when he edged George "The Claw" Thompson in the half mile. Thompson led until the mid way mark of the second lap when the long striding Thigpen passed him George made a stretch bid but Thigpen swept wide on the final straightaway and prevented Thompson from passing him.

In the freshman meet, Joe Semple besides turning in a triple win set a new school record in the discus hurling the discus 146'7". He put the shot 43' 2¼" followed by Pete D'Alonzo. In the javelin event, Semple throwing an unfamiliar javelin tossue the spear 164' 3".

While relief seems to be in sight in the field events, the same can't be said for the hurdles.

Bill Williams of Seton Hall took first in the 120 high hurdles in 15:8 with Tom Flynn of Villanova taking third. Williams scored a double when he took the 220 also with Flynn coming in third again.

In the mile and two mile runs, Stillwell had an easy time of it as he romped home far ahead in both events.

An unexpected performance by Villanova's Bob O'Neill as he took the high jump with a 5' 10" jump. This was six inches higher than the winner in the varsity event was able to do.

LETTERS....

Villanova, Pa.

Editor of the Villanovan
Mendel Hall, 1st floor
Villanova, Penna.

Dear Sir:

This is being written not to condemn or to criticize. Many of us however, are interested in the newspaper since it is a reflection of the school activity. Whatever outsiders see in the newspaper, by that they judge just what Villanova is like. If it reflects true student opinion, they are able to form a true judgement

We, and I feel that I'm speaking for a good number of students, realize that there are limitations. These limitations are not only with regard to whether a newsworthy item is true but also have respect to that factor which many of us often lose sight of, "good taste".

How much and to what extent has the Villanovan done that this year? I think to a great extent. Of course there are defects and handicaps. Many of us are not on the staff cannot grasp the difficulties entailed in publishing a weekly paper. We leave those difficulties up to you, the staff. They are your job. If your effort goes unappreciated, no blame can be laid. We attribute it to human nature.

Some of the articles appearing in your paper I have not fully appreciated. Maybe they were too deep for me or I am too deep for them. But fortunately, I didn't have the energy to condemn you for printing them . . . and luckily so. Many of my friends liked the articles in question.

I graduate this year. The thought of leaving Villanova saddens me somewhat. Your newspaper will be my only touch with the school. I hope that good fortune follows its course. That's why I write this. I want to offer encouragement to the one link that binds me to Villanova. Keep it strong.

A Senior.

Austin Hall,
May 21st, 1948.

Villanova, Pa.

Dear Sir,

I hope that you find room to publish this. I would like to make an appeal to fellow-students with regard to summer occupations. I myself have a good job but I've heard a lot of fellows speaking of not being able to find employment.

Many other students know of jobs open at the places where they work. Perhaps they could post notices on the bulletin boards and give the other fellows a break. Something like that would be a great help.

A lot of fellows are working at the ocean-side resorts. Many are working in the mountains as waiters and porters. If they know of any openings, it might not harm if other fellows were to apply. There would be the added advantage of working with fellows from the same school.

Sincerely yours,
Sophomore Student.

Rear Admiral James L. Holloway, Jr., Superintendent of the Naval Academy at Annapolis, will receive the honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters, and on this occasion the N.R.O.T.C. unit of Villanova will parade. The NROTC maneuvers are expected to add an exciting note to the exercises.

The Hon. Eugene L. Garey, attorney, of New York, who will receive the honorary degree of LL.D., will be the featured speaker of the day. Attorney Garey's record speaks of a wealth of knowledge and experience in the field of law and business.

Born in Chicago, Illinois, in 1891, he graduated from the Chicago-Kent College of Law with a degree of LL. B. He was admitted to the Bar in the same year, 1913. Since then, his career in the field of law and business has been brilliant. Mr. Garey has been exceedingly active in the New York Legislature, and his articles have been read before many august groups including the Hague Court. A few of his well-known articles are "Wall Street Looks at the S.E.C.", "The Part that the Catholic Layman Should Play in the Tomorrow of Post-War America." Mr. Garey resides in Mount Kisco, New York, and maintains his office at 63 Wall Street, New York City.

Don Collins, Liberal Arts student, by virtue of his outstanding record in studies and extra-curricular activities, has been named Valedictorian of his class.

The Commencement schedule is as follows:

8:00 a.m.—Baccalaureate services in the College Chapel; Solemn High Mass of Thanksgiving.

10:30 a.m.—Academic Procession (forms at Commerce and Finance.)

PRESIDENT CELEBRATES MASS

Convocation Opens Year; Enrollment Sets Record

Faculty Appointments Made; Departmental Changes Announced

"Men of Villanova, you are not here to get an education; you are here to get a Villanova education." This exacting statement was part of an address given at the opening Mass, September 21, by the Very Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., President of Villanova College. In further comments Father McGuire subdivided a Villanova education into three phases: intellectual, moral, and spiritual, stating that a failure to develop in any one of these categories renders the Villanova education incomplete.

Mass was celebrated by Father McGuire before a well-filled Field House. The Rev. Edward B. McKee, O.S.A., Vice-Presdent of the college, was decaon, Rev. Edward M. Dwyer, O.S.A., Dean of the college, sub-deacon, and Rev. Edwin T. Grimes O.S.A., College Chaplain, master of ceremonies. The seminary choir was under the direction of Rev. Ralph A. Handran, O.S.A.

In conjunction with opening day exercises Father McGuire announced that a record 2500 students had matriculated. Administration and faculty changes were also published by the President's office.

Rev. Joseph I. Boyle, O.S.A., former Registrar, has been appointed Assistant Dean, while Rev. John S. McDonnell, O.S.A., assumes the duties of Acting Registrar. Rev. Edward J. McCarthy, O.S.A., is Dean of the School of Arts and Sciences.

Departmental changes include Rev. Edward M. Dwyer O.S.A., who takes on the additional duties of Chairman of the Department of Philosophy, Rev. Robert M. Sullivan, O.S.A., Chairman of the Department of English.

The additions to the faculty are listed as follows:

BUILDING CHANGES CONFUSE STUDENTS

Two weeks ago, returning Villanovans were surprised by many and varied changes in the appearance of the college buildings on the interior and exterior. Most of the items are completed, and the remaining are to be finished very soon.

The most striking improvement was the readiness for use of the Chemical Engineering Bldg., and Commodore John Barry Hall, the Naval Science Bldg., and the completion of the exterior of the new library. The front of the library features a patio suitable for outdoor collegiate ceremonies.

Other exterior work included widening the driveway just inside the Spring Mill Road gate, conversion of the small triangular parking lot into a grassy island, and the conversion of the Mendel courtyard into a paved faculty auto-parking lot. Disconcerting to many was the apparent moat across the entire campus down to the Field House, however, available sources announced the laying of a new electric conduit to the Field House, assuring better power and lighting service to the building.

Near the new Pie Shop a barber shop has been installed in the former construction shack which was coved to the new location. A new roof has been built on the struc-

WVIL TO BROADCAST FROM NEW STUDIOS

Plan Wider Program for Listeners

Villanova's new radio transmitting station will open its doors on October 18th. This information was released today by Tom Sullivan, director of campus broadcast activities.

WVIL has moved its apparatus from last year's crowded quarters, a virtual linen closet in Austin Hall, to a spacious two-studio suite in the new barber shop building. The entire studio has been acoustically treated for sound amplification and contains a master control system.

In addition to disc shows is both the popular and symphonic vein, informative spot announcements and news broadcasts will be carried. The 1948 program schedule will include "live" dramatic and musical presentations. Many of the new attractions will be performed with the assistance of girls from nearby colleges.

All programs will be directed by Bob Resnick, who has assumed the duties of production manager for the station. Other persons holding station positions include Bryan McLarnon, assistant station manager, and John Kane who handles the engineering chores.

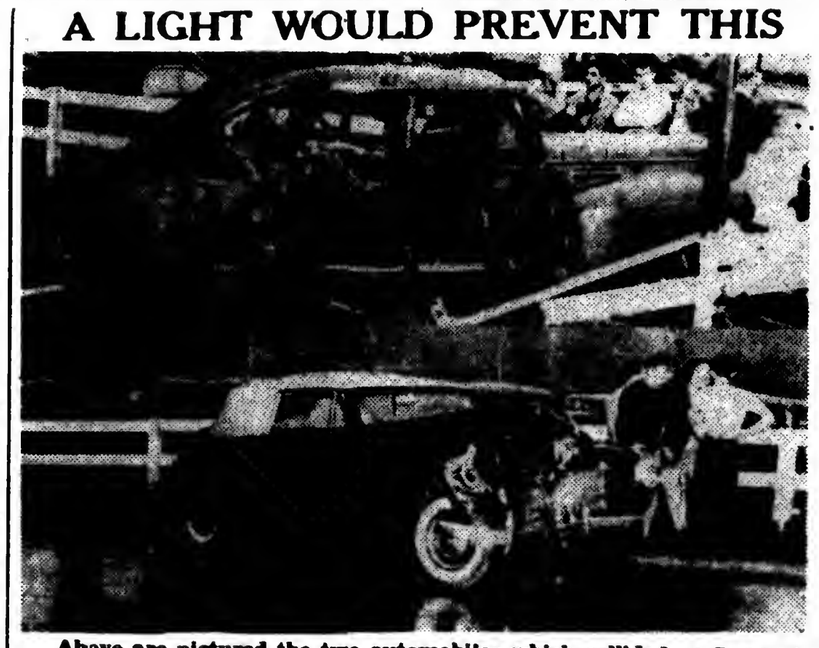
Programs will be broadcast from 7 to 9 in the morning and from 9 to 11 in the evenings. No Saturday or Sunday broadcasts are planned.

Sophs Meet to Plan Dance

The Class of '51, in preparation for the annual Sophomore Cotillion to be held Oct. 23, called a meeting of the official dance committees Wednesday, Sept. 29. Chairman of the Steering Committee, John Currie, presided. Class President George Schuster officiated.

Preparation for the Cotillion was made the subject of a report by the chairmen of the several committees. In attendance were members of the Class of '51 who volunteered to assist with the working of the various committees.

The theme of the Cotillion was the chief subject of discussion among members of the committees.



Team Sendoff Set for 3:30 Tomorrow

Tomorrow the Villanova "Wildcat" football team will entrain for Miami, Florida, where they meet the University of Miami squad Friday night. All students who do not have class are requested to give the squad a sendoff from Villanova station at 3:35 P. M.

Following the contest, the team will go directly to Boston to face a strong Boston College eleven. The Boston game, scheduled for Friday, October 15, will be played under the lights of Braves Field.

The next home game will be played at Shibe Park, November 12, when the Blue-White will face Georgetown University.

A LIGHT WOULD PREVENT THIS

Accident Accelerates Student Demand For Second Traffic Light

For the past several years the VILLANOVAN has led the student body in appealing to local and state officials for adequate traffic light protection on Lancaster Pike.

The issue has been hashed and re-hashed, repeatedly buried and again brought to light, and finally, compromised. At one of the heavily trafficked pedestrian crossings a light has been authorized. But that is not enough!

The need for an additional light at Ithan Road is critical—nothing short of that! The squealing tires, the crunching metal, the splintering glass, and the bleeding victims all bear evidence far more effectively than our petition, that we need that other light!

The officials do not wish to slow traffic on the main highway, but, gentlemen, what do you really want? It is true that speed is desirable for more efficient movement of vehicular traffic, but must we risk bodily injury for the few added miles per hour achieved through absence of protection?

Last Thursday afternoon another in a long series of accidents occurred at that intersection. Several of our fellow students were severely injured. The curve and the hill at the west approach to the crossing make the movement of the opposing stream of cars particularly hazardous, the two prominent "slow" signs are largely ignored by east-bound drivers and both pedestrians and motorists who attempt to cross the Pike are often in trouble. The need for periodic interruption of the east-west traffic is greatest when an activity in the field house or stadium increases the volume of cars using the parking field. Entering or leaving the parking lot by foot or in cars is an extremely dangerous undertaking. A traffic light is the only solution. In that lies our safety.

We again put the question to you. The victims of previous accidents, the frequency of the accidents show beyond a doubt that a traffic light at Lancaster Pike and Ithan Road is a "must".

PETITION

I, ... (name), a student at Villanova, feel that a traffic light at the Field House Intersection is necessary to the safety of all those that use it.

Address (campus or home) .....

Number of times I use the above mentioned intersection in a day .....

VILLANOVA PRESIDENT WELCOMES STUDENTS

In the first edition of the Villanovan for the new school year, Father McGuire, in the name of the Administration and Faculty of the College, wishes to extend to all students a word of welcome.

"This message carries with it a significance to which no previous school year could lay such strong claim. It has long been recognized as a year of decision.

The scholastic year of 1948-1949 will bring such changes into the life of every student, that the College welcomes the opportunity, entrusted to it by students and their parents, to play such an important role in this development.

To all Seniors who are preparing for graduation we wish to convey our very best wishes. With a prayer of thanks to God, with a deep sense of gratitude to our country, we are proud to see you taking the final steps toward becoming full-grown sons of Villanova. May your energy and enthusiasm not flag in this final stage which will mean so much in the new beginning after graduation.

Those young men who have just begun their College careers are recommended to the Special care of all teachers and upperclassmen. It is to be emphasized that our present Freshmen may be facing grave responsibilities, no less burdensome than those borne courageously by previous classes. An uninterrupted college carrer cannot be promised to them. Such prospects for our youngest students will certainly arouse a sympathetic and helpful response in the hearts of all Villanovan men who have met the same challenge and were not found wanting.

Every hour of this school year assumes therefore an importance which cannot be overestimated. which cannot be overestimated. You are key men in the strengthening, and perhaps even in the protection of our Christian civilization. It is a pleasure to realize that you will be with us and we shall be with you in carrying out a task, which at first seemed frightening, but now appears inspiring."

Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A.

Modern-Day Crusade

Forty-thousand men marching for Christ . . . That's what the people of Philadelphia will see this coming Sunday afternoon. The parishes of the city and environs, joining together their Holy Name Societies, will be individually represented by these thousands of men.

These men, the heads of their families, will give stirring public testimony of their faith and belief in God. As America's reputation for moral laxness becomes ever worse, the Catholic men come out and show their respect and regard for God's Holy Name. They set the example that others might follow.

Watching them parade will be other thousands of people. All this reminds one of the cruades of old, crusades conducted in God's name. The marching men, carrying their lighted candles, are representative of the Catholic world and the work it has to perform. Yes, the crusader's raimant may have changed, but the need for him has remained. It will remain as long as there are those who know there is a God but choose not to follow His teachings and abide in Him.

Next Sunday afternoon, we of Villanova, could hardly find a better place to spend our time, observing and, yes, even taking part in this modern day crusade.

Radio—Here and Abroad

A familiar voice that we've all become accustomed to during the past scholastic year has been quite silent up to now. However, this is understandable—since this "voice", the voice of Villanova College, WVIL, is in the process of moving to bigger and better quarters in the rear of Charlie's new and larger hair abattoir. Unable to replace their summer fill-in at the same time as Bob Hope, the station staff look forward to a year that should witness progress over last year's noble experiment.

And since the limelight of entertainment interest is at present upon radio both here on the campus and abroad, a word is herewith spoken out against this "best friend of man" with its commercials, its giant jackpots, it orchids to old ladies, its soap operas, its humiliating quiz shows, its midnight jazz orgies, its quip-cracking private eyes. Is there any end to its torment?

It is quite curious to note that these recent years that have seen the radio raised to an instrument of near-perfection have also witnessed the decline of quality programs to a negligible few. Symphony orchestras have been squeezed out by bop combos; the opera by football games, and educational programs by quiz shows of which Fred Allen has said recently, "They quickly establish the stupidity of the contestant, and then pay him $20,000 to get him off the air."

Never before in the history of the race has man had his present facilities for being informed. And yet, has Mankind ever been more misinformed? These are fearful days we live in, but it is even more tragic that we don't don't realize just what our position is. If this were not so, could any sensible person fail to see the incongruity between the news analysis filled with impending doom and the following program of variety comedy with its cheap wit and timed applause? But all this would be forgivable if there would be only some escape. You don't have to buy a newspaper. You don't have to go to a movie, but where can you avoid the radio?

Now WVIL is hardly guilty of any of these accusations, especially the giant jackpot program. But it is hoped that the station keeps its standards high and that the ether during the coming year will carry a little more than Harry James and the ball scores. Maybe then we'll have some reprieve from the gremlins that harass the air waves. JOHN MURPHY.

75 YEARS OF DEVOTION

An aggregate of seventy-five years in the priesthood, and nearly as many at Villanova College, was recently completed by the Very Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, O.S.A., Rev. John A. Crawford O.S.A., and Rev. Joseph W. Paquette, O.S.A.

On September 22nd, a solemn high Mass was sung by Fr. Dougherty assisted by Fr. Crawford and Paquette in the Villanova Chapel in the presence of many distinguished hierarchy, guests, and well-wishers. The date marked the 25th anniversary of the Holy Priesthood for each of the distinguished educators.

The Very Rev. Dr. Joseph A. Hickey, O.S.A., Prior General of the Order, delivered the sermon commemorating the silver milestone of achievement of each celebrant.

All the publitarians were ordained on the same date, 25 years ago, in the same church, St. Thomas of Villanova. Fr. Dougherty was born in Haverford, Pa., and received his early schooling in Good Counsel Parochial School, Bryn Mawr. He later studied at Villanova and Catholic University where he obtained his Doctorate in Philosophy, and held various scientific teaching posts at Villanova and directorships on various Catholic hospital boards. At present, Fr. Dougherty is Prior of the Monastery at Villanova.

Fr. Paquette was born in Hyde Park, Mass., and studied at Souris H. S. and St. Dunstan College, Canada. He took graduate work at Catholic University and later did advanced work in Science at M.I.T. where he obtained his Master's degree. Since then he has been teaching in the faculties of Mathematics and Chemistry at the college.

Fr. Crawford was born in Tignish, Prince Edward Island, Canada, and attended St. Mary's parochial school in Lawrence, Mass. He studied at Catholic U. and did graduate work in Physics at Johns Hopkins U. Upon completing his studies there he returned to Villanova where he has been Head of Department in Physics.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editor of the Villanovan,
Villanova Office
Villanova College,
Villanova, Pa.

Dear Sir,

Villanova is doing big things, constructing new buildings, handling a record enrollment and playing football against some of the biggest teams. Everything is at its highest ebb. Yes, everything BUT the students' spirit.

At the Texas A. and M. game cheers roared only after a touchdown. The Frosh seemed to be the only ones interested when the game wasn't all ours. We were lucky. The team won it themselves. They got very little support from the stands. However, the following week we weren't as lucky. Remember ???, Army 28, Villanova 0. There was a large crowd of "Cats" up at West Point BUT THEY DID NOT BACK UP THE TEAM.

Now is all of this the students' fault? I think not. It is up to the student government to promote activities which will cultivate that spirit. With no cheerleaders at Army how could we cheer. The rally to send off the team folded up. Why? Because it was planned too late.

I think it would be of more profit to the school and students if you, as editor of the Villanovan, would publish the facts and help promote that which Villanova is lacking most—SCHOOL SPIRIT.

Sincerely yours,
A SICK 'CAT.

VILLAN CHARIOT

The Villanova-Texas A. & M. game witnessed the initial appearance of the cheerleader's special, a Villan Chariot. The flashy convertible, of dubious vintage and original color appeared on the playing field in a glowing coat of white and blue.

This car, the pride and joy of George Weber, one of the cheerleaders, will be used at Villanova's football games.

Upper-classmen remember that this same car, attired in a Chinese red finish, last year saw action at all home games. During the halftime, the wildcat cage was hooked behind the car and towed across the field. There the wildcat was paraded before the visitors. The car finished the '47 football season at the Georgetown game, bedecked with crepe paper, "Beat Georgetown" signs, balloons, and a large portrait of a wildcat fastened above the windshield.

Because the auto had become such a familiar sight at the games the cheerleaders decided to use it again this year. Instead of leaving it red they painted it blue and white, the college colors. As many already know, the "Special" has been equipped with horns and bells, ranging from the fog horn variety to the clanging gong of a fire engine.

Both the wildcat, Count Villan III, and the car have contributed toward the growing school spirit shown by all of the undergraduates.

Villanovan Moves Offices To C & F Building

The Villanovan Office, a long-established Mendel Hall landmark, is no longer located there. Because of the expansion of administrative office, the Villanovan has been moved and now shares quarters with the Belle Air in the basement of the Commerce and Finance Building.

The new location affords little working space, but this situation will be somewhat remedied by alterations scheduled to begin this week. The Villanovan retains the same phone number: Bryn Mawr 1880 Ext. 37. The Chaplain's Office occupies the newsmen's former quarters.

YOUR CLASS PRESIDENT SPEAKS

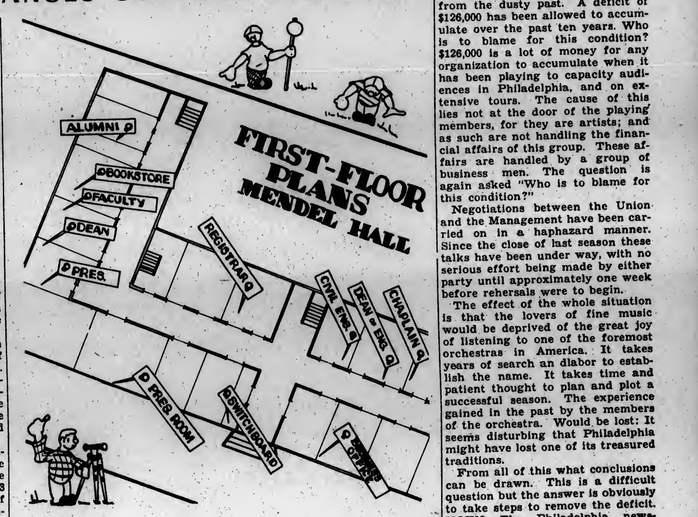
ture which also houses the new studios of the campus radio station, WVIL. Between the Barber Shop-Studio Bldg. and the Pie Shop a parking lot has been laid out for the use of the faculty.

Perhaps the reshuffling of the first-floor offices in Mendel Hall has caused confusion especially to the upperclassmen. Many changes were made to accommodate the changing needs of a growing institution and to streamline administrative processes. Generally, the changes are indicated in Leo Dodd's cartoon on page three of this issue of the Villanovan.



The Alumni office and Placement Bureau are located in Room 102, a change from the former second-floor quarters; Bell Air Book Store remains in Room 103; new Faculty Room in Room 104; the Dean of Men and Assistant Dean of Men occupy offices entered through the door marked 105.

Room 106 houses the Reception Room shared by the Secretaries of the President and the Dean of Men. The President's suite has been removed to Room 108. The Registrar's office is entered through the door numbered 110, while the Records Room has been located close by, in Room 111.

At present Room 112 is unassigned, and some renovations are expected to take place before the room is ready for use. Room 113 will house the office of the Dean of Arts and Sciences. A new switchboard and information center is being set up in Room 117 in what used to be the office of the Dean of Men, to one side of the entrance to the building.

The Professors of Civil Engineering will occupy Room 118, with the Dean of Engineering next door in Room 119. His secretary's office is being readied in Room 120. Room 121 is in use as the Chaplain's office. The Business office remains in the same location, Room 122. Room 130 has been remodeled and is now the Ladies' Lounge, for the use of the secretarial staffs and women visitors at the College.

Student activities will revolve about the headquarters of the Dean of Student Activities located in the former Alumni office, on the second floor of Mendel Hall, next door to the Vice-President's office. The editorial offices of the Villanovan have been moved to the basement of the C&F building, from Mendel Hall, to the former office of the Belle Air Yearbook. Other changes and improvefents will be listed next week.

To all new students, freshmen, and the never ending chain of returning vets . . . a hearty "Welcome aboard." As they tell us, there will be 2513 students on hand so it'll be just a little bit mobbed, (as if one didn't know). Seriously though we do feel that all you new students have a terrific heritage to live up to—you got to get in there and drive, pound and hammer to live up to that great name. (Thank you, Pat O'Brien).

A little about us. Here in the 5th column we try to cover everyon or about the campus; usually end up with very little. To the upperclassmen, the 5th is old stuff. The pseudo-intellects hate us, the "Gay Illiterates" eat it up—but the last laugh is all ours—At Villanova, everybody reads the 5th.

Incidentally, our esteemed co-author of last year, one, Frank J. McBride, has left the field of "journalism" for an even tougher racket, campus politics a la student council.

Football

with three big games statched away in the notebook of Paul Williamson, it's time, before a look to the future, to take inventory of the 2-1 record.

The A&M game, if you were biased, was a real thriller—especially that 34-14 score. The lack of a hot passing game by the Aggies was well compensated by the accurate chuckin' of Billy Doherty & Andy Gordon.

The least said about the Army nightmare, we hear, the better off the overall situation appears. But we think game Captain Lou Ferry summed the whole thing up for us nicely. "That was the toughest Army team I've ever played against"—and that was his fourth.

But the guy the fans are looking for, aside from Mr. AT&T, is Longshot Lew, the announcer, who insisted, even after the third period, to quote ". . . You can't count that Army team out of this game . . . "

The Duquesne game, was as expected, a slow builder upper after a big letter downer. This week, Coach Olivar leads the troops into the southlands to meet Andy Gustafson's Miami eleven.

Now, we wouldn't want to say that last year's Miami team was all out to play one big game, viz Villa., but anyone that saw or heard of that party—better yet Hurricane, that hit the Adelphia after the 7-7 tie, would wonder if the southerners had the rest of their schedule to play out. As it turned out, Miami had a horrible season after coming to Philly. Ergo, it's not to far fetched to imagine that they'll be all out again this year.

Allentown Bulldogs

If you want to see a good football game with lots of old faces, our recommendation is to take in one of Allentown pro games. Old faces, you say . . . There's Bill Carlin, Tom Smith, Billy Sullivan, Zip Zehler, Chick Welde Bill Killenthal, George Schreiber, George Schlieker, Joe Tuminc, Frank Temple, Al Barker, Billy Wolfe, and Cap Capriotti. To date they have won 3—lost one.

Under the heading of "How embarrassed can one be," a Lehigh-footballer told us this one. It seems that F&M, pressed for material, wrote to Lehigh asking for permission to use freshmen for the coming game. The boys from Lehigh felt pretty good about all this and OK'ed the deal. But on game day, the whole thing backfired. F&M, freshmen and all dumped Lehigh for their season's opener.

TOWN TALK

By KAISER AND RICHARD

For the second time in six months the music-loving public of Philadelphia has been dealt a severe blow, first the Robin Hood Dell, then the Philadelphia Orchestra affair. This unhappy "Gotterdammerung" of the field of music has been caused by a situation arising not from the present but from the dusty past. A deficit of $126,000 has been allowed to accumulate over the past ten years. Who is to blame for this condition? $126,000 is a lot of money for any organization to accumulate when it has been playing to capacity audiences in Philadelphia, and on extensive tours. The cause of this lies not at the door of the playing members, for they are artists; and as such are not handling the financial affairs of this group. These affairs are handled by a group of business men. The question is again asked "Who is to blame for this condition?"

Negotiations between the Union and the Management have been carried on in a haphazard manner. Since the close of last season these talks have been under way, with no serious effort being made by either party until approximately one week before rehersals were to begin.

The effect of the whole situation is that the lovers of fine music would be deprived of the great joy of listening to one of the foremost orchestras in America. It takes years of search an diabor to establish the name. It takes time and patient thought to plan and plot a successful season. The experience gained in the past by the members of the orchestra. Would be lost: It seems disturbing that Philadelphia might have lost one of its treasured traditions.

From all of this what conclusions can be drawn. This is a difficult question but the answer is obviously to take steps to remove the deficit. HOW? The Philadelphia newspapers have done little to aid the orchestra. They merely run the advertisements from week to week and say little else. When the announcement of the deficit was made the whole story was carried on the back page. It seems that if people were aware of the situation they would have done something about it. But to have the people do something someone must show the way and organize the campaign. The newspapers are the prime movers for such a campaign.

It is beyond the comprehension of most people how the Philadelphia Orchestra can possibly have a deficit after so many successful seasons. It will be granted that there was a time when attendance was not quite what it should be. However, in recent years the orchestra has played to full houses. This seems to demand some sort of a survey by some outside "committee of 15" which has the orchestra's interest at heart. A survey should be given complete attention and action.

LYNX SUBSCRIPTIONS

Villanova's literary quarterly, THE LYNX, will open a subscription drive soon under the direction of Edward Krieg, circulation manager. The magazine's first issue, which appeared last June at the close of the school year, managed to escape the notice of most students.

In announcing the drive at a meeting last week, editor, Paul O'Brien, stated that Villanova has long lacked a publication of this nature. He pointed out that the success or failure of any such undertaking depends on response from a good portion of the student body.

Copies of the first issue will be made available to anyone interested in the project. Information pertaining to the aims and organization of the magazine will be presented at the same time.

REV. SHERMAN CONDUCTS ONE DAY RETREAT

Clanging school bells found no response of running feet and banging doors last Thursday morning. Deserted classrooms gave full testimony to the wholeheartedness with which residents and Day Hops embraced the opportunity to take advantage of the fall Retreat. The resumption of this activity, cancelled with the advent of a wartime accelerated programs was heralded as another step toward Villanova's return to pre-war standards.

Some 2000 students heard Rev. James G. Sherman, O.S.A., of the Augustinian Academy, Staten Island, New York, conduct the retreat.

Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, president of the College, was celebrant at the opening high mass. The professed of St. Mary's Hall chanted the responses.

College Chaplain, Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O.S.A., stated that it is the intention of the administration to continue this activity in the future.

Chapel Begins This Week For Residents

Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O.S.A., the college chaplain, announced that religious services for all resident students will be held at 6:45 P. M. nightly.

Freshmen and Sophomores are to attend chapel on Mondays and Wednesdays. On Tuesdays and Thursdays, Juniors and Seniors are expected to attend. All residents will attend Mass Friday mornings as usual.

Students may attend Mass at 12:10 daily.

First Fall Dances

Two victory dances, each an outstanding success, opened the Villanova social calendars for both the Alumni and the student body. The first of these was a fitting aftermath to Villanova's gridiron triumph over Texas A. & M. in its officially designated "home-coming" game of the season at Franklin Field, Philadelphia.

Five hundred couples crowded the dance floor of the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel on September 18th to dance to the music of Joe Grady and his orchestra. Through the efforts of the committee headed by Mr. John Simms of the Class of '38 the dance was not only an outstanding success socially, but financially as well.

This dance is only the first of a long schedule of activities for the '48-'49 season. The next event to be sponsored by the Villanova Club will be a dance of similar type to be presented at the Central City Hotel on a date to be announced later.

The second, but not the lesser of these dances, was the Autumn Hop which celebrated the victory over Duquesne. Students and their dates crowded the Villanova Field House to dance to the smooth and solid music as provided by the Villanovans. Many members of Villanova's football squad were also present to do some well-deserved celebrating.

The Student Council, which sponsored the event was gratified by the success, both social and financial and expressed its desire that the rest of the social year will meet with the same type of student cooperation.

'CATS SET FOR TEST WITH MIAMI

Joe Rogers, Villanova halfback, crosses the goal line for his second tally against Duquesne U. Syl Vanelli, number 53, leads the way while the Dukes center, Bill Waros tries vainly to catch the fleeting Rogers. 'Cats won 46-0.

Mainliners Win Twice At Home; Outclassed By Army, 28-0

Open Season with Win Over Texas — Cadets Too Strong

The Villanova "Wildcats" opened their 1948 football campaign three weeks ago and successfully defeated a hard fighting Texas A. & M. eleven, 34-14 at Franklin Field, before nearly 40,000 shirt-sleeved fans. The following Saturday however, a confident Blue and White squad traveled up the Hudson for the last time in the current series and fell easy prey to a surprisingly strong Army team 28-0.

Packed by diminutive Bill Doherty at quarterback and hard charging Ralph Pasquariello in the fullback slot, the minions of Coach Jordan Olivar were forced to come from behind the Aggies who had tallied on a spectacular pass interception by end Ray Whitaker in the opening minutes of play.

Following the score, the Mainliners came back strong with a sustained drive only to be halted by the visitors on the A. & M. 13. With 3 minutes remaining in the second period and the Aggies in possesion of the ball, the turning point in the battle came. Tackle Vince O'Sullivan recovered Bob Goode's fumble on the Aggie 20. From this point Bob Polidor skirted left end for 13 yards, and two tries later "Big Ralph" crossed the double strip for the first Villanova score of the season. Tom Clavin knotted the count at 7-all by converting the extra point.

The 'Cats came back with a real scoring barrage in the second half with Doherty, Bob Polidor and Pasquariello again leading the way. Following Doherty's punt return to the Aggie 40, Polidor and Joe Rogers shared ball-toting chores to bring the ball to the 5 where 225 lb. fullback Pasquariello plunged over for his second score. Clavin's placement was good and the 'Cats led 14-7.

The next Villanova score came when Doherty, working masterfully from the T, handed the ball to Pasquariello who scampered 25 yards to score standing up.

In the final stanza, Andy Gordon took over the quarterbacking chores and went to work throwing forward passes which accounted for the last two Wildcat scores. Early in the period Jack Bogan snared a Gordon aerial which picked up 9 yards and another 6 point. In the waning moments of the fray Gordon heaved a 20-yard pass to Rogers for Villanova's fifth and final touchdown.

The Aggies' Charlie Royalty accounted for the longest run of the

ARMY HARRIERS WIN; DEFEAT CATS 21-34

Ross Takes Easy First as Lack of Practice Hampers Team

Although paced by fast-stepping Olympic star Browning Ross the Villanova cross-country team bowed to Army 21-34 in a pre-football game meet held on Friday, the 24th. The "Cats" placed all five men in the first ten, but they could not cope with the power of the Cadets, who took the next four positions behind Ross—far behind Ross we might add. Jim Kennedy broke up this combination by taking sixth while George Thompson, Charlie McKee and Jim McGherin accounted for the balance of the tally, coming in eighth, ninth and tenth respectively.

Ross' victory came as no surprise, for, as every track fan knows he represented the U. S. A. in the 3000-meter steelpiechase in the past summer's Olympic Games, and distance running is his specialty. He took the lead at the gun and held it all the way over the hilly four-mile West Point course, without once being threatened.

This meet is not regarded as a fair test of the real power of the "Wildcats" by Coach Jim Elliott or any of the many Blue and White track fans. The team suffered from the lack of practice time, but by the time they meet New York University on October 16th, the club should show a greater amount of strength.

It is a veteran squad that represents Villanova this year since all the above mentioned men saw active duty on last year's team. There is reason to believe that with such experience they should surpass even last season's outstanding record.

Rogers & Guida Tally Twice to Lead in Victory Over Dukes

Last Saturday the Villanova football team, in an attempt to atone for their 28-0 setback at the hands of the U. S. Military Academy the previous week, ran roughshod over a mediocre University of Duquesne eleven to the tune of 46-0 before over 10,000 sweltering fans. The contest, or reasonable facsimile thereof, was the only one to be played by the Blue-White at the campus stadium this year.

The scoring parade, which started late in the first period and continued throughout the afternoon, was led by George Guida, Joe Rogers, each tallying twice, Bill Doherty, Ralph Pasquariello and Pete D'Alonzo, with one six-pointer each.

Doherty Tallies

Following the opening kickoff, the Olivarmen gave signs of things to come when they drove to the visitors' 4-yard line. However, the drive was halted when Doherty fumbled on a quarterback sneak. With only 3 minutes of play remaining in the period Mickey Frinzi took a Duquesne punt on his own 49 and deceptively handed the ball to Doherty who scampered down the sidelines untouched for the first Viallanova score. Tom Clavin, reserve fullback, missed the conversion and at the end of 15 minutes of play the 'Cats led 6-0.

In the second quarter the "Wildcats" took to the airlanes with Rogers on the receiving end of touchdown heaves from Andy Gordon and Doherty. On both plays Joe danced his way past the safety man and almost faked the defender out of his shoes. D'Alonzo added another T. D. on an off tackle slant from the one following Al Zimba's recovery of a Duquesne fumble.

Guida Stars

The third quarter brought two more scores and the most spectacular run of the day. Guida, famed far and wide for his outstanding track record took a pitch-out from Niel O'Boyle and raced 75 yards into the end zone for his first score as a pigskin carrier. Previous to this Pasquariello ran wide to score from the four.

In the final stanza Steve Romanick, a demond on defense, came into his own as a passer when he flipped a 27-yard aerial to Guida for the final Villanova score. Steve set up the touchdown by intercepting a pass near midfield and ran it back to the Duquesne 30.

150'S START DRILLS UNDER COACH MILLER

Kittens Set for Great Season; Face Princeton Oct. 16

Forty candidates, including sixteen lettermen, turned out for the first practice session of the Villanova 150-lb. football team last Tuesday. Preparing for their October 16th meeting with Princeton, the Kittens, who are again using the single-wing formation, spent most of their time limbering up and doing calisthenics.

Coach Miller an Algebra teacher, taking over the reigns so capably held by Milt Anderson, Dave Ryan, and Vince O'Donnell last year, expressed the usual pessimism of the coaching ranks, bemoaning the loss of seven starters. His rebuilding task will be centered around little Bob Fitzmyer, center and captain of the Kittens, who was voted the outstanding player on the 150-lb. team last year.

Actually, the outlook isn't too bad, and if the team can match its last year's record of losing only one (to Navy), the season will naturally be considered a success.

Since the first game will be played at Princeton, local fans will have to wait until Oct. 30th to see the Kittens in action. On that date, Navy comes to town and a great game should be in store as the Kittens seek to avenge last season's only defeat to the league champions.

Due to the difference in schedules, Coach Miller will be working under a great hardship, but he plans to work on plays next week, holding off scrimmage until a week later.

The schedule:

October 16—Princeton (away).
October 30—Navy (home).
November 5—Rutgers (away).
November 12—Cornell (home).
November 19—Penn (away).

Former Army Coach Installs "T"

By JAMES PLUNKETT

Tomorrow afternoon, Jordan Olivar's Wildcats entrain for Florida where they will meet the University of Miami in the second of a series of intersectional battles. Coached by Andy Gustafson, the Hurricanes will play host to Villanova this Friday under the lights of Miami's Orange Bowl.

Last Spring, with Jack Harding taking over the fulltime chores of Athletic Director, Andy Gustafson came down from the United States Military Academy at West Point to install the Army 'T' formation at the University of Miami.

Though faced with the rugged job of installing the new system with its emphasis on deception and deft ball handling, Coach Gustafson has made long strides since last spring with a team which had been assembled primarily because of its capabilities in executing the power attack. And though the Hurricanes this Friday night will naturally be lacking in the finesse which comes only with experience, the Wildcats will be facing no bungling beginners at the T.

Miami was rather hard hit by graduation and ineligibility, losing men from last year's squad. Wildcat rooters can be thankful for the loss of such linemen as ends Ed Hauck and Tony Yovicain, who was named to the 'Cats all opponent team guard, George Carifeo; centers, Hal Schuler, Keith Doyle and Bob Sutter and, backs Ernie Mazejka, Sam Dermigny; and half-backs, Hal Johnston, Ed Injaychock and Al Kasulin. They were all first-string men last year, and Coach Gustafson has been hard put trying to replace them.

A rundown of the positions would probably be the best indicator of what to expect this weekend. Two veterans are slated to defend the ends, 6-foot, 6-inch Ralph Rieler, and Ed Moyer, a steady senior with four years of varsity ball under his belt. Miami's end posts are weaker this year than last as the loss of two first-rate wingmen of the caliber of Yovicain and Hauck is bound to be felt.

With the return of Art Saey and Ernie Settembre, first string tackles last year, the Hurricanes seem to have no tackle worries. Al Carapella, a Tuckahoe, N. Y., sophomore, who was switched from fullback to tackle, last spring, also figures prominently in that spot.

Olive Shrader, sensational Miami U. halfback, is a holdover from last year's eleven. In the 1947 finale Shrader, outran and outpassed All-American Harry Gilmer of Alabama. This triple-threat star is expected to be one of the mainstays of the 1948 edition of the Hurricanes.

Ross and Guida, Villanova Trackmen, Carry American Colors in Olympics

During the past summer, Villanova received an honor accorded only two colleges in the world. A pair of truly great trackmen, George Guida and Browning Ross, not only were members of the United States Olympic team which traveled to London, England, but also reached the finals in their respective events, the 440-meters, and 3,000-meter steeplechase.

The fine sportsmanship and performances of both Guida and Ross in the Olympic tryouts, the games themselves, and the post-Olympic contests are a shining tribute to themselves, their school, and their coach, Jim Elliot.

Before either athlete could become a member of the Olympic team, he had first to qualify in the National Collegiate Meet, the National A. A. U., and finally the Olympic tryouts. In the first two of these meets, the first six men in each event qualified for the tryouts. The first three in the tryouts then became members of the team representing the United States at the XIV Olympiad.

At the first of the trial meets, the National Collegiate at Minneapolis, Guida was competing against the country's foremost middle-distance runners in the 400-meter. Here he qualified by placing fifth. George then went on to the National A. A. U., since, although he had already become eligible for the tryouts, he needed more competition as he had been out most of the season due to a leg injury.

After placing sixth at Milwaukee, Guida then proceeded to the Olympic tryouts where he took third place behind Mal Whitfield of Ohio State and Dave Bloen, of Colorado.

Ross also qualified for the tryouts by winning the 3000-meter Steeplechase at Minneapolis. Browning then went on to the National A. A. U. where he placed third, and finally to Evanston, Illinois for the Olympic tryouts in which he took the runner-up position. Bob McMillan of the Los Angeles Athletic Club and Bill Overton of Auburn also qualified.

Having qualified for the Olympic team, Ross and Guida then left with 63 other track and field men aboard the S. S. America for the XIV Olympiad at Empire Stadium in Wembley, London.

Of the two, Guida was the first to compete. George stayed in the running throughout the gruelling trials and in one of the heats, hit 48 seconds flat. In the final, which included the fleetest 400-meter men in the world, he finished sixth; sixth best in the entire world.

Ross' final came immediately after Guida's, and Browning, who had finished fourth in one of the three trial heats, then faced eleven of the world's top steeplechase men. Included in this array of distance runners was Erik Elmsater, of Sweden, holder of the world's record of 8:59.6. Ross placed seventh in the 3000 meter steeplechase championship of the world.

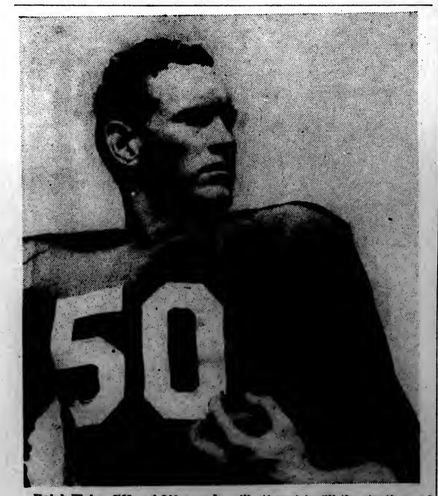
After their fine Olympic performances, both Browning and George went on two greater triumphs in post-Olympic meets in Ireland, England, and on the Continent.

The first of these was the British Empire Meet at the White City Stadium. Here the United States team defeated the entire British Empire by the score of 9½ to 3½. At White City the medley relay team of Guida, Bourland, Cochran and Whitfield won, as did the two-mile steeplechase team of Ross, Ault, Overton and Kirk.

From England the two Villanovans went to Paris for the French Internationale with France, Italy, Australia, and the United States competing.

Guida ran with Bolen, Harden and Chambers in the mile relay and the 1600 meter relay. Both races were won by the Americans in 5:11 and 3:10.9 respectively with Guida turning in a sensational 46.8 anchor leg in the 600.

In Paris, Ross, again running in the 3000-meter steeplechase won in the good time of 9:24.9.



After Paris, Browning went to Ireland for meets at Dublin and Belfast. In the rain and on a grass track at Dublin, Ross was second in 4:19 to Barry, Ireland's champion, in the mile run He also ran with the winning sprint medley team of Mathias, Elschner and Harnden.

Ross' last meet at Belfast was also held in the rain and on a grass track, but here he won the mile in the same time of 4:19. Besides the mile, Browning ran the 880 leg of the sprint medley with Wright, Thompson and Harnden in which the Americans easily won from the Jamaicans.

In the meantime Guida has gone on to Prague, Czechslovakia, where he won the 400 meter in 47.5 and anchored the first place American team in the 1600-meter relay.

George's last meet was at Strasburg, France where he cleaned up by winning the 100, 200, 400 and anchoring the first-place mile relay team.

Throughout these meets George and Browning received numerous trophies, plaques and medals which they so richly deserved for their outstanding performances. The faculty, the school, their coach and their teammates are truly proud of these two fine athletes and gentlemen.

Ralph Fieler, 6'6" and 240 pounds, will attempt to fill the starting end birth which was vacated by Tony Yovicaln, a Villanova All-Opponent selection of 1947. The big Sophomore showed fine promise in pre-season drills and should prove rough to the visiting "Wildcats".

Ollie's Comments

By Coach Jordan Olivar

The Duquesne game is the kind of game that every coach enjoys to have crop up on the schedule once in a while. We had expected a hard battle inasmuch as the "Dukes" had won easily in their first two starts and we were nursing our bruises from the Army affair. Several starters were slated to see very little action because of injuries. It was a relief to be able to send in a full crew of Sophmores to carry on.

Some of the Sophs did an excellent job. One of the greatest performances of the afternoon was probably unnoticed by the spectators. That was the role of Dom Pendino on defense. He made a lot of gain-saving tackles and did a fair piece of work on pass defense.

Pendino Blocks Two Men

His outstanding bit of the day was his blocking on our first score when Billy Doherty went fifty yards on a punt return after a handoff from Mickey Frinzi. Dom blocked the first man down, knocking him off his feet completely. Then he got up and as another would be tackler was about to grab Doherty, he put on another cruncher to release Billy on the sidelines. It's hard to evaluate this one play but it was definitely the turning point in the game as before that we had muffed two chances to score.

It was quite a pleasure to see George Guida turn in a good performance too. He never gave up on that long run even though at the outset it looked as though he might be thrown for a long loss. Then, when he apparently trapped, he really turned on the speed.

The entire line did a good defensive job with Bob Riley, George Pavalko, and Danny Brown being very consistant.

Rogers, Frinzi Star

In the backfield our two left halfbacks were going to town. Joe Rogers showed a return of his 1946 form with two fine touchdown runs and when he wasn't in there little Mickey Frinzi was speeding and sidestepping to sizeable gains.

Despite the lopsided score, we still have a lot of work to do if we are to keep winning against future opponents. Johnny McKenna and Jerry Neri scouted the Miami team and they said that Miami looks exactly like Army. The game at this point looks like a toss-up. We'll call heads! (Does anyone have a two-headed coin??).

Miami Preview

Gustafson will probably start Mario De Marco and John Ferguson at guards. Ferguson is another fullback who was switched to the line last spring. Plenty of reserve help will be available from Tom Flynn, a West Catholic alumnus, Lee Wilson and Sam David.

Art Davies is the only center of note that Miami has, and even he is playing the position for the first time. Besides losing Doyle, Schuler and Sutter, Wally Lutz quit school while Bob Hopler is lost for the season with a neck injury, so actually, the Hurricanes have lost five centers.

With the Davies switch, a clean sweep was also made of the 1947 quarterbacks. To handle the key position in the T, Carl Mosso, a former halfback, Jack DeBello and Dave McDonald will share the duties.

At the remaining backfield posts the Hurricanes can afford to be optimistic. They think they have a real threat in the person of Clive Shrader, who in last season's final game against Alabama, outpassed and outran All American Harry Gilmer. Gustafson can count on Bob Bowman, Joe Krull, and Al Hudson, at the other halfback posts, all veterans of the 1947 campaign. He also has a promising freshman, Elmer Smith.

Bob Campbell will get the nod as the starting fullback. At 166 pounds, he's one of the lightest fullbacks in the country. Harry Ghaul, who was relegated to a punting role last year because he was out of condition, looked terrific in spring practice and if he returns to form, Campbell will have the relief that he needs. Ghaul not only led the nation in punts in 1945 but he was also one of the top scorers with an even 100 points.

The 'Cats should have their hands full this Friday but if Andy Gustafson hasn't brought the Army team with him, the outcome should be favorable and Villanova should have their victory of the campaign.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

This Friday's Contest Is No Push-Over — Here's Why:

If Miami were a hopeless bunch of misfits—which by the way they aren't — Villanova's most ardent rooters still would be dubious of the outcome of this Friday's contest purely because Earl Blaik's former backfield coach is now directing the Hurricane's football fortunes. And even if the 'Cats win this Friday and break the jinx which Army (and Gustafson for that matter) has held over them, there's bound to be a little sadness as Villanova has had their last crackat West Point—at least for a while.

Every Villanova football fan knows Andy Gustafson. He was the coach of the greatest backfield combination in West Point gridiron annals . . . Arnold Tucker, Doc Blanchard, Glenn Davis and Rip Rowan. His well-trained football perfectionists crossed Villanova's goal line no less than 31 times in 5 years.

Gustafson played under 'Pop' Warner and the late Jock Sutherland at Pitt in the early 20's. In 1926, he went to V. P. I. as head coach. In '30, he returned to Pitt as backfield coach under Sutherland. In 1934, Andy was named to the same position at Dartmouth under Earl Blaik—the beginning of a highly successful combination. When Blaik went to Army in 1941, Andy tagged along. There he remained for seven years including the "golden ages" in West Point football history—1944 through 1946.

When Jack Harding, Gustafson's former backfield running mate at Pitt was promoted to the position of Athletic Director, Andy accepted the coaching job at Miami and went out on his own for the first time since 1933. He's had plenty of opportunity to use all the creative ability at his command as Miami hasn't the material Army had—oops, I mean has.

Under Harding, the Hurricanes used the single wing. Gustafson has installed the Army T with all its variations. In fact, this is the third straight year that Miami will be throwing a different formation at Jordan Olivar's 'Cats. In 1946, the 'Canes used variations of the old Pitt single wing. Last year, Harding employed an L-formation, something of a cross between the single wing and the T, and now, this year, the Wildcats will have the Army T to face.

The Miami squad isn't particularly big. Their backfield of Carl Mosso, Joe Krull, Bob Campbell and Clive Shrader average slightly under 170 lbs, while the forward wall tips the beams at an even 200 with tackle Ernie Settembre, the "Humphrey" of the squad at 235. Miami also has another Army alumnus to plague the Wildcats. Arnold Tucker, who has tamed the 'Cats on more than one occasion, is on deck to aid the Hurricanes, but fortunately he'll be on the sidelines. Tucker, a former Miami high athlete, played for the 'Canes in 1943 before entering West Point, and as a passing and running ace of a Miami eleven which won 5 while dropping only 1.

A quick look at the roster reveals that Harry Ghaul is back. Ghaul has been slightly less than terrific in his three years at Miami. Usually looked upon only as a punter par excellence, he led the squad in rushing yardage gained last year with a 5.85 average in 53 tries. In the punting department Ghaul has written his name into the record book three years in a row. In '45, he had a 40.6 average in 73 tries to top the nation in that department; in '46 he did even better as far as averages go with a 42.1 on 57 attempts, but that was only good enough for third place in the nation. Last year, he again posted a 40.6 average on 63 tries, and got off the longest kick in the school's history — a 77-yard boot against Florida.

Gustafson really has a sleeper in Clive Shrader. Last season as a freshman, he returned 6 punts for 339 yards and a phenomenal 56.5 averages.

The "Hurricanes" experienced no trouble in winning handily over Rollins College last Friday night, 25-0. In the words of Jerry Neri, who scouted the Miami-Rollins contest, "For team which has made a complete change from the single wing to the Army T, Miami showed a great deal of deception. Of course, Gustafson hasn't the men to work with that he had while at Army, but he does have a fast backfield and the game this Friday night at the Orange Bowl will be close and hard fought all the way."

day and A. & M.'s second score when he caught Al Schmidt's punt on his own 3 and raced down the sideline to pay dirt.

A week later the story was quite the opposite. The Black Knights of the Hudson, starting their 25th season in Michie Stadium, passed, skirted the ends, and crashed through the Villanova line for a decisive 28-0 victory.

The Mainliners were outclassed in every department. Smooth working Arnold Galiffa proved masterful as the field general of the Cadets from his quarterback position. Winfield Scott, Bobby Jack Stuart, and Jim Cain, all swivelhipped halfbacks, ripped off yardage through and around the Blue-White forward wall for Army touchdowns while big Dan Foldberg gave notice of future greatness with his pass catching ability.

Defensively, the men of Earl Blaik were just as outstanding. The 'Cats were able to score only four first downs and a total of 42 yards rushing. Bob Vinson and Gus Dielens each intercepted Villanova desperation passes in the final period to break up scoring drives.

The 'Cats looked especially good on two occasions when, in the shadows of their own goal line they held the rampaging West Point eleven from scoring.

The series which started in 1908, and renewed in 1943 thus ended with the Wildcats on the short end of a 14-1 record. Over the 15 game route the Cadets amassed a grand total of 578 points while Villanova teams were able to enter the scoring column only 3 times for 30 points.

Since the renewal, the man of Coach Earl "Red" Blaik have had much their own way in the scoring department. From '43 to '46 the Cadets, paced by such greats as Felix "Doc" Blanchard and Glenn Davis piled up 199 points while the defensive ability of the Army held

Mid'n Critically Injured in Western Train Accident

Midshipman John Kennedy, a Junior in the Villanova NROTC unit, was critically injured in a fall from the speeding Exposition Flyer of the Chicago Burlington and Quincy Railroad. The train, carrying midshipmen homeward bound from a summer cruise, was traveling approximately 80 MPH when the accident occured. An emergency stop was made at Benkelman, Nebraska, where immediate medical attention was given the injured man at a local hospital.

Although unconscious for two and a half weeks, Kennedy was reported as improving. He suffered a fractured skull, broken ribs, and lacerations of the head and face. At present he is confined to the U. S. Naval Hospital at Great Lakes, Ill.

Kennedy was returning from the annual NROTC which this summer took the Villanova men to Hawaii. The cruise lasting six weeks, was for training purposes. Midshipmen from Villanova embarked on the U. S. S. Princeton, an aircraft carrier, and the U. S. S. Iowa, one of our better known battleships.

NROTC CONTRACT ENROLLMENT HIGH; MANY TURNED DOWN

With the Navy faculty now well established in the new Naval Science building, formally designated as the Commodore John Barry Building, thirty-six freshmen were entered in the Regular NROTC program at Villanova. This past month eighty students were admitted into the NROTC program under contract status. This last group were composed of a few upper classmen and the rest freshmen.

These new men brought the total NROTC enrollment at Villanova, both regular and contract, to 186, and makes possible a full battalion, instead of the single company of the past.

For the regular freshmen, enrolling at Villanova was the successful completion of nation-wide competitive examinations which began last November. Scholarship and physical examinations were followed by interviews. Then review by state examination boards preceded assignment to Villanova. At the conclusion of their four-year scholarship, which includes summer training cruises, they will receive commissions as Ensigns in the Navy or Second Lieutenants in the Marine Corps.

The Contract students applied for admission directly to Capt. T. C. Thomas, the Professor of Naval Science at Villanova, during August. One hundred and eighty-six candidates took mental and physical tests and were interviewed by the P. N. S. T. and his staff. These men will take Naval Science courses for four years, attend one cruise and receive reserve commissions. They will be subject to serve two years in the Navy if they are called to do so by the Secretary of the Navy. Since they agree to serve if called they will be draft exempt as are the regular NROTC students.

Hall). To improve campuswide reception WVIL when it opens for business in about 2 weeks, will abandon its old frequency of 538 for something up around 640.

Larry La Roa and Dick Muscelli have finally made the grade. Larry became Mayor and Dick became Vice-Mayor of 15th & Walnut Sts.

At a very local girls' college, the administration gave out the word that the little females were not to carry their lunches in paper bags. Reason: They made the school look like a defense plant. But the versatile undergrads wre not to be outdone. Now they carry the noontime vitties in huge lunch pails.

Latest addition to the Villanova faculty: Fr. Edward McCarthy. No newcomer to the campus, Fr. McCarthy, who coached baseball here during the war, has spent the last year barnstorming South America. He is now Dean of Arts & Science.

Incidentally, A. J. "Tony" Mullen, and Pat Laferty, both of the class of '49, left earlier in the summer to join the Augustinian Order.

What with the blanket promotion of all reserve ensigns in the air, many of our former war heroes have gone berserk. Bill Scanlon woke up the other night in the middle of a dream where he was conning the USS Wisconsin up Broad Street in Philly around O'Malley's Hall, and tied up, at the Salvation Army's USO. One future JG came up with the brilliant idea of hiring a hall—admission strictly by rank—200 kegs of root beer—Stag — and have everybody sit around and swap sea stories.

VILLANOVAN

Vol. 24 — No. 2 VILLANOVA COLLEGE, VILLANOVA, PA. Tuesday, October 12, 1948

The marching band, seventy members strong, perform in their intricate practice drills. Most of these men will be in New England this weekend.

BAND MEMBERS TO MARCH IN BOSTON

Group to Travel in Chartered Busses; Will Leave Thursday

This Thursday Villanova's impressive blue uniformed Band will leave for Boston to play at the Villanova-Boston College football game, Friday night. This will be the fourth appearance for the band this year. Members previously played at the Texas A&M, Army and Duquesne games.

The band will travel Thursday night by bus and arrive in Boston Friday morning. They will play at the football game Friday night, ramaining in Boston until Saturday morning, when they will make the the return trip.

Although only sixty men will comprise this traveling unit, seventy men make up the normal complement. Ten had to forego the trip because of heavy weekend classes. This year's band almost doubled the 45-piece group of last year. The increase has made possible the addition of three saxaphones, and french horns which, according to Rev. Ralph Handran, O. S. A., the band's moderator, have given more depth to the music.

Those who have heard the band this year will attest to the success is has been. Not only have the marching formations been outstanding, but the musical arrangement of the new "V for Villanova" along with renditions from a large repertoire have been impressive.

This success is due in no small way to the efforts of Fr. Handran, Hugh Boyle, the band's manager, and Richard Boyle the drum major. The band had already been drawn up on paper before school and when the members came down Sunday night before registration they were in for five grueling days of practice. In that time music and marching drills were rehearsed. For marching, the band forms a six-man line and stretches back 12 lines.

Following the football season Fr. Handran plans on forming a 50-piece concert band from the marching unit for the winter season. They will be joined by the thirty men in the glee club which is also under the direction of Fr. Handran.

There are as yet no plans set for concerts but it is hoped they will be as active and busy this year as last year.

Poets Prepare For National Contest

The National Poetry Association with offices in Los Angeles California recently announced November 5th as the closing date for acceptance of manuscripts for the Annual Anthology of College poetry.

Students of Villanova are cordially invited to submit verse for publication in this work. No charges or fees for inclusion of verse in the Anthology is made.

The recognition afforded by publication will reflect credit to the school as well as afford individual satisfaction to those students who may see their work in print. It will also offer an opportunity to compare such work with that of others of their own age and attainments.

Poetry should be submitted to the National Poetry Association, 3210 Selby Avenue, Los Angeles 34, California. Each entry must bear the author's name, home address and College attended. In addition,

Welding Contest For Engineers

The trustees of the James F. Lincoln Arc Welding Foundation announced September 15, 1948 to April 1, 1949 as the period for submitting entries in its annual engineering undergraduate awards and scholarship program. The current competition is the second in a ten year series of programs which offer to engineering undergraduates the opportunity to compete in the preparation of papers on various phases of welding for monetary awards as well as scholastic and industry recognition.

Under the award plan, engineering students of various engineering schools and colleges will submit papers on arc welding applications or art welding technology. Awards for the best papers will be made to the students as follows: first prize—$1000, and seventy-six lesser awards amounting to $4000. The institutions, in which the three top awards are made to students,

Councilmen Convene In 2nd Session

Last Thursday evening ,the Student Council held its second meeting of the scholastic year. Michael Dougherty addressed the council with regard to the activities of fraternities and clubs on the campus. Chairman of the Social Committee, Frank McBride made a final financial report on the Autumn Hop which grossed $980.

Proceeds of $600 were turned over to the Student Council.

It was also announced at the meeting that due to the lack of cooperation on the part of the Freshman Class, there is a tentative proposal to extend the wearing of "regs" indefinitely.

A rally committee was organized for the purpose of promoting pregame get-togethers and in turn a fuller school spirit. Members of the committee are M. Marshall, chairman; J. Holland; I. Peterson; P. Davis, F. Guzikowski.

Kevin McChesney, NFCCS Delegate, spoke on the functioning of his group, and Daniel McGrath was elected as junior delegate for the same organization.

The following is a list of regulations governing school activities as given by Rev. George J. McLaughlin, O. S. A., Dean of Student Activities.

1. "Evening meetings of all campus clubs, organizations, all social activities, play rehearsals, etc., are not to start before 7 P. M. in order not to interfere with chapel.
2. "If an organization wishes to use 215 Mendel, the C and F. auditorium, the Gymnasium, or the Blue Room after 6 P. M., please notify this office so that there will be no conflicts.
3. "Each organization is to have on file with the Dean of Student Activities a statement of the purpose of their organization, list of officers and their addresses, name of Faculty Moderator and roster of members. This information is due by November 1.

CAMPUS CLUBS PLAN YEAR'S ACTIVITIES

The Spanish and German clubs, and the Belle Masque have all had their important first meetings to map plans for their activities during the new school year. The language clubs look forward to a highly successful social year while the Belle Macque has an ambitious production schedule ahead.

The Spanish club with Father Lorenzo Lozano, O. S. A., as moderator, and Tony Guiotta as President, held its inaugural meeting Thursday evening in the C and F auditorium. Since last year's functions were so successful, it was planned to again hold an Noche Espanol and the popular dinner-dance in honor of Cervantes.

Die Neustadter Kries, Villanova's German club, began proceedings with a meeting of the executive board last week. Last May John McDonnough was elected to serve as president of the group, while Ed Herbester and Gene Koval were chosen as co-vice presidents. Francis Reese is treasurer of the club of which Rev. William J. Lunney, O. S. A., is moderator.

New members were welcomed to the Belle Masque society and asked to report the following night for auditions. A freshman club is planned which will enable them to gain experience before taking part in the regular plays. Plans for the year include dramatic readings a short three act play, and two one-act plays to be produced with the Rosemont College Dramatic club, the Jest and Gesture.

Rev. William Krups, O.S.A. Moderator, also announced the formation of the Belle Air Players, who will Broadcast over WVIL.

Soph Cotillian Date Is Set; First Major Dance

Villanovans Under the Baton of George Beitzer to Provide Music at Field House

Social life at Villanova will be given an appropriately gala introduction Saturday, October 23rd, when the Class of '52 presents its Sophomore Cotillion in the Field House. John Currie has been appointed chairman of the committee.

Traditional in Villanova history, the Sophomore Cotillion is the first major social event of the year. This dance is presented annually as a form of welcome to the Freshman Class members and as their formal introduction to the upperclassmen.

The music of the Villanovans, popular collegiate orchestra, will be featured at the dance from nine until one o'clock. Marion Stodder, charming vocalist, will enhance the evening's romantic setting.

Tickets for this open informal affair may be procured from John Olshefski or Bill Drolet. Admission will be $2.40 per couple, tax included.

Rev. Thomas A. Purcell, O. S. A., Moderator of the Class, said arrangements with the local girls' colleges are being made asking that the students be granted late permission so that they might attend.

In the past, these dances have always attracted a large crowd with each succeeding Sophomore Class trying to outdo the other. The Class of 1952 believes they are off to a good start having over fifty members on the various committees.

FRATERNITIES HOLD FIRST MEETINGS

The presidents of two campus fraternities announced plans for the opening of activities with inaugral meetings this week. President William Fleming of the Delta Pi Mu, Arts and Education Fraternity, scheduled the first meeting of his group for Thursday evening, October 14, at 7:30 P. M. in the Blue Room of the Field-House. Rev. Edward McCarthy, new dean of the Arts and Science school, will be the guest speaker. All Arts and Education students are cordially invited to attend.

LKD

Bryan McLarnon, newly elected president of the Lamba Kappa Delta fraternity, stated that their first meeting of the school year will take place in Room 215, Mendel Hall, this evening at 8 o'clock. New members from the Pre-med and Science schools are welcomed. Current members are urged to attend this important organizational function.

PKP

The campus engineering students started their semester program last Tuesday, October 5, when the group gathered under president John Link's tutelage to draw up plans for a coming smoker. February initiations and the annual dinner-dance were also discussed and placed on the agenda of future programs for further development.

Of important note was the possible return to the social calendar of the Owl Hop, a previous event which was always well received. This and the Inter-Frat ball were set aside for working over at the group's next meeting. The Humphrey award to the outstanding freshman engineer is under the fraternity and investigations were

Torch Parade To Send Off Team

A torchlight parade, the first of the year, will be the feature of Wednesday Night's farewell to the Boston-bound football team. This information was released by Michael Marshall, newly appointed chairman of the Student Council Spirit Committee.

The Freshmen and the band will assemble at C & F auditorium. From there they will march through the campus to the various halls where they will be joined by upperclassmen.

Posters giving further details will be posted next week. The committee expects a record turnout, especially from the freshmen. Their expectations arise from the recent successful student council efforts to enforce freshmen orientation regulations.

A LIGHT WOULD PREVENT THIS, TOO!

Last week four more automobiles were involved in accidents at Lancaster Pike and Ithan Avenue. Fortunately none was seriously injured. Pictured above is one of the damaged automobiles.

Continued Support Needed For Campaign

At this writing most of the students have already let slip into some obscure crevice of their minds the accident that occured at Lancaster Pike and Ithan Road on September 30.

Immediately after the collision there was widespread comment regarding the need for a traffic light at that intersection, and many of the upperclassmen recalled the campaign of last year that resulted in the promise of a light at the main entrance to the College. The need for another traffic signal is still as great.

In the Spring of this year two men wer killed when a truck demolished the car in which they were riding. Among the latest crashes at the crossing were two that took place last week, one involving three cars. The casual observer may notice, too, the great number of near-accidents each day as motorists attempt to swing into or out of the fast moving traffic streams on the Pike. The curves and hill on the approaches to the corner are responsible for the repeated difficulties in which the speed-conscious drivers place themselves and others.

At the present time a survey of traffic conditions at the corner is being conducted, and the results will be published in a forthcoming issue of the Villanovan.

In the meantime it must be borne in mind that through our continued and concerted action last year we achieved one point and it is necessary to win this later one. As pointed out last week the heavy traffic at the corner when an activity takes place in the Stadium or Field House creates an additional hazard. Crossing the highway by foot or by car against high speed traffic will most certainly cause other casualties.

We cannot, therefore, afford to forget this campaign before accomplishing our purpose. The fact that so great a hazard exists is sufficient to justify our demand for its prompt elimination.

The success of the movement lies in our ability to make our wishes felt among the local and state highway authorities. Those who were unable to fill out and return the petition which appeared in the last issue of the Villanovan are requested to do so now.

THE LATINS HAD A WORD FOR IT

'Salve Frater!" We use this term, which most of you will remember from your high-school days, because it seems to convey, more aptly than our American greetings, the feeling of comradeship we can find at Villanova.

Translated literally it would mean "Hail Brother!" We also like to take it in its depper cannoted significance—a significance which determines whether we enjoy school or only those hours when we are away from it. Our first clue comes from the word "Salve". It means more than a hello. It signifies that the speaker wants to be friendly. He'd like to exchange ideas with us and talk about things that concern the college and campus.

Our contact with one another is very close. Some say the expression, "The pants I recognize but the face I don't", originated on a college campus. Truet or not, it is indicative of the fact that we rub elbows actually as well as figuratively. Give and take are as much of our training as anything else. To teh extent that this close association nurtures a spirit of comradeship within us, therin its value lies.

Opportunities for forming friendships, casual or fast, are as numerous as fellow Villanovans around us, 2499 to be exact. Similar interests and a common goal unite us. It takes little effort to set the movement rolling—an applicating of the feelings prompting our modern version of "Salve Frater!", "Hi Frosh, Wot Say!"

"There Are Truths . ."

WILLIAM CHESTER

How many times have you finished a new novel, lit a cigarette and then asked yourself "why did they publish a story like this?"

"There are truths you Americans need to be told,
And it never'll refute them to swagger and scold;
John Bull, looking o'er the Atlantic, in choler
At your aptness for trade, says you worship the dollar;
But to score much eye-dollar-try's what very few do,
And John goes to that church as often as you do."

—James Russell Lowell

Evelyn Waugh came to America recently and after spending several months in and around Hollywood cemeteries wrote The Loved One. His obvious intention being to turn his vitriol satire loose upon society which in anticipation of the hereafter prefers cremation to interment. If this then was his end, he certainly achieved it. We must examine his methods, his artistic values, and the moral tone of his novel if we are to obtain an accurate evaluation of his work.

As the novel opens we see two Englishmen on the veranda of a homé in Hollywood discussing 'recent' literary news, dropping condescending remarks about American life and in general acting as if they were the last outpost of British Colonial Civilization. The manner leads one to believe that the course of the story will continue along a rather devious route to the realization that Americans are not British. However we are fortunately spared this conclusion by the entrance of Dennis Harlow, a young British poet who at the present is employed by an animal cemetery and crematory, the Happier Hunting Ground. Dennis falls in love with Aimee Thanatogenos, an attractive crematorium cosmetician. This odd attachment wanders in and around the ghoulish Whispering Glades, a very artistic mass consumption final-resting-place. Here his method breaks down, because his characters in themselves represent only a very minute segment of any population, therefore any conclusions drawn from their behavior would apply only to the characters themselves.

Sometimes an author may overlook method and concentrate more on the aesthetic value which comes from a work of art. The following extract will indicate that Evelyn Waugh is indebted to Sinclair Lewis' Babbitt for his knowledge of art as well as his nodding acquaintance with the American professional man: "Dr. Kenworthy made a crack about that one Annual, Most cemeteries, he says, provide a dog's toilet and a cat's motel. Pretty smart, huh?" Granted that the author had an unique idea. It is our contention that he stressed its macabre features beyond the point of good taste, and his humor is of the physical variety.

In regard to Waugh's moral tone this observer believes that he carefully assumed a biase attitude calculated to provide a strong contrast between life as it is and life as it should be. In making this contrast he used black against black; in so doing he loses the desired result.

But in the final analysis we may turn to the writer's own comment, "This is a purely fanciful tale, a little nightmare produced by the unaccustomed high living of a brief visit to Hollywood." We only hope that nightmares in the future will stay out of print.

'NEATH THE SPIRES.

By EMIL R. BORGERS '50

Have you ever looked out of your window in the evening and observed the sun setting behind the College Chapel? The long shadows of the Chapel spires seem to reach out and draw the students to her like a mother's outstretched arms. This central structure is the backbone of Villanova. Without it, our college would not exist.

The Augustinian Fathers of over 100 years ago founded Villanova for the sole purpose of giving young men a Catholic education. They believed that a real education is not possible without the inclusion of the Catholic philosophy of life.

The far-sighted Fathers started out with nothing. They worked hard and slowly, the College began to grow. First, a few small buildings; then a few more and finally, at the end of the last century, the College Chapel was built. It was constructed at the paysical center of the campus and upon the highest point overlooking all other edifices. The aim of the founders was carried out.

"What was the aim of the founders?" you may ask. Our ultimate goal in life is the pursuit of truth and happiness with Heaven at the end. We cannot obtain true happiness in life without love of God, He is the center of all things and is above all things. Doesn't it then follow that His home should be in the center and above everything else on our campus?

The Chapel is the spiritual home of the Villanova man. The memory of the weekly devotions of Our Lady of Good Counsel, the Friday students' Mass and the timely sermons by our priests, linger with the graduate long after campus recollections are forgotten.

The Villanova student of today is the Catholic Layman of tomorrow. He is taught the Catholic way of life. Toward this end he works hard and prays hard 'NEATH THE SPIRES.

SYMPATHY

The student body of Villanova and the VILLANOVAN extend their sympathy to the Rev. William Gordan, OSA on the death of his father, and to the following students: Vincent Ciammaichella, and Carl Yaeger on the death of their mothers, and to Esmon Walsh, Frank Temple, Carl Wummer, Thomas Flatley, Thomas Fox and David Anthony on the death of their fathers. Sympathy is also extended to the family of Richard Ambrose, a former Villanova student who was killed when his P-51 Mustang fighter plane crashed in California.

By RICHARD and KAISER

With one brilliant success to their credit, Messrs. Lindsay and Crouse again have made stage news. Their new play "Life with Mother", which opened at the Walnut Street Theater, is a sequel to the success of a few seasons ago "Life with Father". From all reports this new play is up to the traditions of the original production. Again, Howard Lindsay stars as "Father" and Dorothy Stickney is the ever-loving "Mother".

Hedgerow Gives Shaw

For those who are interested in the performances of classic and contemporary drama, The Hedgerow Theater at Moylan, Penna., offers the great plays in this field. The performances are given four nights weekly, Wednesday thru Saturday, thru December 4. The theater will re-open at Christmas.

The plays scheduled for the balance of the year include Shaw's "Saint Joan" and "The Devil's Disciple", Chehov's "Uncle Vanya", Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night", Goldsmith's "She Stoops to Conquez", and the Dreiser-Piscator "An American Tradgedy". Student tickets at 95 cents are available in limited numbers for all performances.

Kirk to Sing Aida

There is a full week on the musical front in Philadelphia. There are no less than four Opera productions scheduled. The Lyric Opera Association of New York, under the local manager Jules Falk, will present a series of four operas. The first will be "Aida", Tuesday evening, October 12th. Florence Kirk will sing the title role of Aida and will be supported by other famous artists.

The second opera will be Puccini's "Madame Butterfly". In the leading roles will be Eva De Luca, as Butterfly, and Eugene Conley, as Pinkerton. Both these artists are well known to the Philadelphia audiences of grand opera, for they have sung with the Philadelphia La Scala Opera Company. Evelyn Sacks, of the Metropolitan Opera Association will be heard as the faithful Suzuki. John Brownlee, also of the Metropolitan, will sing the role of the American Counsel Sharpless.

The production of the opera "Carmen" will mark the end of the series of Operas presented by the Lyric Opera Company. This performance will be marked by the presence of Ramon Viny. Viny's performance of this trying role has earned him the acclaim which he richly deserves. The role of Carmen will be sung by Bette Dubro.

Madame Butterfly Repeats

The Cosmoplitan Opera Company, whose season began last week, will also present "Madame Butterfly". This is the second performance in a week of the same opera. This is a rather dubious procedure. Leads will be entrusted to a pair of young singers, Ruth Germaine and F. Eckhardt. The Cosmopolitan Opera Company is worthy of support for they generally give fairly good perfarmances. But more than this they give an outlet for the talents of young singers who would not ordinarily get a chance. They make is possible for the inexperienced singer to gain the valuable stage experience that is so necessary for a finished singer .

INTRODUCING THE LYNX LITERARY

Since 1928 a literary quarterly on this campus has been a dream. In that year, the old VILLANOVAN became a weekly tabloid and shed any of its artistic pretensions. The transition from magazine to newspaper left one faction disgruntled and another faction elated. In the twenty years that have lapsed, the Villanova literary artist has been frustrated at every turn.

The purgation came to an end last semester with the initial publication of the LYNX.

When lynx is spelled LYNX, the name implies more than simply "wildcat". For those of you who are unfamiliar with THE LYNX, the following will be an introduction. For those who have encountered THE LYNX, the following will be a startling revelation.

THE LYNX is the Villanova Literary Quarterly, a magazine published by the students of this college. Cursed with a name that lends itself too readily to an unhappy rhyme, it has as its function the encouragement and publication of any creative writing done by the student body. Short stories, articles, poems, and essays are accepted, and the opportunity to gain vast editorial experience in magazine work is afforded as well. The first of four issues this year is expected to be available around November 15th.

Beginning today, subscriptions will be taken at the information booth in Mendel Hall. The price for the year's subscription will be one dollar. (With the collected receipts, the staff plans to spend the forthcoming winter in Florida.) THE LYNX does need student support, and hopes for a fine response from the entire enrollment. For those who did not receive last year's single issue, there are a limited number available. (no charge) for early subscribers.

Literary contributions for the November issue will be accepted until October 20th. Illustrators are sorely needed this year, and THE LYNX will accept any drawings or paintings which can be successfully reproduced in shades of black and white. Contributors who cannot meet the October deadline should plan to make the January issue. Those who would submit papers or offer their editorial services should contact either Ed Krieg in 104, Austin Hall, or Paul O'Brien in 312, Fedigan Hall.

Another semester has rolled around, and it seems that the men of Villanova will be quite busy as far as social events are concerned. So we bounce over to Rosemont and see what they have planned for the next week or so.

First of all, hearty congratulations to Eunice Patterson on her successful tea dances, everyone was pleased with them. The traditional Baby Party will take place on Oct. 13th. In case you don't know what it is, the sophs and juniors get together and stage this shindig for the freshmen. The newcomers dress as babies and put on the same antics. Prizes are awarded for the best costumes. Who are the judges? The nuns. I know, I tried to apply for the job.

The Jest and Gesture will present its first production of the season on Oct. 21st. The play, "A Lady Shows Her Medals" by James Barry, is under the direction of Posie Brown. The cast includes Kay Kelley, Marie McMenamin, and Mimi Dransfield, all well known to the Villanova stage Wildcats are welcome.

At Bryn Mawr

Each Monday evening at 8:30 P. M. in Goodhard Hall, a series of Shaw lectures on Political Economy will be given by Clair Wilcox of Swarthmore. There are six lectures in the series (for the intellectuals at V. C.).

By JOHN P. MALLICK, Jr.

Ah, here's an interesting item for the social minded. On Fri. Oct. 15th in the evening, the traditional Lantern Night will take place. The Frosh will wear their caps and gowns for the first time, and the Sophs will present them their lanterns. After the ceremonies there will (now get this) be parties, singing et al afterwards. The admission to the lantern ceremonies is 25c, but the parties are free. Special invitation is extended to the upperclassmen, as well as to the freshmen.

As for IMMACULATA, the girls haven't any immediate plans for a tea dance. They believe in the slogans that "comparison proves" and "the best is always last." So, naturally, they will be one of the last colleges to hold their famous tea dances.

On Oct. 16 the Seniors will hold a barn dance and hot dog roast at Corcoran's in West Chester. Sorry fellas, no stags.

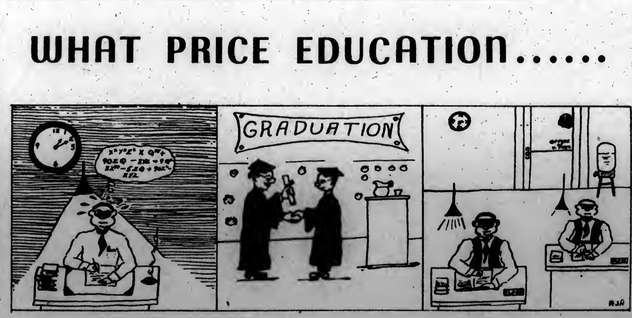
Last but not least, CHESTNUT HILL. It seems that the Lawn party last week was a great success. Upperclassmen as well as the Freshmen seemed to be in gay spirits as they left. Chalk up another for the hilltoppers.

Rehearsals for "I Remember Mama" are now under way, with Nancy Mackey in the title role.

Just in passing, Nov. 20th will be a happy day for many Villanovans. We play the Univ. of San Francisco, and both Immaculata and Rosemont are having their Senior Proms the same evening. So here's ample warning not to get your dates mixed up. We will be quite in demand that day, (we nope).

Junior Prexy Greets Class

Gentlemen,



This message affords the opportunity to welcome the return of the members of the Junior class and to welcome also the arrival of the newest members of the Villanova Community, the Freshmen.

The beginning of another scholastic year is for us Juniors another step closer to our goal of 1950. We are returning to a new and greater Villanova, new and greater in the sense that our college has attained unprecendented heights, academically, (Villanova now offers hundreds of different courses to over 2500 students), athletically (the Blue and White teams are consistently acquiring enviable sports records), and what is more important we are greater in a spiritual aspect (witness the genuine, wholehearted response to the retreats of last January and this recent September 30th).

We can appreciate these impressive accomplishments, for in our previous two years we have shared, with all Villanova, the problems and challenges in that trying post-war transitional period. Though we have occasionally expressed our discontent with the problematic conditions during our time, we can feel that we have certainly contributed, along with our fellow students, toward helping Villanova reach this newly acquired stature of greatness. Thus it is a pleasant task to welcome you.

Very sincerely,
President,
Class of 1950

WHAT PRICE EDUCATION.....

THE 5TH COLUMN

By HUGH JOHNSON and HARRY JACOBS

The Bouquets of 5ths for the week go to all the profs in the school who excused their classes so that they might hear the World Series. If you know of any, please let us know.

Student Council

Last Wednesday, the Student Council had its first full-scale debate. After 2 full hours, they 1, appointed Kevin McChesney as delegate to the NFCCS (Translated means National Federation of Catholic College Students), 2, laid the groundwork for the Interfrat Ball, 3 and spent the rest of the time on equivocation, got hot on the Freshman for violation of the various reg. So far that's more than the 80th Congress did during its first 3 weeks.

However, the council can do nothing unless you the student, with your individual suggestion or gripe, go to your representative and make the suggestion. More on the '48 council next week.

Football

Now that the Miami Hurricane (s) has spelled itself, this Friday night's game with Boston College will be the real make or break game for Villanova. B. C., one of the heaviest teams in the country, is, as always loaded with some of the most sought after boys in the country — sports like End Art Spinney and Ernie (the Horse) Stautner. But the biggest gun, the boy that "did it" last year, happens to be the smallest on the squad—Joe Diminick who tips 'em at 155. Incidentally, B. C.'s coach Denny Meyers is well nigh used to attack from all sides; he was the Beachmaster for the Navy during the invasion of Tarawa.

Don't forget to be on hand for the big torchlight parade come Wednesday night. Exact time of departure of the team is — don't know at' this printing—Fr. McKee, Bill Connelly, Jim Haughton and Bob Whelan, the only ones who really know, are still in Miami. However, the exact time will be posted 'bout the school.

Delta Pi Epsilon

DPE held their first meeting of '48 last week. Even the most ardent members of said organization admitted to your writers that the meeting sounded more like a debating society. Here again we'll not jump to criticize due to the fact that it was the first meeting of the year. But we always thought the Business Frat was mainly for the purpose of advancing the cause of the C&F student both here on the campus and with the business world in general. Check us if we're wrong.

Odds & Ends

Last summer must have been prosperous one for most Villa students. Tom Flynn, John Sheehan, Gene Kelly, Dick McDermott, Dave Malloy and Bob Mundy played cowboys and Indians with the U. S. Marine Corps in Quantico.

Meanwhile, Dick Randolph, our Feature Editor, Gunner Kaiser, chief custodian of Count Villan III, Charlie Jameson, who took the Intramural Diving championship last year, John Miller, Campus Pin Ball champ, Bob Kelly of the track team, and Joe Topper, assistant coach of the 150's last year, all pushed Yellow Hacks over Philly.

Even Prof. Dougherty felt the increased prosperity. Take notice to the new paint job on the Blue Beetle.

The Soph class is really going all out for their annual Cotillion this year. It seems that they have a terrific theme all planned but it's supposed to be secret. (Why, we'll never know.) However, if you really want to know, look us up next week. We have agents on the case.

To all the Freshmen who wanted to know! His name is Dan Robinson —a refugee from the Mojave Desert in California.

Those 2 Villanova Drum Majors who have performed so well this years are Dick Boyle & Lou Haven. Keep up the good twirlin', men.

Enter Religious Life

This summer some seven students dropped quietly out of Villanova to undertake the religious life. Even a graduate of seven years ago turned from the world to serve God in a monestery. These men were received into three different religious orders.

Anthony J. Mullin, Charles P. Laferty, William Cusick, John Melton and Edward Hattrick received the white habits of Augustinian novices at Mother of Good Counsel Novitiate, New Hamburg, New York, just below Poughkeepsie on the Hudson. Thomas Wilson, has enrolled at the Augustinian house of postulants at Staten Island, New York.

Joseph Hicks joined the Norbertine Fathers while Joseph Norton entered the Trappist monestery in Rhode Island, the second Villanovan to enter this order in recent years. Norton was an engineering student who graduated from Villanova in June of 1941.

A. J. (Tony) Mullin was very active on the VILLANOVAN and in the Belle Masque, as well as a member of the engineering fraternity.

Pat Laferty was also active on the VILLANOVAN and served as News Editor last semester. Bill Cusick, enrolled in the Engineering school, was a member of the American Society of Chemical Engineers and a member of the NFCCS.

John Melton, Edward Hattrick and Tom Wilson were members of the Arts School. Joseph Hicks attended high school under the tutelage of the Norbertine Fathers, and entered that order this past summer.

NO BROADCASTS

Due to difficulties in obtaining materials the campus radio station, WVIL, will not go on the air this coming Monday as originally planned. Station Manager Tom Sullivan expressed the hope that WVIL would start operating in the near future however he could not determine with certainty the exact date. He stated that the delay should be only a matter of two or three weeks.

A notice as to the time and place for a meeting of the entire staff will be posted on the bulletin boards this week.

GOVERNING BOARD GATHERS SUNDAY

Last Sunday afternoon the Board of Governors of the Villanova College Alumni Association held a meeting for the purpose of promoting a higher degree of interest in alumni activities. Mr. Theodore S. Reimel, Esq., '28, Assistant District Attorney of Philadelphia, the newly-elected president of the association, presided over the meeting.

The alumni is trying to inspire all its members to take an active part in the Loyalty Fund. This "annual giving program" is intended to aid in the physical expansion and educational advancement of Villanova.

This year's board is geographically representative of the alumni, being composed of over 100 members from 68 districts, ranging from Maine to California and including Puerto Rico and Cuba.

Philip F. Barrett, '49, Senior Class Alumni Representative, was present at the session. He was elected to the Board by his fellow students, and is to act in a liaison capacity between the alumni and the students. It will be his duty to familiarize himself with the plans and problems facing the alumni and to make regular reports on the progress to the Senior Class.

'CATS INVADE EAGLES' NEST

Will Encounter Tough Boston College Eleven

Bill Canino, Sports Editor

Throughout the halls of the Boston College campus there's a victory campaign with rumors of an undefeated season resounding off the walls. And, with two wins and a tie under their belts things seem to be looking up for the boys of coach Denny Meyers.

The 1947 edition of the Eagles, which started like a fireball only to collapse in November, learned its lesson the hard way and the returning Maroon and Gold lettermen are not apt to get the overconfidence fever this season and spoil a potentially great record.

Turned Back 'Cats In '46-'47

A hard-fighting eleven, this year's squad will have to be beaten on the field, which our "Wildcats" have had a tough time doing in the previous two years. In 1946 the Blue-White traveled to Bean town and lost a heartbreaker by a 14-12 count. Last year the 'Cats again invaded Boston and 'mid much furor were defeated 7-0.

The Eagles opened the current season with a decisive 33-6 victory over a strong Wake Forest eleven which later upset Southern Conference champion, William & Mary. The following week they were forced to go all out to defeat Georgetown 14-6. Last Saturday Saint Bonaventure battled with courage and won a moral victory with a 7-7 tie.

Have Great Line

When the Villanovans enter Braves Field next Friday night they will meet probably one of the biggest lines in the East. At 250 pounds which is spread well over his 6' 6" frame, Ed Kennedy is the anchor man of the front wall. On either side of Kennedy will be a pair of monstrous guards and tackles. At his left Art Donovan, son of the famous boxing referee, will place his 220 pounds, while next to him the tackle slot will be held down by Earnie Sautner. Sautner, who has been nicknamed "The Horse" by his mates, showed so much promise a year ago that he is being nominated for All-American honors. Completing the left side of the line is the incomparable Art Spinney, one of the best pass receivers this side of the Rockies.

The other side has as much weight and ability. Dom Papaleo, an undersized 220, is at guard while John Kissel, the brother of the Holy Cross back, takes over the tackle spot.

Diminik Sensational

B. C.'s backfield is full of talent. Joe Diminik, who hails from Kulpmont, Pa., is small, but by far the fleetest of the bunch. His open field running is superb. Opposing tacklers are usually baffled by his tricky footwork while he is at top speed. Returning from last year is quarterback Joe Stuka who has the habit of hitting the bullseyes from great distances. He will be spelled by Ed Ciasby, another letterman. Bob Pallido and Maurice Poissant, halfback holdovers, will display their wares next Friday and if these two have any trouble getting started, triple-threat Ed Petella is ready to move in. Petella is only a Sophomore and with three games already behind him, he should be well on his way to fame.

Following their unexpected tie with Saint Bonaventure last Saturday, the Eagles are due to be on the rebound. The Villanova game is a "must" for the new Englanders inasmuch as their seasonal record now stands at two wins and one tie. And if they intend to remain as a contender for the mythical Eastern championship they must atone for last weeks play.

Boston College's only touchdown came in the first minute of play when, on the opening kickoff, Joe Diminik grabbed the pigskin on his own goal line, backstepped into the end zone and after a fake handoff he shot up the sidelines and ran the whole length of the field.

The "Wildcats" on the other hand can become a contender for the championship by winning. At this point the only prediction that can be made is that it should prove to be a real thriller and that final count should be close.

Ed Berrang, "Wildcat" first string end, and Joe Scarcelli, guard, board the train at Villanova station for the trip to Miami. The 'Cats came from behind in the 4th quarter to defeat the "Hurricanes" 19-10.

STRONG COMEBACK BEATS MIAMI 19-10

An undaunted Villanova "Wildcat" football team turned a potential upset into a hard earned 19-10 victory over the Miami "Hurricanes" last Friday night before 42,827 partisan fans in the famed Miami Orange Bowl. The crowd, largest ever to witness a regular season football contest in the stadium, watched the Blue-White come from behind late in the third period and score three times to overwhelm the homesters.

The 'Cat scoring attack, delayed by the fine defensive ability of Andy Gustafson's eleven for 44 minutes, was culminated by touchdowns by halfback Bob Polidor and fullbacks Ralph Pasquairello and Pete D'Alonzo.

Polidor, Pasquariello, D'Alonzo Tally

Polidor, who will never be forgotten by those who saw the Miami-Villanova contest in 1946, (you will remember his 109 yard run in that game), tallied for the first Villanova score on the last play of the third period. The 165 pound speedster raced around right end into the end zone. At this point Miami still led 10-6. Ten minutes later Pasquariello, 225 pounds of dynamite, crashed over from the 11 yard stripe to score standing up. Another fullback, Tom Clavin, placed kicked for the extra point and the Mainliners took a 13-10 advantage. With only three minutes to play remaining in the ball game, substitute back D'Alonzo crashed his way through the center of the line for the final six pointer.

Miami Scores First

The "Hurricanes", who the previous week defeated Rollins College 20-0, snatched a seven point lead after less than two minutes of play had elapsed. Polidor received the opening kickoff on the Villanova two and ran it back to the Miami 48 where his fumbie was recovered by Miami. The homesters were unable to penetrate the 'Cat defense and Harry Ghaul, a sensational punter, kicked out on the Villanova two. On the first play from scrimmage Pasquariello fumbled and Miami recovered. Quarterback Jack DelBello, former South Philadelphia High star, squirmed through for the score. Ghaul converted and the 'Canes were out in front.

The remaining portion of the period was spent in the exchanging of punts. With nine minutes gone in the second frame the longest and most spectacular run of the night was reeled off. Bob Cambell, Miami substitute fullback, took Al Schmid's punt on his own 25 and ducked, dodged and swivel-hipped his way all the way to the Villanova 9, where Polidor caught him from behind.

Ghaul Scores Field Goal

With their backs against the wall, the 'Cats dug in. On the first Miami attempt to score Dan Brown, Villanova end, broke through and tossed Del Bello for a 12 yard loss. But the 'Cats were not to come out of this unscathed. On third down Del Bello heaved a pass to 6' 6" Ralph Fieler who was brought down on the nine. The 'Canes then placed the burden on Ghaul who came through in fine style with a placement that split the uprights for a field goal.

The turning point in the fray came late in the third stanza when Schmid intercepted a Miami aerial on his own 40. The 'Cats, a ten point pre-game favorite, then came to life. Bill Doherty, sterling quarterback, passed to end Johnny Bogan for a 20 yard gain. D'Alonzo then bulled his way to the Miami 20. On the next play Doherty dug into his bag of tricks and came up with one of the Mainliners most potent offensive weapons . . . the pitchout play. Polidor on the receiving end of the toss, outran all defenders to score.

'Cats Take Lead

Pasquariello's tally was set up by passes from Andy Gordon to Joe Rogers, who became a proud father on the day of the game, and Bogan. The drive started on the Miami 48.

With only a 3 point margin, the 'Cats secured the game with D'Alonzo's T. D. This time it was "Pasky's" 46 yard sprint that proceeded the score.

Series Now Even

The win now evens the series at

Future Promising For Wildcat Trackmen

With the Cross-country season now under way, the Villanova track team is looking forward to a highly successful winter and spring campaign. The squad, under the tutelage of Coach Jim Elliot, is using the cross-country season as a "prep" for the indoor and outdoor meets.

Browning Ross, the only American in the Olympic 3,000 meter steeplechase finals, is almost a sure bet to win all the meets and is likely to capture the N.C.A.A. cross-country title at Lansing, Mich. Behind Jim McGehrin, Charlie McKee, and Ross there is George Thompson, Jim Kennedy all competent runners who now have the practice which they lacked prior to the Army meet. With this contingent, the 'Cats are sure to be highly rated at the close of the season.

Relay Team Outstanding

When the transformation from hill and dale to the circular board is made, the Blue-White will move on to what should be one of the greatest indoor seasons in the school's history. The mile relay team, built around Olympian George Guida, is the fastest ever to wear Villanova colors. The quartet is completed by Jim McKenna, Ed Fitzgerald and Jack Holmes. Should there be any unforseen mishaps during the months ahead, McCreary, Dick Muscelli, Tom Irish and possibly the versatile Ross will be ready to take the place of any of the starters.

Guida is aiming for the national championship in the 600 and from last years record, he should have little trouble in succeeding. George lost only once at this distance, this defeat was at the hands of Dave Bolem at the national AAU in Madison Square Garden. The 600 is Guida's favorite distance and he holds the third fastest time in the world.

In the dashes will be found Tom Irish and Ed Bausenwein with Irish possibly doubling in a mile relay or two. Both were pace makers on last years frosh squad and are expected to do even better next year.

McKenna a Stellar Performer

Formost among the Sophomores is last years freshman star Jim McKenna. Jim can run anything from the fifty yard dash to the half-mile run with his specialty the quarter mile. He anchored the freshmen mile relay team and will play an important part on this years varsity foursome.

George Thompson, who was converted to a miler last year, is one of the best distance men in the east. As well as running the mile, Thompson will be a big threat in the 1500 and a valuable man on the two mile relay team.

Skimming the hurdles for the Wildcats will be Gene Kelly and Jim Wanta who have improved greatly over last year and these men can score valuable points.

Round-Robin Play Opens I-M Program

Increased participation in all Intramural activities is the goal set for the '48-'49 year by the Intramural Committee headed by Rev. John Dunne, O.S.A., Moderator of campus intramural sports. The Committee, with a year's experience behind them, is endeavoring to promote a bigger and better program for students who like to engage in sports but are unsuited for varsity competition.

Following the seasonal trend, touch football takes the spotlight in the intramural parade of sports. Rules and regulations for the Fall activity have been drawn up and will be posted on bulletin boards of the respective halls. Since last year's football season failed to produce a recognized hall champion, a new play-off experiment is being attempted. Briefly, the play-off setup will be as follows:

Instructions

1. Each hall is eligible to field up to a maximum of five teams composed of eight men each.

2. Those teams will engage in both intra-hall and inter-hall competition until November 1st.

3. The purpose of these games will be to determine the outstanding players in each hall who will represent that hall in the eliminations beginning November 3rd.

4. The winner of this playoff will be crowned Intramural Touch Football Champion.

5. Members of the hall play-off team will be selected by the victorious team captain under the supervision of the prefect. For the play-off team, ten members will be picked.

6. Captains of the intra-hall team will turn in a list of the players to the VILLANOVAN office or Room 305, Alumni. Only members on the submitted list can play for that team. No player is allowed to hold membership on two squads.

7. Games, prior to championship competition, will be arranged by the team captains.

8. The names of the team members representing the hall in the finals must be handed in on or before Nov. 2nd to the Intramural Committee. Day-Hops are urged to form their own teams from which to chose a contender for campus touch football laurels.

Knecht, O'Brien Led Dems

The Dems, spirited by Father Dunne and led by the diminutive Al O'Brien and Capt. Harry Knecht will prove a tough obstacle for any team with championship aspirations.

Fr. Kemme's Austin squad, built around Joe Doris, will have to do a big rebuilding job to retain the league-leading laurels which they captured last season.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT STARTS; TO CHOOSE SPRING CONTENDERS

By BILL COONEY

The eyes of the local tennis world shifted from Forest Hills to the Villanova courts this week as the intramural sports year opened officially with the announcement that competition will start to determine the champion tennis player of each hall. Those men who achieve this title will represent their halls in the elimination tourney to be held next spring. Those springtime contests will decide who will garner that coveted amateur title of school champion.

Finals Next April

There will not be enough time to hold all the preliminaries next spring was the reason given for the autumnal contests. With hall champions all selected, play will start without delay next April. We should also see a better brand of tennis from a man who knows that competition will be keen from the first and that every man in his building will be counting on him.

Challenging will be the procedure to be followed in picking the hall representatives. Any man who feels he is about to have a good day on the courts, hunts up someone who will play him. Since there is apt to be more than one set of challengers per hall, the winners of the first round will pair off, until the hall champ is decided. If the matches aren't played within three days, the offending player defaults.

At the present time only residents of the same hall play each other. Interhall competition starts next spring.

Day Hops Included

Day Hops may feel that they are not included, however, nothing could be further from the truth as there are two groups or "halls" for which the day hops can compete. The first is the C & F day student group, while the second is called the Mendel day student group. The Mendel group is composed of pre-meds, Arts, Engineering and Science students, in short, any non-C & F day hop.

Another "hall" figuring in the tournament will be made up of "tampe", or those resident students now temporarily living off campus. This unfortunate condition does not exactly foster spirit so this program and all intramural sports should especially interest them.

Severance Starts 13th Year As Wildcat Coach

Basketball practice was officially opened yesterday with Coach Al Severance confining the opening activities of his charges to general conditioning exercises.

This will be Severance's 13th year as coach of the Blue and White five and it promises, on paper at least, to rank among his most successful years. There has been much conjecture as to how the Cats will fare this year, and all the crystal gazing has been of a highly optimistic nature.

What This Year's Court Season Has to Offer

'38-39 Squad Best

But, this year's team will have to be exceptionally good to beat the records set by some of the clubs Severance has coached. The best squad as far as percentages are concerned was the 1942-43 team paced by Billy Woods and Bob Kalty. They won 19 while losing only 2. But in Severances own estimation the best team he ever coached was the 1938-39 combine which won 19 lost 4 and wound up in the finals of the NCAA tournament after beating Brown in the semi finals 42-30. The Wildcats succumbed to Ohio State in the finals 53-36.

Coach Severance graduated in 1929 as valedictorian of his class. While an undergraduate at Villanova, he won letters in basketball, track and boxing. In 1929 he was appointed Assistant Graduate Manager of Athletics, and in 1933 was named Graduate Manager. He held this office until 1936 when he was named Head Coach.

Everyone Back

As we said before, this year's team looms as one of the best in Villanovan history. Not a man was lost from last year's squad and for that matter not a man will be lost next year. But no help will be coming from the sophomores, and such finds as Paul Arizen aren't very likely for two years running.

As the freshmen are as yet an unknown quantity, we will confine ourselves to a rundown of the returning varsity letter-winners. At center Severance has Paul Arizen, 6'4" proponent of the jump shot. Paul's play last year was sensational, even without considering that it was the first year he had ever played organized basketball. Besides leading the team in scoring, Arizen's backboard game was an important factor in the Wildcat's 15 victories.

Weglicki An Asset

At the forwards positions, Coach Severance has Tommy Sabol, Brooks Ricca, Johnny Weglicki, and Perry Del Purgatorio. The first two mentioned followed Arizen in the scoring column. Sabol, 6' 1" jumps as if he has springs in his sneakers, and combined with Arizen, the Cats should experience little difficulty in controlling the backboard this season. Ricca alternated between the pivot post and forward last year and if he learns to shoot as effectively as he fakes, "Ric" should be in for a banner year. "Del" with his "dead" one hander from the corner should provide Severance with experienced reserve strength while Johnny Weglicki, an in and out performer last season, should be a definite asset if he finds himself and plays the type of ball he played in leading the 'Cats to Victory over Rhode Island State last year.

Back at guard, will be the incomparable Leo Wolf, Joe Hannon, Jack Crossin and Shy Raiken. There's not much sense in writing about Wolf. He has to be seen in order to be appreciated. In Hannon and Crossin, Severance has two men who really put the flame into the firehouse brand of ball the 'Cats adopted last year. Raiken was somewhat of a disappointment last season by not living up to expectations. A return to form by Raiken this year could be the deciding factor between a good and a sensational season.

The coming campaign should prove to be an eventful one and maybe before it's over Coach Severance may have to change his opinion as to the best team he ever coached.

Coach Miller of the 150 pound football team gives pointers to Captain Bob Fitzmeyer. "Fitz", an outstanding center for the past 2 seasons, is the mainstay of the "Kittens" forward wall.

Dope sheets for Day hops and Tempe are posted in the Villanovan office so that all may enter their name.

For the benefits of all new students confused by the new and room changes, and also the four lost Villanovan staff writers, the Villanovan office is in the basement of the Commerce and Finance building.

Although the tennis season closes Nov. 1st, it starts as soon as you finish reading this article. So rush right down to the courts and start playing. Don't forget your partner and your tennis shoes. College regulations say you have to have both, especially the tennis shoes.

one game each. Last year the Hurricanes, using the L formation, surprised the Blue-White by tieing the 'Cats 7-7.

Villanova now has a record of three wins against only one defeat. It was the second intersectional victory of the campaign.

Mendel Strengthened

Mendel has been considerably strengthened, but is again expected to finish out of the running. Little is known of the "Tempe" team and the Day Hops, either; one of which could upset the pre-season dope and walk off with the title.

Keen competition is expected to provide spectator thrill throughout the season in basketball, the major Intramural sport.

A list of general rules and regulations governing all Intramural Sports has been delivered to hall prefects and must be consulted before teams are entered in competition.

Future Promising For 'Cats Trackmen

14' Colman's Aim

In the pole vault, George "Buck" Coleman is a sure point-getter in any meet. Coleman was third in the indoor IC4A meet at the Garden last year and has his sights set for first place and fourteen feet. Backing Coleman in this event is Bill Allen who showed steady improvement in both indoor and outdoor meets a year ago.

Joe Semple will be tossing the shot put and is expected to do better than forty-five feet. In the spring Joe will be doing his specialty, the javelin. He should do better than 200 feet and in the discus he should easily top his mark of 144 feet.

Many Promising Frosh

Of the new additions to the freshman squad Art Kleppeer, Bill Currin, Pete Semigan, Bob Cunjak, and Pete Pittis look to be the brightest prospect. Klepper is a tall, lean, miler from Malvern, N. Y. Last year he ran the distance in 4:25. He is Junior Metropolitan mile champion in New York and will be a very important factor in Villanova's distance chances in the years to come.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

Here Are the Records; If You Call Yourself An Expert, See What You Can Dope Out

By JIM PLUNKET

You can't prove a thing by comparative scores but for those addicts of the "We should've knocked their ears off 'cause we beat Podunk by 3 touchdowns while they beat them by two. Here are the records so far of the opponents the 'Cats will have to face in the next weeks.

Hoyas Scare B. C.

On paper, Boston College is supposed to have it. Maybe they do and the experts just underated Georgetown and St. Bonaventure's. Anyway, the 'Cats will be handing the Eagles about 15 pounds per man on the line this Friday night at Braves Field. Facing Wake Forest in their opener, Denny Meyer's Eagles won handily. But the following Saturday they barely edged Georgetown, 13-7. The Hoyas outplayed them throughout the game and if it had lasted another play or two, the score might have been different as the game ended with Georgetown having possession of the ball on the B. C. 2. They ran up against a cropper in Hughie Devore's little St. Bonaventure College, and they barely came through with a tie.

Meet Titans Next

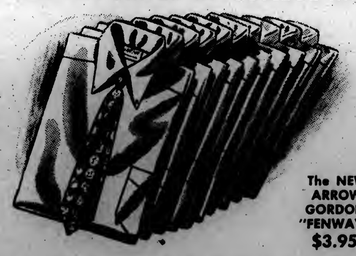
Following the Boston College fray, the Wildcats journey to the motor city where they will face what is probably the toughest team on our schedule. Detroit has one of the top powerhouses in the middle West and for the third straight year they are among the top ten in the nation in ground gaining. In the A. P. selections the Titans rate in the top 20 in the country. Actually, the Titans haven't been tested as yet. They've had things pretty much their own way in rolling over Toledo, Marquette and last week, San Francisco, 40-7. The Wildcats will have to play ball full 60 minutes and not just the last quarter if they're going to give Detroit a battle.

After winning their first game over Xavier, 48-7, Kentucky has had rough going. 'Ole Miss beat them 20-7, and last week, Upper Darby's Johnny Rauche and the Georgia Bulldogs, after a shaky first quarter, whipped them easily, 35-12.

Baranowski Returns

Georgetown had an open date last weekend and prior to that the Hoyas had suffered two losses. Holy Cross beat them 18-7 and B. C. nipped them 13-7. The Hoyas have one of the biggest lines in the East and with Babe Baranowski back at the quarterback slot, employing the spread formation, the 'Cats can expect almost anything.

State Tied Duke



North Carolina State opened the season in good style holding Duke's Blue Devils to a scoreless tie but the following week they were edged by Clemson 6-0. Last Saturday, the Wolfpack finally showed some scoring punch in running roughshod over Davidson 40-0.

After that terrific game last year out on the coast, the San Francisco game will probably be a big let down this year. So far the Dons haven't shown a thing. In their opener, they barely got by St. Mary's. But on the following two weekends, they were soundly thrashed by Nevada and Detroit. The Dons lost the greater part of their strength when Ed McKeever resigned as coach last year and so far they haven't recovered from the blow.

Seen from the Sidelines...

Quite a few members of last year's eleven have now joined the coaching ranks. Ollie Anderson is assistant coach at Stanford high school in Conn., while Tom Smith, starting guard on last year's eleven, is coaching at North Catholic. Kenny Reeher, who played on the Wildcat's basketball team in 1944-45 is now coaching football at Sharon Junior high school.

DPE

The college business fraternity, Delta Pi Epsilon, met last Wednesday and also proposed plans for the coming year. A previous tie for the secretary's post was resolved when George Cole, a prospective February graduate, conceded to Michael Santacroce.

The initiation of new members was placed in the hands of William Walker who heads a nine man committee. Applications for admission to the fraternity will be accepted on Wednesday night, October 20. The number of new members to be accepted is still the subject of discussion.

Michael Lingenfelter was named to represent the group in the coming Inter-Frat Ball activities. Working with him will be several other members of the organization. Sporting events were placed under the direction of Bruce Tatum who will arrange for the formation of basketball, softball, and bowling teams. Challenges to like teams of other organizations will be extended in the near future.

Chesterfield cigarettes were provided for the group by campus representatives, Hugh Johnson and Frank Guzikowski, who pointed out to the group the merits of Chesterfield's ABC program.

November Votes Needed For State Vets' Bonus

Villanova veterans residing in Pennsylvania will have an additional reason to guarantee their being at the polls come the November elections. In all, seven states will vote on veterans' bonuses with proposed payments ranging up to a maximum of $650.

World War II bonuses already have been authorized by nine states, the Territories of Alaska and Hawaii. Largest bonus payments provided for in the proposed legislation will be voted on by the citizens of South Dakota. If approved, a veteran in that state may receive as much as $650. Highest bonus already authorized is in Illinois, where payments up to $900 are now being paid.

Pennsylvania Vets

In Pennsylvania the payments call for $10 for each month domestic service, $15 for each month of foreign service, with maximum payment of $500. Requirements: Legal resident of state at time of induction or enlistment, served 60 days or more between 7 Dec. 1941 and 2 Sept. 1945. If in service on VJ-Day, time may be counted to 2 Mar. 1946. Eligible survivor would receive $500 in event of death in service. If ratified payments will not be made befor e1950.

Action taken by states on bonus payments to veterans now stands as follows:

Good News Today! Checks Are Here

There may be no joy in Beantown today but Villanova students are kicking their heels high in glee — unexpected financial succor came from a munificent government as the first trickle of subsistehce payments came for ex-G.I. students. Because September was a short month for record purposes, checks were not scheduled to arrive until November 1st.

Credit ratings soar once more and the taps are again beginning their steady flow. News quickly passed to the neighboring girls' colleges and telephone bells began jangling in mad frenzy. There's good news tonight, girls. "Allah, be praised! The boys have money again."

Debaters Welcome Freshmen Members

The initial meeting of Villanova's Debating Society will be held at 7:15 p. m. in the C. & F. Auditorium, Wednesday evening, October 20th. New members are urged to attend. Previous experience in debating is not a requisite for membership.

The new moderator of the society is Mr. Jones, of the speech department. He has announced that Villanova will participate in the program of the N.F.C.C.S. Forensic Commission. This program promises to keep the debaters active through participation in special forum and panel discussiins, public speaking and radio work and the annual N.F.C.C.S. Forensic Tournament.

Pictured above are a Villanova boy and Rosemont giri who posed for apicture giving a preview of what's to come this Saturday night.

Sophs Predict Big Turnout

The above scene will be duplicated more than 500 times as the Class of '51's Sophomore Cotillion takes its place as the first major social event of the scholastic year. Dancing to the music of the "Villanovans", the couples will be merrymaking from 9 to 1 o'clock, Saturday, October 23rd.

Sophomore dance chairmen have refused to disclose information concerning the theme of the Cotillion and those assisting the various committees are sworn, so it seems, to strict secrecy. Nevertheless, the carrying of crtain conspicuous material into the Field House under cover of darkness, and the suspicious appropriation of lumber lying about the campus serves as an indication of a possible carousel theme.

HONOR ROLL LIST HAS 385

Eleven Students Top Dean's List With 4.0 Standing; Record Number Make Required B Average

The Registrar's office has released the Honor Roll of Students for the 1948 Spring Semester. The honor roll is published to give recognition to those students who have earned at least a 3.0 mark in their studies.

Last semester, eleven men topped a list of 385 students with a 4.0 average which indicates straight A work. Men with a 4.0 were James Mitchell, Paul Costas, Paul Hemler, Richard Sullivan, Michael Saboe, Joseph Roarty, and Louis Slater.

The semester average is computed by allowing 4 points for an A, 3 for B, 2 for C, and 1 for D. The points for a subject are multiplied by the credit hours and the total points divided by total credit hours.

This list does not include those men who graduated.

VILLANOVA HOST TO CATHOLIC SCHOOLS AT PRESS MEETING

It has been announced that the publications conference for Catholic schools will be held at Villanova College, Villanova, Pennsylvania, on Saturday, October 30, 1948.

Reverend Edward M. Reilly, J.C.D., Superintendent of Schools, will be the principle speaker. Also speaking will be Reverend F. X. McGuire, O.S.A., President of Villanova College, who will give the welcoming address.

Sponsored by the Belle Air this conference is the answer to the repeated requests of faculty advisers and student journalists who are interested in making their publications better, who desire to increase the educational value of these important activities, who wish to learn the approved methods of handling the work involved, and who would welcome the opportunity to have their problems and questions answered by impartial experts.

The program has been carefully prepared so that all sessions contribute substantially to the main purpose of the Conference which is

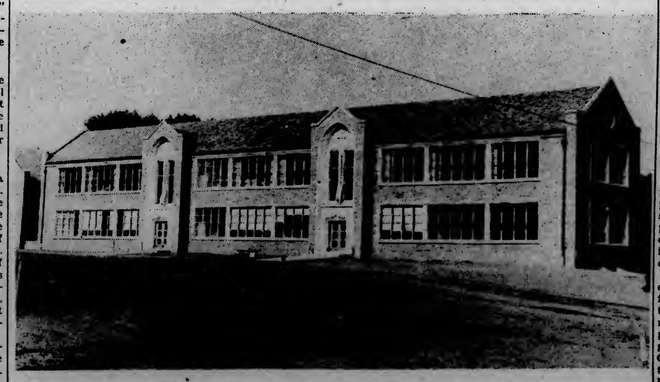
Even in these days of inflated prices five-hundred thousand dollars can be used well. Just how wisely Villanova College spent a portion of its building fund, garnered over the years by hard work, and firm determination, will be shown to the Faculty and Administrative Staff of the College today during an informal open-house in the new Naval Science building. The building will be officially named Commodore John Barry Hall during dedication services in the near future.

Student Opportunity Later



Students, Alumni and friends of the College will have an opportunity to view the buildings at that subsequent date, soon to be announced.

In a memorandum put out to the faculty and administrative staff, Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, OCA, college president, invited those concerned to familiarize themselves with the facilities of the new building. They will be enabled to see in operation the various items of equipment which have been installed by the Navy Department and the College. Capt. T. C. Thomas, USN, ROTC Unit head, and his staff of Navy and Marine officers and men have worked out the problems involved in a showing of this nature and will supervise the work.

Midshipman Operate Devices

From 11:00 A. M. to 12:00 noon and from 3:00 P. M. to 5:00 P. M. Midshipmen will operate the equipment and demonstrate the various training devices. More than 180 of the Naval Officer trainees will participate in the day's activities. To acquaint the visitors with the various combinations of uniforms, different groups officer candidates will wear different uniforms. As the guests walk from activity to activity they will be able to note

ASCE & "PHI KAPS" SET MEETING DATES

PHI KAPPA PI

Phi Kappa Pi, engineering fraternity, will hold a meeting, Wednesday, October 20th, at 5 o'clock in room 215 Mendal Hall. Committees will be drawn up for the various activities. One of the more pertinent points on the agenda will be the Inter-Frat Ball. "Phi Kap" is in charge of decorations. Membership cards will also be distributed, and frat pins made available to members.

A.S.C.E.

On Wednesday, October 20th, the student chapter of the A.S.C.E. will hold its first meeting of the current school year. Upper-classmen in the school of Civil Engineering, as well as all members and candidates for membership should be present.

FIELD TRIP

Forty members of the Villanova Student Chapter of the A.S.C.E. wenton a field trip, Sept. 12th. The trip was sponsored jointly by the Mertopolitan Phila. Chapter of the A.S.C.E. and the Phila. section of the Public Works Association. Members were taken on a tour of inspection of three of Philadelphia's major Public Works projects; namely, the Torresdale Pumping Station. The Northeast Sewage Treatment Plant, and the Market Street Subway extension.

At the conclusion of the afternoon trip, the group went to the Phila. Engineers Club for dinner. A series of talks were given concerning many problems which rise in the field.

ENGINEERING GRADS OFFERED POSITIONS

The U. S. Civil Service Commission has announced that an examination for Enginer positions at the P-1 grade ($2,974 a year) in Washington, D. C., will be given.

No written test is required of competitors in the examination. To qualify they must have completed four years of college study in professional engineering leading to a Bachelor's degree. Men in all branches of engineering, such as Aeronautical, civil, electrical, mechanical, naval architecture, etc., will be accepted.

Students May Apply

Applications will be accepted from students who expect to complete their college courses within six months of filing application. Applicants' qualifications will be judged from a review of their experience, education, and training, and on cooperative evidence.

Preference benefits based on honorable sparation from the armed forces are given to veterans. Interestde persons may obtain information and application forms at post offices, from Civil Service regional officers, or from the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington 25, D. C. Applications should be sent to the Commision's Washington office. They will be accepted until further notice.

October—Rosary Month

The gist of this editorial is the great powers the children of God have in their Rosaries, and, as I mused, an analogy came to my mind. And that analogy was the comparison between the Rosary—and the A-Bomb.

Actually, the Rosary goes the A-Bomb one better. The A-Bomb has the power to move earth, though somewhat violently. The Rosary has the power to move heaven and transform the face of the earth, not violently, but softly and with the gentleness of a whispered prayer.

The Rosary, too, operates on the theory of chain-reaction. One devoutly breathed Ave sets off the next, and the grace and blessing that is released from heaven at the whispering of each bead detonates a new and endless series of blessings.

But just as the A-Bomb will not work unless it is properly fused, so, too, the Rosary is ineffective unless its recitation is fused with the important spiritual elements of devotion, humility, and trust in God.

"Any child of God can make use of the Rosary," and so doing, he sets off a cataclysmic force which is guaranteed to destroy evil and leave peace and contentment in its wake. What an improvement over the material A-Bomb!

Catholics of the world should realize that they have a mighty Atomic Bomb in Our Lady's Beads. They should use it frequently—daily—to demolish the ramparts of sin and to scatter the blessings of true peace upon the hearts of men.

The Campaign Goes On

The Villanovan continues its campaign for the installation of a traffic light at the corner of Lancaster Pike and Ithan Road. We again request that all who have not returned signed petitions do so without delay.

In the approaching conferences with the highway engineers and other authorities it is imperative that we reinforce the statistics of accidents, injuries and deaths with strong public opinion.

Your voice can influence the decision. A passive attitude on your part might result in other fatalities. We want to avoid these fatalities. Do you?

STUDENT WANTS VILLANOVA SONGS RECORDED

October 10, 1948.

Editor,
THE VILLANOVAN,
Villanova, Pa.

Dear Sir:

Upon listening to the radio recently, I have heard numerous programs that play the songs of many colleges and universities, particularly Alma Maters and Victory songs.

What I would like to know is why do we never hear Villanova's Alma Mater or the new victory song, "V for Villanova"? These two songs are as beautiful and stirring as any of the better known anthems of various colleges, and if played on the radio, would undoubtedly make Villanova much better known.

The omission of our songs on the air is probably due to the fact that these songs have never been recorded! If the VILLANOVAN or our own publicity department would have an arrangement of these two songs written, I feel sure that they would be recorded by some well-known bands. For instance, only today after a local pro football game, Johnny Long and his orchestra played at least ten songs of Cornell, Wisconsin, Notre Dame, and others.

I am writing this in the hopes that you will give this matter some thought, and refer it to the proper person or persons who could do something to alleviate this situation.

Yours for a better-known Villanova,
"A STUDENT."

'NEATH THE SPIRES.

By Emil R. Borgers '50

The rain came down in torrents. It was not a good day for a retreat. Inside the Field House, over two thousand students sat motionless at Mass. This was the largest group of Villanova men ever to be assembled under one roof. It was the annual one-day retreat, the start of a new scholastic year.

There was no electricity in the gigantic building. The rain had damaged the power lines. A microphone was of little use. After Mass, Father Sherman, the Retreat Master, moved to the center of the stage and began to address the student body. His words carromed off the high brick walls of the gymnasium. Many had difficulty hearing him. It surely was not a good day for a retreat.

Father Sherman must have been discouraged but he did not give up. He spoke as loud as he could without destroying the respectful reverence that was gradually being built up. Our retreat master spoke of love of God and of the saving of the soul. Despite the difficulties, he held his audience.

Before the last conference of the day, another disappointment occured. Several Villanova students, returning from lunch, were severely injured in an automobile accident in front of the Field House. The magnetism of the retreat was again broken. After a few minutes of confusion, Father Sherman again addressed his audience.

With the accident as a theme, he spoke of the state of Grace and the necessity of a good confession. When he had finished his final talk, the confession lines began to form. Although small in the morning these lines were growing. At the beginning of the Holy Hour, the last gathering o fthe day, many were still waiting to confess their sins. At the end of Benediction, the words of "Holy God We Praise Thy Name" shook the Field House.

It was one of the most impressive sights that Villanovans had ever witnessed. The confession lines formed again but this time all but surrounded the gymnasium.

It was not a good day for a retreat, or was it? Did the martyrs need beautiful days and ideal conditions to sacrifice their lives and thus prove their love of God? Was the sun shining when Christ died on the Cross? Is a retreat made successful because of the perfect surroundings, or because of the love of God in our hearts? Maybe it was a good day for a retreat, after all.

"Video" vs. The Student

Students in the past have met and overcome many of the serious problems foisted upon them by our advancing technological age. In point, witness their struggle with the radio.

When this device first offered its distracting pleasures to students, educators and parents were most concerned lest it disturb their study habits. It was up to the students to prove to a distressed world that they could demonstrate the necessary ability to read, listen, comprehend and write at the same time.

Early pioneers, as would be expected, suffered badly. Flunk lists grew in alarming proportions. Old sages looked disparagingly down their academic noses at those perservering "listen and study" students and smiled prophetically, knowing that they soon would be through.

As the problem grew more severe, administrative measures were taken. Radios were confiscated. Students who elected to violate strict regulations concerning their possession were promptly thrown out and into employment offices.

In 1928 a small group of students at the City College of Janitorial Engineering in a suburb of Bryn Mawr, decided to prove that any student of average ability could comlpete his four years of undergraduate work by means of radio.

When the class of '32 was graduated, it's valedictorian, Mr. Drumgold Lewis (Long-Handled-Broom Major) proclaimed to the world that the experiment had been a success. Of those "listen and study", students, who had entered in '28, not a single fatility was experienced.

A grateful student world rejoiced. Now it was definitely established that we could both study, listen, and yes, even graduate! Succeeding generations of College, High School, and even Grade School inmates stand as testimony to the proposition of Drumgold Lewis. Thus we have substantial evidence of the perseverance, courage, and ingenuity of our 20th century student.

Now however there is another device our technological masterminds have injected into our society—television! Not unlike radio in its early stages of development; the cost of such instruments are prohibitive to students. Leading manufacturers of "video", however, inform us that in years to come their prices will be leveled low enough to bring them within the reach of anyone that can now afford a radio.

Thus, men, we are beset with another challenge! Meeting this will take unusual physical and mental dexterity. Imagine if you can, a student now forced to read, write, look ,listen and carry on a running conversation with his room-mate at the same time.

You try it brother, not me!

And What Remains?

The surf pounds in; and sands swirl under Waters that would grind asunder
Life and hope. And what remains?
The driftwood, and the flotsam dour,
Shells, and rocks, a drowned flower.

Dim dusk comes on and chills the beach;
This log in the dunes once filled the breach
Of a ship. And what remains?
Spikes driven deep are now all rusted;
Cables rotted (friends once trusted)
Are trustless now. And what remains?

The sea remains, and stands there waiting.
Ought one to chance arising,
Boldly enter, and swim without fear
Into the endless deep?

What of Politics?

by
VECCHIO

When our children study the 1948 elections in their history books, the chapter title will read "John Q. Faces a Dilemna". The text will be written on November 2nd and in the few years to come, but the title is written now.

NEW DEAL

Dilemna it is. For twelve years John Q. had entrusted the destiny of the nation to a man with a set of ideas about a "new deal" for the working man. When that man died he left as his successor the Eddie Duchin of the White House. But the past two years have seen the tide change. The 1946 elections put a Republican majority in Congress. The Taft-Hartley law that that Congress enacted began a reversal of the "new deal". John Q. must decide whether or not the change is good.

VICTORY SHOUTS

The Democrats have not been slow to raise their shout. "Shades of Victoria," they cry. "Here we fight the good fight to free the workers from the poverty imposed by the 'Wall St. gluttons of power' and now they are trying to take our freedom from us again." The Republicans retort with just as loud a yell. "Shades of Louis XIV. Here we fight the American Revolution and the French Revolution to be free from governmental tyranny and now they are trying to take our freedom from us again."

"1215, 1776, and 1944," the Democrats say.

"Dictatorship vs. Democracy," say the Republicans.

And, poor John stands in the middle listening to the shouts, and, like the boy in his first day at school, he wonders where to turn.

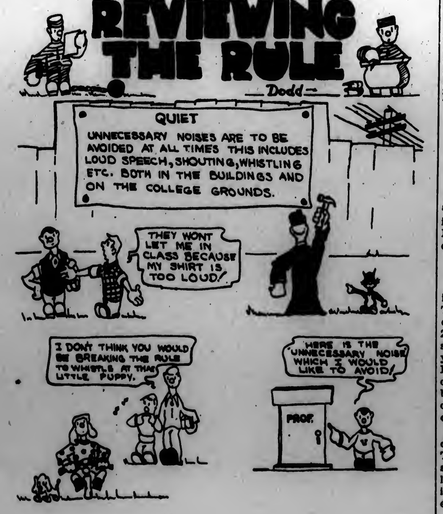
PROMISES

The issues are simple. The Democrats wares are controlled economy, such as farm subsidies, food storage, price control, soil and forest conservation, social security, protection of the workers' right to strike, housing subsidies, veterans' benefits, defense expenditures, the Marshall Plan, price control, benefits to the states for resource development, highway improvement, etc. Their merchandising policy is to pay for these gifts by high taxation, especially of the higher income brackets.

THE OTHER VIEW

The Republican wares are negative; eliminate subsidies as false means of maintaining a delicate and undesirable economic balance, no price control, no housing subsidies, less social security. We judge this by the activities of the recent Congress, and by Dewey's praise of the Congress.

RIGHT AND WRONG



The Republicans are right when they say it is rather unusual to consider a bumper crop regretful; when they say that there is too much waste, bureaucracy, and looseness in the Government. They are wrong when they say that the restrictions imposed on installment purchasing of luxuries is harmful rather than beneficial. Any housewife can tell how wrong they were when they said prices would come down naturally once controls were removed.

SMEAR CAMPAIGN

That is the way the campaign is being fought. It consists of attacks on Democratic mistakes and on Republican negativeness and evasiveness. It involves the personalities of the candidates, for that is as important as are the policies.

NOVEMBER'S ANSWEP

Does John Q. believe that Dewey's administrative ability will be used to bring the country through a difficult period and that controlled economy is as unhealthy as a hothouse plant, or does he believe that in spite of Truman's mistakes, he has a better governmental policy, and that leaving our economy uncontrolled is like leaving a wild horse loose on a busy street? John Q. will tell us on November 2nd but every voter must visit the little green booth to write his answer. Let's be there.

Another Philadelphia tradition, the La Scala Opera Company, will open its 1948-49 season. This organization gives performances of the great grand operas with feeling and sparkle. It is the only nationally known opera company that can openly compete with the Metropolitan Opera Association. The La Scala is noted for its productions of the best in Italian and French operas. However ,they will deviate from this policy by presenting one of the immortal works of Richard Wagner-Lohengrin. This phase of opera is usually associated with the "Met".

Verdi's superb masterpiece "Rigoletto" will serve as the curtain-raiser of the season. The principles will be Hilde Regiani, who will sing the role of the ill-fated Gilda: Bruno Landi will enact the part of the evil duke of Mantua, and the recently returned Ceasere Bardelli sings the title role of "Rigoletto". Briefly the opera deals with the loves of the Duke and his particular love for the daughter of the court's jester. The finale is reached with the consorted singing of all the principals, and the death of Gilda.

Historically the plot was taken from Victor Hugo's tragedy "Le Roe d'Amuse". The opera had its political troubles during 1848, when permission was refused for a performance. The laws of the times prohibited the representation of a king on the stage as is given in the original drama. The artistically minded Chief of Police of Venice came to the rescue by suggesting that the librettists change the king to a duke.

The famous Ebe Stignani will make one of her scarce American appearances with the La Scala. She will sing in Il Trovatore and La Gioconda. Both of these operas offer splendid opportunities to study the rich voice of the internationally known artist.

Other operas to be presented are Verdi's "La Traviata"; "La Forza del Destino"; and "Aida". Puccini's opera of love in a garrett, "La Boheme" and "Madame Butterfly", will also be produced. As usual the Ballet will be under the direction of William Sena. The general artistic director will be ,as in the past Giuseppi Bamboschek.

With the untimely death of Francesco Peligissi, Mr. Anthony D. Terracciano was elected to the General Managership. Mr. Terraccino for years has been on the board of directors and has given freely of his time to music and La Scala in particular. This column wishes to express hearty congratulations and hope for many successful seasons.

By HUGH JOHNSON and HARRY JACOBS

WARNING TO ALL HANDS: It has come to our attention that the coondogs of Georgetown are up to their old stuff. Last year, as all upper classmen knew, the troops from Hoya Town made one of the most daring and sensational interstate snatches when they walked off with our Wildcat, Count Villanova III.

Well, this information has it that they are all prepared to pull the same act over again, even in spite of the huge cost of feeding the Mascot. This is mentioned so that all will be on the lookout for some even more diabolical plan.

Student Council

Although we are in no way members of the Villanova Student Council — nor do we claim to have any influence on that legislative body — we have, nevertheless, been asked to name a few proposals. Hence, thru the most effective medium we know of (the VILLANOVAN, that is) we will state the cases requested of us!

(1) Most of Villanova's remaining football games will be played away, without the help of television. The average man on the campus, of course, won't be able to make these trips. Therefore, it is proposed that the S.C. do a little spadework on the possibility of having the movies of these games shown to the student body in general.

Tentatively, movies could be shown on (say) Wed. or Thurs. afternoon at (say) 12, 1, and/or 3 in the C. & F. audit. for the day-hops and early in the eve for the residents.

(2) One of the commonest campus suggestions from the day-hops concerns the dearth of lounge facilities. We realize, of course, that things are crowded here and that a project of this magnitude can't be accomplished over night; but other colleges, just as crowded, do have these facilities.

But it would seem feasible to do some investigation to see, for example, what is going to happen to the room now occupied by the library in Austin Hall.

(3) At a quick unsampled estimate, we would say that about 200 students will complete their education come this February. (This proposal came from 3 of these seniors). Proposal: that graduation for the some 200 be held this February instead of having to come back in June for the ceremonies.

Once again, these proposals were not our own masterminds — we are merely submitting 'em.

Sports

Football takes a backseat this week at Villanova but it won't be for long. With the Detroit game due next weekend, Jordan Olivar's eleven will meet the stiffest competition of the season, save Army.

Here, however, we want to take a little sneaky glance of the basketball team which is still under wraps. Coach Al Severance and Maj. McDonnell are working like fiends — and for every good reason. This past summer, most of Villanova's squad comprised a team which played in the Narberth Twi-light league. Their record (and get this) was 16 games won to 0, zip, none lost. The other 7 teams in the league weren't cripples from some local home, but rather collegiate stars from Penn, Temple, St. Joe's, La Salle, Muhlenberg, Dartmouth, etc. We saw 'em play one night — Paul Arizen had 31 points against Jack Ramsey's (St. Joe's) team. Look for some hot games in the gym this winter.

Sophomores

This year's soph class is under Geo. Schuster, without a doubt, the hottest thing this school has seen in some time. They're all fired with enthusiasm — especially over their coming cotillion. In fact, their exhuberance, etc., descended upon your writers to such an extent that we fear for our lives. Last week, we said that we'd let you all know what the theme of the dance would be — well, that's all changed now. We're chicken. However — a hint. A little Belle Masque at 34th & Girard.

Mark of Zorro

By George R. Reinhart

The Orientation of Freshmen has long been a time honored tradition at Villanova, but this year has seen a change in the customary procedure.

The "Frosh", seeking to strike back at their cruel lords, have brought "Zorro", the defender of the oppressed, from the halls of fiction and installed him as their savior.

Many will remember "Zorro" as the black clad horseman who rode through the dark night bringing justice to the weak and punishment to the cruel. With his black whip he struck terror in the hearts of the oppressors. Fortunately for the upper-classmen, the sting of Villanova's "Zorro" is not quite that violent.

As a symbol of their revolt, the Freshmen have adopted a kitten and named him "Count Zorro I". The "Count" made his debut at the Duquesne football game, and spirited the "Frosh" in a loud denunciation of "Quinn and His Baby Beaters". The revolt was peaceful and orderly and was comprised largely of loud protests. The only mishap occurred when Ed Quinn, president of the Orientation Committee, was accidentally dropped while being "passed down" by the freshman chering section.

During the half, "Count Zorro" witnessed a demonstration by the "Blue Dinks" against the Orientation Committee. "Zorro", attired completely in black and wearing a black mask, rode in a cart pulled by the "white hats". The demonstration symbolized the defeat of the Committee and the freedom of the Freshman Class from wearing the traditional "Regs".

However ,all this was for naught, for orientation continues, and it appears that the "Zorro" movement must go underground.

Acceptance Poll To Seek College Radio Preference

The Radio Acceptance Poll, started in 1946 by the Press Commission of the NFCSS, again offers to Villanova men the opportunity to renew their support of one of the greatest Catholic Action projects ever undertaken; comparable in scope to the Legion of Decency.

The R. A. P. seeks to report the reaction among College students of all denominations to certain types of radio entertainment affecting Christian cultural and ethical standards. The program of the RAP merits your support and enthusiasm. It is practical in that it extends to all the opportunity of voicing heir opinion as to the acceptibility of many radio programs which treat degradingly of morals, authority and the family.

Pernicious Influence

The evils of a low grade of entertainment (reference here is made not to the art with which it is presented, but rather to the content itself) are not obvious upon superficial consideration. No one can deny the influence of radio upon public opinions or attitudes. An alternate view would be shortsighted indeed. This influence can be used either to good or to bad advantage as the radio performers choose. The pernicious influence of the lower forms of radio entertainment can only be mitigated by the substitution of the influence of good taste. There is the solution; there can be no antidote for corruption. One or the other must sil.

Highest Entertainment Desired

The RAP has laid its foundation firmly upon your desire for only the highest in entertainment, and upon your willingness and enthusiasm to make that desire a reality. By lending a few hours of your time each week to listening to programs polled you can do constructive work for society, for your own community, and for yourself. Many of the programs being polled are those to which any radio fan will invariably listen. The list is composed entirely of comedy entertainment.

The interest shown in this energetic enterprise is the index of its success or failure. The issue is squarely up to you. Your interest may be shown by addressing your questions and your services to James D. Dorety, Chairman, in care of this paper or by going in person to Room 307, Austin Hall at any time after 7:30 P. M.

WEEKLY SERMON TO BE HEARD; SOCIETY ATTENDS HOLY MASS

Father Edward Grimes, O. S. A., College Chaplain, announced that the sermon given by Father Crawford during last week's chapel services was the beginning of a series of weekly sermons to be delivered by the priests o fthe faculty.

Thursday, October 14, the Belle Masque Society received Communion as a group with Father William Krupa, O. S. A., offering Mass for the intention of the group. The Belle Masque, thereby instituted a custom and it is planned to continue the practice once monthly. It is hoped that the custom will be carried on through the years.

Many feel that this same practice would serve to the benefit of other organizations on the campus. Its spiritual benefits might well join the club members in a closer union.

School Officials At Conventions

Father Joseph I. Boyle, O.S.A., Assistant Dean of the college, is currently attending the New York Herald Tribune forum in New York City. The purpose of this forum is to discuss the relevance and significance of current news. Conferences began yesterday and will close tonight.

Immediately following the Herald Tribune forum, Father Boyle will leave for Pittsburgh where he will attend the Catholic Education Association Convention. New ideas and trends in Catholic education will be discussed at this meeting which will begin Thursday and continue for three days. As treasurer of the association, Father Boyle is a member of the executive committee.

Father E. M. Dwyer, O.S.A., Dean, was in Chicago last week for a three-day educational convention.

Ross Stars, Thompson Is 3rd N.Y.U. Harriers Down Cats;

By BILL COONEY

In the first and only home meet of the season which was held at Villanova Stadium, last Saturday, the New York University cross-country team defeated the Villanova squad by the score of 25-30. The Violet victory came in spite of the brilliant running of Wildcat Olympic star, Browning Ross, and teammate George Thompson. Ross took first place while Thompson finished in the third position. Second place went to Armand Osterberg, captain of the N.Y.U. team and Metropolitan Collegiate cross-country champ.

In winning, Ross followed his usual pattern of taking the lead at the outset and never relinquishing it for the whole of the five-mile test. Browning had a lead of about fifty yards as the runners left the stadium after encircling it three times. No one to take it easy when ahead, he increased his margin until it was almost 200 yards as he sprinted down the stretch. His time for the course was twenty-six minutes, twenty-three seconds. Osterberg's time was 26:55 and Thompson's 27:15.

Results Same

A quick look at last year's results shows this order of finish of Ross, Osterberg, and Thompson to be identical. Even the times for each man are almost the same.

George Thompson, who got off to rather a slow start against Army made a very good comeback. The three weeks' additional practice was all that was necessary to prove George's true ability as a distance man.

As pointed out above, he again took third behind Osterberg, but last season he came back to beat him in the IC4A Championship. Whether he can repeat this or do even better is a matter of conjecture, but if such rapid improvement continues, George should be among the leaders.

Second Meet

This meet was the second one for both teams and both had previously lost their openers. N. Y. U. lost to Penn State last week while Villanova bowed to Army. In this contest, it was the consistency and grouping of the Violet harriers which decided the outcome. This can be easily seen by scanning the order of finish. N. Y. U.'s Bill Cunningham and Larry Ellis, last year's freshman IC4A champ, tied for fourth followed by Feinberg. Charlie McKee of the Wildcats, also showing much improvement since the Army meet, broke it up with a seventh place. Scott and Maiocco tied for eighth, however, and it was all over as the New Yorkers had six men over to our three. Jim McGehrin and Tom Conboy took eleventh and twelfth places respectively, but the visitors had already made their points and sewed up the meet. That the teams were evenly matched is unquestionable, for in another flashback to last season we see that the score was almost the same, 24-31, in favor of N. Y. U.

Frosh Lose

It apparently was N. Y. U.'s day for in the three and one half mile freshman race, held just before the main event, Emil Von Elling's juniors defeated Jim Elliott's frosh 20-35. Lack of work as a team hampered the home club, but excitement ran high as a duel developed between the Violet's Howie Jacobson and Villanova's Art Klepper. These boys stayed together out-front neck and neck for most of the route, but Jacobson poured it on for the last half mile and shaded Klepper by less than 30 yards.

Eagles Upset Wildcats 20-13 On Pass Interception By Diminick

Princeton's 150s Display Power in Debut

The Villanova 150 pound team opened its season on Saturday by losing to the Princeton University 150's. The Kittens were outclassed 42-0 by the lightweight Tigers on the latter's home field. Princeton took the initiative early and battered the Blue and White goal line four times in the first half.

Bob Fitzmeyer, captain and center on the Villanova squad, kicked-off, and the ball was run back to the Princeton 40 yard line. Halfback Goodman carried for a first down on the Villanova 48. Jim Houston, an Orange and Black fullback, then carried the ball around his right end and raced down the field to score.

After the next kickoff and a fumble, which gave Princeton the ball on the Kitten's 23 yard line, Bob Fitzmeyer, who is starting his third season as captain, was injured and was unable to return to the game. season as captain, was injured and ward wall and enhanced Princeton's outlook because when Fitzmeyer is in the game, he figures in on practically every tackle.

Following an exchange of punts the Tigers marched 72 bitterly contested yards to score. Houston was the big gun of the attack and covered the last few yards with a pass to Laurie. Villanova's Dick Devine and Jim O'Brien gave the opposition some bad moments during this drive.

Dick Devine returned the kickoff to his own 26 yard line, and there began Villanova's longest drive of the game. Charlie Battino and Harry Knecht, alternated carrying for short gains ,and Battino hurled a long pass to Jim McCaughan who fought his way to the Princeton 20-yard line, on second down and Ivy Leaguer intercepted a pass and thus stalled the Kittens' first real threat.

Princeon scored twice more in the second quarter: first Ropp skirted his right end and went the distance. and then Hoffstetter made a quick slash through center to tally. The Villanova 150's made several short drives in this period, but each was frustrated.

In the second half Princeton found it much tougher advancing past the line of the little 'Cats. For most of the third period the teams fought unsuccessfully, but near its end

Pasquariello, Doherty Score in Fiery Battle; Komarnicki Ejected After Fight With Boston Center

By NEAL FAHY

In one of the roughest and toughest football contests ever waged in the Boston area, a hard fighting Villanova eleven suffered its second setback of the season at the hands of a rugged Boston College team.

The final score, 20 to 13, is hardly indicative of the facts which are more fully represented in the statistics that showed an 8 to 3 advantage in first downs and a 101 net yardage superiority in favor of the Wildcats.

Some 30,178 fans, including about 500 of the faithful, saw Bee Cee score first as the result of a Villanova fumble, then on an intercepted pass and finally with the help of a partially blocked kick. It was fairly a case of the Eagles getting the breaks and capitalizing on them.

Doherty Sensational

Glorious in defeat, and easily the outstanding player on the field in the Hub City encounter, was little Billy Doherty, who played the best game of his four year college career. With his sleeves rolled up, perhaps to show that he meant business, the scrappy 155 pound "Wilmington Wonder" kept Denny Myers and his boys frantic throughout the tilt. Doherty, who played most of the game at the quarter slot, showed himself to be a tailback of no mean ability for the first time. Displaying his versatility even more, Billy worked a few plays from the middle of the T.

'Cat Fumble Costly

The first period proceeded for 12 full minutes with no more excitement than some bristling punt exchanges, but Villanova broke the muscular monotony when Doherty hit John Shean with a pass for a 11-yard gain and the initial first down of the game on the Main Liner 44. Prosperity didn't last long, however, and B. C. had its first break on the succeeding play when Willis Derosa recovered a Rogers fumble on the Villanova 49. The Eagles covered that distance in six plays, the most important of which was Poissant's 37 yard scamper around his own left wing.

The second session was considerably more exciting with Villanova taking the offensive at the start and putting the Eagles deep in a hole when Doherty's target kick went out of bounds on the eight. On the next play Clasby couldn't control the ball from center and Ed Berrang recovered for the Wildcats at that spot.

Pacquariello Tallies

Villanova made it in four tries with Pasquariello and Rogers picking up six yards between them. Doherty failed to gain on a quarterback sneak while Art Spinny wrenched vigorously at his head. John Howanski rushed in for the try to tie, but his placement skidded off to the right as the clock showed six minutes.

A feeble third period punt enabled Boston College to rush and pass 50 yards for its second touchdown, made by wringer Spinny with a seven yard overhead from Clasby.

After Diminick's fourth-period touchdown interception, Vince O'Sullivan recovered the only other B. C. fumble on Villanova's 35. After Johnny Geppi turned in a 15-yard gain, Andy Gordon sent Doherty flying into pay dirt. Doherty caught the pass on Boston's 15 and raced unmolested into the Eagle's end zone.

Offense Bogs Down

The belated success gave a terrific lift to the visiting Wildcats. They appeared on the road to a tie shortly afterward when Doherty turned in a 25-yard punt run back. But the Villanova running game bogged inside Boston College's 25 and its passing attack worked for only five yards, with the result that it lost the ball on downs on the Eagles 20. Then, with only three minutes to go, the victors had a fairly easy time freezing the ball until time expired.

WATCHING THE WILDCATS

SPORTS CHATTER

By BILL CANINO, Sports Editor

The Passing Parade . . . Since we got back from Boston everyone has been asking "What Happened?". In attempting to answer this question there are many angles that must be taken into consideration. However two factors dominate. The first was a psychological one, while the second was definitely material. The boys from Chestnut Hill, although undefeated in their first three starts, were out to atone for their 7-7 tie with an unheralded Saint Bonaventure eleven the previous Friday night. B. C., . . . as per usual, is "bowl" conscious and the Villanova contest was a must for them. To say they played "over their heads" is a gross understatement. For example Ed Clasby, a mediocre back in previous contests, turned into a potential All-American by virtue of his spectacular running, passing and kicking. Bill Chouinard, a second string center until the day of the game, came into his own by doing a great job from his backer-up position.

To speak of the second angle presents a problem. We don't want to be tagged as poor losers but facts are always facts, win or lose. We can only come to one conclusion. To beat B. C. in Boston is as hard as walking safely across Lancaster Pike blindfolded in a pouring rain. Last year we took our defeat with a grain of salt and said "Wait 'till next year". But after Friday's episode we can only say wait 'till they come to Philly. A new contract has been signed which will continue the series for two more years. However, both games will be played in Beantown and if the 'Cats have to face a 15 man team again, we must resign ourselves to the fact that we will have to be 20 points better than the home team to win by 6 points.

Player of the Week . . . One of the greatest performances we have ever seen on the gridiron was turned in Friday night by little Bill Doherty. Compared by one Boston paper to the great Harry Gilmer, the 155 pound senior reached the peak of his career in the losing cause. Words seem insufficient in attempting to estimate his value to the team. In the early moments of the fray Bill was smacked in the nose by a charging lineman. This wasn't enough to stop the scrappy veteran. Throughout the game he took considerable pounding from the bigger Red-White players but still he refused to give up. In the last quarter he shifted to halfback and was on the receiving end of a touchdown pass from Andy Gordon. His defensive play was superb as usual. Hats off to a great ball player.

Since the early days of the war, when the U. S. Navy disembarked onto the shores of Villanova, the student body as a whole has suffered from the lack of gymnasium space. Now the "Rota-Cee" boys have packed their bags and moved into their new building, thus returning the gym to the students. Through the efforts of Rev. John R. Dunne, O.S.A. the floor, which had "dead" spots in pre-war days, has been raised and refinished.

On this page the rules for the use of the gym are listed. We advise everyone to take these regulations into deep consideration since offenders will be prohibited from using the facility. While every student is bound by these rules, we all have the authority to enforce them inasmuch as it is OUR gym. The point that we would like to stress can be said in one word . . . CO-OPERATE. Let's all get on the "share-fair" bandwagon. And while we're on the subject let's extend a hand of congratulation to Father Dunne for a great job.

On our way to the B. C. game we met what, in our opinion is one of the greatest "characters" in modern times . . . A shabby individual, known to his immediates at the "Squire," was sitting in a diner pouring over a crystal ball and clutching a slide rule in his wrinkled hand. Being completely fascinated by this fugitive from a football pool house, we presented ourselves to him, and upon inquiring as to his occupation, we found that his claim to fame was his great ability as a prognosticator.

It took him only 10 minutes to convince us of his greatness. So after giving him an arm, a leg and a pint of blood he agreed to give his predictions of the games that our opponents are playing each week with a few words of explanation with each prediction.

Texas A. & M.-Baylor . . . This one should go easily to Baylor. The boys from Waco turned back a strong Texas Tech squad which ran over A. & M. early in the season. We'll take Baylor by at least two touchdowns.

Army-Cornell . . . Earl Blaik and his boys are in for a rough time this Saturday. Although they had little trouble with Harvard, (they won 20-7) the minions of "Lefty" James whipped the Crimson by a 40-6 count the week before. With a flip of the coin we give Army the nod by one score.

Duquesne-Ohio . . . The "Dukes" are having their ups and downs and while Ohio can't be compared with Alabama or Wake Forest they should have little trouble holding Duquesne at bay while they turn on their own scoring power. Ohio by 20 points.

Miami - Georgia . . . Although they upset a strong Detroit team Friday night, there doesn't seem to be much hope for Andy Gustaffson and his Hurricanes this week. Georgia, paced by Bob Rauch, is undefeated in conference competition where the going is tough. Georgia by 14 points.

Boston College-Mississippi . . . The "Eagles" are on their merry way now and a win over Ole Miss is just what they need. At the end of an uphill battle B. C. should be out front by one or maybe two touchdowns.

Detroit-Wayne . . . Surprised by Miami, Detroit will be on the rebound and from all indications, should run roughshod over the foe. This could go to Detroit by five touchdowns.

Kentucky-Marquette . . . An "off and on" Wildcat squad won't be bothered much this time. We'll take Kentucky by 14 points.

Georgetown-Fordham . . . It took a strong rally for the Hoyas to beat a "not so hot" Tulsa team. Fordham, rated highly before the season started, hasn't come up to expectations and doesn't seem strong enough to beat the heavier boys from Wash. Georgetown by 20 points.

North Carolina State-Chattanooga . . . State looked exceptionally good in bowing to North Carolina 14-0. This should be just a prep for the Wake Forest game so State by 28 points.

Houston passed for another tally. Villanova had to punt after the kickoff, but regained the ball when Scarzo intercepted a pass on the Princeton 38 yard line and raced to the 15 for the Kittens' deepest penetration. Princeton held for downs.

Battino stalled a Tiger drive by another interception. He punted on fourth down and Princeton drove down to its final score. As the closing gun sounded Villanova was on the move and had reached Princeton's 28 yard line.

INTRAMURAL SPORTS

EX-COACH'S WIFE BLASTS FOOTBALL

"I will not permit thirty men to travel four hundred miles merely to agitate a bag of wind." So said Andrew Dickson White, Cornell University president, to a group of his students back in the eighteen-seventies. They had asked permision to play an away football game.

Not much importance was placed on football in those days. Perhaps too much is being placed on it today. So, Mary Stuhldreher, wife of the football coach at the University of Wisconsin, implies.

Her article appears in the current issue of The Saturday Evening Post. In it she asks a few pertinent questions and gives a few salient facts.

Alumni will remember that Mrs. Stuhldreher, a Philadelphia newspaperwoman, married her husband, Harry, when he was head coach at Villanova College. He stayed at Villanova for some eleven years.

She says that she enjoyed being a coach's wife in those days but lately, she's not so sure. Villanovans might be interested in reading what their former coach's wife has to say about the game.

BOSTON WILDCATS HEAR OLIVAR

Last Thursday evening Jordan Olivar, head coach, was the guest speaker at a pre-game dinner and rally held at the Hotel Lenox in Boston by the Villanova Club of Boston. An invitation was also extended to Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire O.S.A., president of the College, Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, O.S.A., Chairman of the Athletic Board of Control, Mr. William F. Friel III, Alumni Secretary, and William Connelly, Director of Athletics.

Through the capable efforts of James V. Hartnett, '26, and Frank D. Ronan, '45, secretary of the Boston-Villanova Club, the affair was made one of the highlights of the Beacon Hill social season.

I-M Basketball To Begin As New Alumni Hall Gym Opens

The Intramural Committee, headed by Reverend John Dunne, O.S.A., has announced that the newly renovated gymnasium in Alumni Hall has been opened to the students. The gym, formerly used by the U. S. Navy as a storeroom, will be used for all Intramural basketball league games. The season will officially open tonight with the first game being played after Chapel.

Now that the gym is open the committee has expressed its desire to see that the facility remains open and therefore has laid down certain regulations. These rules, which were made for the common good, must be followed to the letter.

THE RULES:

1. The gym will be available for play betwen the hours of 10:00 A. M. and 10:00 P. M. from Monday to Thursday and from 10:00 A. M. to 11:00 P. M. on Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

2. Intramural league games will be played on Tuesdays and Thursday evenings beginning at 7:00 P. M.

3. The gym will be used by students ONLY. If any outsider attempts to use this facility it is the duty of the student or students present to eject him.

4. No one is permitted on the playing floor with street shoes. The use of gym shoes for baskefball is imperative since a great deal of time and money has been spent in refinishing the surface.

5. Basketballs will not be taken from the gym.

6. Offenders of the above rules will be barred from future use of the gym.

Loading Drills

Continuous demonstrations will be given in the different laboratories and work rooms. One of the centers of attractions will be the Armory. Here the workings of a huge gun director will be explained. Installed on the reinforced floor are guns, ranging from the famous 5" to the 20mm., which almost every Villanova veteran has seen and fired. Included also are a 3" gun and the well known 40mm. of "pom-pom" fame.

Not only will the invited examine the guns at close range but they will see the simulated loading drills carried on with dummy ammunition by trained gun-crews. Miscellaneous machine guns, a rocket launcher, a depth charge and "K" gun, and miscellaneous bombs, shells, and fuses will be on diplay. To round out the list of offensive devices, a Mine and Torpedo are included in the exhibit.

Six other operating units will be in action, each on a scale much the same as the one outlined above. Details on these will be enumerated in coming issues of the VILLANOVAN as space allows.

Continuous Movies

Six showings of a sound movie are scheduled. "Of Liberal Education" is the title of this techni-color film. It is a highly interesting film showing the overall operation of the NROTC program.

At the same time, in an adjoining room, continuous showings of more dramatic productions are listed. "Bombs Over Tokyo" is a sound movie of general interest. "Silent Service", in sound and technicolor, gives a vital insight into the Naval Service. These two, while they have no bearing on the NROTC program, have been acclaimed as the most stirring films ever produced under Navy supervision. Some experts rate them with many of Hollywood's better known productions depicting wartime action.

Students are reminded that the open house is one for faculty members and the administrative staff. Detailed plans for a general exhibition are now under discussion.

Gigantic Rally Will Mark Hoya Game; To Pick Queen

Lucky Contest Winner Slated for Date With Miss Villanova of 1948

More than 1500 students are expected to participate in the pre-Georgetown game rally that will take place in the Field House on Thursday evening, November 11th. The Spirit Committee of the Student Council has announced that plans for the event are almost completed.

The rally is expected to achieve proportions surpassing those of last year's Georgetown rally, and the program centers around the contest sponsored by the Spirit Committee. Details were released to a Villanovan reporter today and already students are eyeing the football players appraisingly in an effort to climb aboard the "gravy train", and there has been considerable muscle flexing and testing for the benefit of the curious.

Could this lovely lady be Miss Villanova of 1948? We think not but it will be someone as nice, according to the chairman of the spirit committee.

Weight of Starting Line-up

As part of the pre-game festivities the fortunate fellow who guesses the combined weight of the starting lineup of that game will be provided with a date (a luscious little miss chosen by the Spirit Committee to be Miss Villanova of 1948), and the "wherewithal" to get the gay couple to the better places in town. The best part of this is that the whirlwind will start immediately after the rally on Thursday, November 11th, and again commence the night of the game with dinner at one of the more popular eating places in town, with another round

TO TAKE ACTION ON TRAFFIC CONDITION AT ITHAN CROSSING

Some action will be taken on the hazardous traffic conditions now existing on Lancaster Pike at Ithan Avenue. This information was released recently to Francis Gazlowski, VILLANOVAN Editor-in-Chief, in conferences with police authorities and state highway engineers. The discussions resulted from a campaign conducted in the past weeks by the newspaper in an attempt to wipe out the dangers faced by student drivers.

Mr. H. C. Gafvert of the State Highway Department stated that his department would give the utmost cooperation in settling the problem. He pointed out that the engineering department recognized conditions as needing improvement and that surveys are now underway to determine the best possible remedial action.

Reconstruction Advisable

It was his unofficial opinion that a traffic light at the intersection would not materially improve the situation. Unless studies give contrary indications, it his hope that the construction of the entire curve can be changed. Speaking from years of experience in traffic matters, Mr. Gafvert felt that an improvement of this nature might be most advisable and have the prolonged good effect desired.

The results of present findings will be forwarded to higher authorities for action in the future. In making these points, Mr. Gafvert stated that the individual student drivers have a definite obligation to use extreme caution when coming off and onto the Pike, especially until the change can be made.

More than 1000 Villanova students signified their wish that action be

College Bulletins Ready; Distributed By Registrar

Rev. John H. McDonnell, O. S. A., College Registrar, announced that Villanova College Bulletins are now available for general issue to the student body. Copies may be obtained at the Registrar's Office, located on the first floor of Mendel Hall in room 112.

The present issue of the bulletin is the first printed for widespread release. Wartime restrictions and the following period of adjustment prevented distribution in recent years of annual catalogues to the general student group.

Eightieth Issue

The 1948-1949 catalogue marks the eightieth issue of the booklet in the present series. It comes in Villanova's one hundred and seventh year of existence as a college.

A synopsis of important information, the seventy pages are contained in a simple yet attractive cover. In the first sections, the Trustees, Administration and Faculty officers are listed.

A history and description of the college are provided in a brief but interesting account. This table of facts will be welcomed by the average student.

Degree Requirements

The requirements for admission to the college and the tabulated curricula credits needed for graduation from the various schools marks the stabilization of degree pre-requisites previously disturbed by the three-term accelerated program and the influx of transfer students from other accredited colleges. The specific courses required for each class year are listed eliminating the possibility of class-status confusion so common during past semesters.

General information with specific regard to college facilities, student regulations, extra-curricular activities, placement services, and fees and expenses are listed in the several chapters.

In all, the bulletin gives an overall picture of the college, especially designed for the incoming student.

Dramatists Schedule Comedy For November

Lady Gregory's "Spreading the News" is slated to be the curtain raiser for Rostand's "The Romancers" at the Belle Masque's Fall production November 9th and 10th.

"Spreading the News", a humorous one-act play in Irish dialect, will be under the direction of Miss Marilyn Evans, director of Rosemont's Jest and Gesture Dramatic Society.

The cast of characters includes Peggy Doyle, Kitty Kelley, Mary Rose Brown, John Gray, Paul Hughes, Joseph Gibson, John Applegate, John Murphy, Clark Stockdale and William Fleming.

All of the action of the play takes place at an Irish fair, and it traces the development of a rumor from the time it starts with the misunderstanding of an old woman, through quite devious channels until it reaches gigantic proportions that perplex the audience as as well as the hero of the play.

Council To Check On Film Showings

Wednesday evening, Oct. 20, the Student Council met in its regular semi-monthly session with Edward Quinn, as substitute chairman, and Rev. George McLaughlin, O. S. A., Dean of Student Activities, as Moderator.

After committee reports had been read and discussed, new business was brought before the Council. A lively discussion, centered upon existing cafeteria conditions, ended with a move to have unofficial action taken.

A one-man committee, Edward Krieg, Junior Class representative, was appointed to investigate the possibilities of showing the films of all Villanova away football games.

Since November 2nd is Election Day, the Student Council expressed the wish that classes be suspended on that occasion so that eligible Villanova students may vote. It was voted to bring notice to this effect before the Administration.

Finally, the Council formally extended its sympathy to Bryan McLarnon, Junior Class representative, on the death of his father, and a perpetual spiritual bouquet was voted to be dedicated through the Seminary Guild.

Detroit Sendoff

The second major rally of the season will see the football squad off to Detroit on Wednesday evening. Mike Marshall, Chairman of the Spirit Committee, will announce the exact time of the rally. A torchlight parade will feature the evening festivities. The Committee asks that all students attend.

Recent Grad Dies

Faculty and students were grieved to hear of the death of George Temple this past week. Temple was a Chemical Engineer, class of '43. The VILLANOVAN extends sympathy to his family.

Sympathy is also extended to Joseph Catov on the death of his mother and to John and Robert Martin, John Ball and to Brian McLarnon on the death of their fathers. Masses for the repose of their souls were offered in the Chapel last week.

SENIORS MOVE PROM DATE; SELECT BAND AT MEETING TONITE

In a meeting last week the Senior Class members voted to change the dates of their two final social affairs. The Senior Prom, originally planned for January 14th was rescheduled for Friday, January 7th with the dinner-dance on the following evening, January 8th. Proximity of the final examinations to the previously chosen dates was the chief reason given for the change.

The second major consideration, the choice of the Prom orchestra, was set aside for a week. It was found that the student representation was not in total accord with the single choice presented. As one speaker put it, "Let's shop around a bit."

Meeting at 7:15

In the light of these considerations, a second meeting was set for tonight at 7:15 in the C & F auditorium when the orchestra will be chosen.

Only a sprinkling of the members of the Class of '49 was present last Tuesday. This marked apathy on the part of fellow classmen was commented on by several students present. It is expected that a fuller representation will make this evening's choice.

Law-Med Exam For Interested Grads

The Law School Admission Test will be conducted four times during the current school year, and the Medical College Admission Test twice, the Educational Testing Service recently announced. Almost all of the leading professional schools require these examinations in partial fulfillment of admission requirements. For students in the Philadelphia area the test will be given at the Universiay of Pennsylvania.

For application forms and bulletin, interested students should write to Educational Testing Service, Box 592, Princeton, N. J.

Pre-law students may take the LSAT on Nov. 13th, 1948, and on Feb. 19th., May 7th., and Aug. 6th., in 1949. The MCAT will be offered to pre-medical students on Saturday, Oct. 30, 1948, and Monday,

Rosemont Girls Join Cast to Take Leads and Supporting Roles

By John R. Bauman

Rev. William J. Krupa, O. S. A., announced that the Belle Masque Dramatic Society will present its major Fall production in the Villanova Field House on November 9th and 10th. To be presented are Edmond Rostand's "The Romancers" and Lady Gregory's "Spreading the News".

Pleased with the success of last year's combined ventures, the society has assigned the female roles for both plays to a group of thespians from the Jest and Gesture Society of Rosemont College.

"The Romancers", a three act romantic comedy, was written by the author of "Cyrano de Bergerac". Many students will remember Jose Ferrer's thrilling portrayal of the title role of "Cyrano" when it appeared in Philadelphia last year.

Leads for the play were assigned to Mary Doyle, Richard Zande, John Rowe, Edward Doyle, Joseph Hennesay and Philip Meads. In addition, a supporting cast was selected from both dramatic groups. The production will be directed by Fr. Krupa.

"The Romancers" is a comic treatment of the Romeo and Juliet theme. Bergamin and Pasquinot, although good neighbors and the best of friends, pretend enmity in order to provide a Shapesperian background for the "secret" love affair between their too romantic offsprings, Percinet and Sylvette.

990 EXPECTED AT SATURDAY FORUM

This Saturday almost one thousand students from high schools all over the East will meet at Villanova for a publications conference. Two hundred and two schools from New England, New York, Pennsylvania and Maryland will be represented, as Moderators from the various campus publications lecture on different phases of the press.

Rev. Edward M. Reilly, J. C. D., Superintendent of Philadelphia Cathlic Schools will be the principal speaker. Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O. S. A., President of Villanova College, will give the opening address.

The students will register at 8:30 in the morning. They will then participate in a comprehensive course in school publications designed to contribute to a better Catholic student press.

Each session will be packed with practical instructions, helpful suggestions, and workable ideas. Because all phases of yearbooks, magazines, and newspapers will be covered completely, the sessions will be of interest to editors, copywriters, reporters, headline writers, artists, designers, cartoonists, staff photographers, staff typists, as well as managers of the business departments.

The conference sponsored by the Belle Air will be under the direction of Rev. Daniel Falvey, O. S. A. The Collegiate conference originally scheduled in conjunction with this affair has been postponed until later in the year.

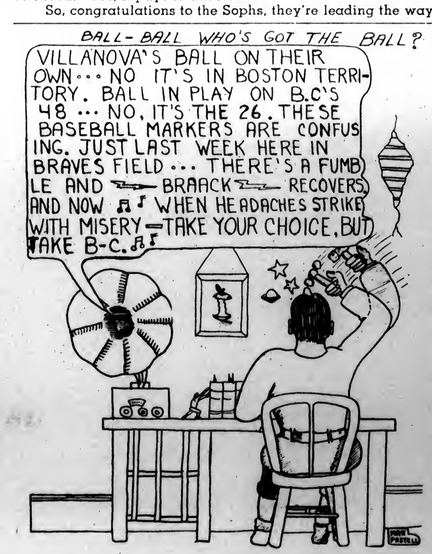
Clear Your Table

There are few if any Villanova students who would contend that they enjoy eating at a sloppy, cluttered table anywhere. Yet, each day in the school cafeteria because of forgetfulness a messy condition exists. Plates, silverware, cereal boxes, etc., are all set aside on the table and forgotten. It is only a short time before the litter is obvious and the diners begin grumbling.

The immediate remedy for the cafeteria situation rests greatly in the resident students' hands. Forgetfulness is the fault. Lets remind ourselves and those about us to clear the table before leaving it, and the change will be noticeable to everyone. Eating in the cafeteria can be made more enjoyable by a minimum of effort on the part of the residents.

The Sophs Lead The Way



Student groups are sitting up and taking notice these days. Most of them are looking, and many not without green eyes, at the enthusiasm shown by the members of the Class of '51. The students in this group have shown so much spirit that, for Villanova, their undertakings are astounding.

When they were freshmen we didn't pay much attention to them. (Don't freshmen go unnoticed in every school?) While we were pitying them and using condescension, they sneaked up on us and right now, they are far ahead of any other student unit, class and otherwise.

There wasn't one individual on the campus in the past few weeks who was not approached by seven or eight different fellows with Soph Cotillion tickets for sale. They say that over a hundred men worked together to make the affair successful.

Pre-dance tickets sales more than doubled those of any previous function. Even before door sales started, over 400 tabs were bought and paid for. Our guess is that 700 couples attended. Yes, it pays to advertise.

So, congratulations to the Sophs, they're leading the way.

A Catholic U. In The Area?

A Student Asks Some Questions

By PAUL O'BRIEN

Last June, several hundred men and women were awarded baccalaureate degrees from the six Catholic colleges in the archdiocese of Philadelphia. During the months preceding graduation a group comprising perhaps twenty percent of this number entered or tried to enter the professional schools and graduate faculties of a score of Eastern universities. The greater number by far matriculated at non-Catholic schools, either by choice or by circumstances.

The lack of adequate and localized facilities for graduate students in this area is what we are concerned about; because Philadelphia's situation is multiplied twenty times we are presented with an aging and mouldering Catholic educational problem.

Present Facilities Inadequate

The inability of the Catholic University in Washington to absorb the army of lay graduate students is not a new development to the Church's educators, and the huge increase of graduates in the past few years has served only to intensify the need for greater facilities.

Among the laity there are several groups of graduate students: the would-be physicians, lawyers, and scientists, or educators. Each one of these represents a potential leader of society, and despite any rumors to the contrary, the best American universities have never intentionally mated learning with Catholicism.

Let us not belabor the truth by hammering at the advantages of a catholic education. The advantages exist, otherwise our schools could have been converted into lending libraries and hotels long ago.

Lack of Public Interest

What are the obstacles confronting the establishing of a greater Catholic University in the archdiocese? First, there would not be a scarcity of applicants. The academic forests work without the aid of dogma at hand. Second, the profusion of distinguished educators throughout this area leaves no doubt as to where the administrators and tutors could be found. Third, the necessary fund of money is available. It must be extracted from our own collective pocket.

The real obstacle is a lack of organization and a dearth of public interest. No really great undertaking ever succeeded in such a fashion. The masterful promotion needed to effect the proposed scheme is not yet apparent but some day soon the move must be made.

"A greater Catholic University?" the laymen asks. "Who's going to build it?" Who's going to pay for it?"

And the answer is: "We are." We should.

Shmoo Bites Man!

Journalists from time immemorial have always had certain types of stories that guaranteed them reader interest. Such eye arresting topics as "Baby Swallows Father's Pipe", "Woman Shot Over Bridge Table" exist. In this catagory we might also include that stereotyped news offering, "Man Bites Dog."

However the law of diminishing returns has held for new of this ilk. Now the vast reading public spends little if any time in reading about these tragedies. Often the stories are deviously cloaked under eye-arresting and misleading titles. Tales of this kind of course lend themselves readily to the job of working up a good news heads for them. Nevertheless, no matter how you slice it, it's still the same old baloney.

The one thing we cannot discount is the distressful fact that editors have, through the years, become dependent on these stories to fill in the gap when the usual volume of news falls off. Another consideration we must not overlook is the fact that these stories have a following, small though it may be. This element in the reading public must be satisfied. How can it be done. We must have a new angle?

The answer to this most perplexng question was supplied by the Villanovan's special correspondent in a remote mountain town in Kentucky. He telegraphed from Dogpatch, Ky., the heartening and somewhat startling newsworthy item: FLASH: SHMOO BITES MAN!

Letters . . .

Something Has Been Done

October 20, 1948

Editor
The Villanovan
Villanova, Pa.

Dear Sir:

A letter in the October 19th issue of the Villanovan discussed a subject which is of interest to both Villanova students and graduates.

The letter writer lamented the fact that none of Villanova's songs have been recorded.

For the benefit of all interested, however, I would like to report that definite efforts have been made to record all Villanova songs, mainly the new "V for Villanova." But since Mr. James C. Petrillo placed a ban on all union recordings last January 1, it has been impossible to follow through in this program.

Mr. William M. Connelly, director of athletics, and the composer of the new song, Les Irvin, both made a determined bid to have the songs recorded. It seems likely that the plan will have to wait until the recording ban is lifted.

The student discussed another point, the availability of musical arrangements for bands and orchestras. I would like to advise him that all the major radio networks and Philadelphia radio stations have been supplied with a folder of Villanova songs and music. This was done almost two years ago.

Yours truly,
JAMES F. HAUGHTON,
Publicity.

T. S. ELIOT TO SPEAK TONITE

T. S. Eliot, the well known critic and lecturer, and probably one of the most important of the contemporary poets, will speak at Goodhart Hall, in Bryn Mawr, this evening. The program will begin at 8:15 P. M. All Villanova students who are interested are cordially invited to attend.

The Lowdown On Modern Art

By EAMON WALSH

Have you ever entered a museum of modern art, taken a rapid glance around, and exclaimed, "why even I could do better than that?" In part you would be right. A majority of the modern art that is turned out today is a huge assortment of balderdash. As in any era, you find much good intertwined with the bad. But let us not turn our back upon all modern art merely because we have seen a huge assortment of distasteful scribbling.

Matter, Form and . . .

Regardless of any prejudice you hold now in regard to the total inadequacy of modern art of expressing any good in our era, there really is a basis of good modern art. We do not judge it on the basis of any esoteric, aesthetic theory, but rather a practical, proven one. It is a simple deduction, merely drawn from experience. In art we find matter and form. Yet there is a third element, which plays a decided factor in any great piece of art . . . There is also something we call iconographical value. This is usually identified with a higher meaning in art, like religion, morality, etc. Let me list them carefully with a brief definition.

Matter—The subject picked, the material or spiritual subject which the artist wishes to estimate.

Form—The manner or mode in which the artist wishes to portray the subject to you.

Iconographical value—The moral, religious or "higher" value implied or intended by the artist.

Art is made up of all three of these. Of course they may be broken into more parts; some men wish to create a multi-fold division in aesthetics, but for our purposes this division will suffice. If we have all three perfected in one piece of work, we have the sublime. A sublime akin to the one which R. Reynolds attributed to classical form. If one or two are missing, we may have the beautiful. If all are imperfect, we have the bogus in art.

Matter and form, together, are capable of expressing pure objective, physical beauty. Organic beauty, due to the pleasing combination of matter and form can not reach the heights of the sublime without value. This "iconographical value" takes structurally perfect form and idea, matter and drawns them up to the peak of sublimity.

Michelangelo and Picasso

Let us take a modern example. We will compare the painting by Picasso, "Girl Before a Mirror" with "The Creation of Adam," by Michelangelo Buonarroti. It is my contention that the work by Michelangelo is a sublime piece of work, where the pseudo masterpiece by Picasso is the frustrated workings of an inane madman. Michaelangelo has created a work which is not only perfect in matter and form but he has carried the value implications to their fullest heights. I will analyze the two pictures next week in reference to the three fold division. In plates one and two we see the works as they are today.

Man Versus Animal

by
VECCHIO

Does. Dr. (name deleted by editor) teach what he does as a result of a hydrolysis occurring in his frontal lobe? Is our I. Q. directly proportional to the hydrogen ion concentration of the medulla oblongata? Does the concentration of zirconium and xenon atoms determine whether a person is interested in Philosophy or in Economics? Perhaps the oxidation state of the iron in the cerebral blood veins of the chemistry professor determines the amount of homework we will have to slave over, or the same electric laws that iron filinis obey when attracted to a magnet compels us to go to the classes of our magnetic teachers.

There is a tendency to answer "Yes" to the first question. However ,a man's intellectual activity is not the result of a disruption of his chemical equilibria, nor is it a more complex manifestation of the same type of intellectual activity as that produced by the brutes. There is a real and important distinction between the two: man's activity is spiritual. A testimony to this is Bethlehem Steel.

Purpose of Industry

The purpose of industry is to supply man with his material needs—food, clothing, shelter, recreation, defense. Every activity going on at Bethlehem Steel or Pittsburgh Glass of General Electric can be explained on the basis of one of these or of the other material needs of mankind. These needs correspond in many respects to the needs of the brutes. But the brutes as a rule have their food at hand. I have never seen a cow planting a garden. Most animals dig holes for shelter. The only animals that wear clothing to keep warm are Park Avenue poodles.

Man does not have his food right at hand. Plants and animals are available, but to have a sufficient supply of food in winter and in summer, he must till the soil, sow the seed, store it and preserve it somehow for winter. He must gather stone or wood to make his house, and assemble them with care.

Defense

Defense is even a greater problem. Physically, man is weaker than many of the brutes. No one wants to be left alone in a china shop with a wild bull. India has a problem living next door to tigers and cobras. If Count Villan III decides to take a run forhimself some day he will find available for his trot plenty of campus. Yet man rules all of these. The reason for this mastery is the same as the explanation of the existence of industry—adaptation. Man must adapt the materials available to satisfy his needs.

Animal Rationality

Animals, too, exhibit this adaptation. This is the source of the belief of many that animal and human intelligence are of similar natures. Squirrels store acorns, ants domesticate "cows"; birds build their nests by gathering the materials of the earth and assembling them in a manner strikingly similar to homes.

Differences

What then, if any besides scale, is the difference between a bird's nest-building and the activities behind Mendel Hall? The difference is simply this—the new library has architectural style. Good or bad, every building is the use of selected materials in a selected way. Birds always build their nests in the same way, so that a robin's nest and an oriole's nest and a sparrow's nest are distinct, but always recognizable as such. No robin has built a Gothic-style nest or Chinese-style nest or even a sparrow's nest. Wasps dry mud a man dries clay, but they never had a Bernini, and don't have civil engineers to start new processes. They use the same methods over and over; they will never have a Bethlehem Steel.

Question

Now, for our original question. Perhaps too much ethanol in the blood stream can keep us from thinking straight, or put us in a good mood, or make us use wrong words, but according to latest authorities, that isn't where our faculty get their thoughts. Only Poe mastered that stunt.

ARRIVAL and DEPARTURE

Book Review . . . .

By WILLIAM CHESTER

"They all wanted to cut down the tree because the fruits were too high for them." Can this be the final evaluation of the revolutionary characters in Arthur Koestler's "Arrival and Departure"? It might be, if the author were a sociologist, but he is not. Instead he stands as a psycho-analytical writer of increasing stature.

In "Arrival and Departure", Arthur Koestler tells the story of an ex-Communist refugee, who has escpaed from occupied Europe and has landed on some undisclosed "free" shore. The refugee, Peter Slavek, is engaged in trying to enter the armed forces of Great Britain so that he might continue the fight against the enemy. On the surface, up to this point, the story seems quite orthodox. With the entrance of Dr. Sonia, a woman psychologist, one begins to learn something of Peter's childhood and his life as an intellectual Communist.

Two Problems

The story is an extension of two problems: the first, how man determines right and wrong, and once he judges, why he will fight to uphold that decision; and the second, how many of man's illogical actions may be attributed to his childhood environment. Around these problems the author bases his characters in an effort to make Peter solve them. Luckily, author Koestler introduced Dr. Sonia, who as his mouthpiece solves all the problems.

Our author, by a process of inductive reasoning solved the first problem by basing it upon emotional conditioning—Peter says, "I felt cheated of my punishment . . . whoever I met, I felt I had secretly wronged." The second question was not solved with similar facility.

Childhood Influence

His nearest solution is, that to Peter, hidden thoughts were more evil and destructive than the actual deeds they represented. These thoughts, it seems, were bred in the time of Peter's childhood, under the influence of a stern father. Somehow, this contention loses weight when we consider that Peter's father died before he was five.

For those who are interested in the novel as an art form, and enjoy observing the attempts of an author to initiate new methods of expression, this writer especially recommends the last section of the novel. This section is titled "The Last Judgement". Its moral argument leaves a great deal more to be hoped for, but the imagery is poetic and bitingly satrical. "The Last Judgement" contains this key to Arthur Koestler's philosophy:

"The sentence is: Purgatory on probation."

"'But I have already been in Purgatory', the young man (Peter) remarked meekly."

"'Never mind,' said the judge, 'some remain on probation all their lives. They are eternal adolescents through whom the race matures'."

Arthur Koestler's "Arrival and Departure" is the work of a crusader—but a crusader without a cross.

TOWN TALK

By KAISER and RICHARD

One of the most active amateur playhouses in and around Philadelphia and the suburbs is the COLONIAL PLAYHOUSE of Alden, Delaware County. Here in an atmosphere of cordiality the Broadway hits of yesteryear are revived.

Winterset

The New York success "WINTERSET" of Maxwell Anderson has been chosen by this group for its October presentation on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week. Anderson is probably one of the best dramatists of the American theatre today. When he wrote this play he reached one of his highest achievements. On Broadway this production set records as one of the longest running hits in the history of the theatre.

Brooklyn Background

In "WINTERSET" Anderson has worked the neat dramatic trick of successfully combining all the thrills of a gangster melodrama in the best Hollywood traditions. Played against the forbidding backdrop of the Brooklyn Bridge this poetically beautiful love story will move audiences as much today as it did when first presented.

The Alden Playhouse may be reached by the Sharon Hill Trolley from 69th Street to Alden, or if going by car, from 69th St., turn left off Baltimore Pike into Clifton Ave. in Clifton Heights to Alden.

Hedgerow

The Hedgerow Theatre of Rose Valley, will present four different plays on successive evenings this week. On Wednesday, "The Great Big Doorstep, a comedy of life in a Mississippi shanty; Thursday, "She Stoops to Conquer", a comedy written in the 18th century, and which is still funny today; Friday, Shaw's "Saint Joan", a historical drama of one of history's beloved characters; Saturday, "Uncle Vanya", one of Chekov's most lovable characters who warmheartedly, if somewhat stupidly, sacrifices his whole life to the care of his late beloved sister's unworthy and ungrateful husband.

The Hedgerow Theatre announces that it will close its curtain from December 5th to 25th, so as to prepare for its annual Christmas Festival which opens on Christmas Day and continues on to New Years. This year, the festival will be highlighted with the addition of a new play to Hedgerow's extensive portfolio. The lively comedy, "Mistress of the Inn", by Carlo Goldoni will open on Christmas Day and will be presented several times during this festival. "Saint Joan" and "Cadenza" will also be presented during this week.

Villa vs Detroit

If this years Detroit game is anything last years game, it will be A, a dull game from a spectators standpoint but, B, the roughest contest of the 10 game schedule. Naturally it will be rated as a tossup. But the deciding factor will be whether the injured Villanova backs will be able to stand up against the heavyweight bruisers of the Titan Line.

Student Council

At the Bi-Weekly meeting of the Student Council, two proposals (Among Others) stood out in their significance to the average student.

First, the council proposes that a school holiday be declared on November 2 so that the many students can be guaranteed the opportunity to cast their vote in the presidential electios—an excellent idea—we're 100% behind it.

Secondly, Ed Kreig was appointed head of a committee to investigate and promote the idea of afternoon and evening movies of the Villanova away football games. Seriously — no, no—really, we don't want any credit for the idea. (Not much)

Neglected, however, was the proposals of the possibility of lounges for the day-hops. But we'll keep trying.

Senior Class

It looks as though the class of '49 is going to run into a little trouble. It seems that Chairman of the Senior Dance, Bob Stoelker, was all set to sign Howard Lanin as the band. But at the meeting, the seniors had a different idea—they wanted a little investigation on the possibility of getting a big name band. All is to be decided at a meeting in the C & F audit tonight.

So we predict: Rather than fuss around with some other million dollar orchestra, a small band, the band that Senator Reyburn could not keep quiet at the Democratic National Convention, will not be selected by the seniors.

Odds and Ends

The Soph Cotillion was the huge success the sophs had hoped for. But we personally had more fun watching the Circus show, especially the knife-throwing act of Larry Gallan and Skip Keenley. Good work, sophomores.

John Kuchs, the name on the lips of almost every student last year, has more angles than a French curve. This week, his famous "Bull Pen" turned up in the Albrightian, weekly of Albright College.

We hear there is a new unofficial "fun" club on campus. Their name: The Copy Cats. Membership: Shy Raiken, Larry Aigeldinger, Jim Caufield, Tom Clavin, Bob Polidor, Billy Doherty and Joe Hannan. Hey boys, how's about us gettin' in on the fun.

Pity the plight of Dick Logan and Jim Lawless. Those two boys happen to be the only male students at Bryn Mawr College. That beats Mohammed Abi Abbicoondog's Harem.

If you're looking for a job for this Christmas, we recommend that you check with Mr. Geo. Harris. He's signin' 'em fast.

Question of the week. Who was Villanova Alumnus of whom Mrs. HARRY STUHLDREHER spoke so well in her article on the plight of a coach's wife

We don't believe in rumors BUT—we've heard that TED HARRIS, of the Belle Masque Staff, has a good head on his shoulder—so good in fact that he's currently posing for Wildroot Hair Ads.

It's yearbook groundwork time again.—Time for the senior to do a little introspection so that it may be presented to the world under his picture. Y'know, Brown Prep Representative 1, 2, 3, Sec. 4, Student Parliamentarian, 2, 3, and ½ of 4, Varsity Football in '44 when nobody else was here—and of course, the VILLANOVAN all 6 years, and didn't get into the Sanctuary Society, NSA, NFCCS, IRC, ABC (Always Buy Chesterfields), WVIL and WVIL-TV.

D.P.E.'s First Frat To Initiate New Members

Ninety-two members of the Delta Pi Epsilon will initiate over sixty candidates on Thursday, October 28, at 7:30 P. M. The men to be initiated will assemble in Room 201 of the C & F building while the present members in good standing prepare for them below in the auditorium.

Following the program, all students concerned will be entertained at a smoker. Arrangements for the evening's doings are under the co-chairmanship of William Walker and Joseph Kenny.

Rules for prospective DPE's were set up at a meeting last week. It was stipulated that every applicant wear a tie of red ribbon in a bow all day tomorrow. On Thursday, this attire will be supplemented by rolled trouser legs, unmatched socks and a sign reading, "I am a pledge of the DPE." This pledge card will require the signature of two regular fraternity members by the end of the day.

John Peshina, president, mentioned that a new program would be put into effect in that the man who received the worst treatment while being initiated would be committee chairman for the initiation of new members in the succeeding year.

Other officers of the association are: Joe Brogan, John McPeak, Michael Santacroce, and Paul Begley.

Thursday Meeting For Alumni Group

Thursday evening, the Villanova Club of Philadelphia will hold its second monthly meeting of the fiscal year at 8:30 P. M. in the Blue Room of the Broadwood Hotel, Broad and Wood Sts., Philadelphia. Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., President of the Collefe, will be the guest speaker.

Mr. Robert H. Simpson, '43 General Chairman announces that plans have been made for the 27th annual Football Banquet which will be held in early of December. Notices have been sent to all members of the club whose names appear on the secretary's list, including '47 and '48 graduates.

ASCE'S TO HEAR CHEMISTRY EXPERT

Edward V. Murray, President of the Villanova Chemical Society has announced that Dr. Robert Kunin, head of the Applications Laboratory of Rohm and Haas Company, will speak tomorrow evening, Wednesday, October 27th, at 8:00 P. M., in 215 Mendel Hall.

Dr. Kunin will speak on "Ion Exchane Resins" and will accompany his talk with a demonstration. He has done research work at the Mellon Institute, Pittsburgh, and at Columbia University, New York. Now associated with Rohn and Haas Company as head of their Applications Laboratory for Ion Exchange Resins, Dr. Kunin received his B.S. and Ph. D. in Chemistry from Rutgers University.

Villanova Chemical Society members and all others interested are invited, as well as students from Rosemont, Swarthmore, Haverford, and Bryn Mawr colleges.

Officers of the society include E. V. Murray, president, W. J. Donahue, secretary, John Mellon and Louis Slater, vice-presidents, and C. Heininger treasurer.

Ex-Navy Officers

Those men who were commissioned officers in the United States Navy will be interested in information released recently by the Navy Department.

If these men are still members of the Naval Reserve, they may be qualified to receive permanent commissions and advancement in grade.

Information as to their status may be obtained from the N. R. O. T. C. office in Commodore Barry Hall. That office is authorized to give the men evidence, if they qualify, of their higher grade and to process their papers.

Labor Relations Club Plans Baltimore Trip

With labor - management problems rising to new heights the Industrial Relations Club, in its meeting last Wednesday evening, outlined a plan for the activities of the current year. Rev. William J. Gorden, O.S.A., club moderator, explained the increasing interest and value of the trend to the members. Joe Shannon, president conducted the meeting.

The program as outlined includes a visit to the McCormick plant in Baltimore to observe harmonious labor relations in action. Besides the regular monthly business meetings the club plans to sponsor discussion panels among the members on labor topics and the Catholic viewpoint on this subject. In its proposed agenda the group hopes to encourage extensive reading and private study on labor relations.

Reading Recommended

Among the publications recommended for reading are the "Labor Leader", a publication of the Association of Catholic Trade Unions. The association consists of Catholic tradespeople whose purpose is to foster the Catholic principle in labor.

Frank Pitochelli, sophomore, was elected ex-officio representative to the Student Council meeting on Wednesday. A trip was tentatively scheduled for the next semester when the Industrial Relations Club will tour a few of the governmental offices in Washington, D. C.

List Officers

The officers for this year are Joe Shannon, president, Jim Neylan, secretary- treasurer, Dick Lauman, recording secretary, Gene Schubert, financial secretary. Members of the board include Dick Zande, Ray Waldron, Frank Pitochelli, Ray DeWalde and Joe Brogan. The date of the next meeting will be announced later.

DEPT. HEAD APPEARS ON RADIO BROADCAST

Dr. Harold F. Hartman, chairman of the Department of History and Political Science at Villanova, was among the three speakers heard in a discussion panel broadcast over Radio Station WFIL last Sunday afternoon. The topic was "The Issues at Stake in the 1948 Elections".

Collaborating with Dr. Hartman were two prominent men in the educational field, from the Philadelphia area: John Howard, Instructor of Political Science at the University of Pennsylvania, and Benjamin Schoenfeld, Associate Professor of History at Temple University.

In their discussion panel the three educators discussed the record of the 80th Congress relative to inflation and the complicatioss in the high cost of living, housing, amending of the Social Security and Minimum Wage laws, and the Taft-Hartley labor law.

Following the recommendations presented on this broadcast, subsequent programs will feature opinions of leading figures of both major contending parties and their views on the bi-partisan foreign policy of the United States.

Power Laden Detroit Team Host To Wildcats

Under the watchful eye of Assistant coach Jerry Neri, the Villanova varsity football squad runs off a play. The pre-game practice, will be concluded today and the team will entrain for Detroit where they will meet the University of Detroit, Friday night.

Mc Donnell Starts Frosh Basketball Practice

Practice started last week for all candidates for the freshmen basketball team and with the return of Bob "Maj" McDonell to the campus, the Wildcat yearlings will have a separate coach for the first time since the days of Doc Jacobs. In the interim, the dual-coaching assignments have been handled by varsity coach Al Severance.

Last Spring, the announcemeht that McDonnell had been appointed to take over the Freshmen coaching duties was received favorably by both the faculty and the student body. During his student days at Villanova, the "Maj" played three years of varsity ball for Coach Severance and during the 1945-46 season he was co-captain along with Joe Lord.

Phillies Hurler

McDonnell was also first string hurler on the baseball squad for three years. Following his graduation in June of 1946, he went to the Phila. Phils in the National League where he was batting practice pitcher. This past summer he also served in the same capacity for the Phillies.

McDonnell seems to have quite a bit of talent with which to work. At least that was the impression one received after witnessing the freshmen-varsity scrimmage last Wednesday at the field house. The Frosh really did a job on the varsity.

• 6'5" Center in Tom Brennan

The yearling squad by modern standards are pretty small; that is with one exception—Tom Brennan, 6'5" center from Trinity High school in Brooklyn. For a big guy, Brennan handles himself well in the paint, something you rarely see nowadays. Tom is one of three players on the squad who made the All-Brooklyn team last year. Besides getting that honor, he was made the All-City squad.

The other two players who made the All-Brooklyn squad are Billy Behrens, 5'10" tall and Joe Maguire, second tallest man on the squad at 6'1". Behrens played on the Erasmus Hall team that won the city championship last year in New York. Besides playihg Basketball, Billy is also a better than fair baseball player. Last summer(he played on the Brooklyn All-Star team that toured the country playing a series of "Brooklyn against the World games." Maguire played high school ball with St. John's and made the All Brooklyn team in both 1946 and 1947.

Scored Over 1000 Points

Harry Simpson is the only other scholarship man who comes from outside Pennsylvania. Simpson was the sparkplug of the Concord high school which won the New Hampshire State championship last year. In the New England championship at Boston garden, Concord lost in the opening round to a Torrington Conn. high school squad that went on to the finals. Harry was quite a scorer in high school setting a new state record for 4 years of play with over a thousand points.

From within the home state itself McDonnell has drawn three men. Ben Stewart,husky 6 footer from York. Ben played for York Catholic High School team which won the Class B State Championship last year. Ben in a way is another Tommy Sabol. Not particularly big, Stewart jumps as if he had springs in his legs.

Home of Senesky Brothers

Joey Griggs, 6' blond from Mahanoy High School is another of the many all Staters on the squad. Philadelphia sports fans will remember Mahanoy high school as the producer of such talent as George Senesky, by far the best ball handler on the Phila. Warrior's squad and his brother Paul, prolific scorer for St. Joseph's College.

The only Philadelphia member of the freshmen squad is Ralph Namoli high scoring forward on last year's city Champs, Overbrook high school. As we mentioned before, the team as a whole isn't exceptionally big but as was witnessed last Wednesday at the gym, they're real speedsters.

The freshmen schedule has been compiled but as yet it hasn't been released. But it will follow last year's pattern with the Frosh games being played prior to the varsity contests.

Muhlenberg Aids Our Rise To Fame

Turkey Day Fray Brings New Coach And Better Years

Did you ever wonder how and why Villanova started playing 'big time' football? Contrary to what you might think, it was not an accidental or gradual process. According to the story we received, it was all the result of a game played on Thanksgiving Day, back in 1924.

It seems that Villanova was concluding the distastrous 1924 football season up at Old Allentown Field against little Muhlenberg College. The local were suffering from the results of a mighty bad season but determined to make a good showing in this game in order to save face a little. Considering the fact that quite a few of the faithful had made the tiresome journey from Philly up to the Pennsy Dutch territory, the boys tried awfully hard but at the end of this fine Thanksgiving afternoon, the scoreboard showed the tremendous total of 41 points for the Mules and none for the Wildcats. Needless to say, the small contingent of Villanova rooters returned home quite downfaced and no little discouraged. Muhlenberg would have the same powerful squad back next year and Villanova would have a team even worse than that year's unless . . .

The following January brought the inauguration of a new athletic policy. After all, the fact that tiny Muhlenberg would forever beat 'big' Villanova in football was disturbing to some people. Harry Stuhldreher, one of Notre Dame's famous "Four Horsemen" and now the coach at the University of Wisconsin was signed as head coach. Under his tutelage the gridiron situation wa comspletely reversed during the 1925 season.

After amassing six victories and losing only two very close ones (quite a change for a team which had won 2 out of 16 in the two previous seasons), the Wildcats again returned to Old Allentown Field to face the same team that had beaten them so badly only a year before. The Allentown spectators with a turkey dinner under their belts were nothing short of flabbergaster when the 'Cats went home with an easy 23 to 9 win under their hats.

So that's how 'big time' football started at Villanova. If it wasn't for little Muhlenberg ,formerly our traditional rival, swamping us in 1924, it might never have happened.

Motor City Eleven Will Prove Tough Obstacle

LEOTTA PACES FROSH TO 13 7 VICTORY OVER BOSTON COL EAGLETS

The Villanova Freshman football team, the second eleven wearing the Blue-White to make the long haul to Boston in the same number of weeks, came home a victor by defeating the Boston College Freshman squad by a 13-6 count. The game, a charity contest, was played before a scant crowd of about 7,000.

Liotta and his 190-lbs. was the big noise in the 'Cats' victory setting up both of the scores by blocking B. C. kicks. His first block gave Villanova the pigskin on the enemy nineyard stripe from there quarterback Dan Simeone went over for the score on two plunges. Pete Maronic dropped out of the line and booted the extra point.

Recovers Blocked Punt

Two periods later "Mr. Everywhere," as he was tabbed by Lawrence sport writers, blocked his third Eagle punt which set up the second score. After blocking the kick on the opposition's 23, Liotta droped on the leather as it reached the one. John Monahan went over for the six-pointer on a quarterback sneak.

Scoring the lone Eagle tally was left end Frank Cousineau who took a 17 yd. pass from Doug Millette just before stepping out of the end zone. The score came as a result of a Villanova fumble.

From all observations Villanova fans are due for some great teams in the future seasons on the gridiron. This fact is provided by the wealth of material that comprises the present Freshman football squad.

The frosh were "of an unknown quality", as one of the varsity coaches exclaimed, until this past Friday evening when they tangled cleats with the Eagle yearlings of Boston College at Lawrence, Massachusetts. The contest was staged for Catholic charities in the Boston area and was sponsored by the Knights of Columbus.

Coaches Pleased

Assistant coach, John McKenna, lauded the play of Nick Liotta who hails from Everett, Mass., the home town of varsity star Ralph Pacquariello. McKenna also had high praise for Tony Colletta, Pete Moranic, and Bill Uadula.

Moranic, at home in the tackle position and holding the reputation of the heavy man of the team with his 220 lb. frame, takes charge of the kickoffs and, along with Liotta, co-captains the squad. He is a brother of Dunke Moranic, star of the Philadelphia Eagles of the National Professional Football League.

Upper Darby High School has advanced a probable star to the Wildcats in the person of 185 lb. Padula who is giving a terrific performance in the fullback slot. Liotta fuls the gap at guard extremely well and has not given much ground to the varsity in scrimmage sessions.

Colletta, a product of Southern High, is rated nothing short of outstanding by his backfield performance but his play has been hampered by a bad charleyhorse. Joe Till, a 175 lb. back from Harrisburg Catholic has also drawn a big share of attention by his work at the right half back slot.

Friday's contest, the first frosh game since 1938, saw the young Wildcats defeat the Eagle yearlings which in part makes up for the loss suffered the previous week by the varsity to the Boston College headliners. John McKenna, line coach of the varsity was well pleased with the play of the entire squad.

'Cats Will Entrain Wednesday

By HARRY RANGE

This Friday night, when the Wildcats take the field against the University of Detroit Titans, two T formation squads clash in a game that is slated to be a thriller from the opening kickoff to the closing gun.

Jordan Olivar's charges are eager to get back into the national spotlight after the 20-13 defeat by Boston College while Chuck Baer's Titans are just as anxious, having been upset by Miami 6-0, two weeks ago. Last week the boys from the Motor City tripped Wayne University, their rivals from the other end of town, by a score of 13-0. This victory was not impressive for Detroit since Wayne is at best a third rate club.

Have 3-1 Record

The Titans won their first three games especially their victory against Marquette. Their only loss, to the Miami Hurricanes, came against a club that was on the rebound after losing to Villanova and was playing a red-hot brand of ball.

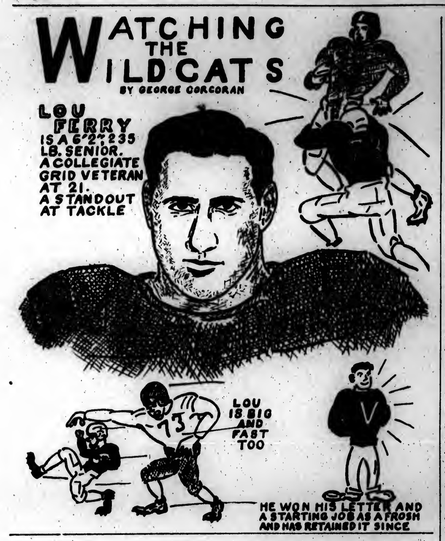
A high feeling of optimism is running through the Detroit campus this year as the Titans feel that this is their year. The 'Cats have tripped the Baermen three years running, but Baer, who is an unusual optimist, thinks he has it this year, and his hopes are encouraged by the impressive wins as well as the outstanding men of his squad.

Directing the Detroit T attack are Jack O'Connor and Bob O'Malley, who have both more than filled the position vacated by Gene Malinowski through graduation. O'Malley, a 5'8" Junior from Chicago, is a clever ball-handler as well as being adept at passing. His replacement, O'Connor also from Chicago, is also an excellent twirler, having completed for three TD's so far this season.

Kurkowski Impressive

Leading the backfield in ground gaining is halfback Jack Kurkowski who had an average of 10.07 yards per carry last season which was the highest in the country. Thus far this fall, he hasn't hit the same high mark, but he still has a more than respectable 9.8 yards average per try. Halfback Joe Wright has also done his share in ground gaining, having scored three touchdowns ,while big fullback Jim Massey has also crossed into pay dirt three times.

Behind these three speedsters comes Jack O'Leary, 175 pound sophomore, who has scored two touchodnws, Wally Gruber, who also has two TD's under his belt and finally big 220 pound Mike Kaysserian who is out to prove all the pre-season build ups he had.



Strong Line

At the ends the Titans are strong with 6'5" Miles Carrie who has yet to miss a pass this season and has scored three times. He caught the first pass ever thrown to him in a college game for a touchdown. Along with Currie are Dan Boisture and Frank Audette, both good receivers

JACK KURKOWSKI

MEET THE MANAGERS

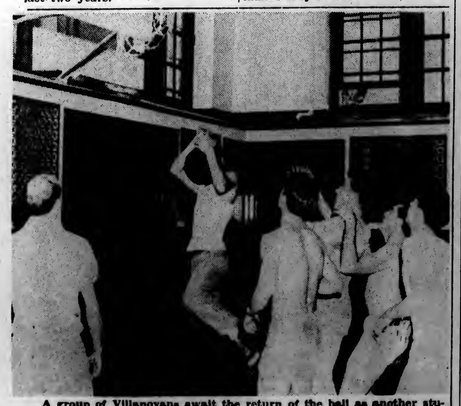
In the coverage of Villanova sports, it seems that there is always one hard-working individual who is always overlooked. That is, of course, the student manager.

Probably not one person in twenty could tell you the names of the managers of the track, football, basketball, and baseball teams so it's about time we wrote something about these unknown men who really deserve alot of credit. They work from behind the scenes, just like the prop men on a stage, but without them the show couldn't go on. They work tirelessly, receive no athletic scholarships receive no publicity and their only reward is the knowledge that they have helped to make a winning team.

Starting off with the football squad, which is currently in the spotlight, we find Len Conches, Chris Sickler, and Jack Doyle to be the boys in charge of equipment, water buckets, and just about everything else that isn't directly run by Coach Jordan Olivar and his staff.

Len Conches is an ex-Marine who has two years as varsity tackle under his belt, but due to a knee injury received while playing he was forced to retire from the gridiron. But Len still wanted to be with the team so he took over the job as manager and may be found almost any day at the field on the hunt for Georgetown spies trying to steal the 'Cats secret plays.

Another familiar figure at the Field House is Chris Sickler who besides managing football has also done his share helping basketball manager John Kennedy. He hails from Tyron, Pennsylvania and has played intramural basketball for the last two years.



Following in the footsteps of his uncle, Athletic Director Bill Connolly, is Jack Doyle the junior member of the organization. This is Jack's first year at Villanova and he's doing a good job in a business that needs energetic, enthusiastic men.

Switching from cleats to spiked-shoes we find Hugh Beatty who is in his second year as manager of the track team. "Huge", as he is called by his buddies, is 21, an NROTC student, and comes from White Oak, Maryland. He played football while in high school at San Rafael, California, but when he came to Villanova he decided that track was more his sport. However, this is highly understandable, as he was no doubt influenced in no small way by room mates George Guida, Jim McKenna, and George Thompson.

As mentioned before, John Kennedy is basketball manager and is now starting his third year in this position. John is a pre-law student and not only manages basketball but also tried his hand at baseball last season. His most memorable experience as manager took place last year as the basketball squad (13 men including Kennedy) were returning in a taxicab from a game at Lewisburg State Prison and Kennedy fell out of the cab. It's been a big joke with the team ever since and to this day there is still some speculation as to how he did fall out.

Well, there are the managers, and hats off to a swell bunch of fellows who certainly deserve every bit of thanks they receive.

A group of Villanovans await the return of the ball as another student leaps and gains possession. This and similar sights may be seen every day in the newly renovated Alumni Hall gymnasium.

DELTA PI EPSILON PROMOTES INTER-FRAT LEAGUE

In an announcement made by Bruce Taten, Delta Pi Epsilon, the Commerce and Finance fraternity, proposed that inter fraternity bowling and basketball leagues be formed. These are to be established separate from the intra-mural program and are not to interfere with it in any way.

Taten stated that in the past the various fraternities had been very active in the field of athletics, but during the last few years sports dropped off completely. He urged the officers of each frat to do their utmost to promote teams in both bowling and basketball. Sports should play an important part in fraternal organizations and they will be a tremendous help in promoting the fellowship that is the aim of the frats.

Bowling is scheduled to begin just as soon as teams have been formed and alleys secured. It is expected that the alleys to be used will be the Main Line alleys in Rosemont. The games are to be arranged by the various fraternities individually with the results being turned into the league for publication in the VILLANOVAN.

Basketball will commence with the regular intra-mural season and will not interfere with the playing of intra-mural games. All games are to be played in the gymnasium in Alumni Hall.

Delta Pi Epsilon suggests that all fraternities promote this program and report to DPE when they will be able to field teams in each sport.

Detroit Preview

and defense men.

The real strong points in Detroit's line are the tackles whose average weight is 323 pounds. Alex Small and Tom Finnin are the starters and are replaced by Floyd Yeager and John Conti who weighs in at 281.

At the guards Bob Greiner and Ed Wood, both 6'1" and 195 pounds, are both good linemen and have able replacements in Joe Mullen and Sal Viviano.

Four Vet Centers

The boys in Cardinal and White are well stocked in centers with four capable veterans including John Packo Bob Soiner, Jerry Greiner, and Jerry Mutual.

Both the Wildcats and the Titans are packed with dynamite and this game, which is one of the best in the country, is due to be a thriller from start to finish.

Cross Country

The Villanova cross country team was inactive last week-end, but they could well afford the rest, for a tough meet is on tap next Saturday. On that day they journey to Annapolis to meet Navy and Notre Dame in a triangular meet. Both these teams are strong and have plenty of power. Navy has always been a force to be reckoned with among Eastern harrier clubs; while Notre Dame is one of the leaders in the Middle West.

Villanova has competed against Navy in open meets such as the IC-4A before but has never met either team in a dual contest before. Notre Dame is not a member of the IC-4A.

This meet is a good prep for one stiff IC-4A competition next month in New York, and it should give the boys a taste of what sort of opposition faces them in Lansing on November 22nd, in the NCAA meet at Michigan State.

The remaining schedule:

Nov 6—Seton Hall, Away; Nov. 15—IC-4A Championships, New York; Nov. 22 — NCAA Champions, Lansing, Mich.

SPORTS CHATTER

By Bill Canino, Sports Editor

When the Squire walked into the office yesterday morning his head hung low and his hat was pulled over his eyes. He was mumbling just one thing, "Mississippi 32—Boston College 13." Over and over again until we pleaded with him to give us this week's selections. He dug deeply into his slightly ripped pocket and came up with a tattered piece of brown wrapping paper on which was written.

Texas A. & M.—Arkansas . . . The "Aggies" played their best game of the current season Saturday when they bowed to Baylor 21-14. The "Razorbacks," led by Clyde "Smackover" Scott, had a free week though and should be ready to go to work on the hapless Texans. Although Harry Stitler's boys will be out to win we don't think they are quite strong enough so we'll give this one to the Crimson by a 14 point margin.

Army-V. P. I. . . . No strain here for the "Cadets." With his sights set on the Penn game, "Red" Blaik will be able to rest his varsity early in the game. Army by at least five touchdowns.

Miami-Maryland . . . Andy Gustafson doesn't have time to recover from the 42-21 defeat his men suffered at the hands of Georgia. The "Terrapins" are strong and will be well rested by virtue of the 47-0 trouncing they handed George Washington last Saturday and a win over the "Hurricanes" is just what they need. This one will be a tussle all the way and could end in a tie but we feel that Jim Tatum has it this year so Maryland by a T. D.

Kentucky-Cincinati . . . The "Wildcats" showed enough scoring punch in defeating Marquette 25-0. The "Bearcats" haven't really been tested as yet and this contest should be the proving ground. We don't think that the boys from Lexington will have too much trouble and they should be on the front end of a 20-0 score.

Boston College-Clemson . . After a complete let down last week the "Eagles" will be trying to regain their prestege but the "Tigers", who are running neck and neck with North Carolina in the Southern Conference are not to be denied. The South Carolinians can take this one by two or maybe more touchdowns.

Georgetown-Denver . . . Here is another breather for the "Hoyas". After whipping Fordham 35-0, Jack Haggerty probably has his boys thinking that they are great and the sky will be the limit this week. Georgetown by 40 points.

San Francisco-Santa Clara This is one of the feature battles in the war of the Coast independents but neither squad is anything to write home about. Doak Walker and his S. M. U. buddies had a hay day last Saturday when they ran wild against the "Broncos" (S. M. U. 33-S. C. 0) and the Cardinal and White will have to spend the week trying to compose themselves. A dull affair with Frisco winning by a six pointer.

North Carolina State-Wake Forest State, scoring a none too impressive win over Chattanooga last week, still needs a stronger offense if they are to worry the "Deacons". Wake Forest has had an up and down road thus far and after two weeks rest they'll be ready for anything. A pair of evenly matched teams with Wake Forest a shade better.

Last week's Scores:

Baylor 20—Texas A. & M. 14
Army 27—Cornell 6
Georgia 42—Miami 21
Mississippi 32—Boston College 13
Deroit 13—Wayne 0
Kentucky 25—Marquette 0
Georgetown 35—Fordham 0
North Carolina St. 7—Chattanooga 0

Spirit Committee To Decide

There is considerable speculation as to the identity of the miss whom some lucky fellow will wine and dine in the manner to which he would like to become accustomed, but her name is still a secret. Some of the members of the Spirit Committee seem to be walking around the campus of late glassy-eyed and dazed, but the only explanation that can be garnered is that they have been trying desperately to choose from among the several debs under consideration. Their job is, no doubt, a painful one, but good!

CONTEST RULES

The rules for the contest, incidentally, are few and simple. In the entry blank simply:

1. Write your name and address.
2. Write your estimate of the total weight of the starting lineup of the Villanova team as announced on the night of November 11.
3. Leave your entry in the Pie Shop before 12:00 noon, November 11th.
4. Only Villanova students are eligible, and entries are limited to one per student.
5. The winner will be the person whose estimate is closest to the actual weight as stipulated in Article 2.

IT'S GOOD BUSINESS

EVERY PROGRESSIVE STATE is doing all it can to attract new industries . . . for new industries are good business for the state and for its citizens.

If Pennsylvania could attract a new industry in which nearly one out of every 100 of its citizens would have a personal stake, either as an employee or an investor, what a great accomplishment that would be.

And if the new industry were to pay these people more than $100,000,000 in a single year, what a great thing that would be for Pennsylvania business and professional men.

And if the employees of the new industry resided in cities and towns throughout the state, what a boon that would be for local communities.

And if the new industry were to provide a service which all citizens of the state would use, what a vital industry that would be to everybody.

Pennsylvania already has an industry—not a new one, either—that meets those specifications to the letter.

It is this company, and it is growing every year.

Educator Expounds On Great Books; Nothing Much Proved

On last Wednesday evening, Robert Maynard Hutchins, Chancellor of the University of Chicago rolled out his long time favorite, the Great Books Program on the stage of the Academy of Music and by noble example, attempted to impress Philadelphians with the power and force of the classics which can be leveled like a howitzer on the man on the street.

After a brief explanation of the program's purpose by Mr. Dupee, the local chairman, the attention of the 2500 spectators was directed to the discussion panel which had chosen, as advertised, Plato's "Crito and Apology" for dissection. And this observer, although he enjoyed the innumerable anecdotes of the speakers, did not come away very much wiser. The discussion sometimes bordered on the picayune, especially the opening question of the nature of Socrates' indictment, and the basic problems were either avoided or could not be resolved. For example, the three most important points that were approached but not solved were:

"Should a man accused of violating a law that he conscientiously believes to be unjust try to avoid punishment?

"Should a man accused of violating a just law, which he feels he is not guilty of try to avoid punishment by illegal means?"

"Were the Athenias justified in slipping the hemlock to Socrates?"

Not only were no decisions made, but a highpoint was reached when a Protestant clergyman forwarded the opinion that no man can say what the moral law is for another man. Chaos followed that remark.

Chancellor Hutchins who has written several boks on the problems of American education gave an entirely satisfying performance and its was quite obvious that he had strong convictions about Plato, but his company was fast and a common ground of understanding was just a bit btyond them.

However, as a demonstration of the nature of the Great Books program the evening undoubtedly served its purpose.

false abduction to be executed by Straforel, the local entrepreneur of such matters.

The abduction goes off as planned: the boy rescues the girl; the fathers are "reconciled"; Straforel presents his bill; and the curtain falls on the first act.

As the second-act curtain rises it discloses the fathers' feigned enmity toward each other developing into a real fued. Sylvette learns that the abduction was staged, and the subsequent love scene with Percinet, who is still convinced of his own heroism, she tells him that their engagement is broken. Since Straforel has not received his pay, he presents his bill for the second time to the fathers only to learn that he will not be paid due to the cessation of the lovers' romantic relationship.

Act three presents Straforel's humorous plan to reconcile the lovers and their fathers in order that he might be paid.

Tickets will be on sale shortly. Special student rates will be offered.

Vol. 24 — No. 5 VILLANOVA COLLEGE, VILLANOVA, PA. Tuesday, Nov. 2, 1948

CATHOLIC JOURNALISTS

High school students from several states listen to a discussion led by one of their moderators. Sitting in on the conference are other newspaper advisors. Newspaper, yearbook, and magazine panels were on the agenda for the day.

Pictured here are a small number of the more than 1500 people who attended the Catholic Schools Publication Conference held here last Saturday. Included in this total were over two-hundred moderators and advisors of various high school publications.

The program opened with an address by the Very Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, OSA., president of Villanova College. Other principal speakers were Rev. E. M. Reilly, J.C.D., superintendent of archdiocesan schools for the Philadelphia area, and Mr. Frederick Stein of the "Christophers" movement.

The activities ended with an informal dance in the Villanova College Field House.

FOUR INTERVIEWERS TO HIRE ENGINEERS FOR CIVIL SERVICE

This Friday, November 5th, four representatives from Federal Laboratories in the Philadelphia area will visit Villanova for the purpose of interviewing engineering students who will graduate this mid-year.

Vacancies Exist

They represent the Philadelphia Naval Shipyard, the Naval Air Material Center, the Naval Air Development Station and the Frankford Arsenal. Several laboratories are located at each. The majority of the vacancies existing at present are in the fields of Mechanical, Aeronautical and Electrical engineering.

Hire on the Spot

Each of these representatives will be authorized and prepared to reach employment commitments with senior students, and to hire Mechanical, Aeronautical and Electrical engineers on the spot for work beginning in February. Final selection in other branches of engineering will be deferred until the end of November, C. D. Hertzog, Regional Director of the United States Civil Service Commission announced.

It will be necessary for graduating students who are interested in Federal employment to file their application forms with the Civil Service Office, Mr. Hertzog stated.

Will Show Movies; Rule Double Cuts

Results of two moves made by Student Council in its last meeting were disclosed this week. A resolution passed at that meeting asked that provisions be made for a student holiday to facilitate voting by qualified registrants. Approval was not forthcoming and the usual douple cuts after a holiday will be given.

Army-Villanova

The second proposition met with success. Movies of the past Villanova-Army game will be shown on Wednesday, November 3, in the Mendel Hall amphitheatre. The showing will be continuous, starting at 12:30 P. M. and running through until 1:30 P. M. The film will be run through twice during the hour to accomodate a maximum number of students.

Freshmen Invited To Join Staff

There are several openings on the VILLANOVAN staff for Freshmen. Those interested are requested to report to the newspaper office in the basement of the C & F Building, at two or three o'clock on Wednesday afternoon. Here they will be interviewed with selection being made later in the week.

Applicants for all branches will be taken. The number of new men actually assigned will be limited. Only Freshmen are being sought at this time.

Frats Join Forces For November Ball

Victory Over Hoyas to Be Celebrated With Dance on Thirteenth of This Month

The Inter-frat Ball will be held Saturday evening, November 13th in the Field House. It is conducted annually by the various campus fraternities, who share in the proceeds. Participating fraternities this year are Delta Pi Epsilon, Delta Pi Mu, Lambda Kappa Delta and Phi Kappa Pi. Their joint committees are completing plans for the informal.

Villanovans to Play

Music will be provided by the Villanovans, under the baton of maestro "Red" Murphy who has recently taken over the duties of band leader. The Villanovans have been well received on their appearances at earlier dances this fall. Marion Stodder, vocalist, will be featured in singing the current ballads.

Tickets for the Ball at $2.40 per couple, tax included, are being sold by members of the individual fraternities, and at the Field House door on the night of the dance.

Profit Sharing

This year, a move has been made to provide for a more equitable distribution of the profits derived from the Ball. The number of tickets sold in advance by each fraternity will determine a separate share of profit to be received, while profit from door sales will be divided equally.

Tickets have already been put on sale and may be obtained from any fraternal member.

Chairmen of the committees are Mike Lingenfelter, DPE, Programs; George Schillinger, PKP, Decorations; John Goldschmidt, LKD, Tickets; and Dick Randolph, DPM, Publicity.

Over 130 Seniors Will Qualify For February Degrees

According to figures released recently by the college it is expected that 130 Seniors will graduate in February. The total is an estimate which is as accurate as is possible at this time.

A breakdown of the 130 graduating Seniors shows that 63 will receive degrees from the Engineering school. Of these, 21 will receive their B. S. in Mechanical Engineering, 23 in B. S. in E. E., 4 in B. S. in Chem. Engineering while 15 will will receive their B S. in Civil Engineering.

Science has 12

The Science School will graduate 2 with a degree in Chemistry, and 10 with a B. S. in Biology, and the usually-small class of Physics Majors will graduate none.

From the Commerce and Finance School, 43 Seniors will receive their B. S. in Economics, while the Arts and Education School will see 8 men graduate with a B. S. in Education, and 4 men with a Bachelor of Arts degree.

It is expected that complete figures will be available at the end of the semester.

Alumni Plan Football Banquet; Warwick Site

Villanova Football Team to be Guests; Also Extend Invitation to Maxwell Award Winner

Robert H. Simpson, '43, general chairman of the Villanova Club of Philadelphia has announced that final arrangements had been made to hold the 27th Annual Football Banquet at the Warwick Hotel on December 7th.

The Committee has been active since early August of this year in the selection of a suitable hotel for the affair. After extensive planning, and through the efforts of Mr. Jackson, a Villanova Alumnus and assistant manager of the Warwick, this site was chosen.

Letters Mailed

It has also been announced that the committee plans to make up a souvenir program. Letters about this phase of the event are being sent to all members of the Alumni, explaining what is to take place at the banquet and urging to be patrons and also that they try to interest their friends and business acquaintances in the program. There will be no price schedules for the patronage list, and any donation of a dollar or more will be appreciated.

Awards to be Made

The Philadelphia Club will make several awards to the football team and to members of the Alumni, the recipients to be chosen prior to the festivities.

Invitations are being mailed to the members of the varsity football team in addition to many famous radio and sports celebrities. The team under the direction of Tom Clavin is slated to provide entertainment. So far, the entire program has been undisclosed.

Working Committees

The working committee includes John P. Kelly, '38, chairman of entertainment; M. A. Flick, '34, chairman of patrons; Joseph F. O'Donnell, '43, chairman of the program; and William F. Friel, III, '43, chairman of tickets and Secretary of the Alumni Association.

MANY VILLANOVANS HEAR ELIOT SPEAK

Last Tuesday evening, T. S. Eliot, leading Twentieth century poet, gave a public reading of a portion of his works to an audience which filled Bryn Mawr College's Goodhart Hall to capacity. The poet was introduced to the audience by Miss Katherine McBride, President of Bryn Mawr College.

Bryn Mawr President

In introducing Mr. Eliot, Miss McBride remarked that her feeling for the poet was one of awe, which she defined as a combination of fear and reverence, a feeling the audience seemed to share. The poet seemed pleased with his reception.

Mr. Eliot approached the reading of his poems—parts of "The Waste-land", "Four Quartettes", "Ash Wednesday", and others—with considerable diffidence and a voice of rather "croaky" texture (his own appraisal) and very cultured, thoroughly Oxford tones. He told us that this—the croakiness—was always the case at his public readings so he usually commenced with some of his earlier works for which, he said, he felt somewhat less responsible. As a matter of fact he indicated that he wasn't really happy with anything he has done The audience, of course, felt no

STUDENTS VIE FOR PRIZE DATE

More information on the coming pre-Georgetown game rally was released to the student body today. Roland Marshall, chairman of the Spirit Committee, stated that plans were nearing completion for what he terms "one of the biggest things in it's field to hit Villanova in years."

Team Present

It was pointed out that every member of the football squad will be present. In addition, plans are underway for the appearance of several celebrities, known to all the students for achievements in their respective circles.

To date, the main point of attraction will be the selection of a Mr. Villanova to serve as escort for Miss Villanova of 1948. Over forty contest entries have been received by the Spirit Committee to date. This number is expected to swell into the hundreds with the printing of an official entry blank in this week's Villanovan.

Collecting Place

The single collecting place for completed forms has been designated as the container now placed in the Pie Shop. The one gathering agency will facilitate counting of ballots and tabulating of student guesses.

Could this lovely lady be Miss Villanova of 1948?

No information as to the identity of Miss Villanova of 1948 has yet been released to the college press. One member of the Spirit Committee is quoted as saying to a Villanovan reporter: "We admire your taste but the young lady whose picture you printed last week is not our choice."

Who? ? ?

The picture appearing here is offered as the second guess in attempting to discover the lady designated to reign over the rally. An enterprising Freshman member of the news staff, in an attempt to earn his journalistic spurs, pilfered the accompanying photo from the portfolio belonging to the chairman of the affair while he was enjoying dinner in the college cafeteria.

Villanovan editors, in hastily-summoned conferences, vowed that

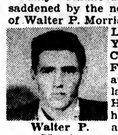
Interracial Group To Hear Tolerance Leader

Mrs. Anna McGany, Winner of Hoey Award Will Speak on Interracial Justice

Mrs. Anna McGany, most recent winner of the Hoey Award for interracial justice, will speak on some practical applications of interracial justice, in room 215 Mendel, on Thursday, November 4th at 7:15 P. M. After her address, Mrs. McGany will hold a question and answer period for those who wish more specific information on this subject. All members of the faculty and student body, and their friends are invited to this meeting.



One of Leaders

Mrs. McGany studied the application of Catholic teachings to negro problems at St. Joseph's School of Social Studies and actively entered the Catholic interracial movement in 1937. The same year, she was named chairman of the newly instituted Interracial Activities Committee of the Catholic Intercollegiate Interracial Council. More recently in June, 1946, Mrs. McGany was one of the leaders in the establishment of the Catholic Interracial Council of Philadelphia and has made an earnest effort to see a city ordinance passed for fair employment practices.

Selection of Thursday, November 4th was made in light of the fact that the day is the feast day of Blessed Martin de Porres, renowned for his practices of fraternity toward all men.

Former Student Dies Suddenly

Many Villanova students were saddened by the news of the death of Walter P. Morris of Garden City, Long Island, New York. Formerly a Commerce and Finance student at Villanova and lately of Seton Hall, "Wally", as he was known by all, died suddenly after a short illness. He was 20 years of age.

Walter P. Morris

The former student made many friends during his two-year stay at Villanova. He is remembered for his warm personality, and earnest ambition.

Sympathy of the college is also extended to Rev. Edward Walsh, O.S.A., on the death of his mother.

Senior Prom Date Moved to Jan. 14; Band Not Chosen

Senior classmen were again forced to change the dates of their coming affairs. The statement was made by Vice-president Edward Quinn in the absence of the class president.

This change is necessitated by the fact that a basketball game is scheduled for the previously scheduled date. Thus, the Senior Prom will take place on January 14th with the Dinner-Dance on the following night, January 15th.

Committee Chosen

To date, the Prom band has not been chosen. The matter was placed in the hands of an orchestra committee, which will have the task of cutting the many possibilities to five. These five names will then be presented to the class for consideration and final decision.

The next meeting has not been scheduled, pending the findings of the band committee.

Station WVIL Has Staff Meeting

This evening the campus radio station will hold a meeting in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium at 7:15 o'clock. The purpose of this meeting is to interest potential new members in all phases of radio production: directing, writing, engineering, acting and producing.

Sixty Needed

Last year the staff numbered about 35, however, because of a planned increase in the number of productions a staff of more than 60 will be needed.

When the new studios are completed a schedule, which closely parallels the 33 hour schedule of last year, is ready to go into effect. The exact date of the first broadcast is unknown at present.

A I E E'S PLAN FIELD TRIP FOR SATURDAY

Over 100 students participated in the first meeting of the year of the A. I. E. E., held last Thursday, under their new moderator, Mr. J. B. Clothier.

Nick Fitti, vice president, conducted the proceedings of the meeting and made the introductions of the society's officers and moderator. Field trips, dues, speakers, and meeting times were the topics of discussion.

Bethlehem Steel

Mr. Clothier announced that the meeting of the Middle Eastern District No. 2 will be held at Lehigh University, Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, Friday and Saturday, November 5th, and 6th. Following the meeting will be a field trip through Bethlehem Steel Corporation. Bud Hunter, president, Mr. Clothier, and a few others are planning to make the trip.

"The objective of the A. I. E. E.", spoke Mr. Clotheir, "is to bridge the gap between Electrical Engineering students in schoolwork and the profession itself." He expressed the "feeling of belonging to the profession" as one of the prime advantages of being a member of the society.

Only Junior and Senior members were present at this first meeting but plans are being developed to include Sophomore and Freshmen students into some of the society's activities.

Officers of the A. I. E. E. include Bud Hunter, president; Nick Fitti, vice president; Al Pentony, secretary, and Frank Doyle, treasurer.

SPIRITED VILLANOVANS AT SENDOFF

The above picture shows a group of Villanova supporters giving a rousing sendoff to the Wildcat football team. The rally, which attracted over 300 students, was highlighted by a hugh torchlight parade through the campus to Villanova station.

Labor Relations Club Attends Opening Mass; Hears Sermon

"The individual and not the class must be the force behind a return to the Christian viewpoint in industrial relations." At the opening Mass of the Industrial Relations Club, Fr. Sharkey, of Camden, issued this challenge to the members of that organization last Tuesday. Rev. William J. Gordon, O. S. A., moderator of the club, celebrated the Mass.

The speaker compared the world of today with the world of the Industrial Revolution period, pointing out that the secularism that arose out of the Protestant Revolution is responsible for much of the unrest in industry today. "To management, people became machines. No longer were they creatures of God, rather, they were a commodity." Fr. Sharkey pointed out the fact that the last three Popes have all devoted a great deal of effort to combat this secularism, and that the only way to really combat the evil is to incite the individual to his responsibilities and God-given rights.

By MARTIN BINDER

All of a sudden the Villanovan has become very art conscious and several requests have been made to "Town Talk" to tell them what's up in artistic Philadelphia.

To start with, the Philadelphia Museum of Art, would be about our best bet. Most are familiar with this mighty stone fortress on the Parkway, and those who are only familiar with the exterior should really give the interior a try. The permanent collection is representative, and for the most part well hung. Starting on November 14th, there is going to be an exhibit of Glass. This glass on exhibit will be both antique and modern, and the exhibit is being sponsored by the Steuben Glass Company. The museum is also sponsoring a series of lectures by prominents in the art world today. Later in the season the Museum also has a free film series, for which publicity will be posted.

While Philadelphia doesn't have a fabulous Fifty-Seventh street like New York, it has its sharp of smaller intimate galleries. One of the more interesting galleries in the Contemporary Art Association, which is located at 1712 Walnut street. The gallery is new, very slick, and at present is housing a very wholesome show, of paintings and sculpture. Paintings run the gamut of techniques and give the layman an excellent idea of what is being done by contemporary American artists. The C.A.A., as it is known, was formed last year by a group representing artists and art-minded citizens, for the purposes of giving contemporary artists a chance to show and sell their paintings. All the paintings are for sale, but you are the one who must initiate the proceedings.

While we are still in town let me also suggest a visit to the Art Alliance, 251 S. 18th St. This is about the largest of the smaller galleries in town, and here are staged most of the "one man shows". The exhibits change very frequently, and are usually of the top calibre. Another interesting feature is the exhibit and sale of handicrafts. These little works of art encompass all sorts of ceramics, textiles, leather and metal objects, and if you have somebody who likes unusual things, this is a good place to remember when Christmas comes.

The very small private galleries for those who are really interested are George De Braux, 1718 Locust Street, Robert Carlen Gallery, 323 S. 16th Street.

In passing I want to mention that there is usually no charge for any of the above places.

Now for those of us who have, think they have, or would like to see if they have any, artistic talent, let me suggest an evening at the Graphic Sketch Club, and if you are quick to follow this up you may be able to sign up for the whole season. This club which is located at 719 Cherine Street, is operated by the Fleischer Memorial Fund with the purpose of fostering art. The student need only to provide his material and desire, and the instruction and atmosphere are provided. Only charge is a minimal one for the model, and since models are not used in all classes there is usually just carfare. Note to residents: Club can be reached by taking the Elevated from 69th Street to 8th, and the 47 car at Eighth and Market will take you south to Catherine. Voila, with all these pearls of information, I'm sure that no one can really say that he has nothing more to see.

This is going to be a weekly column, weakly that is! Having joined Hugh Johnson's Union of Fifth Columnists, we feel qualified to scratch out another column for the feature page.

Say, these long weekends are terrific, aren't they? Two days with nothing to do, but then who are we kidding? For some students though, a two-day weekend is something to shout about. Speaking of Saturday classes (as we were): definition of a professor: "One who talks in other people's sleep".

AND HE THOUGHT HE COULD GET OUT OF SATURDAY CLASSES.

Belated VillanOVATIONS to John Currie, et al, for his fine work in making the Soph Cotillion such a success. The idea of intermission entertainment greatly enhanced the evening's pleasure.

Seems one girl we know at the Cotillion had just had a coke and munched a pretzel in the Blue Room when an announcement was made that refreshments were available in the Blue Room. So our innocent young thing proceeds to ask, "Say, Mike, where's the Blue Room they're talking about?" Needs a painting, huh?

Breathes there a Soph with soul so dead
Who never to himself hath said,
"It's time to stop this social whirl

The professor snatched it from his hands . . . "you haven't got time for that, Sonny boy, you'll miss a month's work" . . . Another dropped his slide-rule . . . he failed the course.

'NEATH THE SPIRES

By EMIL R. BORGERS '50

"The only reason that there were so many saints in the first fifteen centuries was due to the fact that science was not advanced enough to dispute the seemingly miraculous recoveries of "sick people", said a "learned" student of one of our nation's "great" colleges to me this summer.

"I believe you're wrong there, Red." I replied.

"Then how do you account for the unbalanced proportion of miracles through the centuries? Why is it that there are no saints and miracles today?"

"No saints and miracles today? Have you ever heard of The Little Flower and Mother Cabrini?"

"Well, that's only two——."

"Why here are two saints who have been canonized in our young lifetimes. Do you realize that there have been over fifty generations since the coming of Christ? Besides, a miracle has been witnessed during this century by countless thousands of people. I have in mind the appearance of Our Blessed Mother at Fatima."

"Well, er——."

"Saints are canonized, not for their own glory, because they receive their reward in Heaven. They are made known in order that we Catholics may have earthly models to imitate."

"Just what is a saint?"

"A saint is a person whose Heavenly presence is assured by their close contact with God in their daily lives. Miracles are only signs to the people of the world that these men and women have gone into the sight of God after their death. However, it was necessary for God to perform certain miraculous acts at times when the Church needed strengthening and its members needed the proper guidance. We pray to the saints because we know that they are in Heaven and will intercede for us with God."

"Thanks for the information."

THE 5TH COLUMN

Rumor of the week!!! Oil has been discovered behind the monastery. Whadd'ya think they're puttin' all the pipes in fer??

Football

For the second time in history, the Villanova Wildcats tussle with the Kentucky Wildcats, and a red hot battle should ensue. Last year's game, the first Great Lakes Bowl Game, which was witnessed by your writers, really was a wide open — spectator-lovin'—fiasco. Course, the Razor boys are minus some of their hitshots like Jay Rhodemeyer and Wash Serini, but with experts like Dopey, Phelpes, Wah Wah Jones, Jack Boller and Bill Blanda, Villa'll have to play their wide open ball to win.

Last week, one of Villanova's all-time aces made the pro football news. Bob David was traded from Los Angeles to the almost bankrupt Chi Rockets . . . Aside from David, Villanova now has Steve Pritko Boston; Val Jonsante, Pitt, Paul Stenn, Chi Bears and John MMellus in the big play-for-pay league.

Odds and Ends

The little boys wearing red ties last week weren't campaigning for Henry Wallace. Rather, it was all part of the pre-initiation of the Delta Pi Epsilon. Thursday night as the festivity neared the climax, Tom Meyers, Paul Begley, Bruce Taten, Franny Cole, Joe Brogran, Andy Lehnels, Mic Thorpy, Tom Kennedy, and Mike Lingenfelter, etc., all got their war paddles sharpened up. The poor new members caught a bad case of posteriorits as a result.

So, once again the DPE shows its rah-rah colors. (Amen).

Tuesday night T. S. Eliot (no relation to Bob Elliott of the Boston Braves, Dick Randolph the noted ex-patriate, gave a little lecture of his famous works at Bryn Mawr. But the amazing feature was all the Villanova Intellects, both pseudo and intel, that were on hand. "Fact, "Nails" Fahy and his troops were so anxious that they even fought the darkness under the stage during the lecture.

Then there's the United Pressman that got things all SNAFU. He filed a story about a new chair being donated at Penn State—when the editor checked up on it he found out that it was an electric chair donated by Gov. Duff at the State Penn.

Word has leaked out that a Student Union Bldg. is the next major campus development. When, is not exactly known but we can speculate that the class of '52 should see it come to pass.

Also, a new feature. The rumor has it that a student will sit on the board when the plans are finally drafted.

It's all over but the counting. We wish Mr. T. D. all the luck in the world and request—above all—that he exert ALL his influence to keep up the—out of war.

The Main Line will have some sort of representation in the House. Benjamin James, who is on the Villanova Advisory Board, is a cinch for Congressman for Delaware County.

Attention Bob Creedon. You had a perfect score of 92 on the Chesterfield Football Contest two weeks. You can collect your carton of Chesterfields any time at the Villanovan Office.

Perhaps one of the funniest thing of the year happened the other day. It was in one of Mr. Jonas' Public Speaking classes, one of the fellows was called upon to give an impromptu speech. The fellow upon facing the class found that his thoughts deserted him. His mouth became dry, a cold sweat broke out upon his brow, he wrung his hands together, he did ever imaginable thing, but still no thoughts. Finally after twenty minutes of unbearable silence, a fellow in the rear of the class yelled, "Louder!"

The Lowdown On Modern Art

By BUD WALSH

Last week, we laid down the three divisions of art, restricting our investigation to painting. They were matter, form and iconographical value. Let us now apply these three to the pictures in question.

The matter in the two is obvious. Picasso treats of a woman, looking at herself in front of a mirror, while Michelangelo exercises his brush on the epic creation of man. Now we come to the matter of form. First of all, let me explain something. It is not the mere presentation of an attitude of reality that the artist presents to his public. He arranges the points of his composition in order to satisfy more readily the demands of harmony, rhythm, variety etc. There is a compositional criterion which may be used to judge whether the work is formally correct. My contention is that the more diversified the elements which must be ordered together to make an aesthetic compositional whole, the greater the organic achievement. In a work like Veronese's "Feast in the House of Levi", we find a number of human forms which must be organically unified in order to meet all the demands of the composition. The aesthete, Lee, examples this in his dot theory. If you notice the breakdown of the two pictures in pinto one and two, you will observe that Picasso, (in 1) is far from arranging the parts of his composition to make an aesthetic whole.

DESIGN OF MICHELANGELO

DESIGN OF PICASSO

Let us strip Picasso's and Michelangelo's work to its bare compositional form and see which is the better. The only way we can judge the value of each is the effect it has on our sense of balance, rhythm, etc. Notice the beautiful curve in the picture of Adam. The eye is led around the picture. It takes in the whole. Notice the erratic, zig-zag pattern of Picasso. It is organically poor. It has two strikes against it already.

Now, let us come to the iconographical value. Value can be defined as anything which is desired, which will help us to achieve our final end, or in other words a good. Of course, some modern axiologists will not agree with the Thomistic definition. Value, interchangeable with goodness, is a transcendental property of all reality. Which has the more aesthetic value? It is obvious that Picasso fails short. Michelangelo treats of a majestic theme, the iconology is strained to its highest peak. It treats of something intimate to man's soul, the problem of creation. Picasso merely expresses a mood of voluptousness, a sensual experience, devoid of any deeper meaning.

We could even say that morally, Picasso's work is indifferent. However, Michelangelo aids greatly in the aesthetic experience by giving a great basic theme to meditate upon. There can be no doubt that a great epic subject of this stature could be compared to the indifferent act of staring in front of a mirror.

So we see that Picasso falls short of the three. Michelangelo exploits them to the fullest. We may judge all modern art by these standards. Is it interesting subjectively? Is the form good? What are the iconographical implications?

ALL SOULS DAY

VILLANOVA COLLEGE

Most of us are aware that today is All Souls Day and that the whole month of November is dedicated to the same idea. Sermons have been preached and books written about this same day and month.

We are doing neither but we would like to remind you that you are a Catholic and that you do have obligations. Could you possibly settle some of them by attending daily Mass?

Chow Line Buddies

Someone once said that there are no atheists in foxholes. The same phrase with a few words deleted and others inserted might well read, "There are no buddies in the chow-line."

It's about time that Villanova resident students begin realizing this. No mastermind is needed to draw a few simple conclusions. It is within the experience of every one of us that there is a lot of "gouging" every morning, noon and night.

If one is standing opposite the drinking fountain, waiting in line as he should, he can be sure that at least a half-dozen and more likely a dozen students will break into the line ahead of him. And it stopped being excusable the first time it happened.

The universal defense is: "I've got a class in ten minutes." But fellows that have been waiting in line for as long as fifteen and twenty minutes have classes, too. And the remedies are so simple that they have been overlooked to date.

There are times during the hour when the line is nil. If you have time to spare, do something else for a while until the congestion clears.

Remember that you have no buddies when you're in the line.

If you see someone breaking into line, let him know that you don't like it. A few hostile reminders might well curb impatience on the part of someone who always happens to "have a class in ten minutes."

Letters To The Editor . . .

Editor of the Villanovan,
Dear Sir:

Not being a journalist, and having little artistic talent, I hesitated before writing this letter. However, the insinuations and implications in last week's article on modern art cry out for a rebuttal. After reading the article, one can conclude only, that the author is either a world renowned painter or critic, or that he is a supreme egotist. Never having seen any of his works in the Metropolitan collections, I conclude that he is not the former.

To illustrate my point, it is very doubtful that Picasso could have reached the top of the artistic world if his work did not possess great merit. It is also very doubtful that the critics would praise these works as they do if they were indeed "the frustrated workings of an inane madman" The author's attack on Picasso has about it such an air of vitrolic finality, that one may seriously doubt the author's intellectual honesty. By luring us on with a truth, i.e., that Michelangelo was a great artist, he attempts to seduce us into believing the corollary that Picasso is not. The conclusion is not very well related to the premise.

Modern art is an attempt to portray emotions and impressions rather than photographic images. The modern artist aims at a fusion or blending of the intellect and emotion. I fear that the author of the article under discussion has employed neither.

Very truly yours,
EMANUEL RUBIN.

Editor's Note: Mr. Walsh informs us that he is guilty of being caught within the honors of Mr. Rubn's dilemma. He has no choice but to plead supreme egotism.

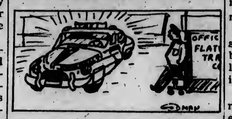
Man Against The Automobile



by W. CARROLL

Unconsciously the automobile manufacturers are placing in serious jeopardy the bodily welfare of a most important element in our society, the cab drivers. By way of explanation let us review rather quickly the development of the automotive industry.

In the latter part of the 19th century this curse was first foisted upon the world. As the industry advanced it became highly competitive. Many less successful pioneers bowed to ruthless competitive tactics. They blew their respective tires and came to an inglorious halt by a dusty and unpaved wayside. Competition demanded annual revolutionary changes in mechanics and design.

Soon the designs began to experience few if any fundamental changes. However the mechanical part of the auto grew apace. Bringing the case up to date we are faced with this tragic situation.

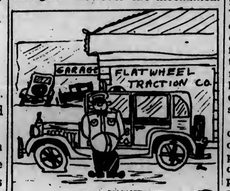
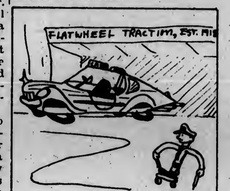
The manufacturers through the years have always placed the emphasis on adding improvements to the cars. Finally they reached the end of their rope and now they are forced to take things away to improve their products.



Witness the rapidly vanishing clutch. At one time this was a most necessary part of the car. Without it you couldn't very well operate the heap. Now however a considerable number of car manufacturers employ as a selling point the fact that drivers or cars have no need to use their left leg. And here lies the danger. A consequence of serious import is the upshot of the non-clutch car.



Now let's get back to the cab driver. As you know the best percentage of these men drive for periods as long as twelve hours a day. Their health is principally promoted by the exercise their arms and legs from operating the various and sundry pedals and of course the steering wheel. Now, however, one of their limbs, the left leg, will remain inactive. It will just lie inert while the rest of the body moves. The consequence is obvious.

What can happen is that successive generations of cab drivers will be born with just a vestige of a left leg. It could, from long periods of inactivity, just waste away.

My suggestion is that automobile manufacturers should be enlightened of this possibility and make as an integral part of cars employed in public transport, a left leg exerciser.

Now this of course would arrest the movement to take things away from cars and start them adding again which brings us right back to where we started.

Do Success and Wealth Go Hand In Hand?

By BILL DENNIS

This present day life of ours boils down, in some respects, to a terrific rat-race.

A young man, in the very beginning of his career, is made impatient to join the race wholeheartedly, and to lend his own youthful and impetuous personality to the struggle for material success.

Unfortunately, this young man sees in other materially successful men his own ambition, and neglects to develope another side of his life and character, which can be a wealth of happiness and satisfaction to any man, whether or not he is finally considered materially successful.

"Bundles of Dough"

The strange part of this ultra-modern system is that no man, apparently, is so considered unless he is able to amass what is popularly referred to as a "bundle of dough".

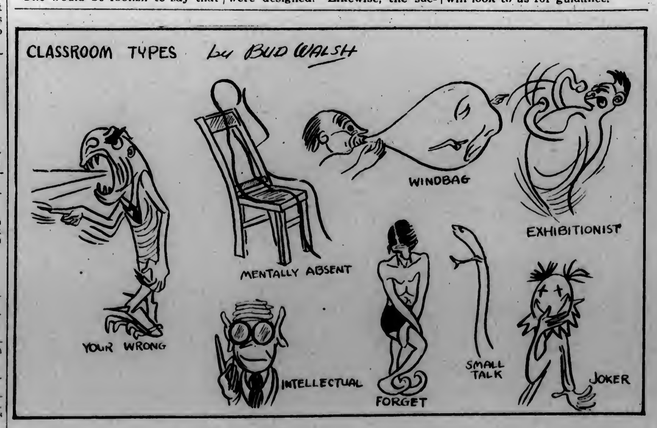
He who leads a quiet natural life, who has access to enough of this world's goods to raise and educate a family, and whose primary concern is his relationship with God and his fellow man does not come under the heading of "successful" as the term stands today. The reason for this, of course, is the dominant position of the material element in men's minds.

Honest Ability

One would be foolish to say that all materially successful men are ipso facto undesirable in a community and in a nation, for there are within the acquaintance of all of us certain individuals whose present position and material well-being are the products of sheer honest ability, and such men are certainly not a detrement to any society. But, one would also be in error were he to say that material wealth and public acclaim are only criteria of success.

Some men, by their very personality and innate qualities of leadership, would amass wealth and acquire positions of prominence in whatever community they inhabited, while the reverse is true of others. However, there is a middle ground here. A man is almost always termed successful if he ultimately becomes wealthy in the material sense, but he need not be called unsuccessful if he fails to come into possession of a six figure bank account.

Measurement



The method of measuring success in the popular mind is a harsh and false one. One would not attempt to measure a quart of water with a thermometer, for thermometers are used to measure other things and cannot be expected to be used for other than those for which they were designed. Likewise, the success of living cannot be accurately determined by a consideration of accumulated goods.

We do not say that material gain is an evil to be avoided. We are forced by sheer necessity to concern ourselves with it in order to live, and we see around us that more wealth means better living, materially, but, we do say that this system leaves a great gap in our lives if we devote ourselves to its pursuit.

The Depression

All can remember the disastrous effect of the depression years upon men whose whole lives were founded on wealth and position. With the loss of their accustomed surroundings they suffered a far greater calamity than if they had had something within themselves to support them during such a period.

This other side of our life and character, then must be spiritual, abstract, and must be developed within ourselves. Such things are the appreciation and love of friend and family, the devotion of one's life to the ideals of decency and honesty, loyalty to God and Country, and the effort to instill these principles in the minds of those members of future generations who will look to us for guidance.

WILDCATS TURN BACK TITANS 27-6; WILL FACE KENTUCKY SATURDAY

Mainliners Overcome Early Detriot Lead

Still in First Five in Pass Defense

By NEAL FAHY

Playing by far their best game of the season, a hustling Villanova College eleven spotted the Detroit Titans a first period touchdown and then proceeded to romp all over them with the scoreboard showing the Wildcats on top 27 to 6 after 60 rough minutes of play last Friday evening in the Motor City.

Bob Polidor, Pete D'Alonzo, Johnny Geppi, and Tom Clavin were Villanova's point makers in the fray and showed the relatively large crowd of 24,381 that the prognosticators were all wrong when they picked the Titans by two touchdowns.

Outcome Never In Doubt

Although Detroit scored first on a 97-yard run from scrimmage made by the speedy Wally Gruber, it was quite obvious to Wildcat rooters that Villanova was master of the situation and the slight lapse was just one of those things.

All throughout the first period the 'Cats pushed their Mid-Western opponents around and really had them in the hole when something happened. On a quick opening play, Gruber, who does the 100 in 9.8, took the ball on his own three-yard line and went off right guard through the whole Villanova team, making 97 yards in the process and giving the Titans their only score of the game.

However, the Wildcats, not to be outdone, came right back in the second quarter to take the lead. The score came in an unexpected manner and was the result of some good quarterbacking. With fourth down and five yards to go on the Detroit 33, Andy Gordon flipped a screen pass to Polidor who went all the way with a neat bit of running. The Detroit line which had rushed in to block the expected punt were in a slightly embarassing position as Polidor crossed the double stripe.

Romanik Sets Up Tally

Two minutes later, Steve Romanik, who has earned for himself the title of Mr. Defense, intercepted a pass thrown by Detroit's Hal O'Malley on the Titan 30 and returned the ball 10 yards closer to the goal posts. After gaining 6 yards on two tries Doherty gave the ball off to fullback Pete D'Alonzo who hit the line like the proverbial "ton of bricks" and dragged a couple of Detroit die-hards 14 yards for Villanova's second score of the game. D'Alonzo, a sophomore whose legs churn like pistons, showed himself to be the Main Liners' hardest hitting back at this point in the season.

Tom Clavin came in to attempt his second successful placement but found the ball in a position not to his liking and ran the ball over

Alumni; Bks. 2, 3 Win Intramural League Openers

Fedigan, Doms Win Thursday Contests

Alumni Hall was the scene of battle as the intramural basketball schedule opened last Tuesday evening promising to be the best since it was introduced at Villanova.

A brand new floor as well as complete uniforms for each team furnish the incentive for every basketball-minded student to try to grab a position on his hall team. Rev. John Dunne, O. S. A., head of intramural athletics, has announced the cage schedule which shows eight resident squads in action every week. At present a day-hop league is in formation.

Early Start on Season

Aided by George and Ray Mondschein and Bill Klucsarits, Father Dunne has the program under way much earlier this year due to the fact that the Navy vacated the Alumni Hall gym which has had its face lifted a bit since it was last used in 1943.

Opening games of the season saw a powerhouse Alumni quintet subdue a good Austin team 56-45, while Barracks 2 and 3 mauled Barracks 1 and 4 by a 49-35 margin. Buckley, Barry, and Diot led the Alumni aggregation to victory with 11, 12, and 16 tallies respectively. Hal Diot, last year's high scorer, seems to be on his way to that mark again and with Bill Barry and "Buckets" Buckley of last season's AllStar array behind him, Alumni should field a contender for league honors. Austin has a former All-Star performer in Joe Doris who last year teamed with Diot and Barry for the "Aussies."

Seaman Paces Pack

Leading the victorious barracks five was Joe Seaman who garnered high-scoring laurels for the evening by hammering the hoops for 18 counters. Tom Falkowski lead the defeated barracks boys with 15 digits. Mickey Frinzi and Perry Del Purgatorio handled the whistle tooting in both contests.

Thursday night's shindigs saw Fedigan bounce the Doms 43-29 to take handily a game which was air tight at half time when Fedigan led 16-11. Another of last season's All-Stars, "Obbie" O'Brien, was seen in action with the Doms for whom he talied eight points to share the high-scoring laurels with teammates Healey and Morrisey in a losing cause. Leading the Fedigan club were Sainre and Frink who registered 15 and 13 points in that order. Joe Charlie Buck, Navy 150 pound backfield star, goes into the end zone standing up. This was the Middies first of six penetrations into the Kittens double stripe area. Villanova, unable to hold down Navy, lost handily, 40-6.

CAT HARRIERS 2ND TO NOTRE DAME WITH MIDDIES LAST

Ross Sets New Record; Thompson Strong Fourth

It appeared as though October 30 and not March 17 was a great day for the Irish, at least in Annapolis anyway, for it was there that the Notre Dame cross country team followed their brothers on the gridiron by winning over Villanova and Navy in a triangular meet with a score of twenty-four points. It wasn't such a bad day for Villanova either as the Mainliners also trounced the sailors by taking second place with 43 points. The host team had to be content with last and 53 points.

Ross Easy Victor

In individual performance it was Villanova all the way, however, with Browning Ross, the odds-on favorite and Woodbury's favorite son, leading the pack around the 4.6 mile Academy course and breezing home with 300 yards between himself and Notre Dame's Jimy Murphy. In doing so he managed to set a new record. He lowered the old mark by a full minute and three seconds. The term "old mark" is used here only relatively as it was set only three days before by Evans of West Chester State Teachers.

George Thompson had a little bad luck or bad direction or both. It seems as though he was running in second slot when he made a wrong turn. Before he could get back on the course he had dropped to fourth place behind Notre Dame's Kittell. Although it was a hard blow to Mr. and boosted Villanova's score, it did not affect the standings so this accident was not as serious as it might have been.

Irish Place Five

That the Running Irish were the best team on the field there is no doubt for in addition to the places mentioned they also took 5th, 6th, and 8th. This placing of five men in the first eight is what defeated the Blue and White even though Notre Dame has no men the calibre of Ross or Thompson. It looks as though the boys from South Bend like to win meets like they win football games; by sheer weight of numbers which just overwhelm the opposition.

McKee Runs 9th

Navy first broke into the scoring column when Tom Trout came across in 7th place. Dependable Charlie McKee trailed the Irish phulanx in 9th followed by four Navy men. Jim McGehrin and Tom Ronboy rounded out Villanova's score.

In passing it may be noted that in placing four men together Navy showed signs of becoming a strong team. If those men develop by next year they will be a power to watch in the East.

A comparison may be made as to performance by seeing what each team would have done in dual meets. The Cats would have lost to Notre Dame 32-23, but would have sunk the middies 26-29. Notre Dame would have really gone to town against Navy for they would have whitewashed the sailors 16-31, almost a perfect score.

Seton Hall Next

The team faces a pretty busy schedule from here on in. Next week they face the Pirates of Seton Hall at South Orange. The week after that is the IC-4A meet, and the next week finds them at the NCAA Championships.

Stage Set For Battle In Bluegrass State

Kittens Bow To Navy 150 Team, By 40-0 Count

Lightweights Never Threat To Middies

The well coordinated attack of the U. S. Naval Academy 150-lb. squad proved too much for the Villanova lightweights last Saturday at Goodreau Stadium as the Kittens were defeated 40-0.

The ability to make their own breaks and then capitalize on them was directly responsible for four of the Middies six touchdowns. Shortly after the opening kickoff, Navy blocked a Villanova punt and recovered the loose pigskin on the 20-yard line. From there it took only one play to score with Charles Buck smashing off tackle for 20 yards and a touchdown. Sivinski's try for the extra point was no good.

Kittens' Only Threat

After that opening score Villanova staged their only threat of the game. Dick Devine carried 15 yards to the Villanova 45 following Navy's kickoff. After three plays netted only three yards it looked as if the Kittens would have to punt but a 15-yard penalty gave the Cats a first down on the Navy 37. A pass from Devine to Ward picked up nine yards to the 28. Devine smashed all the way down to the Navy one-yard line before he was finally tackled by the safety man.

Then, with first down and goal to go, the Kittens couldn't quite penetrate the stout Navy defense. Villanova recovered its own fumible on the 6. In two plays Dic Devine was hurled back to the 12-yard line. A Devine to Wolf pass was incomplete and that ended the only Villanova threat of the game.

Buck Scores 2nd TD

The remainder of the first half was a see-saw battle with neither team penetrating deeply into the other's territory. The Kittens kicked-off in the second half and Navy lost no time in moving down field for a score. Jones returned the kickoff to the Villanova 43. From there Batholomew carried to the 22 where he was stopped on a spectacular tackle by the defending back Bottis. Fullback Bushman cracked over center for 5 yards. Martin then swept end for 5 big yards and another first down. Sarris bulled his way to the 6 and from there Buck smashing off-tackle again scored for Navy's second tally. Sivinski's try for the extra point was blocked by Doyle.

From then on the game was just a big scoring parade with the Middies from Annapolis doing all the scoring. After having their at-

Team to Leave for Fray Thursday

By HARRY RANGE

When two Wildcats are let loose on a field you can expect a good fight but when twenty-two Wildcats clash this Saturday afternoon at Lexington, Kentucky, anything can happen. And that's just what's expected when our Wildcats take on the Wildcats of the University of Kentucky.

This will be the second meeting of the two clubs, the first being last year when the boys from the Bluegrass State tripped the Mainliners 24-14 in the inaugural Great Lakes Bowl game. Jordan Olivar's charges are eager to even things up with Paul Bryant's Kentuckians and from previous records this is the time to do it.

Kentucky was hard-hit by graduation losing nine players from the starting eleven and five more from the squad. This severe dent in the manpower situation is the main reason for Kentucky's rather mediocre, as compared with last season, 3-3 record. The Bluegrass squad had easy wins over Marquette, Xavier and Cincinnatti but were in turn easy prey for Georgia, Vanderbilt and Ole Miss.

The reason for the poor showing against their Southern rivals can easily be proven by a quick run-over of last year's losses. By graduation Kentucky lost two starting ends, George Sengel and Don Ridge. By academic attrition, Dick Hensley departed and both starting tackles —Bill Griffin and Wash Serini—swapped pigskins for sheepskins.

Five guards, the heart of the forward wall are missing—Hut Jones, Matt Lair, Gene Hans, Leo Yarutis and Charles Browning. Jay Rhodemyer, Kentucky all-conference center, completed his eligibility.

Kentucky's two best all-around backs—Fullback Bill Mosley and Halfback Jack Farris—were graduated. Farris was the team's leading ground gainer with a 6.4 yards per try average while Moseley had a 3.5 average. They were both excellent defensive men, being most adept at snagging passes out of the hands of the opposition.

Now for this season's squad. At the flanks there's Ben Zaranka, Jerry Claiborne, Charlie Bentley, Don Prampton, and Olympic basketball star Wallace Jones.

At the tackles the Kentucky Wildcats are strong with Bob Gain, big, 215 pound defensive bulwark and 215 pound Lloyd McDermott holding down the starting spots. Backing these two are Doc Farrell and Frank Smotherman, two more good defense men.

The guard situation is definitely not good and is one of the obvious weak spots in the line. Out of a roster of eight guards, only two, Dick Holway and Pat James are worthy of mention.

With one exception, the center position is woefully weak, with brawny Harry Olinski the only bright spot. Olinski was troubled with a knee injury last fall and should he have a recurrance, there is no experienced man to take his place.

The backfield, generally speaking has done much better than the line. Alternating at the drivers seat are George Blanda and Carl Genito who have both done a good job steering the T attack.

Boller Stars

The halfbacks are with Jim Howe and Dick Martin at the right side and Shorty Jameson on the left. Boller is a triple threat who has led the team thus far while Jameson, who is rather slow, relies on a good change of pace to ward off tacklers. Howe's specialty is long gains while Martin is a standout as a line backer.

Fullbacks are numerous, but only two boys—Dopey Phelps and Lee Truman—are seriously considered. Both have been playing good ball but really nothing sensational.

With our boys in fairly good shape and riding high after last week's upset over Detroit, they should have the edge. However, the Bluegrass boys are improving and their losses came to only first-rate clubs. Taking these facts into consideration, it will be a rough contest all the way.

Intramural League

Griggs and Joe Maguire refereed the battle.

Counsel Takes Close Contest

In the second contest of the evening Good Counsel eked out a 34-28 win over Mendel. The boys from G. C. had a 15-12 edge at halftime and had a job protecting the margin in a wide open game. Weber, a former varsity performer for the Wildcats and a member of the 1946-47 All-Stars, paced the victors with 17 counters which gave him high scorin honors for the night. Weber led the men from Mendel by scoring 10 points. Jim Gallen and Perry Del Purgatorio, the officials, had plenty of chances with their tooters which were in constant operation.

Tickling the tassels for 18 points gave Joe Seaman of Barracks III high scoring honors for the week with "Willie" Weber close on his heels with 17.

Schedule Changes Made

The schedule released by Father Dunne shows each team meeting the other seven once each half with the final games of the first half listed for the 14th of December. One change has been made in the program showing the game between the Doms and Food Counsel originally tabbed for Thursday, November 4, changed to Thursday, November 11, while the contest scheduled for November 11 between Austin and Barracks II has been moved ahead to November 4.

Next Tuesday's games will pit Pedigan against Good Counsel and the Doms against Mendel, while Thursday will see Austin and Barracks II lock horns before Alumni and Barracks I go at each other.

WILDCAT'S 1ST TEAM WAS UNBEATEN; HAD TWO GAME SCHEDULE

The first time Villanova ever fielded a football team was in 1894 when the Blue and White played a two-game schedule, and earned for itself the distinction of being Villanova's first undefeated team.

From then until now we have, except for one lapse, put a team on the field, and though there have been some very good teams, and some superlatively good individual players through the years, interest in, and excellence in, football did not equal that of baseball, until the time of Father Griffin's presidency, 1926-1932.

Six Games In '95

A full season six-game schedule was played in 1895, when we won four and lost two. The next year we played and beat Fordham—FOR US A GREAT VICTORY. Then the game lapsed until 1903, when Fred J. Corlius was signed as the first football coach, and a football renaissance began. Even though our statistical record is nothing to brag about, from 1903 'till 1911 we won 19 and lost 31—spirit, and enthusiasm was at a height probably never reached since. Villanova was definitely at that time a very small school, yet she met Navy, Princeton, Penn, Army, and the great Carlisle Indians regularly. We won a couple of games from such opponents and always gave them a great tussle.

Moose McCormick, a great center in those days, was good enough against such opposition to be picked "All-American" by a committee of 100 sportswriters and coaches of the East, the other ten players being strictly "Ivy League.' No group picture of those days shows a squad of more than eighteen men, and some show only twelve. Few games were played at home. Pretty consistently we held the mythical Catholic championship, winning almost always over our arch rival, Fordham. We were using the forward pass, as were other eastern teams as early as 1906.

Tim Spillane succeeded Crolius in 1912, and remained coach for two seasons. He was followed by Tom St. Germain in 1914. In 1915 Dutch Somers took over, and it was his first-year team which started the eastern football world by beating Army on Hallowe'en, 16-13. The score of that game was actually closer than the play, for the papers say we completely outplayed the Cadets, and baffled them with a varied attack.

Kittens' Game

tack stymied, Villanova kicked out of bounds on their own 42-yard line. It took Navy only one play to score. A pass play from Buchman to Whitacker covering 42 yards gave the Middies their 3rd T.D. Sivinski's kick was good.

Aerial Attack Backfires

The Kittens took to the air after the next kickoff only to have an aerial intercepted by Buchman. The Navy attack started to roll again but this time the Kitten's line held on the 30. But they promptly fumbled the ball away with Navy recovering on the Wildcat 35-yard line. A penalty and a line buck gave the Middies a first down on the 22, just as the third period ended. From there with Martin taking the ball on three successive tries, Navy scored the fourth touchdown. Sivinski's kick was good.

Blocked Kick Sets Up Score

After an exchange of punts following the kickoff, Devine's attempted pass to Bottis was intercepted by Sarris who ran it 37 yards for a score. Sivinski's kick was again good.

The final Navy touchdown came as a result of a blocked kick just as the first tally had, this [illegible] with the Blue and Gold recovering on the Villanova 33-yard line. Ed Burkholter carried 28 yards to the Villanova 5 and on the next play he went over from there for the score. Sivinski kicked his fourth straight extra point squarly through the uprights.

Scoring:

Navy	6	0	13	21	—40
Villanova	0	0	0	0	— 0

'Cats Detroit Victory

leaving Villanova out in front 14 to 6 as the half ended.

Geppi Sprints 42 Yards

The Wildcats' next tally came when Johnny Geppi dashed 42 yards to hit pay dirt climaxing an 83-yard drive. Geppi made the TD by slanting off right tackle from his half back slot and then turning on the speed which gained him the Maryland 100-yard dash record a few years ago.

Clavin's extra point try went wide but it didn't make much difference as Villanova now showed the way 20 to 6.

Villanova's next touchdown came early in the fourth period when Clavin smashed through the middle from the two after an 11-yard Geppi jaunt. This score was partly the result of a last third period break when Vince O'Sullivan recovered a fumble on the Detroit 25. From there it took only five plays to score.

From then on in it was pretty much of a see-saw tilt and the spectators who left early didn't miss much.

Good Pass Defense

The Motor City eleven was allowed only 65 yards through the air lanes and thereby kept Villanova in the nation's first five in the matter of pass defense.

The line, which played so well against Boston College, did even better last Friday night. Over half of the total rushing yardage gained by the Titans came on Gruber's 97-yard run. They kept Detroit's famed Kayserian and Kurkowski completely bottled up throughout the evening.

If the team can play in the remaining games as well as they did in Detroit, they won't have any trouble winning them all.

SPORTS CHATTER

By BILL CANINO, SPORTS EDITOR

When we walked into the office yesterday morning, we found our favorite character, the Squire, concentrating on his favorite reading material, the daily racing form. After trying to attract his attention for some 10 minutes, he looked up and said, "What's the matter with that Georgetown club? No reason why a team like Denver, which is still looking for its first win should give them so much trouble. They'll probably come to Philly all hepped up in 2 weeks and give the 'Cats more grief than Carter has liver pills. That's the way the ball bounces though. Well here's this weeks choices:

Texas A. & M.-S. M. U. . . . The Aggies are still having loads of trouble winning games but this one will be exceptionally rough. S. M. U., currently at the top of the Southwest conference, should have a real picnic with the final outcome being 40-0 (if not worse).

Army-Stanford . . . The Cadets, after an easy 49-7 win over V. P. I., will be set for all the Redshirts have to offer. This one should be a good prep for the Penn battle the following week. Army by 20 points.

Duquesne-Holy Cross . . . Both of these teams have been beaten in their last three times out. Seems as if it's just a matter of which outfit has lost to the better teams. The Dukes will give the Crusaders a bit of a tussle but won't be able to stand the grind. Holy Cross by 2 T. D.s.

Miami-Cincinnati . . . The Hurricanes were surprised by Maryland last week while the Bearcats were overpowered by Kentucky. This one can go either way so we'll flip the coin and say Miami by a score.

Detroit-Denver . . . The Pioneers upset the dope last week on us but the Titans will be on the rebound after last Friday night's affair with the Wildcats. Denver will have to be "up" again this week if they are to capture their first win in seven starts. We doubt that they can do it two weeks in a row so we'll take Detroit by at least two touchdowns.

Georgetown-N. Y. U. . . . We don't know how last weeks let down affected the Hoyas which makes this one tough. We feel that they can win by 30 points but if they think of that 10-10 tie they will have to go all out to take home the bacon. We'll take our chances and hope that Jack Haggerty will come up with the right psychology so the Hoyas by four 6 pointers.

San Francisco-Loyola . . . The Dons haven't had an easy time of it this year but here is a breather on anyone's schedule. Loyola, trounced by Santa Clara a few weeks back, will have to go a long way to do too much harm to Frisco. San Francisco by at least three touchdowns.

North Carolina State-William & Mary . . . State, toppled by Wake Forest last Saturday, will be on the rebound and even their not too strong scoring punch may start to roll. W. & M. however, has a 4-1 record in conference competition and Jack Cloud can make it tough for that big Wolfpack line. W. & M. by either two or three T.D.s.

Last week's scores:

Arkansas	28	Texas A. & M.	6
Army	49	V. P. I.	7
Ohio	14	Duquesne	13
Marylnnd	27	Miami	13
Clemson	26	B. C.	19
Kentucky	28	Cincinnati	7
Georgetown	10	Denver	10
Wake Forest	34	N. C. State	13

sympathy for such protestations.

Displeased With Records

He commented that he was also displeased with the recordings he has made of some of his work, saying that they were of mediocre quality as one could not let oneself go for fear of making a mistake. Some felt that he did rather let himself go during the readings but it was rather difficult to tell for his voice is a fragile one.

The chief effect produced in the listener was not intellectual stimulation but rather auricular titilation. Even though his thoughts are to many incomprehensible, his facility in the arrangement of words is so great that there is produced an atmosphere of haunting, rather dolorous beauty. In a way it is an effect akin to music. Listening to these old world nuances carrying mystical and obscure thoughts was for many a unique experience.

Mr. Eliot read for about an hour and then retired amidst waves of applause. Later, a few had the privilege of putting questions to Mr. Eliot, some of which he answered.

Among the other poems read by Mr. Eliot were: "Preludes" (1909-10 period), "Sweeney Among the Nightingales", "Garantia"—which is a sort of preparation for "The Wasteland", and "The Ariel Series"—which were written for rather expensive Christmas cards, and "Landscapes".

Truman Wins In Student Poll

Last Friday, the Villanovan conducted a campus poll in an attempt to determine the preference of students with regard to selection of the coming president of the United States.

The results are as follows:

Truman	43%
Dewey	39%
Wallace	4%
Undecided	14%

It is to be pointed out that the margin of victory was four per cent. This could easily be changed by the choices of the fourteen per centum who are undecided.

Only those of voting age were contacted. Some 75% indicated that they are veterans of military service. Only 55% of those polled signified that they would cast a ballot today. The remainder either failed to register or will not be in their home cities.

REGISTRAR'S LIST REVEALS ALL-TIME ENROLLMENT HIGH

Enrollment figures released by the Registrar's office indicate record-breaking totals for the 1948-49 scholastic year. The record enrollment of 2498 has been broken down to show class and school totals.

Veterans comprise more than half of the large enrollment, 1347 attending. The only specific veterans' figures available was for the freshman class, which number about 200 ex-servicemen. In 1946, veterans comprised more than 80% of the freshmen.

Breakdown

Sophomore	586
Senior	365

Breakdown as to schools shows Commerce and Finance leading in total enrollment, with Engineering not far behind, as indicated by the following figures:

Commerce and finance	970
Engineering	810
Arts	275
Science:
Biology	250
Chemistry	47

The increased enrollment is in line with the expansion program planned by the Villanova administration.

Halls Unleash Decorations; Compete For Connelly Award

Finish Decorations Thursday; Judges to Select Award Winner

Presentation of the Connelly Plaque will be made to the resident hall which puts on the finest display of decorating in conjunction with the pre-Georgetown game rally. It is a custom at Villanova to decorate the building fronts before a game with the traditional rivals. At one time the Temple game was marked by spirited pregame activities on the part of the student body, but for the past few years the Georgetown game has been the focal point.

Last week, the Spirit Committee announced plans for the decorating of halls, and several of the halls have already begun work on their themes. The decorating of the halls is also an intramural event, and points will be awarded according to the judges' scores.

Inaugurated in 1937

The award was inaugurated in 1937 by William Connelly, newly-appointed Director of Athletics. Last year, because of a tie between Fedigan and Delurey, it was necessary to award two plaques. Fedigan Hall previously won the plaque five times.

Rules and regulations:

1. No college property is to be used except what is officially issued by the maintenance office.
2. Only decorations (placards, posters) to be used. No shows, movies, or other entertainment.
3. Judges are to be selected by Student Council Spirit Committee.
4. Judging will take place on Thursday, November 11th., at 7:00 P. M.
5. All decorations are to be removed from buildings, and borrowed materials returned, by Monday evening, November 15th. at 6 P. M.

Intramural points to be awarded are:

1st place	10 points
2nd place	7 points
3rd place	5 points
4th place	4 points
5th place	3 points
6th place	2 points
7th place	1 point

Villanovan Outpolls Pollsters In Presidential Pre-Election Survey

Faces were red on all sides after the results of last Tuesday's presidential election were announced. Blushing not a little were the purveyors of the nationally-famous polls. Without exception they had predicted an overwhelming Dewey victory. Not so with the Villanovan.

In last week's issue the results of a Villanovan conducted presidential poll were published on page eight. The percentages were distributed as follows:

Dewey	39%
Undecided	14%

Splitting the undecided votes between Dewey and Truman, the final percentages are 49% for Truman and 45% for Dewey. The final national percentages were 49% and 46% respectively, and the accuracy of the survey in this case was remarkably high.

Other colleges in the area conducted similar polls and predicted overwhelming Dewey victories. One went so far as to give Truman only 15% of the popular vote.

The only other correct prediction was voiced by Washington cab and his orchestra will provide the drivers so the Villanovan joins musical background for the dance. them in taking national honors.

Schools Schedule Senior Proms

The weekend of the 20th of November will find several of the local colleges holding their annual Senior Proms. Immaculata College and Rosemont College will hold their respective Proms on Saturday evening while Chestnut Hill will hold theirs on Friday, the 19th.

These events will be the first formal dances of the season for the colleges in this area. Chestnut Hill will hold its prom in the Crystal Ballroom of the Hotel Benjamin Franklin. They will offer the music of Alec Fila, featuring Dolores O'Neill, vocalist.

Rosemont College's annual Senior Prom will be held on campus in their gym. Leo Zollo and his orchestra, who also played at their Junior Prom, last Spring has been booked again.

Immaculata will hold its Senior Prom in the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel on Saturday. Alex Bartha, and his orchestra will provide the

Curtain Rises At 8:30 P.M.; To Give Two Performances

Tonight after a month of preparatory work, Belle Masque will present its Fall production. As this year's opener the society has chosen Edmond Rostand's three-act romantic comedy "The Romancers" and, as an added feature, Lady Gregory's "Spreading the News". The latter will serve as the curtain raiser.

Student Tickets

This year the society has departed from its usual procedure of offering only a one-price ticket. A special student rate of 60c, and the general admission of 75c is being offered. Tickets are on sale on the campus, and may be purchased from members of the cast of the show, and from other members of the society.

Posters, and other forms of literature have been distributed by Robert Resnick and his publicity staff.

Authentic costumes reflect the mode of the periodic plays, and live shrubbery will be used on the set. Several of the male characters have taken fencing lessons in order to better interpret the characters which they portray. There will also be a string ensemble to add atmosphere to the wedding ceremony scene in one of the plays.

Dick Zande and Mary Doyle are seen talking over a simulated garden wall. The wall is one of the important stage settings in tonight's "Romancers".

INTER-FRAT DANCE ROUNDS OUT WEEK'S LIST OF ACTIVITIES

On Saturday evening, November 13th, the annual Inter-frat Ball will climax three days of football festivities. The pre-Georgetown game rally will highlight Thursday's activities, and on Friday evening the Wildcats will meet the Georgetown Hoyas at Shibe Park.

The Inter-frat Ball to be held in the Field House will be the culmination of the efforts of the four campus fraternal organizations, Delta Pi Epsilon, Delta Pi Mu, Phi Kappa Pi and Lamba Kappa Delta. Committees from each fraternity have been assigned certain duties such as decorating, advertising and business managing.

It is planned to divide part of the profits according to the advance sale of tickets by each fraternity.

"Red" Murphy's Villanovans will provide the music for dancing, and Marion Stodder will be featured in the vocals.

Tickets, at $2.40 per couple, tax included, may be obtained in the Pie Shop ticket booth and at the Mendel Hall information booth.

The Ball will celebrate a Villanova victory over Georgetown in a

Rally Set For Thursday; To Present Miss Villanova

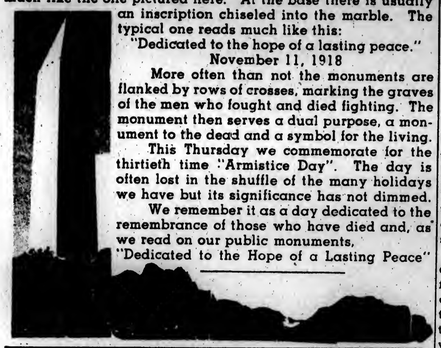
Eight o'clock has been designated as the starting time for the huge pre-Georgetown game rally, which will take place this Thursday, November 11th. Special arrangements have been made to use the Field House for the event. Students are invited to bring friends and members of their families.

Campus interest is running high as the closing days of the Mr. Villanova Contest draws near. At the moment, the burning question is the identity of Miss Villanova of 1948. The secret is being well kept, and no one has any inkling of just who the lucky lady might be.

A Thousand Expected

An estimate of the number of people expected to join in the doings was given by a student serving on the Spirit Committee, members of which are promoting the evening's fun. He stated that accomodations for more that 1000 people are being made. This number will increase due to the fact that many Villanovans are bringing dates.

A pre-rally tour of the campus by band members will rout out resident members from the various dormitories at seven-thirty. An unusually large number of dayhops signified their intention of returning to the campus on Thursday evening for the program at the Field House.



Squad To Be Present

In addition to team members, the head football coach, and assistant coaches, the center of attraction will be the one student chosen to represent the Villanova student body. His title will be Mr. Villanova of 1948 and will have been

November 11, Armistice Day

Sprinkled about our parks and cemeteries are monuments much like the one pictured here. At the base there is usually an inscription chiseled into the marble. The typical one reads much like this:

"Dedicated to the hope of a lasting peace."

November 11, 1918

More often than not the monuments are flanked by rows of crosses, marking the graves of the men who fought and died fighting. The monument then serves a dual purpose, a monument to the dead and a symbol for the living.

This Thursday we commemorate for the thirtieth time "Armistice Day". The day is often lost in the shuffle of the many holidays we have but its significance has not dimmed.

We remember it as a day dedicated to the remembrance of those who have died and, as we read on our public monuments,

"Dedicated to the Hope of a Lasting Peace"

POLITICAL AMITY

Even the shouting is over. Most of us have accepted some of the reasons advanced for last week's "political miracle", (as some call it). We are not going to attempt to advance any new ones or improve on those already offered.

The situation now is a rather delicate one. We are in troubled times. One strong consolation is the encouraging fact that a politically divided America can, after the elections are over, unite behind their President and his Congress and contribute collectively to the ideals to which we were dedicated in 1787.

With this thought in mind the unsuccessful presidential candidate, when he conveyed his congratulations to Mr. Truman, assured him, that he, personally, was behind him in helping to keep America strong and free.

The absence of violence, the good-hearted feelings of genuine sportsmanship, and the acceptance of the results without question are characteristics of a strong democratic people. As long as the people of the United States can maintain and conduct themselves in such an exemplary manner we have little cause to be concerned about our country's political, social and religious institutions.

With the world as it is today, with international powers working at cross purposes in an attempt to restore a war-stricken world to a healthy condition, the rest of the world might well look to the United States for example. Our tremendous demonstration of a free people manifesting their own convictions through the medium of the ballot should serve as a strong reminder that political strength and democratic freedom are in many respects synonomous terms.

There's Plenty Going On

This week Villanova students have not only one, but a number of opportunities, to show how much they support their school activities. Campus talent is producing work in the dramatic field which, if we judge on past performance, should be excellent.

The decorating of the various residence halls gives every individual a chance to show a little spirit. The rally on Thursday night should receive the support of everyone. The football game on Friday and the dance on Saturday add to an already full schedule.

There's plenty going on. Why not participate in some of it?

Letters.... To The Editor

A Dollar Dance

Dear Sir;

I realize that the topic which I am writing on is a little dated but it has taken me some time to check on the facts. I've been going to Villanova for 10 semesters now and up to this writing I have never yet heard or gone to a dance here on the campus for less than $2.40.

Now, this dance that the Student Council held a few weeks ago was just about the last straw. Why the tariff of $2.40? They are supposed to be our voice. If they are, how come every time they say $2.40, I say ouch!

How come a dance can't be held on the campus for less than that figure? The expenses for the dance could be held under $400, and for the Student Council dance, I think that they were probably lower. A very conservative estimate of the attendance would be 500 couples. My multiplication comes out to an even $1000. If the Council can give any good reason that they have for making 600 dollars, then I can see it, but otherwise I can't see why, we, the students, have to be milked.

The school of Journalism at Duquesne just held a Harvest Moon Dance 3 weeks ago. The price . . . $1.00. How about Villanova holding one for the same price?

Social but broke.

Chow-Line

The Editor,
Dear Sir;

Congratulations on your recent editorial with regard to "Chow-Line Buddies". It's about time that we students begin to realize that such problems can be settled with a little interest on our part.

If you see a fellow cutting in ahead of you, let him know that you disapprove. This is one way to save all of the unnecessary waiting in line.

WILL MENNEN

The New Mr. Mencken

By Bud Walsh

"That is the way the world ends,
That is the way the world ends,
Not with a bang but with a whisper."

T. S. Eliot is not unique in his posie pictures of the assumed stench that was given off by post world war one culture. We find many roots for this attitude. If we examine the philosophy of Spengler we find that during our last era we have been evolving through a Gotterdamerrung. We are on the way down. Civilization is doomed.

Resulting Trends

This attitude is reflected in writings of Lewis, Hemingway, Dos Passos and especially Mr. Van Wyck Brooks. After the last war Mr. Brooks laid the blue prints for the resulting trend of literature. He started with torch in hand, blazing the way for a new and superior form of "American Kultur."

"First of all, however, it was necessary to annihilate the present mores in order to construct more elevated ones. It seems that such men as Mencken delighted so much in munching American tradition with pearly, iconoclastic teeth that they forgot to digest them and brew a batch of more sublimated ones.

What Determines Culture

Every war has repercussions which color resulting art, philosophy and science. We have seen the previous war echo in literature. What will happen now?

Are there signs already that indicate the aftermath and the instrumentality it will use in order to voice itself? De Voto bellows against post World War I and it's literature because it set itself up as the critic and mouthpiece of contemporary culture.

Do we see this literary fallacy present today in the form of a historical fallacy? Starting with Spengler, we have a long line of theologists and historians who seem to think the world is on the way to its mammalian graveyard. Can our culture be reflected in history almost alone? Must we not view culture as a whole before we muse upon its infirmities?

It Started At Villanova

by W. CARROLL

Many well meaning college students have advanced the theory that we could successfully complete our college courses without attending classes. They argue that students who would carefully study their textbooks and answer their own questions through diligent research could pass any reasonable examination.

Historical Background

When this theory was first advanced in Ancient Greece educators began to worry. Through the years we find that some are still worrying about it. These people have good cause to be concerned because a universal acceptance of this system might well throw them out of work.

Who Started It Here?

In the latter part of the 18th century a series of small academies in a province in Germany went into the hands of receivers. The reason was the distressful fact that an insidious student by the name of Wilhelm von Kutt was circulating among these small schools, and was convincing their students that listening to their instructors rant for hours on end was nothing but a painful tradition perpetuated by materialistic scholars who wanted easy employment.

Shipped Out!

Wilhelm was quite successful until he had misfortune to be elected to act as an exchange student in a young nation across the Atlantic. At first Wilhelm thought it would provide him with an excellent opportunity to do a little missionary work in a new country.

Upon arrival in Boston he was greeted by a representative from the Department of Education. The government man made all the arrangements necessary for Wilhelm to attend a small college in Pennsylvania. It was located somewhere between Wayne and Bryn Mawr.

Spreads His Theory

Wilhelm, as would be expected, continued to spread his doctrine of "Don't attend class and still pass". In the first month of his attendance at American College, due to his influence, attendance markedly dropped off. It reacted to such proportions that the function of some of the professors became seriously impaired. The institutions administration, however, displayed some degree of Yankee ingenuity and rose to the occasion. Their solution of the problem was as clever as was Mr. von Kutt's. After the adoption of this idea, professors kept a close check on absentees. A ceiling was put on the number allowed, and, in time, von Kutt's efforts were negated.

The Axe Falls

Rebellious sympathizers who persisted in absenting themselves suffered the consequences of repeating their courses, or being dropped from the school. Wilhelm of course fell victim to this instrumentality of the magisterium.

After he left the school the students of the college factiously referred to the limit on absentees as the "Kutt System", after the person who was, in a large part, responsible for it. Today, it is generally recognized at the well known "Cut System" or "six strikes and you're out".

THE MAN IN BLACK

The rain slanting down falls on the man in black
But he walks on—head down—coat hunched about him — face hidden.
The man in black walks and waits—then steals on again.
From the past comes the sigh of a long lost train moaning in the night.
The man in black stops—a scornful leer crosses his face.
"One more passenger," he mutters.
Suddenly lightning tears the night apart—and in the blaze
The man in black stands against the sky—arms flung wide.
With a visage scarred by Hell's flames—with bitter pride he Taunts man fallen,
"Where is thy God now—fool?
Henceforth, I am thy God—
Thou my slave."
The man in black walks on.

CAT'S PAWS

Let's start this week's column with an introduction of your authors. I use that term lightly. First . . . Martin Mulkeen. Much can be said about Marty (but little printed), so we'll begin his begin at the beginning. Now, that was an intelligent remark. Well, first Marty was born. Two years later he celebrated his second birthday with a pint . . . of milk, of course (straight, too). Then, twenty years later, he grew up (physically). He startled the world at first by growing downward but (though very difficult) they discovered that they had him upside down. Any information as to his identity—(man, beast, or schmoo) will gladly be accepted.

Speaking of madness, our next case No. 2.141592 is John Vincent Metzgar. His friends call him many things and very sedom by his maiden name. We'll make it just plain John—or John's other name—Jack. Education was not an obstacle to Jack, and at the age of ten he reached childhood. Unable to keep up with kindergarten, Jack entered Villanova . . . through the front door. His achievements at Villanova may be summed up in the words of Father Touhy . . . "Why not go to Drexel?" . . .

And now—last and least—Michael Joseph Nowlan. This phenomenum of nature was a by-product of benzene and is often called the greatest living excuse for mercy-killing. Mr. Nowlan (as he is called by his closest friends) has attempted to gain prominence at Villanova. This article will go far to help him achieve this end.

Briefs (if you will pardon the expression) on other oddities around the campus. "Rumors" Schillinger whose gouges are about as useful as a worn out woodpecker in a petrified forrest, is slated to replace Doctor Gallop, who by this time must have realised that you can fool some of the people most of the time, most of the people some of the time—and poll takers all of the time. Could it have been that the human slide rule had a warped hair line or a bad case of the DT's (Dewey-Trumans) . . . "Doctor" Marshall Laferty, when questioned about his opinion of the 80th Congress, summed it up by saying—"Never before have so many owed so LITTLE to so few."

Turning to the Inter-Frat Ball, be sure to see: Vince Hanna and his Toni permanent (No, we don't mean his girl- . . . Tootale Torpey, Tantalizing Terror from Tensington tripping the light fantasic . . . Rudy Swanson jitterbugging with all the grace of a discontented cow on ball bearings who will be the feature event of the evening. The Villanovans will also be there . . . "Flash" Beretta treating his girl to retzels in the "Blue Room", as usual.

Pull up a rope and hang around 'cause we heard a story the truth of which we can not vouch for, but which we will pass along for what it is worth. Seems that a teacher entered his class one bright morning not so long ago and just to have his joke he asked that all absentees raise their hands. Now, of course, the class chuckled at this pedagogical witticism, but the howl that followed could result only from the practiced upraising of Tom Mitchell's hand.

Heard John Noone mumbling a few days ago. Creeping closer with pen and pad we recorded the mumbles as follows:

I took her to a nite club,
I took her to a show,
I took her almost everywhere
A boy and girl could go.
I took her to swell dances,
I took her out to tea,
And then suddenly I realized
That she'd been taking me.

The only man who never makes a mistake is the man who never does anything.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. George Sabo on the arrival at 8:00 P. M., October 13th of a six-pound thirteen-ounce baby girl, Carolyn.

Never, never bet with Fr. O'Leary, Professor of Math. and Irish History. Odds are against you both ways. He even picked Truman to win the election the day before the upset. Speaking of Fr. O'Leary, his students must remember that there are only two types of people in this world: the Irish and those who wish they were Irish.

In closing: if you feel overworked and desire a word of encouragement, remember that there is many a stirring passage in the cook book.

By McManus and Kaiser

The Theatre Guild production of ALLEGRO, which opened in New York a year ago, begins its road tour with its first stop in Philadelphia. Until November 27th, the Rodgers - Hammerstein opus will play at the Shubert Theatre.

ALLEGRO is unique in that it deviates from the usual style of Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein, II. The standard musical pattern of girls, lavish scenery and wandering plot is superceded by a serious plot, almost no scenery, and no chorus line. Simple scenery is achieved by the use of steroptican slides projected on a plain backdrop.

Doctor's Life

Briefly, the story is a sober chronicle of a doctor's life from birth, through childhood, his awkward college days, and concludes with the final decisions affecting his career. R and H use the idea of the Greek chorus to comment upon the action of the play.

Through the authors have avoided the usual pitfalls of musicals, Dick and Oscar have put their talents to use and enlivened the proceedings with two love songs, "So Far" and "You are never away" along with a few roof-raising chorus numbers.

Its ballet and music has been called too pretentious and gaudy to be in keeping with the simple theme and stage settings. However, it would seem that this very thing prevents the drama from being classified as a run-of-the-mill play. The balance achieved in combing the drama and music is of such calibre that this production is well worth the price of admission.

Saint Joan

The return of "Saint Joan" to the Hedgerow Theatre is part of their 25th anniversary program(but the play doesn't seem to warrant such a high place in the esteem of the players of the little theatre in Moyian.

There is a tremendous contrast in the "Saint Joan" of Shaw and that of Anderson, or of any other playwright who has chosen her as a character. Shaw's approach is not the Christian one and holds up some of the pious beliefs to reproach. His picture of the priests, and especially the Bishop of Beauvias, is one of hatefulness rather than historical reporting. He pictures Joan as being boastful and proud. This seems to be a change from the general trend of plays and books about this saintly leader of the Armies of France.

Historically, the play is somewhat unfactual. The play ends with an Epilogue in June, 1456 — 25 years after that fateful May 30, 1431, when the Maid, who saved France, died at the hands of the English. The flaw is this—Charles mentions to the ghost of Joan that he has a love affair with court-lady Agnes Sorel. This could not be. Charles' flame could not then be active since she had died five years before (1451) in the Chateau of Rheins. Shaw errs in his timing.

Dramatic Appeal

The staging and performance are in the general Hedgerow tradition —little in the way of scenery, but heavy in dramatic appeal. Particular attention should be given to A. J. Pocock who played the part of the Bishop of Beauvias. His interpretation is complete, from the meeting with the Earl of Warfick to his return from the dead in the Epilogue. His expression and delivery is one of the finest in the current production.

Jasper Deeter, cast as the Chaplain to Warwick, presented a not-too-clear picture. He is not suited to roles of this type, and it is felt that he should avoid them. The usual raft of Hedgerow players is present with the same results.

No one out-starred the other and all knew their parts and played accordingly.

THE 5TH COLUMN

By HUGH JOHNSON and HARRY JACOBS

Villa to Win by Two T. D's

(Thank you—Gallup, Roper, Crossley, Johnson, & Jacobs)

(Ed. Note—Because Georgetown game is the biggest of the year, The VILLANOVAN has sent its two "ace" reporters down to Washington to get the inside story)

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9—Here in the Capital City, the poor tired people have just about recuperated from the huge celebration for President Harry Truman. Now they are busy whipping themselves into shape for the huge Georgetown rally before the Villanova game.

Well—not all over the city. But along "P" street and all the way out on Reservoir road, the little Hoya men are on the enthusiastic alert. They all seem to have that feeling that the Philly rah-rahs are out to snatch Butch, the mascot. The campus itself, with all of its decorations, is conducive of a big Hoya upset.

Out at the crossroads beyond North East, we were lucky enough to run into a few George Washington U. boys, the Temple U. of D. C. Their opinion on the Villanova "Game of the Year" was that Georgetown doesn't have a Chinaman's chance—all of which doesn't speak too well of a Chinaman. "You can always take a lesson in underdogism from Harry & his Democrats" was our reply. The soberest of the lot was inclined to agree.

But it was back at Churchill's, the Pie Shoppe of Georgetown, that we really found out just exactly what we were looking for. First of all, the campus big wheels had themselves a little pow-wow on the kidnapping of Count Villan, our poor little Wildcat. At the informal meeting they decided that it was more trouble stealing the Count than it was worth in the joy of pulling a big publicity stunt. And besides, he ate too much.

Three milk shakes later we managed to ease over to a group discussing the coming game. It seems that most of the District newspapers are of the opinion that Coach Jack Haggerty has completely scrapped the spread formation that was so effective last year. So far this season, Haggerty's actions have borne this out.

To those who missed it in the Philly papers, Tackle John Sandusky, Jr., last week, was mentioned as one of the outstanding linemen of the week.

We hear that the die-hard Republicans from Rosemont Colege wore their black gowns to class last Tuesday. One guy called 'em fickle pickels.

Speaking of our "sister" college, the story goes that the second floor of Alumni Hall have dubbed "Cuddies" Holand—Mr. Rosemont. By that token, "Cuddles" takes over from the world renowned Ed Sullivan.

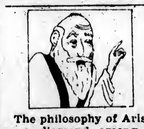
Odds & Ends

Back on the campus, The A. S. C. E. (American Society of Civil Engineers, I T'ink) had themselves a little smoker last night. Instead of initations, horseplay, and nonsence, they had a movie and later discussed the problems of making concrete. (Note: DPE)

Gerry Mauer, one of the high rankers of the outfit, has extended his invitations to all C. E.'s to join up—especially the sophomores. We highly recommend the ASCE to all interested.

Wildcat Drama



Tonight and tomorrow night, the Belle Masquers stage their first production of the season. The title, "The Romancers", makes it all sound like a deep, dramatic love story. But we managed to get a first-nighter's preview and we're convinced that Romancers, a satire on Romeo & Juliet, is well worth the money. Don't miss it.

The Turf and Tinsel, a unique thespian crowd made up of campus mohofs, started the ball rolling for this scholastic year. At a meeting last week, they named Martin Binder, Joseph Hennessy, Bob Resnick, Gene Valerio and Whitey Le Blanc to the board of directors. Trybuts for the club to be held real soon.

NOTICE—Coach Olivar

However, (and get this Coach Jordan Olivar) all this season, although they haven't used 'em yet, Georgetown has been spending almost half of their practice time on spread formation plays . . . And we might add that this week's practice is . . . secret.

Summing the whole thing up, our arch rivals from Washington are all hepped up for this game. They're going to bring their band up along with a huge freshman cheering section. They're going to bring their slightly banged up team (Conn, O'Keefe and Dolah) filled with ideas of an upset win over Villanova.

PIPE SMOKE

by VECCHIO

The philosophy of Aristotle stands as a diamond among the rubies, emeralds and pebbles of pagan thinkers. Of all the Doctors Most Holy and Doctors Most Learned, Aquinas is the only "Doctor Angelic". Mercier, Nye and Maritain have applied neo-scholasticism to the cosmological, ethical and other problems of today. Notwithstanding, I wait for them to prove that man is a social being; meanwhile, I stand put on the solitary life.

This morning when I came to school, I jokingly asked a resident student if he was ready for a test we had. He never is, but instead of his smiling, violent tears poured down his face and over my now-rheumatic right shoulder. When we finally got a miniature Boulder Dam against his eyes, he explained to me what had happened.

Last night, he finished eating at 6:30 P. M. and decided to get a lab report done, a book read, three pipefuls of tobacco smoked, studying done for the test, and then read his comic book before he went to bed at 11:00. He had started studying when a friend, a chemical engineer, wanted him to locate a book in the library—Alice in Wonderland. While he was working with his friend at the window-tables in the back racks on the lower floor, he heard his pipe sputter, and his friend started laughing; someone had spilled ink down through the opening between the wall and the floor above. He started work again when a quarter dropped through and bounced gently on his arm. Patience prevailed when some moronic student came down to claim his money. As you can imagine, my friend's shoulders aren't too broad (too much of his youth spent in a bar), but when, less than three minutes later, a barrage of grapes splashed on the book, only his friend's coolheadedness avoided a bibliographical civil war.

However, he immediately returned to his room and began to study for the test. "I was progressing rather well," he said "when about half a dozen bugles assembled in my room asking a million and three questions about every subject that the school teaches, and a few others besides. 'If A can do a job in three days and B . . . ' 'When was the War of 1812 fought?' 'When was the Magna Carta signed?' Where does the Lancaster Pike go?' Then someone decided to test the tensile strength of my bed. I heard a crash and looked up; a joint on my bed had split. Last night I slept on the floor."

As I said, Aristotle, Aquinas, Plato and Rousseau notwithstanding, I am yet to be convinced that man is a social animal. Social life is a diabolical invention intended to distract and annoy men, and eliminate peace from their lives; it is the field for wars, taxes, and mother-in-law troubles; it is the source of inky pipes and sleepless nights.

Student Council Meets In Bi-Monthly Session

Last Wednesday at the bi-monthly meeting of the Student Council the council members voted to increase the showing of the football movies, to try to stop the sale of salacious literature near campus and agreed to undertake the collecting of chapel cards themselves.

Extra Movie Showing

Due to the large number of councilmen who were absent there were few committee reports. But a motion to have a daytime showing of away football games and an additional evening showing for residents was passed.

Ed Kreig brought to the attention of the council that literature of a salacious nature is being sold in the drug store on the west edge of campus. The council appointed a three man committee to see if this literature could be removed.

Members Volunteer

On a purely voluntary basis the council members scheduled themselves for the duty of collecting chapel cards. Heretofore the Chaplain has had to get individuals for the task before Chapel each night and on Friday mornings.

gained by guessing the exact weight of Saturday's starting lineup.

The prizes to be given to the winner include the following: A date with Miss Villanova of 1948 "wherewithal" to get the gay couple into town, dinner at the most popular eating place in town, and other unannounced items.

Photo Withheld

Reporters made a determined effort to obtain a picture of the lady in question but met with little success. The only photo available is one released to the general press which appears in this issue.

It is rumored that the queen is blonde and tall. (The latter conclusion was drawn from a remark overheard to the effect that Miss Villanova would "be a big girl".)

Representatives Of NFCCS Assemble In Philadelphia

At La Salle College on Saturday, November 6th, the National Federation of Catholic College Students held a highly important meeting. The principal theme of the session was a summary and discussion of the regular duties and functions of the N. F. C. C. S. in the United States. In addition to our two regular representatives, Kevin McChesney and Dan McGrath, Tom Sullivan of the Student Council was invited to attend the convention.

The regional workshops, another demonstrative feature of the dynamic N. F. C. C. S. organization, were also discussed in the meeting particularly stressing the accomplishments of the workshops in the Philadelphia area.

Relief Drive

Emphasis was also placed upon the Relief Drive, headed at Villanova by Dan McGrath, the purpose is to aid destitute foreign students. This charity project will begin action in the very near future.

Jim Dougherty's Radio Acceptance Poll at Villanova, mentoned in a recent issue of The Villanovan, was also reported to the delegates. Student reaction to the comic programs on the air today was presented to the participants of the meeting.

Debaters To Hold Weekly Meeting

Beta Gammu, the debating society, will hold its weekly meeting on Wednesday, at 5:00 P. M., in the C&F Auditorium. Since this will be the last meeting for the month of November, all members are urged to attend. The meeting will be climaxed with a debate between teams of new members of the society on the abolition of store credit.

On October 27th, the society held its elections for the current year. Officers elected were: Nicholas Sayonaro, president, William Creamer, vice-president, Edward Connolly, treasurer, and Francis Walsh, secretary.

HOYAS HOPE TO UPSET MAIN LINERS

Billy Conn, Hoya passing ace, will be out to duplicate the feats of "Babe" Baranowski this Friday night when Georgetown invades Philly to tackle Olivarmen.

Last Minute Aerial Gives Kentuckians 13-13 Tie; Penalty Ruins Final Bid

Spotting Villanova a 13-0 lead in the first half, the Kentucky Wildcats came clawing back in the second half on a cold, rain-swept field to earn a 13-13 deadlock with the Mainliners.

George Blanda and Jim Howe pulled a Frank Merriwell for Kentucky with eight seconds of play remaining in the game. Signal caller Blanda tok a direct pass from center on his own 30, faked the ball to several teammates, and then flipped a pass to Howe who grabbed the pigskin on his own 36 and was off to the races.

After several exchanges in the first quarter Tom Chvin spied an enemy aerial at large, grabbed it on the 50, and fought his way to the Three unsuccessful line thrusts were attempted before Bill Doherty tossed a touchdown pass to Ed Berrang who made a sensational catch in the end zone by grabbing the ball just before he hit the turf. Clavin's boot for the point was good and Olivar's boys led 7-0.

55 Yd. Drive Sets Up Score

Early in the second frame "Bear" Bryant's boys marched to the Mainliners' fourteen before the parade was halted. The second Villanova tally came after several punt exchanges gave the visiting 'Cats the leather on their own 45. Johnny Geppi galloped around end to the hosts' 47 from where Doherty pitched a pass to Jake Bogan on the 34. Geppi then raced around right end and appeared to be going all the way but was pulled down from behind on the 10 yd. stripe by co-captain Harry Olinski and Wally "Wa Wa" Jones the basketball sensation from Kentucky.

D'Alonzo then plowed to the five from where Polidor cut to the right and flipped a pass to Frank Kane who gathered in the ball on the left side of the end zone. Bob Blain of Kentucky blocked what might have been the winning margin when he foiled Tom Clavin's boot for the point.

Hosts Score Early in 2nd Half

Kentucky's 'Cats began their scoring march on the opening kick-off of the second half. Starting from their 26, runs by Howe and a screen pass from Blanda to Boller put the hosts on Villanova's 30. Boller then grabbed another aerial and threaded his way to the 12 before Howe went through guard to the 1 ft. line. Boller took a handoff from Blanda and ripped off tackle for the score. The extra point attempt by Jim Brooks was blocked and the Bluegrass boys were very much in the ball game.

Drive Halted by Penalty

Neither team was able to do much the rest of the quarter with play centering around the midfield stripe until Buddy Genito fumbled a kick and Eddie Berrang recovered on "Kentucky's" 20 as the quarter ended. Villanova looked to be on the march when John Shean replaced Lou Ferry at tackle and on a special formation went downfield to receive a pass and interference was ruled which would give the visitors the ball on Kentucky's two, but a backfield motion penalty called back the play., Two plays later "Shorty" Jamerson intercepted a pass on the 5 and the Villanova drive was checked.

Georgetown Spirit High For Contest Friday At Shibe Park

The renewal of a short but very bitter rivalry will take place this Friday evening at Shibe Park when an expected crowd of 25,000 will again watch the Villanova Wildcats face the Georgetown Hoyas.

While on the basis of past performances Villanova is a strong favorite, the locals will find little solace is the pre-game predictions when they recall how close the Hoyas came to beating them last year when the Wildcats were a three-touchdown favorite. There is little doubt that the Washingtonians will be 'up' for this contest.

Campus Decorated

After tuning up with a 16-13 win over N. Y. U. last Saturday, Georgetown is in patient expectation anticipating the "Truman" they will pull on Villanova on Friday night. Since Sunday ,the college buildings have been decked with banners and posters indicating that a victory over Villanova will make things right. The Hoyas haven't had too good a time of it on the gridiron thus far this season.

Lou Surman, Georgetown punting ace, will attempt to match kicks with Villanova's A Schmid.

Starting off with a loss to Holy Cross, and another to Boston College by one touchdown (the only mutual oponent of the clashing elevens), the Hoyas went west and defeated Tulsa. Their next game resulted in a 10 to 10 tie with Denver University. After last week's win over N. Y. U. Georgetown is really going all out to rise from the doldrums of defeat and to salvage the season.

The loss of "Babe" Branowski, who gave the Wildcats a terrible time in last year's game, dealt a severe blow to the team's morale. Unfortunately for the Hoyas, he received a shoulder separation in the Boston College tussle, and is lost for the remainder of the season.

Facing the Wildcats in the guard positions will be a pair of 215-pounders, Jim Ricca and John Berger. Coach Jack Haggerty has at tackles Tom Dolan who tips the scales at 205, and George Antone who weighs 195 pounds. Holding down the ends are Al Sarnshevitz and George Benigni who measure up to an identical 6'2" and 200 lbs. Vic Banouis, another 200-pounder and brother of the former All-American Vince, holds down the pivot position.

Taking up the backfield slack that appeared when Baranowski was injured, are Tommy Graham, flashy running back from Philadelphia; Lou Surman, Hoya punter; and a bevy of sophomore recruits, including two highly-publicized Eastern schoolboy gridsters, Dick Barba and Billy Conn.

Thus, Hoya Coach, Jack Haggerty will present a formidable array, on Friday night. While the Hoyas have been using the single-wing formation so far, it is possible that they might come up with something new against Villanova. Last year, in a totally unprecedented move, the Haggertymen steped on the field and used the spread formation for the first time. It was so successful that it had the 'Cats totally confused for the entire first half.

It looks to the writer like Conn is the man to watch. A very speedy halfback, he has given every team he has faced plenty of trouble.

In case any reader is interested, the total meight of the probable starting line-up of the Georgetown team is approximately 2148 pounds.

ROSS; THOMPSON IN TIE AS SETON HALL DEFEATS CATS 27-28

In a meet held away last Saturday, the cross country team of Seton Hall shaded the Villanova squad, 27-28. The Pirate's victory came in spite of some fancy running done by both Browning Ross and George Thompson, for these boys came across the finish together to share the first place honors. This tie for winner is the first one for the Villanovans this season. Up to now Ross carried most of the scoring honors himself, having been undefeated in three starts. This record includes victories in two dual meets and one triangular meet. Thompson started the season in low gear, so to speak, but has shown that he is really in high now. George has been improving all the time and has now proved himself ready for any competition, anywhere.

Results Close

The brilliant work of the winners was not diminished by the heartbreaking one point loss, but the jubilation was tempered somewhat by the close margin. The meet, which was held on Seton Hall's Orange Mountain course, was in doubt, until the last man was across the line. According to all reports, no such doubt was on anyone's mind as to who the winners were however. Thetime for everyone was held down because of the muddy course which made everything rather slippery.

McKee Sixth

A rundown of the order of finish tells most of the story. The Hall placed three men, including their ace, Phil Stillwell, behind the victors, Ross and Thompson. They were trailed by Charlie McKee of the Wildcats. A look at the record of this season proves Charlie to be one of the most consistent scorers on the squad. He is the normal third place man on the squad and has never failed to score. Two Jerseyites followed Charlie and placed ninth and tenth for Villanova were Jim McGehrin and Jim McKenna. McKenna's placing came as a surprise to most observers as he is normally a quarter miler and had never tried his hand at the distance runs before.

This was the third loss for the 'Cats this season. Previously, they bowed to Army and New York University. In a triangular meet with Notre Dame and Navy last week, the team finished second to the harriers of Notre Dame.

IC-4A's Next Week

This meet was also the last dual contest of the season for the Blue and White squad. Next week the team travels to Van Courtland Park, New York to take part in the most important contest of the cross country season, the IC-4A championships. Here they will face such teams as Manhattan, and Army, recent winners of the Heptagonal (Ivy League) meet. Most of the country's individual stars gather here, too. Next Monday will find the Villanovan's matched up against such stellar performers as Robert Black of Rhode Island State and Horace Ashenfelter of Penn State.

Ross, Thompson Are Strong

Because of the losses suffered in dual competition, most forecasts do not rate Villanova among the leaders in team score next week. Polls can be misleading, to say the least, though; remeniber Nov. 2! In individual performances, however, Villanova should stand out. Both Ross

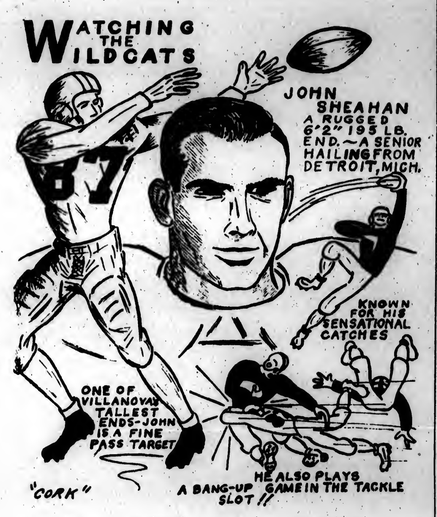
KITTENS DROP 3RD STRAIGHT; OVERRUN BY RUTGERS 39-0

Last Saturday at Rutgers Stadium in New Brunswick, N. J., the 150 pound football team went down to it's third defeat against Rutgers University by a score of 39-0.

After the first quarter the game wasn't even close, and only twice, both times in the last quarter, did the Kittens show any offensive power. Villanova had plenty of men who played good games offensively and defensively, but when it came to teamwork, the fast moving T attack of Rutgers overpowered the Kittens with little trouble.

In the first quarter Rutgers kicked off with a strong wind to their backs and stopped the 'Cats on their own 14. Charlie Battino took the ball up to the 24 yard line fumbled, and the ball was recovered by Rutgers. Momentarily, Rutgers could not get started and in three downs lost 20 yards to the then hard-charging Kittens. On the fourth down, Rutgers punted and the ball went over the goal line for a touchback.

A pass to Loughlin was incomplete and a penalty brought the ball back to the 5 where Leighton punted on second down. The wind was strong and the kick only traveled to the 22 where Rutgers took over. From there John Bernadyne slashed off tackle for twenty-two yards into pay dirt. Bill Burke then placekicked the extra point.



Rutgers second touchdown also was the result of a bad kick, this time from the Villanova 17 to the 33. With Lou Raffiani directing the T attack, Rutgers moved to the 4, where Bernadyne again slashed off tackle to score. This time, however, Burke's try for the extra point was no good.

Burke kicked off for Rutgers, and their third touchdown was set up on a fumble by Jim McCaughan on the Villanova 34. Viola and Shallcross then brought the ball up to the fifteen on four plays, from which point Lou Raffiani pulled a beautiful fake and dashed over for another score. This time Burke's try was good and at the end of the first quarter, the Kittens were trailing 20-0.

In the second quarter the Kittens had the wind at their backs, but were unable to even pick up a first down. Leighton got off a good 50 yard punt, but the second time he punted, it was only good for 30 yds. and Rutgers took over on the Villanovan 45. From the 45, Rutgers began a steady attack with Gazive, Saharko, and Shallcross carrying the ball up to the 5 where Saharko pounded through for the fourth T.D.

The third quarter was a repetition of the second only this time Rutger's drive was for 55 yards and it was Bernadyne carrying for his third TD on a seven yard sweep while Burke's try for the extra point was good.

Rutgers scored early in the fourth period when Saharko plunged over from the 2 for his second touchdown, Burke's conversion made it 39-0, the final score.

Then something happened to the Kittens and they started playing like a team. Leighton returned the kickoff to the 32, Battino passed to Jim Gallo for nine yards and then tossed another one to Jack Loughlin for a first down on the Rutgers 46. A five yard penalty for offside and a 15 yard penalty for unnecessary roughness brought the ball to the Rutgers 26. Battino passed again and this time interference was called and the Kittens had a first and goal on the five. But the attack bogged down with two losses and a 15 yard penalty against the Kittens.

After an exchange of punts and a couple of intercepted passes, the ball was on the Villanova 10 with 4 minutes remaining to play. Bill Lemmer came in at quarterback and for the second time Villanova started to move. Pacitti picked up 5, Battino passed to Lenimers for 22 and Jack Elliottt picked up 13 yards on a beautiful reverse. Battino again passed to Lehmer for 30 yards on a sensational catch but the play was nullified for off-side. The next pass was intercepted and play ended on the Villanova 45 with Rutgers in possession.

Cross Country

and Thompson who are veterans of this meet, are forces to be reckoned with in any prediction. With so many schools participating in the meet, two men placed among the leaders would be a strong factor in affecting final team standings.

Frosh Also Bow

Villanova's freshman harriers also bower to the host team. This picture was brightened somewhat by the performance of the Wildcat's Art Klepper who finished second in the junior race. Klepper, as fans remember, also took a second in last month's other freshman meet against NYU. He should provide a welcome addition to Ross and Thompson on the varsity.

Charlie Battino heaves an aerial in losing cause against Rutgers 150's as Tony Gaeta, (2nd from right), prepares to block potential Rutgers linemen.

FEDIGAN AND ALUMNI STILL UNDEFEATED; AUSTIN; DOMS WIN

The Intramural Basketball League swung into its second week of competition, as Fedigan remained unbeaten by topping Good Council, 29 to 20 and the Doms broke into the win column by edging eMndel 37 to 34. Both tilts were thrillers and produced some tense moments among players and spectators.

Fedigan, after enjoying a 21 to 7, half-time lead, saw its margin shrink to one point as they were held scoreless for the first 13 minutes of the second half by a rejuvinated Good Council team. But Fedigan rallied behind Dave Frink, as they scored 8 successive points to pull away from the outmanned squad of Fr. O'Donnell. John O'Donnel and Jim Moore led the scoring for the losers, as they each tallied 7 points. Jim Gallen and Perry Del Purgatorio handled the officiating chores.

The Doms, last season's first half champs showed great improvement as they edged Mendel 37-34. This was the second straight setback for Fr. McCarthy's Mendeleers. Captain Al O'Brien netted 13 markers to pace the Dom scoring. Hitherto unheralded, Joe Henley played a major role in the victory with deadly accuracy on set shots and played a fine floor game which time and again broke up Mendel plays. Becotte, with 5 goals of the hook-shot variety, led the losers. Mickey Frinzi, varsity halfback, and "Trailer" Sickler, of football managing fame, handled the whistles.

Barracks Lose

Austin and Alumni came through as expected with easy victories over the two Barracks teams. Fr. Kemme's basketeers, minus Capt. Joe Doris, and Jerry McCann, had little trouble in disposing of Barracks 2 & 3. With the starting five seeing only limited service, the final count read 43-33. Bill Lemmer led Austin's attack with ten points. Seman, of the Barracks continued his scoring spree as he whipped in 6 baskets and 2 foule for 14 points. Most of these came late in the contest after Austin already had decided the issue. Jack Jimison and Ed Doyle were the officials.

The cry "Break up Alumni" echoed through the gym, as Fr. McLaughlin's amazing squad hammered a hapless Barracks 1&4 team 73-31. Every members of the Alumni team broke into the scoring column with Hal Diot showing the way as he notched 18 points. Bobby Oelz gave a masterful exhibition of playmaking to a bewildered Barracks team and contributed 11 points to the rout. The only bright spot for the Barracks was the play of "Little Lou" Maiero, who sent four straight screamer shots zipping through the cords in the second half. He also consistently stole the ball but could not stem the scoring tide of Buckley, Norton, Barry, Rice, Jamison, Doyle, and Lynch. Referees were Jim Gallen and Jack Denuel.

Thursday's games have been moved up a day because of the Georgetown rally. The week's schedule follows:

Tonight

Austin vs. Barracks 1&4

Tomorrow

Doms vs. Good Council

Fedigan vs. Mendel.

Cats Kentucky Tie

Kentucky's final touchdown came as a result of the Mainliners' bid for a first down on the host 39 when D'Alonzo was nailed five yards behind the line and the hosts took over. Bob Riley and John Gattuso smothered Boller back on the 30 but on the next play the tie-making pass was thrown and Brooks converted the crucial point to tie up the game. The series between the teams now stand at 1 win for Kntucky and a tie.

SPORTS CHATTER

By BILL CANINO, SPORTS EDITOR

The Passing Parade . . . Last Thursday night the Villanova basketball team held their first pre-season scrimmage against a team which was comprised of ex-Villanova great, Joe Lord, Norm Buts, steller St. Joseph's College grad, and a few other players from the Philly district. Lord and Butz are now teammates, playing for the Reading Keys which turned gack the Philadelphia Warriors by a 61-60 score two weeks ago. The informal contest, which was witnessed by some 200 of the faithful, was won by the Blue-White 74-67. Perry Del Purgatorio led in the scoring column with a total of 22 points while Paul Arizon and Joe Hannon shared the number two spot with 14 markers each. Del, who seems to like the rough and tumble play of the pros, chalked up 20 of his points inthe last 30 minutes of play, proving that once he gets started he will be a tough man to hold down. Easily the best man on the floor though, was Butz. He only had 8 points but his backboard play was nothing short of superb. Lord, who was harrased by the fans in the opening minutes, accounted for 12 of his teams' total.

Out on a Limb . . . We've been watching the 'Cats during the past two weeks and feel that there are great things in store for us during the coming season. We would go so far as to say that when March rolls around the Severancemen will be on the long end of a 20 and 5 record. With a starting array of Arizon, Wolf, Hannon, Ricca and Sabol, the squad should prove to be one of the highest scoring clubs in the nation. Del Purgatorio and Shy Raiken give the first stringers enough support in the scoring column, while Johnny Weglicki adds defensive strength to the team. Although we don't share the opinion of those who say that we will be in one of the two national post-season tourneys there does seem to be an outside chance. We hope so but only time and games will tell.

Hats Off Department . . . We would like to extend a hand of congrats to the Intramural Committee for their fine job in setting forth the rules for decorating the residence halls. Spirit Committee Note: "The judges of the decorations shall consist of one member of the lay faculty, one member of the clergy (not residing in any residence hall) and one student from Moreau Seminary." The above was quoted from the Notre Dame Scholastic. Another rule listed as an important "don't" . . . "No hall decoration shall have as its theme any symbols or drawings representing a graveyard or cemetery . . . or any symbols or drawings relative thereto." We think the boys from Southbend have a pair of fine ideas and we are passing them on to you.

The Squire Reports:

Texas A. & M.-Rice . . . The Aggies looked strong in bowing to S. M. U. by a 20-14 count and may continue their fine play this week against their conference opponents. We still think Rice is a shade better. Rice by 6.

Army-Penn . . . The Cadets keep rolling along and we don't think the Red-Blue can stop them. Army by three or maybe four T.D.'s.

Duquesne-North Carolina State . . . State should have little trouble disposing with the hapless Dukes who lost to Holy Cross Saturday. We pick State by four 6 pointers.

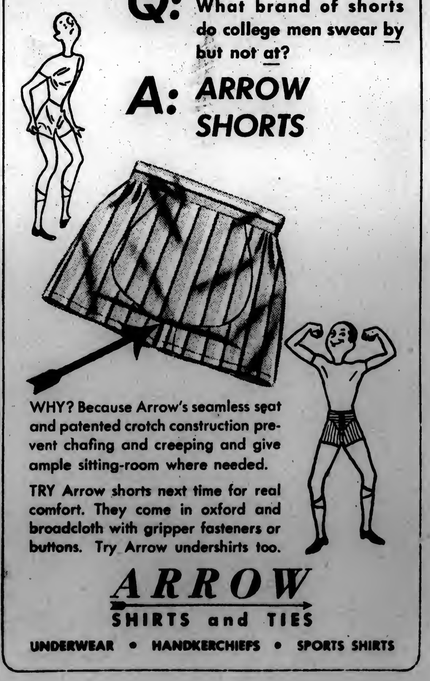
Miami-Chattanooga . . . The Hurricanes are still having their ups and downs and this one will be tough to take. We think Chattanooga is a shade better.



Kentucky-Florida . . . This should be an easy win for the Wildcats. The Gators haven't been able to do much this year and won't be able to withstand the Kentucky power. Kentucky by 14 points.

San Francisco-College of the Pacific . . . This one can go either way so with the aid of a coin we'll say the Dons by one score.

Boston College-William & Mary . . . B. C. will really have their hands full this week. Jack Cloud &Co. should be able to score at will. W. & M. by 4 touchdowns.

Editors Note: To date the Squire has a record of 20 right, 3 wrong and 1 tie.

Not Drilling For Oil But Remodeling

About a week ago, a truck pulled up to the rear of the monastery building on the campus and began to unload some heavy machinery, steel girders, and lumber. This fact drew some heavy comment from students who passed the venerable building, the home of many of our faculty.

Struck Oil?

Some Engineering students were even bold enough to venture the opinion that Villanova struck oil, and that the steel tower going up was an oil derrick, and that Petroleum Engineering was about to be added to the curriculum.

However, no such thing is happening. It was finally divulged to a Villanovan reporter that St. Thomas Monastery is to be completed according to the modified original plans. The barren and spacious fourth floor, which has heretofore served as an attic, is being remodeled into additional living quarters for faculty and visiting priests.

Eighteen Living Rooms

The original plans drawn up by Henry D. Dagit, and Sons, of Philadelphia, called for fifteen living rooms and four storage rooms. These plans have been altered so that the fourth floor will include eighteen living rooms and two small storage rooms. The firm of R. A. Pendergast, of Atlantic City, is doing the construction work on this project.

Seniors

Immaculata Host

The staff of the Immaculata College newspaper, The Immaculatan, played host to members of the Villanovan staff last week at a joint press meeting. Arrangements for the forum were made by Barbara Mullaney, editor of that college's newspaper.

After several panel discussions, refreshments were served in the college dining room. More than thirty people were in attendance.

Marines Celebrate 173rd Anniversary

Tomorrow, numerous Villanovans, veterans as well as non-veterans will pause either to look back on, or forward to, their time spent with the Marine Corps as they recall that the Corps is 173 years old. Originally authorized by Congress on November 10th, 1775, the "Soldiers of the Sea" have served this country continually on every battle front, of every war the United States has participated in, since their first day of inception.

Rebuilding their force, the "guardians of the peace" (as they are currently cast) are rapidly expanding under the direction of their nineteenth commandant, General Clifton B. Gates, U. S. M. C. Besides the 86,000 regular Marines on active duty all over the world, the corps boasts 71,000 in the Volunteer Marine Reserve, 32,000 in the Organized Marine Corps Reserve, and 6,500 in Marine Reserve Aviation. Also backink the Corps are 1,110 Regular Women Marines and 3,000 Women Marine Reserves.

Current activities of the Marine Corps include intense field maneuvers, the building-up of Marine aviation, and activating of the Marine Corps Institute.

Miss Villanova Is No Lady; She's 261-pound Grid Star

"She's Too Fat For Me" Says Winner

Nine - hundred wondering students crowded into the Field House last Thursday evening for the pre-Georgetown game rally. The high point in the evening came with the introduction of Miss Villanova of 1948, acted by 261-lb. John Sandusky, star Villanova tackle.

The secret was well kept with only three students having complete knowledge of the "queen's" identity up until five minutes before presentation time. Mr. Villanova, appearing on the stage at the same time, was Ernesto Smith.

John Sandusky, football star, as he appeared to the crowd attending the Georgetown rally.

The Long and Short

The humor of the situation was brought out with the disclosure that "Sandy" over six feet tall and reputed to be "as big as a house" completely overshadowed the diminutive Mr. Villanova, barely reaching five feet in height and weighing in at perhaps half of his "date's" poundage.

Miss Villanova, arrayed in a black lace dress borrowed from Immaculata's Cue and Curtain Society, played the part very well. When Smith, a native of Cuba, saw the size of his date, he broke out into a torrent of excited Spanish and had to be restrained from leaving the stage.

To compensate for their good-natured ribbing, the "couple" were presented with suitable gifts.

Krieg Leads Rally

Ed Krieg, Junior Class President, was the Master of Ceremonies for the evening and introduced the various speakers.

Rev. E. B. McKee, O. S. A., vice-president of the college, took time to commend the students for their fine work in decorating the halls. He also praised them for their school spirit in showing up at the huge rally.

Give Editorship Of National Paper To Local Organization

Villanova's Branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineering has been awarded the editorship of the News Letter, nation-wide Institute paper for the scholastic year of 1949-50. During the Middle Eastern District No. 2 convention held last Friday November 5th Villanova was selected to succeed Ohio State University which is editing this year's paper.

This marks the beginning of an extensive program laid out by Bud Hunter and Nick Fitti, President and Vice-President of the Society, to mold the branch into one of the most active and important ones on the East coast. Elaborate plans are being carried out to extend membership. Many field trips and speakers are scheduled for the present year.

Plan Campaign

The biggest campaign of many years is planned for the Prize Paper Competition to be held in January. The contest affords national acclaim to the winner as well as to the school he represents. Villanova boasted an honorable-award winner last year in the nation-wide contest.

Many important ideas were brought back from the recent convention at Lehigh University and will be employed in the future activities of the society, it was reported by Mr. J. B. Clothier, moderator of the campus branch.

Villanova Club To Hold Thanksgiving Dance In New York

The Villanova Club of New York has announced that a Thanksgiving Dance is to be held in New York, at the Hotel Pennsylvania, Friday evening, November 26th. Students who live in the Metropolitan area as well as Villanova alumni are invited. Bids will go on sale at $5.00 per couple.

The Villanova Club of New York is the college alumni group in the 'Big Town'. Joseph V. McCabe, '42, is President of the organization, while James E. Haipin, '42 and Warren M. Brown, '33, are the co-chairmen for the dance. The dance will be the first social event to be held by the Villanova Club this year.

To Be Here

In connection with this event Alumni Secretary William Friel, III(will introduce Messrs. McCabe and Halpin to the Villanova students from the greater New York area on November 17th in 215 Mendel Hall at 7:30 P. M. All students from that area are urged to attend so that they might learn of the activities of the New York Club.

DELUREY TAKES TOP HONORS; AUSTIN AND FEDIGAN RUN SECOND

Last Thursday at the pre-Georgetown game rally, Delurey Hall was awarded the William Connelly plaque for the best-decorated hall on campus, taking top honors with a total of 39 points. Fedigan and Austin were tied for second place with 35 points each.

It was, as Coach Jordan Olivar said, a pleasant surprise for everybody to see all the work that was accomplished by the men who worked on the decorations for each hall. With little or no decorations up in the morning, it appeared as if the decorations would be puny after the wonderful display of last year. But, by seven o'clock work had been completed and as the judges made their way around to each hall they were wonderfully surprised at the colorful decorations that had been put up.

"Aces High"

Delurey had for their theme, a card game with the motto "Trump Georgetown". Aces in all suits covered the front of the hall. A wheel of chance was mounted over the door, while cardboard players at cardboard tables decided the card games on a miniature field on the lawn before the hall. Over all was a picture of Seatback, and track star George Guida, who lives in track-filled Delurey, with the statement: "Our Ace In The Hole".

As judges Bill Friel, Jordan Olivar, Bill Connelly and Bob Whelan inspected the rest of the halls they voted that Fedigan and Austin Halls were tied for second place . Fedigan Hall had for their theme a simulated meat grinder in front of the main entrance. As improvised Georgetown players rolled down on a revolving sheet into the grinder, hot dogs were seen to come out from the under side of the grinder into the waiting mouth

Juniors, Seniors To Make Selections

Two Villanova class groups have scheduled meetings for this week. Members of the Class of '49 and the Class of '50 are concerned.

This evening, members of the Senior class will select an orchestra for their Prom in January. A committee will present a list of possible bands to the assembly. The whole group, rather than the committee alone, will decide the choice.

At the same time, class members will choose the site of their Dinner Dance. Hotels in the city have been contacted and all information will be made available to class members.

Junior Rings

On Thursday, the Juniors will gather in the C & F auditorium at 7:30 P. M. Their primary purpose will be the awarding of the contract for their class ring.

"Look" Editor To Be Speaker At Banquet

Tim Cohane, Well Known Sports Writer, Accepts Alumni Invitation; Grid Banquet to Be Held Dec. 7

A national sports figure will be the principal guest at the gridiron banquet to be held at the Warwick Hotel on Tuesday, December 7th. The secretary of the Alumni Association, Mr. William Friel, III, disclosed him to be Tim Cohane, Sports Editor of Look magazine.

The Football Banquet, the 27th such annual affair to be held, is being sponsored by the Alumni of the Philadelphia area. Members of the Wildcat football team, prominent regional coaches, and well known sports figures will also be present.

Conducts Quiz

As Editor, Mr. Cohane has charge of the entire "Look" sports section. The magazine itself, is one of the most widely read picture weeklies in the country. In each issue, a sports quiz, compiled by the editor, is featured.

Born in New Haven, Connecticut in 1912, he attended St. Thomas Preparatory School, in Hartford, and graduated from Fordham University in 1935, with a B. A. Degree.

Publicity Director

He was Fordham's publicity director, and campus correspondent for the New York Times for a number of years. Becoming associated with the World Telegram in 1940, his contacts with celebrated sports figures were many and enabled him to form lasting friendships with some of the world's great.

Mr. Cohane was appointed sports Editor for "Look" in 1944. A book written by him, "Gridiron Grenadiers", was published in 1947. The

Floor Stands Add 1200 Seats To Gym Seating Capacity

Fifteen new folding seat units, seating 1200, a new electric scoreboard, and new square glass backboards were installed within the past month in the Field House according to an announcement by Bill Connelly, Director of Athletics.

Each seating unit stands about six feet high and twenty feet long. Constructed of steel, the heavily varnished pine benches, having six rows each, will increase the seating capacity at coming games to 3,000. Each of the four units is collapsible, and when set up extends out from the gymnasium walls, and the front of the stage, about ten feet, thus surrounding the entire court. Four to five feet clearance between spectators and the playing floor is provided, leaving open spaces for an entrance. Wayne Iron Works manufactured the stands according to specifications.

New Scoreboard

The new scoreboard has a combination time device and was installed last month at the west end of the gym. This type scoreboard, made famous by the University of Indiana, was made by the Fred Medart Company of St. Louis.

The 250-pound, square, glass backboards are set on single steel standards of 750 pounds each on seven-foot pipes set into concrete. Eight men are required to dismantle them.

Previously, chairs were installed on the gym floor for games, naturally obscuring the sight of parts of the court for spectators, but with the new seating additions, vision will be aided, Mr. Connelly said. He added, that Villanova fans will appreciate the convenience of the modern scoreboard, and that the new backboards would be a boon to the players.

OFFER POSITIONS TO GRADUATING SENIORS

The Placement Office announces that job opportunities for Villanova graduates are increasing as the semester progresses. Three large corporations are scheduled to interview seniors this week.

A representative of the Philco Radio Corporation will be on the campus today, November 16th, for the purpose of interviewing job applicants with the proper background. Only those students in Electrical and Mechanical Engineering will be considered.

Mutual Life Co.

The Mutual Life Insurance Company, of New York, will send its assistant regional manager to Villanova on Thursday, November 18th. He is interested in interviewing men from the C & F school with a major in economics, any education majors, and candidates for a Bachelor of Arts Degree.

Boy Scouts

The Boy Scouts of America will attempt to fill several openings in their supervisory staff on Friday, November 20th. They are interested in the same groupings cited directly above. Openings remain in Penna., Va., Md., Del., and

News Writer Speaks To Industrial Club

Miss Eleanor Gaynon, a writer for the Philadelphia Inquirer, will address the Industrial Relations Club tonight at 7:30 P. M. in Room 215, Mendel Hall. Her topic will be "The American Newspaper Guild" stressing the labor-management viewpoint.

Miss Gaynon will speak not only as a member of the Guild but also as an officer. Her long association with the Guild will make it possible for her to acquaint the I. R. C. with the problems in her field.

The American Newspaper Guild, now affiliated with the C. I. O. was founded by Heywood Broun, a noted convert to Catholicism.

Bouquets Are In Order

Congratulations are to be given to the members of the Belle Masque Society who so successfully produced and presented two plays last week.

It was evident from the excellent performances that much effort must have been expended. This in turn, demanded a good deal of time which would otherwise be free.

Those who attended were well pleased with what they saw and heard. A near professional touch was given to several of the portrayals. Not to be forgotten are those who worked behind the scenes.

Of note is the fact that many students did not attend. In our opinion it was their loss. The Belle Masque needs student patronage. It has much to offer the general public, fine entertainment at a low price.

Of the many students registered, comparatively few found time to attend. Many had good reasons but nearby movie houses were filled with dozens of others.

These same people are the loudest in voicing the contention that "Villanova has little campus activity." Sometimes, after noticing things like this, we are inclined to agree with those who label some of us as college "boys" rather than college "men".

But as we said before, it was their loss.

Lasting Impressions

Last Thursday evening, Coach Jordan Olivar spoke to the students assembled for the pre-football game rally Coach Oliver said a few things which it would be well for us to remember.

He mentoned that his team members are not names alone when they play in other sections of the country. They represent Villanova to the outside world. They are thought of as Villanovans by those who meet them. The impressions they have made so far are lasting and, more important, good.

A like condition exists, he mentioned, for every Villanovan in all segments of his collegiate activity. He is not so much an individual as he is a product of an institution, in this case, Villanova. His conduct should be in keeping with his training, that befitting a college student, a Catholic college student.

A Novel Outlook

by
BILL CARROLL

It is common knowledge in academic circles that Europeans have a rather distorted picture of early American history. For a student touring Europe in quest of an education the historical inaccuracies supply a fund of laughs and endless argument.

O'Grady Fails

O'Grady Freygang from the University of May's Landing, N. J., recently returned from Europe and had some interesting experiences to relate on this count.

Brother Freygang's scholastic endeavor was the pursuit of an M.A. with a Major in American History. In European schools he repeatedly took courses on this subject. Tragically enough, he failed to pass one of them. One of the reasons he gives for his failing follows:

The Crossing

While he was studying at the University of Zurich, in Switzerland, he read this account of Washington's crossing the Delaware.

It seems that it was a cold Sunday afternoon at Valley Forge. In Pennsylvania at that time there was a law against dispensing alcoholic beverages on Sunday. George felt a sore need for some "anti-freeze" to dispel his cold and gloom. The only course left open to him was to cross over to New Jersey where there was no such restriction concerning the sale of "grog" on Sunday.

George left Valley Forge early in the evening and arrived at the Delaware around 11 p. m. Upon arrival he was greeted by a contingent of his own troops who (strangely enough) were entertaining thoughts kindred to those of George. Gen. Washington was a good-hearted man, and rather than reprimand his troops for atempted desertion, he cordially invited them to join him. They assented, and the party scared up a few boats and dispatched themselves post haste for Trenton.

Battle Follows

When they came upon the place they were seeking, they discovered it was occupied by a number of hostile and somewhat "incandesent" Hessians. Having traveled this far, Washington and his boys were not going to be denied. A brawl ensued in which the sober and determined Americans were victorious.

It so happened that this encounter proved to be the turning point in the Revolution and insured victory in our war for Independence. It so happened that this account didn't G-up with something that O'Grady had read before on the matter and he failed to "hit" the exam.

WOE TO CARD PLAYERS!

Editor of the "Walling Wall"
"Villanovan"
Sir:

Last week in the Pie Shop, several Soph engineering students were seen giving heck to a number of card-playing students, during the lunch hour table "grab".

The latter picked up their meld and replied in kind, leaving the engineers to eat on their feet. Being a "pinochler" myself, I can sympathize with the victims of this attack. I was once forced by Louie to give up a hundred aces and a run in diamonds so that some lunch carrying day-hops might be seated.

Now that the tempo of my religion courses has sped up however, I have to eat and run over to the library. So, I must turn on my old pasteboard pals and ask if they won't play their cards some other where, like Ford's or the sergeant-major's office in the Naval Science building.

Thanks for your anticipated cooperation.

Dear Sir:

I would like to take this opportunity to congratulate the Student Spirit committee and all the fellows who participated in the Georgetown pep rally last Thursday night. It was without a doubt one of the finest rallies that we have had in recent years.

Congratulations are also in order for all those unsung heroes who decorated the various dormatories. These fellows didn't have much time however, despite this handicap they came through in fine Villanova spirit.

While I am passing around the bouquets, I think that a few should be given to the men who worked on the interfraternity dance committees, and to those men who did such a swell job on the Belle Masque production last week.

It is these men who are reviving that "old college spirit" which everyone seems to be looking for and which very few do anything to obtain.

Keep up the good work, men.

What Happened?

by
WILLIAM CHESTER

How may the results of the last Presidential election be explained? The answers to this can best be resolved by a topical division: 1) the Republican candidates themselves, and the Republican campaign methods, 2) the Democratic candidates, and the issues dominant in their campaign.

Republican Candidates

The Republican candidates, Dewey and Warren, were Governors of populous, key states. Both were 'family men'. Both had solid records of achievement behind them: Dewey as a racket-busting New York District Attorney, and political leader of New York State; Warren was the immensely popular Governor of California—well sponsored as a coalition candidate.

These two men supposedly control states that have a total electoral vote of 72. On a basis of past elections they would therefore be intrinsically strong candidates.

Personal Qualities

However, when we come to the personal qualities of Dewey we find many apparent contradictions. Dewey had that cold, brittle charm, which, although effective in the courtroom, does not appeal to the voting masses. His eternal grin, hovering beneath a stubby mustache, gave him the visage of a river-boat gambler. This resemblance was so great than many doubted his sincerity.

Warren had a personality that should have captured the voters—but didn't—not even in his own state. It might well be that Warren suffered by association with his running-mate.

Poor Kickoff

Another basis for evaluation of the election is from the viewpoint of the Republican campaign. From the very beginning it was off to a poor start. When Dewey and Warren were nominated, John Clemens, President of the Pennsylvania Railroad, held a large party in their honor in Rosemont. This party was commented upon in most of the weekly news magazines, and must have prejudiced many voters against the Dewey aggregation.

Another factor is the manner in which Dewey conducted his campaign. Certainly he was faced with a difficult choice: should he conduct it in a forceful, slam-bang style, criticizing Truman constantly, and in general carrying the fight to his opponent, or should he stand as the all-conquering hero, receiving the applause of the incoming President.

Dewey's Tactics

Influenced by President Roosevelt's 1944 tactics of "stand-pat and ignore the other man" Dewey chose the last alternative. In his entire campaign tour, including all his numerous speeches to press and audience, he NEVER once mentioned President Truman by name, or even referred to 'my Democratic rival.' This proved to be a grievous error.

Dewey's negative tactics and their results are summarized by George A. Earle, former Democratic Governor of Pennsylvania, "The Republican Party lost the election because of overconfidence, resulting in Governor Dewey coasting along, confining himself to platitudes, ignoring issues, and NOT using that terrific punch he so magnificently demonstrated as District Attorney of New York."

Truman's Fight

The opposing basis for evaluating the election results is the manner in which President Truman campaigned, and his effective use of certain materials in his speeches. Truman fighting an uphill battle, deserves credit for the manner in which he went about his task. For one thing, Truman successfully made the charge stick that the 80th Congress was our second most deficient one. This charge was supported by the contention that it had: 1) not sponsored veterans housing, 2) not maintained a program at lowering the cost

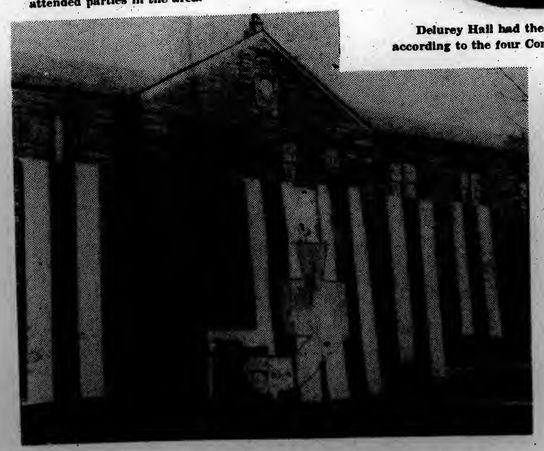
GEORGETOWN WEEK IN PICTURES

Smiling Bob Riley steps up to the microphone as Coach Olivar returns to his seat. In the background are team members, Fr. E. B. McKee and William Friel.



John Rowe, Joe Hennessey, Ted Doyle, Dick Zande and Mary Doyle are seen here as they appeared in the Belle Masque production, "The Romancers".

Capping the weekend, was the Inter-Frat ball. Following the dance, most students attended parties in the area.

All attention is focussed on the stage as students gather in the gym for the week's rally. More than 900 attended.

Delurey Hall had the winning hand last Thursday according to the four Connelly Award judges.

Tieing for second with Austin, Fedigan Hall had the above entry. Football players, Georgetown born, are tossed into the hopper, soon to enter the yawning maw of Count Villain III.

Peggy Doyle, Jack Gray, John Murphy, Bob Resnick and Jack Applegate take part in spreading a little gossip in the performance of "Spreading of the News", the curtain-riser to last week's main play.

CAT'S PAWS

The biggest event of the year since Hopalong Georgie found his other shoe occured Friday night when Villanova beat Georgetown. It was the best battle since the day John McPEAK tried to pass a chemistry test. After the game, one of our celebrated C & F men—Art Hildery—found a way to evade the after-game snack. His date led him up to a restaurant but Art said, "There's no sense going in there, there's no food left—can't you see the sign in the window—HOME COOKING."

That just goes to show, there are many pressing problems in the dry-cleaning business, but things tax our mentality too . . . for instance, the missed first down at the Kentucky game where both Wildcats found themselves playing—as Mr. L. L. McMasters (the ref) put it—"according to Southwestern Conference rules" . . . that's silly, everybody knows they only use them up in Boston.

Getting away from sports (and we use the term loosely with regard to said official) . . . we look in retrospect at the events of the Inter-Frat ball . . . The night was lovely and quite a few of the Beau Brummels caught up on their studying—Bill Bauers even finished his pump experiment—what with all the time spent in intermissions and the girl friends primping in front of the mirrors in the Retreat consulting room (sometimes deferred to as the powder room) enough man hours were wasted to play 4,302 games of pinochle, rebuild the Brooklyn Bridge, or maybe even do a problem in Differential Equations.

Don Best (who remained away from Bombay long enough to grace our Field House) stepped into the men's lounge to adjust his Adler elevators (with the pivot attachment for polka dancing) and was frightened by what he saw in the mirror . . . Don grabbed the first person to come in—which just happened to be "Tiny John" Weglicki . . . Don carried John over to the mirror and shoved his fair countenance up to the mirror and said . . . "Quick, tell me, what do you see" . . . Then with all the rapidity of an electrical engineer figuring with determinants for Fr. Klekotka, John replied, "My reflection" . . . A sigh of relief which reminded one of the sight of the face of an angel, or perhaps a man over 35 who discovered SERUTAN . . . Don said, "What a relief, for a moment I thought it was mine."

What a chance! !

You have two chances,
One of getting the germ

And if you get the germ,
You have two chances,

And if you get the disease
You have two chances,
One of dying
And one of not.
And if you die . . . Well
You still have two chances!"

Each year Philadelphians look forward to the Great Master Concerts by THE BACH FESTIVAL CHORUS. This organization performs the great choral works of the masters along with the little-known works of the same composers. The Great Masters Series fills a need in the musical life of this city.

This year, the society has chosen the Mozart "REQUIEM" as the major work of the opening concert. The Schubert "SONG OF TRIUMPH" will also be performed, scheduled for December 6th.

On March 7th. the series will continue with a performance of "STABAT MATER" by Rossini. At the same concert, works by Herbert Tilly and Frances McCollin will be performed. The Tily work is entitled "WHY DO THE NATIONS", McCollin's, "RING OUT WILD BELLS".

Traditional Closing

The series will close April 11th. with a performance of the great masterpiece the Bach "MATTHEW PASSION", and comes as an almost-traditional closing.

Arrangements for tickets for these concerts can be made through the writers of this column, who are available in the VILLANOVAN OFFICE any day at 12 noon. Prices range from $.75 to $3.90 for single tickets, and from $1.75 to $10.00 for subscription to the entire series. All performances will take place in the Academy of Music at 8:30 P. M., on Monday evenings.

By HUGH JOHNSON and HARRY JACOBS

This Friday afternoon at River Field, the Villanova 150's play their last game of the season. So far, the hapless Kittens have spent most of their short season trying to keep the opponents down to 4 or 5 touchdowns. But this game with Penn, which will drop the curtain on 150-football for the year, is one that the unsung heros are going all out for.

The whole situation looks hopeless but: Captain Bob Fitzmeyer, who has been out all season with a head injury, may be back in the lineup. To those who don't already know about the the former All-Scholastic center, the presence of Bob Fitzmeyer, and his presence alone, will wipe out any advantages Penn would naturally enjoy.

And, on top of all that, Bill Devine, Bill Leighton, and Harry Knecht, three of the big guns who helped tie the Quakers last year, will be back playing in their old slots.

Therefore, taking in to account the do-or-die spirit of the 150's in general, plus the return of the many seasoned veterans, we predict — Villanova will win by two touchdowns over Penn.

The show must go on—or so the Belle Masque believes. Last week, when all of the Field House lights went out before the big performance, ingenious John Callahan had a few of the troops bring in Harry Reckner's Crosley for the lighting effects. Hobie's next.

We hear that Jack Corr, '47, has recently joined the order of the Dominican Fathers. In his undergrad days, the former Roman Catholic High athlete played a bang-up game at second base for Villanova. Last season, under contract to the Chi. White Sox, Jack made a name for himself playing in the outfield for Oil City.

For those who wanted to know, Bob Creedon, Bill Canino, and Vince De Santis have been the winners of the Chesterfield Adds-Up Football Contest. Last week, thanks to some clod who wanted to lower his odds in winning by nicely disposing of all but 4 of the entries, there were nolo contender.

Bowl fever has broken lose all over the football world once again. (One freshman suggested that Villanova should play J. Strom Thurmond's team in the States Rights Bowl). Already, Fr. McKee has had feelers for the possibility of a New Year's Day Bowl game.

Whereas: we feel that a good bowl game would be of much interest to the students and the Wildcat fans at large, and whereas: many of the squad would like to play in another bowl game, However, there still (perhaps) are more who feel that four long months of football (not counting the spring) is enough for one man—especially if he has to miss the Christmas Season, therefore, we predict that the squad, if asked if they want to play a post season game, will—vote no.

'CATS SEEK WIN IN FINALE AT HOME

Villanova's Bill Doherty, p'aying a great game on defense, returns a Georgetown punt in the first quarter of last Friday night's contest. Doherty attempts to get away from a potential Hoya tackler as Ed Berrang throws a block on another Blue-Gray player. The 'Cats won in a landslide, 36-7.

Mainliners Trounce Hoyas In "Game Of Year" By 36-7

Playing the greatest game of his three-year college career, big Ralph Pasquariello ran through and around the Georgetown University eleven to score three touchdowns and lead the Villanova Wildcats to a 36-7 victory over Jack Haggerty's minions last Friday night before 16,500 fans in Philadelphia's Shibe Park.

Scoring once in the first period and twice in the second, the crashing fullback charged eight and three yards on line bucks and then on his final tally he plunged over right guard, cut to the sidelines and raced 50 yards into paydirt. In addition to this, "Pasky" crossed the double strip after an eleven yard plunge but the play was nullified by a Villanova penalty.

Gains 180 Yards

After the Texas A. & M. battle in which he sparked the team to a 34-14 win, Ralph was injured in the Army game. Although he continued to play despite injuries, the 225-pound powerhouse never regained the form he displayed in the opener, that is until Friday night's battle. Spreading gloom among the Hoya rooters who came to the City of Brotherly Love, expecting to see their aggregation upset the 'Cats, the Everett, Mass., Junior compiled a total of 180 yards in 21 thrusts. In the first half the G'town line gave way to his power to the tune of 158 yards on 14 attempts.

All in 1st Half

After five minutes of back and forth play the homesters took over on their own 33 yard line and it was only five plays later that Pasquariello broke through for his first six pointer. With the help of two penalties, Georgetown was able to hold back the Blue-White avalanche until midway in the second stanza when "Pasky's" three-yard drive climaxed a 36-yard series. The impetus to the drive supplied by a 14-yard Andy Gordon aerial.

In the closing minutes of the second quarter the 'Cats reached their 31 on a punt return by Bill Doherty. Four plays and two first downs later Ralph scampered into the end zone for his final touchdown.

Pasquariello now has a seasonal total of 397 yards gained in 87 tries for an average of 4.56 yards per attempt. This was an increase of 1.2 yards over his pre-game record. He has now scored nine touchdowns for his team.

Big Ralph Pasquariello, 'Cat fullback, who scored three times against Georgetown in Friday night's 36-7 win over the Hoyas.

'Cats Score Safety

In the interim, between Pasquariello's second and third touchdowns, the 'Cats added two points to their increasing lead. With a fourth down and three on the Hoya 42, Al Schmid went back ot punt. His kick traveled 39 yards and went out of bounds on the visitors' 3. Elmer Raba, playing in the tailback slot, fumbled on the first play from scrimmage, and after the pileup in the end zone was unraveled the officials ruled a safety. It was guard Paul Wintermeyer who saved the Blue and Gray from a worse fate.

The third period followed much the same pattern as the first two. The 'Cats marched down the field, and from the 13 Andy Gordon sent "Pasky" through the middle to the five. On the next play Ralph again carried but was halted on the 1. Gordon crossed up the opposition when he handed the ball to Johnny Geppi, the Baltimore, Md. halfback, who his off his own right tackle and scored. Tom Clavin kicked his fourth straight extra point and the Ollivarmen led 30-0.

Villanova's final tally came after six minutes of the final frame had passed. With the ball on the Georgetown 21-yard line Tom Clavin took a hand-off and swung wide to his right. But instead of cutting into the line, the 195-pound mauler from Brooklyn heaved a running pass to Ed Berrang who was waiting in pay-dirt land. Clavin, who relieved Pasquariello at the end of the third period, did a good job on the play which confused the G'town secondary completely. Fans might remember that this play was used with success against Kentucky the previous week when Bobby Polidor chucked a T. D. pass to "Bud" Kane after faking an end run.

Georgetown gave it a "college try" in the last quarter when, with Villanova's third and fourth team on the field, they marched almost 70 yards to score their only six-pointer. Raba received good support from the line and had plenty of time to throw long passes, to Bill Rose and Johnny Hughes, which did chew up 40 yards.

With the ball on the 'Cat 11, Barba again hit Rose who scurred for the touchdown. Dick Haesler made his only attempt of the evening a good one, and this concluded the point-making of the game.

Point for Frisco

The 'Cats must now prepare to meet the San Francisco Dons next Saturday afternoon at Shibe Park. The Mainliners will go into the contest with a record of five wins against two losses and a tie. Georgetown, on the other hand, will encounter George Washington U. next Saturday in a crosstown (Wash., D. C.) rivalry.

Ed Lanigan, Blue-White guard, played the finest game of his collegiate career last Friday.

Quarterback Andy Gordon aided in the victory by completing 6 of his 13 passes for a total of 77 yards.

BLUE-WHITE IS FAVORED OVER DONS IN SAT. TILT

150'S DROP FOURTH; GET FIRST T. D. IN LOSS TO CORNELL

The men from Cauga Waters represented by their 150 football squad, stopped off at Goodreau Stadium last Friday afternoon just long enough to give the Villanova 150's their fourth straight setback of the season by a 34-7 count. Cosing their season with this win gave Cornell's lightweight Red a tie for second place in the mythical eastern college 150 lb. league.

Epler, Bell Star

Bill Epler and Jim Bell were the big noises for the victors by virtue of the many pass gains which originated with quarterback Epler and were continually winding up with Bill. Jim Bell also proved himself most adaptable in the leather-lugging department which will be verified by the 'Cats line.

Villanova drove 67 yards at the outset of the fray to the Cornell 25 but were halted feet short of a first down and the Red and White took over. Kick exchanges whistled through the air until late in the first quarter when a poor kick by O'Brien of Villanova bounced out of bounds on the visitors' 45.

Tie at Quarter

Capitalizing on this break the New Yorkers' offense went into high gear and two minutes later they were camped on the Villanova 20 as the quarter ended in a 0-0 stalemate.

With resumption of play Jim Bell raced off tackle to the hosts's six. Frank Corrwith bulled into the line on the next play but fumbled and Mike Suarez recovered to momentarily halt Cornell. Joe Curtin went back to the goal post to kick out of danger but the pigskin sailed gracefully over his head and Cornell had a safety to its credit.

Epler to Rock Scores

On the automatic free kick following this, Cornell took the ball on their own 43 and in the space of seven plays had a touchdown which came as a result of a four yard toss to captain Ed Rock from Billy Epler after Frank Corrwith had gone wide around left end for 19 yards. Andy Anderson kicked the point and the Ithacans lead 9-0 at halftime.

Cornell added their second touchdown late in the third quarter. Epler intercepted a toss by Pacitti on the Villanovans' 37. Two runs put the leather on the 21 from where Epler passed to left end Johnny Ross for the score. Anderson again booted the point.

Kittens Score First

Villanova's first tally of the year came early in the final period when Bell kicked to the 'Cats' 40 where Frank Bottino gathered in the ball and romped to Cornell's 45. A long pass to Kelly had interference ruled on it and the ball was placed on the 28. A pass from Bottino to Groszinski was complete and another to Gallo was good for six points. Mergens kicked the 'Cats' first extra point of the season.

Cornell Catches Fire

Cornell really caught fire in the closing minutes and managed to add three more tallies to its score. The first came when Ray Philip slanted off tackle for eight yards after a 10-yd. Epler-to-Ross aerial put the ball on the eight. An intercepted pass set up another score with Reifstect going to the one after a double reverse put the leather on the 12. Epler went over for the T. D.

On Saturday afternoon the Villanova Wildcats will meet their sixth intersectional rival of the 1948 campaign when they take on the San Francisco Dons at Shibe Park. It will be the second meeting between the two clubs in the same number of years.

In the series curtain-raiser last year, the Mainliners traveled across the country and, none the better from the trip, were forced to overcome a 19-7 lead which the Dons had compiled. In the second half the 'Cats came back strong and with the aid of John Siano's toe they edged the home team in a real thriller, 21-19.

'Cats Scored First

Villanova opened its offensive play in fine fashion when, on the first play from scrimmage, Andy Gordon threw a pass to end John Sheehan who ran 50 yards for the first score of the fray. The play, in all, covered 65 yards.

The Westerners wasted little time in overcoming this deficit, though. Sparked by Joe Scott, who was a member of the Villanova All-Opponent team last year, and Joe Hail, the Dons came back to take a commanding half-time advantage.

Stage Come Back

The Blue and White came into its own in the second half and sprung shuffling Joe Rogers into the end zone from the Frisco 12. After an exchange of punts, George Schreiber, 'Cat fullback, crushed the home team's line for the final touchdown.

This year the outlook has changed somewhat. After Friday night's overwhelming win over Georgetown the Mainliners will be ready to meet the foe. The visitors, however, have had a tough time winning. This is due mainly to the change in coaching chores and the loss of such standouts as Scott and Hall.

Kuharich Takes Over

When Ed McKeever left, Joe Kuharich was left with the job of molding a team composed of Sophomores and Juniors. His greatest problem was in filling in the backfield positions.

As his starting array Kuharich will probably have Mike Davlin, a 200-pound, 6' Junior who earned a varsity letter at Notre Dame when he was only 16, and Phil Gasineau who has won 2 varsity letters while at S. F. In the tackle slots will be Don Ramitici, who at 224, is the heaviest man in the lineup, and Joe Westenkirchner, a 22-year old Senior. He also has a N. D. letter among his collections.

Paul Braunrieter and E. Kaminsky hold down the guard spots. The former is a good line-backer and has already intercepted 2 passes. At center Harry Skoog, a two-letter man, will share the burden with Tino Sabuco.

Ragan, Star Back

The backfield will have Fred Klemenok at quarter, Hal Jenson and George Buksar at halves and Rudy Ragan at full. Ragan is by far the best of the lot. A 188-pounder from Berwick, Pa., he is the hardest line-crasher and the finest line-backer on the squad.

Although our Wildcats will have the edge, we won't be able to count the Dons out until after the game. This one may prove a surprise especially if it is a duplicate of last year's battle.

Rudy Ragan, Don fullback, is a hard runner and can give the 'Cats a rough time.

HE WOULDN'T GIVE IN

Back in the summer of '45 a promising young tackle prospect left Millville, N. J. to enter Villanova. While playing at Millville High School, Bob Riley had done exceptionally well and their loss was our gain. During the war period Bob was a member of the Blue-White varsity eleven but, unlike many players of this era, he refused to make way for his post-war competition.

During the '46 and '47 seasons Bob saw little action, being overshadowed by such standouts as Bill Lillenthal and John Sandusky. This year, however, the 21-year-old heavyweight has been doing a bang-up job, and is sharing the tackle duties with the huge Sandusky.

Got Early Start

Riley, known to his friends as "Bar Bells" because of his weight-lifting talent, wasted little time in proving to the coaches and fans that he was out to make good in his final campaign. In the 34-14 victory, over Texas A. & M., Riley spent the better part of the afternoon in throwing the Aggies for long losses. Since that time his play has been constantly on the upgrade.

Last week in the 36-7 win over Georgetown, Bob reached his peak. His teammates had elected him captain of the "Game of the Year" and, as Bob predicted at the pre-game rally, he gave us a winning team. His play in the fray was exemplary and his leadership set the pace for the rest of the team.

Education Student

The 5' 9" standout is in the school of Education and is majoring in English. Now, in his last semester, Bob is doing his practice teaching at nearby Radnor High School. The affable Riley has made a hit with his pupils as was proven Thursday night at the Georgetown rally. When Bob was introduced, a cheering section from Radnor gave him their strong vocal support.

Upon graduation in February he intends to return to sunny South Jersey and begin his career as a teacher of physical education with hopes of a future in coaching. His never-say-die attitude should prove a great asset to him in the days ahead. Lots of luck from us all to Bob Riley!

INVADERS FAIL TO AROUSE AUSTINERS; RUIN DECORATIONS

Last Thursday evening, the Villanova campus was invaded by a gang of Georgetown undergrads who thought they'd better have their fun before the game because there would be little afterwards.

The attack was concentrated on the decorations around the various halls, and surprisingly enough, little or no resistance was offered by the Villanova students. In fact, a bold group of the invaders stood in front of Austin hall at 4 A. M., Friday morning, making enough noise to awaken the whole hall with their dares to "come out and fight." Not a single Austiner ventured out.

Wreck Austin Decorations

The enraged Hoyas then proceeded to smash to bits Austin's decoration of a Hoyaberger grinding apparatus. They carted away the dummies which were garbed with the clothing of several Austin residents.

Convinced that they couldn't get a rise out of Austin, the attackers then went over to Alumni Hall where they removed the huge Beat Georgetown banner which covered that hall. This they also hauled away for a souvenir.

After attacks on several other halls where they took away decorations, the invaders met in the field near the Barracks and built a fire. Freshmen going to class later on in the morning discovered the huge letter 'G' burned in the grass.

Different Last Year

It was quite a different reception that Villanovans got last year when then attacked the Georgetown campus. Every student in the Washington school turned out to guard his campus, and shaved the heads of more than one Villanova student.

The attitude of the typical Villanov aresident awakened by the racket, seemed to be "Go away and let me sleep".

Only one comment could be obtained at this writing. This was by a certain distinguished Alumni hall resident who put a sign up on the bulletin board the next morning. It read, "Where were you gobs when they took our banner."

SPORTS CHATTER

By Bill Canino, Sports Editor
Shibeshire Slants . . .

By virtue of their attack on our campus in the wee hours of the morning, the Hoyas were one up on us at game time Friday night. However, when it came to playing football the G'towners were completely outclassed. For the first time in three years of Shibe Park encounters, our Wildcats looked like the team we all knew they were. Using the entire squad in the grid classic; the Blue-White not only rolled up a 29-point victory margin, but soundly trounced the visitors statistically in nearly every department. The 'Cats added a total of 451 yards to bring their seasonal record to 1,913 for an average of 239 yards per game. Defensively our line played right up to par. The Hoyas were able to solve the forward wall for only 31 yards during the course of the evening. On pass defense the Washingtonians did better. Their 11 completions ate up 103 yards, most of the yardage came in the final period when our third and fourth stringers were defending.

Player of the Week . . . It wasn't too hard to pick out the top individualist in the Georgetown encounter. Big Ralph Pasquariello drove and swung his hips like a halfback, to three touchdowns and a grand total of 180 yards in 21 tries. Therewas no stopping this 225-pounder from Mass. There is little doubt that he wouldn't have been able to run his aggregate amount to over 300 yards had he played the full game. Not to detract from Ralph's spectacular play, we would like to tip our hat to the 35 other men who did their share in contributing to the overwhelming victory. By far, the standouts on defense were Ed Berrang, who also scored on a pass from Tom Clavin, Captain Bob Riley, Ed Lanigan, the 185-pound guard, and Steve Romanik. Lanigan spent the better part of the night being the fifth man in the G'town backfield while Romanik intercepted two Hoya aerials to bring his seasons total to five.

Billy Conn, the most-talked-of Georgetown back, was conspicuous by his absence. The "Sophomore Wonder" (it says here), was injured in practice during the week, and it wasn't decided until game time that he would be unable to see action.

The fumbled punt which was touched by a Villanova man before it rolled out of bounds caused some discussion among both players and fans. Upon investigation, however, we found that a punted ball which goes out of bounds is given to the team which did not put the ball in play. Since no Georgetown man had complete possession, the ball automatically belonged to them.

In ringing down the curtain on the 1948 edition of the Villanova-Georgetown game we have but one thing to say . . . at least their band played well.

We have been asked to tell anyone interested that there will be a chartered bus leaving Philly on Nov. 26th which will head South to Raleigh, N. C., for the N. C. State game. The bus will return after the game. Anyone interested may contact Tom Mantini or Rom Nardi. The tariff . . . $12.25.

Aside to the Dayhops . . . We have been assured by Father Dunne and his staff that the Dayhop I. M. league will begin as near in the future as possible. Games will probably be played on Tues. and Thurs. afternoon between one and three P. M. Arrangements are also being made to have a semi-final and final playoff between the victors in the resident and daphop leagues.

EDITORS NOTE: After a poor week, (he had two wrong, and a tie, in seven predictions), our friend, the Squire is nowhere to be found. It is hoped that next week he will again resume his prognostications. Record to Date: 24 right, 5 wrong, 2 ties.

The intramural hoopsters dug into the third week of battle with plenty of blazing-hot action. The Alumni quintet stands alone as the only unbeaten team in the circuit. They continued their winning ways by blasting the Barracks 2 & 3 team to the tune of 79-44. This was due mainly to the superb ball handling of Hal Diot, the league's most adept basketeer. Hal racked up a neat 25 points. Runnerup to Diot for the winners was "Buckett" Buckley who chalked up 15 markers.

The first half of the fray was a terrific episode in intramural ball. The Barracksters, by far the underdogs, gave a surprising bid for victory and at one time led the tilt with a 20-16 count. Dark horse Jack McGlinn showed amazing skill scoring the sum of seven field goals and holding top scoring honors for the losers. Joe Seaman turned in another feature performance by netting 12 points and playing a whale of a defensive game. Whistle blowers in this presentation were Mickey Friml and Jim Gallen.

Austin topped the other set of Barrackmen after an evenly matched scrap with the final score being 49-39. Bill Lemmer, Austin's big gun, dropped an even 14 points through the iron circle thus becoming high scorer for the winner.

Proving themselves to be worthy opponents, the Barracks 1 & 4 team were possible winners almost to the very end. Top scoring laurels go to a certain Mr. Tom Flinn who sent 17 points whistling through the strings. Bob Madonia backed him up with four field goals and two foul shots. The officials for this whirl were the Messrs. Behrans and Hollands.

In the closest game of this year's intramural Good Counsel eked out a 32-31 victory over the Doms. Bill Weber and Moore were the big guns for Good Counsel garnering 17 points between themselves. Bob Knecht's 11 points were high for the Doms. The losers were unable to maintain their five point lead after the score read 17-12 in their favor at the end of the half. Gallen and Del Purgatorio called the fouls.

Led by Altman and Becote who notched 11 and 8 points respectively, Mendel smothered Fedigan 36-16. After holding a 15-12 lead at the half, the boys from Mendel went to town in the third and fourth frames by scoring 21 points while limiting Fedigan to 4. Steinke and Dave Frink divided 14 points for the losers. Bill Canino and Jim Gallen handled the referee chores.

of a hungry wildcat. Blue and white striped banners decorated the front of the building while music echoed from inside.

Austin featured the "Hoyerberger Hearth" with a bar on one side of the entrance from which bartender Whimpy smiled. On the other side was a large square meat grinder into which was being forced the body of a Georgetown player.

Good Counsel Hall was 4th with 28 points. Class flags hung from the side of the building with pennants lights, and the statement that this was the "Victory Year".

Barracks 1 took 5th place with 25 points, and theirs was a circus motif with large color-paintings of Africans and clowns, bordered with colored lights. Barracks 2 received 20 points and 6th place. On their roof was a simulated football field with a paper cat and a dog about to tear into each other. Colored lights hung from the side of the building and white lights were displayed from each window.

O'Dwyer Hall was next with the theme "Villanova Dog Roast". And upon their porch roof a Villanova player was in the act of roasting the Georgetown dog over a cardboard firepiace. Alumni sported three large drawings, two of which were depictions of the game, while Mendel Hall took to decorating the Engineers "swimming pool" between Mendel and the Chemical Engineering building with a sunken vessel known as "Georgetown". Barracks 3 used beds upon their roof for a dormitory effect with balloons and streamers with the statement, "Put the Hoyas to sleep".

The decorations as a group and individually added a great deal to the pre-game spirit and were a credit to the men who worked to have them finished by last Thursday evening, said Fr. Dunne.

ARTS MEN LAY PLANS FOR FIELD TRIPS

On Thursday evening, the Delta Pi Mu Arts Fraternity met in the Blue Room of the Field House for its second monthly meeting. Some eighty members attended, and accepted the proposal, that the fraternity attend the seven o'clock Mass of the second Wednesday of every month.

Further legislation provided for the organization of four groups to participate in field trips to various museums and art galleries. Two of the groups have already begun functioning.

Following the business portion of the meeting, the fraternity was addressed by one of its more prominent members, Eamon Walsh. Walsh, a senior in the Arts School, and a qualified critic of art, gave his opinions on many basic theories and problems of art. After his talk, refreshments were served, and cigarettes were distributed by the Chesterfield men on the campus, Frank Guzikowski and Hugh Johnson. During the smoker, tickets to "Anne of a Thousand Days", a Maxwell Anderson play starring Rex Harrison, were raffled off.

dent. They were brought to the attention of the Council at the next meeting and were acted upon. We are happy to report that both matters received immediate attention and we were able to initiate weekly showings of football movies. The matter of a holiday on Election Day was submitted to the College authorities for their consideration.

Know Representatives

But perhaps we should consider the shortness of memory on the part of some students and make allowances for it. Perhaps the Student Council itself should make greater efforts to bring its members before the entire student community. Or perhaps the "Villanovan" which is represented by you on the Council could aid us in reminding the students who their elected representatives are! Rest assured that we will make every effort to effect this objective and I feel sure that you, too, will be able to arrange for cooperation in this regard. We want every student to know who the representatives are and to go directly to them with any of their suggestions or problems.

currence. In your issue of November 9th, an anonymous letter appeared berating the Student Council for charging $2.40 for admission to the "Autumn Hop", held last October 2nd. First off, let me inform "Social but broke" and all other interested parties, that the profit on that dance was in the neighborhood of $650 dollars, the exact amount and full report was presented at a meeting and is a matter of public record in the minutes. That money was used to re-instate an almost non-existent Student Council Fund. This fund enables the Student Council to perform the functions necessary and incumbent upon it without appealing to the students for contributions or levying an assessment. Such items as the various rallies and gatherings sponsored by the council, as well as the ordinary small expenses of the organization are financed from this fund. Any residue in this account after these expenses may be spent on projects for the benefit of the entire student body. Incidentally monthly reports of income and expenses are rendered at the meetings of the Student Council, which I repeat are open to all students.

Other Dances

As for the other dances held on campus, they are sponsored by individual classes or by co-related groups, i.e., Inter-fraternity Ball. The proceeds of these dances go directly to the individuals concerned. And if my memory does not fail me, there was a dance held last spring for student activities, and the admission was $1 plus tax. The money from this dance was used to cover extra-ordinary student activities, expenses of delegates to student conventions, etc. A full report of income and expense for this dance is also on record as well as the detail distribution of profits.

Thanks

I wish to express my sincere thanks to "Social but broke" for presenting his opinions on this matter and can assure him and any one else who feels the same, that the reduced rate for the next will receive very serious consideration. I also hope that his apparent Student Council Dance, March 17th., school spirit is sufficient for him If any student is unable to get satisfaction from his representative, he has immediate recourse to the Moderator of the Student Council, Father McLaughlin, who has an office in Room 221, Mendel Hall. and, of course, all regular Student Council meetings are open to the public. In fact the students, who elect the Student Council, are urged to attend.

But, now to a more recent occurrence to drop his cloak of anonymity in the pseudonym, and to contact his Student Council representative, or me personally, in an effort to present any further suggestions or gripes. That offer is open to all students.

Sincerely yours,
THOMAS R. SULLIVAN,
Chairman.

Olivar Praises Team

Coach Jordan Olivar was greeted with a rousing round of applause when introduced to the students. Speaking on a more serious note, he told the students what they could expect the next day—a hard-fought battle ending in a decided Villanova victory. He pointed out that the Wildcats stood very high nationally as a football team, ranking among the best teams in offense and defense.

Riley Inspires Students

Bob Riley, team captain for the game, rounded out the list of speakers with a few words which had the rafters ringing with applause.

Also taking part in the program were members of the squad, the band, under the leadership of Mr. Teel, and cheerleaders. Chairman of the Spirit Committee was Roland Marshall. Student Council members assisting him were John Holland, Paul Davis, and Frank Guzikowski.

Having vilified the Republican Congress, he went on to intimidate the voter, by reminding him of the last depression, and laying its entire cause to the Republican Party. By these tactics, carried on almost single-handed, Truman not only succeeded in being elected President, but just as important he had succeeded in getting a Democratic House and Senate.

But perhaps the most accurate sumation of the elections may be attributed to Mr. Manly of the Political Science Department, "Dewey won in the Polls, but Truman won in a walk."

INTER-FRAT DANCE CLIMAXES WEEKEND

Saturday night's InterFrat Ball was another social success for this season with more than 500 couples filling the Field House. The Sadie Hawkins theme was a surprise which added to the gayety and informality of the affair. Characters from the famous Al Capp cartoon adorned the walls, while the ever-present "schmoos" lent an amusing touch. The decoration of the hall was the work of the Phi Kappa Pi fraternity, of the Engineering school.

"Red" Murphy's Villanovans provided music for the throng with Marion Stodder entertaining with her songs.

The dance was the climax of three days festivities centered around the traditional Georgetown game.

Corrective Speech Program Added To School Curriculum

The office of the Dean announced today that remedial work in the field of Speech and Oral Reading will be the object of a course recently introduced into the curriculum here. The Clinic is to be conducted by Mr. Joseph T. Jonas, faculty member, of the English Department.

Need Felt

Rev. J. I. Boyle, O.S.A., stated that, "Villanova, like all other institutions of learning, has for a long time realized the urgent need for remedial work in this field."

The most common defects, according to Mr. Jonas, supervisor of the classes, are: breathiness, nasality, stuttering, stammering, defective phonation, and foreign accent. He mentioned that most of these defects can be partially or completely cured by the use of proper drills and exercises, in which the Clinic will provide direction. Oral reading will be a major part of the program.

Non-Credit Course

A non-credit course, the program will be conducted for one hour each week. At present, interested students are meeting in Room 202, Belle Aire Hall, every Wednesday at 1 P. M. Those students unable to be present at that hour are urged to contact Mr. Jonas in person at his office in Room 203, Belle Aire Hall to arrange a meeting time.

Well qualified to direct the Clinic, Mr. Jonas has had over thirty-three years experience in the field of speech.

SENIORS NAME LANIN TO PLAY FOR COMING PROM: SOCIETY BAND

Select Stephen Girard Hotel as Site for Dinner-Dance

Meeting last week, the Class of '49 selected Howard Lanin and his orchestra to provide the music for the Senior Prom The date of the affair, as set at a previous meeting, is January 14, 1948.

At the same time, the group laid plans for their coming Dinner Dance, to take place on the evening following the above event. The Stephen Girard Hotel, 21st and Chestnut Streets was chosen as the site of the gala program, the last formally sponsored by their class.

Asks Cooperation

Planning a Senior Week "to outdo our highly successful efforts of last year's Junior Week", the class president, George Guida, asked the class to cooperate to the utmost with Junior Prom Chairman, Robert Stoelker. His chief function will be the coordination and overall direction of the various committees handling the details of the dance.

Gene Kelly and Jack McCarthy, share the chairman's seat for the Dinner Dance. Extensive groundwork was done by a committee under the direction of Joseph Healy in the selection of a suitable site. Eleven central city hotels were contracted with subsequent inspection of facilities.

In announcing the event, Rev. George McLaughlin, O.S.A., stated that the program will be sponsored by the Student Council. The principal speakers will be the President, and the Dean, Rev. Edward M. Dwyer, O.S.A. The texts of their speeches have not yet been disclosed, but it is expected that both will give a resume of the first quarter's activities.

Third Time

This is the third such convocation called together since the end of the war. The previous two were called in the fall and spring of the last school year.

It was also made known that this occasion will be taken to honor outstanding Villanova students. The names of those to be so singled out have not been revealed.

"Villanova Engineer" Revived; Editor Is Chosen By Staff

The Villanova Engineer, the School of Technology publication, has been revived under the editorship of Joseph Roarty, Junior II, Mechanical Engineering student. James A. Drobile and Gene Valerio were chosen Business Manager and Circulation Manager, respectively, at a meeting held last Friday, November 12th., by Rev. John J. Vrana, O. S. A., the faculty moderator.

Tentative date for the first edition is February 1, 1949. After extensive preparation by Father Vrana the magazine has been reactivated after a lapse of four years, the last issue being September, 1944.

The engineering periodical will feature interviews with some of the leading engineers and industrial leaders in the East, flanked by an interesting Alumni column, and exchanges with other engineering publications, faculty biographies, organization reviews, including the four societies, and the Phi Kappa Pi engineering fraternity.

Joe Roarty, editor-in-chief, is a West Catholic graduate, who served with the 2nd Regiment of the 5th Infantry Division in the European theater. Upon his return to the states he was assigned to edit

Seventeen Gain National Recognition

Students Named To College 'Who's Who'

The Office of the Registrar revealed today that seventeen Villanova students have been named to membership in the 1948-1949 edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges".

Students are nominated annually by approximately 600 colleges and universities throughout the United States. The number accepted comes to less than 6000, alloting each college and university an average of 10 nominees for the honor each year.

Collegiate nominating committees are instructed to consider only those students who are outstanding scholastically, yet maintain a high degree of leadership and participation in extra-curricular activities. Cooperation, general citizenship and promise of future usefulness are other determining factors.

The organization awards certificates to all its members, these being presented on occasions determined by officers of each school. As an adjunct to the honor program, it conducts a placement service through which members may be recommended to employers, and others. It is significant that a great percentage of past nominees have been placed in outstanding positions

Unable to be present were George Guida, George Sabo, and Eamon Walsh.

Formal Inspection Of Navy Unit Held

Last Tuesday marked the last outdoor drill of the NROTC Battalion for the current year. Future drill periods on Tuesday afternoons will be held indoors, and will be devoted to instruction and training in the functions and uses of various naval apparatus.

During the drill last week, the battalion was inspected by Capt. T. C. Thomas, USN, Professor of Naval Science, Capt. H. R. Stevens, USN, Director of Training of the Fourth Naval District, and Comdr. F. J. Ilsemann, USN, of the Inspector-General Department of the Fourth Naval District. Following the Inspection, the battalion was reviewed by Capts. Thomas and Stevens, Cmdr. Ilsemann, and Frs. McKee and McCarthy.

Council Allocates Funds, Undertakes Christmas Program

On Wednesday evening, November 17th., the Student Council held its regular bi-monthly meeting. After a special closed session, the Council proceeded with the usual open meeting.

Reports of the various committees were heard and approved with special commendation being given the Spirit Committee for its fine work in promoting the pre-Georgetown game rally.

A committee in charge of investigating the sale of questionable literature near the campus reported that full cooperation was promised and that a list of approved magazines would be used as an index for future magazine purchases.

The Finance committee was authorized to allocate funds for the renting of a bus which would be used to take the Council members to a concert to be held on Sunday afternoon.

THANKS-GIVING

It is not infrequent that we Americans lose contact with the real meaning of things. Our life is, without a doubt, the most active that is lived by any one group of people on earth. In all this rush, we oftentimes lose sight of the principles underlying many of the things that we live most for.

One of these is Thanksgiving, as we might more correctly say, Thanks-Giving. The custom originated years ago. At least we learn as much from our history books. But its basis should be our chief interest.

We admit that we do have many troubles. The plight of each one of us seems worse than that of the next fellow. Upon a little reflection, however, these problems soon resolve themselves. In the final analysis, we do have a lot to be grateful for. We can really make it a Thanks-Giving Day in addition to a Thanksgiving holiday.

DO UNTO OTHERS AS..

Looking about we can see that much has been, and is being, done in supplying conveniences for Villanovans. It is a slow process, necessarily. New buildings have been constructed, roads widened, buildings painted, piping systems replaced with new and durable materiel, electrical systems improved or replaced, cafeteria utensils provided, and so on.

It seems to us at least, that this work naturally mounts in costs. Even now work is being rushed to completion on many of these features, before winter sets in. The responsibility of the student is clear: Eliminate abuse!

Not the least of the fault lies in those strong-backed individuals who hold free-for-alls in the rooms and corridors, breaking furniture and laughing it off. Kicking in a door is hardly the way to show one's impatience, especially with a key in his pocket.

The knives, forks, spoons, dishes, cups, salt, pepper, and sugar, shakers in the several hundred student-rooms on campus would comfortably stock a medium-sized hotel. "One more won't hurt", is too often the attitude.

With the widening of the roads, it is hoped that motor vehicles will keep to the road and not make their own detours.

"Do unto others as you would have others do unto you."

Truth Is Where You Find It

by John Stanley

Integrity is the reason for attending a Catholic college, not integrity in the limited sense, of having sufficient will-power to keep one's hand out of the till, or speaking the truth when it is difficult to do so; that should be taken for granted; but integrity in the sense of wholeness, oneness, unity. Only in the Catholic college is it possible to develop the whole man because only in the Catholic college is the pursuit of the various disciplines of study not considered an end in itself.

In the Catholic tradition, literature, science, history, and the others are considered to be only propaedeutic to theology. Usually not theology in its formal meaning, to be sure, but theology in the sense of learning about the Creator, the Savior, and the Sanctifier. To know, and so to love, and therefore want to serve the Trinity is our purpose here on earth. This profound truth was learned by most of us at the age of seven. It is a truth, however, that is easily forgotten; it is a truth that has been widely rejected.

Secularists do not accept this truth. Secularists, who wield the greatest influence in non-Catholic education, believe it sufficient that a man be learned in his field of endeavor, that he be conscientious in performing his duties as a citizen, that he consider his fellow man in his pursuit of happiness, and so forth. They do not mind one practicing his religion, they may even encourage it, but they maintain that the practice of religion is a personal, separated activity.

It is good to study the classics, they will say, it is good to play tennis, it is good to go to church, it is good to go to the theater, but all of these are separated activities and have no common ultimate goal. They cannot see that all these activities have but one end, and that end is the knowledge, love, and glorification of Christ. The non-Catholic college is homocentric while it should be Christocentric; this homocentricity breeds an egocentricity that has been leading the world into confusion and ruin.

It is only the college which operates in the Catholic tradition which can train intellectual leaders who will keep the world from dis-integrating. It is only the college which keeps Christ Almighty as its centre and end that can educate the whole man; that can produce the man of real integrity. It is only in the Catholic college that truth can be found, the whole truth that makes a balanced man. Any synthesis of study which does not give a proper place to God is unbalanced, incomplete, and hence cannot be considered as giving the whole truth.

SEVEN STORY MOUNTAIN
BY THOMAS MERTON

It was inevitable that Thomas Merton's Seven Story Mountain should be compared to St. Augustine's Confessions, for there is a striking similarity in the lives of these two men of God. Of course, the great Bishop of Hippo died many centuries ago and Thomas Merton is still very much alive. He is living a tremendously full life in a Trappist Monastery. For him it is the best possible life, for he feels that he is getting as close to God as one can—this side of Paradise.

It was not always so with Thomas Merton. Before his conversion from agnosticism he indulged himself in all the pleasures of our culture. He read what he pleased, drank his fill, and played around pretty much as he wanted to during the time of his education at Cambridge and Columbia Universities. He was the typical "modern" young man—even as St. Augustine was — "getting all he could out of life". He was free — yet shackled by his desires; now he is confined to the bounderies of a monastery and absolutely subject to the discipline of the Cistercian rule and the orders of his abbott, and yet he is freer than ever before. He is free to do the only important thing for him—or for any of us—to love God,to get close to Him, and to receive His Grace.

All of which may convey the idea that book is filled with saccherine pietism; nothing could be further from the truth. It is written with vigour, with originality, with humor, and with deep spiritual insight. It is the tale of one product-of-the-twenteth-century and his search for Truth and Happiness, and how he found them.

SYMPATHY

The Villanovan extends its sympathy and that of the student body to John O'Donnell, Junior 1, Engineer on the death of his father. Mass will be said in the College chapel for the repose of his soul.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Alert Freshmen

Editor-in-Chief
Villanovan,
Villanova, Pa.

Dear Sir:

In regard to your recent article concerning the invading of the campus by the undergrads from Georgetown, I think it should be gnown that the lackadaisical attitude shown by the upper classmen was not portrayed by the Freshmen.

Beauty Sleep

I don't think many people know, especially the upper classmen busily engaged in their beauty sleep, that the Freshmen patrolled the campus from 8 o'clock till about 3 o'clock, and, also kept an all night vigil at the farm, the home of Count Villain III.

Another thing, I can assure anybody, hnd a group from Georgetown made any racket around or near the Barracks, there would have been a goodly number out to defend their colors

Very truly yours,

Speaker Discusses Labor Unions

"It isn't the same old newspaper game," said Miss Eleanor Gaynon, of the Philadelphia Inquirer, and the American Newspaper Guild, last Wednesday, in a speech before fifty members of the Industrial Relations Club.

She spoke on an important topic and later discussed it with her audience. The topic was "Labor Unions and the Newspaper Guild". Rev. William J. Gordon, O. S. A., moderator of the club, introduced Miss Gaynon and spoke of her accomplishments.

The guest-speaker explained how the 14,200,000 members of labor unions in this country are helping to raise living and working conditions of the people. Writer of "How To Do It", a column appearing daily in the Inquirer, she endeavored to correct the mistaken impression many people have that a strike is called whenever there is the slightest disagreement. Rather, she explained, a strike is nothing but a last-ditch resort, when everything else has failed. Labor-management boards are in contact, smoothing out the many wrinkles that occur in working conditions that never appear in the newspapers.

CAT'S PAWS

by Nowlan, Metzger and Mulkeen

You can dig out the back issues of the Villanovan, now that the mid-term exams are finished (and so are we). Now, if we can only hold out till the Thanksgiving holidays . . . comes the Revolution . . . no more exams, but many more holidays . . .

Pre-Meds Wail
If I could just eliminate
The urge ever to procrastinate
I'd enjoy life and laugh at fate
'Cause then I'd know I'd graduate
Passing fancies—

Jules Kurtz, the mad genius of C & F, passed Algebra. But many others didn't do so well in Heat Power, we understand . . . aside . . . for all those interested the percentage quality of steam in the last one was 88. Now how did they get that? . . .

Charlie Jamerson relates:
Last night I held a hand,
So dainty and so sweet,
I thought my heart would surely burst,
So wildly did it beat.
No other hand e're held so tight
Could greater gladness bring
Than the lovely hand I held last night,
Four aces and a king.
On the social side—

The Doyle girls from Rosemont had themselves another big time with Villanova men the weekend before last. The girls who were photographed by Dan Haflinger for the Belle Masque posters a few weeks back, witnessed the Georgetown slaughter, Mary (the "Mayor") with Bill Gerald, and Peg with Ty Reilly. Ty was supplanted by Bill Fleming, Arts Junior, for the Inter-Frat dance, next nite. Ho hum, what fun to be in such demand.

From Pete Raffa . . .
I think that I shall never see
A grade as lovely as a "B".
A "B" whose soft round form is pressed
Upon the records of the blest;
A "D" comes easily, and yet
It's not so easy to forget
"D's" are made by fools like me
But only grinds can make a "B".

Did you ever notice out at the football games how all the fellows who see each other eight hours a day, six days a week, from the beginning of autumn have such an exciting time falling over themselves hailing their buddies. For instance Vladimir Glockenspiel Bowman crawled over ten students (pardon the expression) escaping falling through the stands to say "Hi" to Jack Applegate. Something like the apes who climbed the curtains to borrow decorations from the Inter-Frat Ball. Bob Eckenrode's girl wanted the center piece (Old Man Moe's cave, six by six by seven), but it just wouldn't fit under his coat. Comes that famous revolution, the girls do the climbing and we get the decorations. Hey what?

End of the month "so-lows"—
On the cold gray stones, Oh, Sea.
But I'll bet you could break for forty years
And not be as broke as me.
Then there's the one about the sculptor who fell in the mud puddle. The dirty chiseler!

To Villan: With Love; Butch

Georgetown doesn't have a football team that can beat Villanova or even come close to doing so but they do have a dog that can write. The letter reproduced below was received too late for publication in last week's paper but we would like you to know that Butch and Gallup are now in the same doghouse.

Oh well! Some schools have winning football teams and some schools specialize in talking dogs.

Dear Count Villain III,

Very sorry you weren't able to enjoy the traditional Georgetown hospitality this year. Our campus has been very lonesome without you and the boys!

Looking forward to our date Friday night. Will you furnish the usual fire-plug, or shall I?

You'll need more than sharp claws this time. Love and bow-wows and a woof-woof to you, old cat.

As Ever,

by Tom Galoway

A little chat with the Almighty seems to do a fellow a lot of good. No matter what time of the day or night, no matter how inclement the weather, no matter how troublesome your troubles may be there is always one door that is never closed to you, one ear that will not turn from your worries and problems.

It is surprising that so few people rely on this life-long friend when so many know of him. In my rush to class one day I took a moment to walk into chapel—it was like stepping out of this world. The very silence was friendly. Suddenly I forgot examinations, professors, books, and everything that weighed on my mind only a few short minutes before I felt like the soldier that returned to wife and child after leaving the battlefields and the torn bodies of his friends.

In that indescribably beautiful atmosphere new worlds were opened to me, new inspiration flooded my mind, a divine plasma seemed to rush through the veins of my soul, and my whole being took on the vitality of an old man's dreams. It was with great regret that I left the place that had so enlivened me but a few slight minutes.

When the worries are thick
And the moments are short,
When you're mentally sick
And tired of sport,
When you feel you could cry
And your pride tells you, "stop!",
And your brain tells you, "Die!"—
Come visit God.....

By HUGH JOHNSON and HARRY JACOBS

Every year about this time, the experts start batting their heads against the sides of the grandstands in hopes of coming up with an acceptable "All-American Team." Now we know many will accuse us of having batted our heads against Goodreau Stadium gy the time they get finished reading this. But criticism or no, we believe that our 1948 All-American team is a fair representaiton of the football world.

Doherty at Quarter

First of all, we nominate Villanova's Bill Doherty as the quarterback and captain of the squad. We don't intend to defend our choice because anybody who has seen this 165-lb miracle-man at work will agree with us. But for the benefit of those who may not have seen any of our games this year, Villanova's quarterback is an unqualified triple-threat man. He can run the team from the "T", he can pass, he can kick, and when the team was pressed for halfbacks earlier in the season, Mr. Versatility showed that he could run with the ball.

To save our dear little necks, we have eliminated all other members of the Villanova squad in the comprising of the team. However, we are so biased about Doherty that we could't possibly exclude him.

Method of Selection

To our method of selection, there is nothing scientific. Some of those mentioned, such as Elmer Sitko, Johnny Rauch, Odell Stautzenberger, Barney Poole, Bob Cain, Bill McPeak, etc., we have actually seen play. Others, thanks to television and the movies we have seen second hand. From the Far West, we have little friends who have seen and reported on California, Washington State, St. Mary's, Nevada, Stanford, Southern Cal and some of the other bigger teams. Lastly, and with as little faith as possible, we are forced to read some of the many press clippings. Come to think of it, how does Grantland do it?

Position	Name	Team
End	Bill McPeak	University of Pittsburgh
Tackle	Laurie Niemi	Washington State
Guard	Bill Fischer	Notre Dame
Center	Chuck Bednarik	Univ. of Pennsylvania
Guard	Joe Henry	Army
Tackle	Bob Cain	Kentucky
End	Leon Hart	Notre Dame
Back	Bill Doherty, Cap't.	Villanova
Back	Charlie Justice	North Carolina
Back	Jack Jenson	California
Back	Gene Derricotte	Michigan

Second Team		Third Team
Poole, Mississippi	End	Panther, Kansas State
Wistert, Michigan	Tackle	O'Reilly, Purdue
Franz, California	Guard	Beasley, St. Mary's
Sarkesian, Northwestern	Center	Dworsky, Michigan
Stautzenberger, Texas A. & M.	Guard	Brown, TCU
Szafaryn, North Carolina	Tackle	Stautner, Boston College
Powell, Tennessee	End	LoVirolo, St. Bonaventure
Heath, Nevada	Back	Tripucka, Notre Dame
Rauch, Georgia	Back	Califfa, Army
Sitko, Notre Dame	Back	Ashenbrenner, Northwestern
Braznell, Missouri	Back	Rogel, Penn State
Walker, SMU	Back	Scott, Arkansas

We tried to make the teams as representative of the many sections of the country as possible. However, that doesn't mean that it was a final determining factor. If, for example, the 11 best players in the country were in (say) the east that we would be forced by popular opinion to include all the other sections—it just happens that in all fairness, all sections of the country are represented.

Notre Dame First

Dear ol' Notre Dame leads the parade again, just as it will, we feel, in most of the nation's "All's". Michigan, with 3 representatives, follows closely while California, North Carolina and Army are tie with 2 a piece.

For a sectional rating, we use the 3-2-1 system, i. e., 3 points for a sectional representative on the first team, 2 for the second team and 1 for 3rd. By this system, the east, southwest and the midwest lead with 13 points while the far west accounted for 11 points. The Big 9 was third with 10 points followed by the south with a total of 9.

All Poets Are Sissies

by Bud Walsh

Our grammer school teacher's ace in the hole to combat this hearsay prevalent amongst verile young pundits was the statement that Joyce Kilmer, of "Treee" fame, died a manly death on the battlefield. This usually left us crestfallen and slaves to the assigned workings of the muse.

Wrong Opinion

This attitude among children is indicative of a simular one among their adult friends. People today do not think that poets are sissies, but that they would be sissies if they read them. Sounds silly at first, but consider the attitude. Being a sissy today, among adults, is delving with the theoretical, the out of this worldish, the non-practical, the non-realistic. Be sensible about it. Keep your feet on the ground. They claim reality to be anti-thetical with poetry. We know of course that this is not so. Poetry can be realistic as well as romantic, metaphysical as well as pragmatic, or utilitarian or whatever you want to call it.

Let me duck from oncoming tomatoes when I qualify and say that not all people today have this atitude, but if we investigate the financial reports of poetry sales in reference to other literature, we find a sharp contrast in attitude as was prevelent in the days of Byron. People today like novels. They especially like historical soap operas of lusty youths, knife-in-teeth, blabbering to wilting lillies of females. The public also seems enthralled in the perverted sex orgies of real,spade as a spade, heroes. Watch the sales of books when a risque confession of a frustrated beer-hall dissipate comes to press.

Fair Chance

This is not to down the art of novel-writing by any means. There are some works of great merit being produced today. However, there are also good pieces of poetry being produced with vague and scarcely perceptible applause. If people today would only give poetry a fair chance, they would find that in experiencing poetry we receive an entirely different pleasure than we do in reading prose. It is a much more intensified emotion, we do not readily chew the matter of the poem with logical but rather intuitive machinery.

In prose we are presented with attitudes of the artist by means of actions of plots, or in the essay, by formal or informal delineation, or in the case of science by clear rational presentation.

Deeper Meaning

In poetry, however, we are given words which not only mean something in themselves, but when placed together have significance as judgments and associations, as can be deducted from metrical sounds. Look at the "Divine Comedy", for instance. The words themselves have etymological meanings as well as symbolic ones. The grouping of these words in a whole has first a meaning as a judgement, then as a unit of metrical rythem it has meaning, and it may also contain an intuitive meaning totally derivitive from the meaning of judgement. Let me illustrate:

The bird fell down,
down,
down,
down.

First of all, bird has its meaning (etymological) of "any member of a class of warm-blooded vertabrates". Let's not here quibble over the use of "etymological". I mean to use it in a non-restricted sense.

Secondly, the word "bird" might have a symbolical meaning, according to the culture of the day.

Thirdly, the collection of all the words in the grouping goes to make a judgement. The verb relates the subject to the object. The meaning is obvious, the bird is falling.

Fourthly, the placing of the words in such a fashion actually gives a metrical effect of falling.

Notice the effect achieved in falling,
falling,
falling.

Lastly, the feeling itself of a bird falling in space might have some associative, emotional effect on you which would give it a totally different meaning. What kind of emotion do you experience by reading a series of images presented in the "Waste Land". The things themselves, described in judgements, have no immediate association with futility—but you experience that feeling, nevertheless.

If we tackle some of the great works of poetry with a wide mind to the rich returns we may reap, I am sure none of us will be reluctant to be called a sissy.

The choice of Howard Lanin instead of a "name" band was predicted by many students. His danceable music and overwhelming success at last year's Junior Prom were the chief influencing factors this year. Since that time, he has played many other engagements in this area, invariably receiving wide acclaim from those attending.

'PACK AWAITS OLIVARS' INVADERS

Wildcat Rally Overwhelms Dons 46-13

Unleashing its most devastating attack of the season, the Villanova Wildcats came clawing from behind at halftime to score 33 points in the final period against San Francisco University for a 46-13 win at Shibe Park last Saturday.

Definitely outplayed during the entire first half by the Dons, the 'Cats, paced by game captain Andy Gordon, threw passes all over the terrain in the third period to tie up the game. Olivar's forces then gave the visitors and the 10,000 spectators a taste of the type game a "never say die" team plays in the torrid final quarter which resembled last season's drive that earned Villanova a 21-19 decision. Before the ruins settled, big Ralph Pasquariello had crossed the goal twice while Pete D'Alonzo, Mickey Frinzi, and Johnny Sheehan each invaded the end zone once.

Panciera Pass Scores

The Dons struck early in the first period on a 70 yard touchdown play. Don Pahciera, who wrecked havoc with his bullet-like passes during the first half, faded back on his 20 and heaved a pass to George Buksar who hauled in the leather on Villanova's 40 and raced down the sidelines for the first T. D. Panciera's placement was good.

A few moments later Villanova went on the march after a Don player dropped a pass while wide open on the 'Cat 30. The hosts' 65 yd. drive ended as Eddie Berrang took an 8 yd. buttonhook pass from Bill Doherty on the 8 and plowed over for the T. D. with a half minute to play. Tom Clavin's boot split the uprights and the score was tied.

Don's Take Lead

Joe Kuharich's boys bounced right back in the opening minutes of the second frame with a 29 yard aerial from Panciera to Hal Jensen who speared the pigskin on the Mainliners' 10 and romped over for the score. The attempted point failed.

The remainder of the period saw play centered between the two 30 yd. lines with Panciera continuing to threaten with his passes. At the half the Frisco ace who had played against the 'Cats in '46 had thrown seven passes and completed four, two of which were good for scores.

Villanova, paced by Gordon, started its victory drive early in the third period in a manner which would see them gather 219 yards on the ground and 99 in the air for the second half.

Gordon Paces March

Four Gordon passes and a run by Pasquariello brought the Blue and White from their own 38 to the Green and Gold eight from where Pasquariello blasted to the two. Gordon, star of last year's game, then slipped over for the score on a quarterback sneak. Clavin's kick was off to the right.

After a punt exchange Villanova was on the way again, this time on a 55 yd. drive, with Pasquariello carrying off tackle for 13 yds to his 35 at the quarter. Resumption of play saw Geppi burst through center and go all the way to the 10. Rambling Ralph went around left end for a score but was called back for conflicting penalties. Three plays later Pasquariello plowed over from the three to give the hosts the first of their five scores in this

Milt Komarnicki, Villanova center, was one of the brightest spots in the 'Cats defensive play in the San Francisco game.

TURFWARD BOUND

Don Panciera, San Francisco star quarterback, tries to "bootleg" his way around right end in the early moments of Saturday's contest. However, unidentified Wildcat tackler put a halt to the onrushing back. Guard Ted Oraski, (62), comes to the aid of his teammate. The fray, played at Shibe Park, ended in a rout after a nip and tuck first half. 'Cats scored 33 points in the final period to whip Dons 46-13.

Fifth Lost Of Season For Hapless Kittens

Bow To Penn 150's By 52-0 Count In Finale

Last Friday afternoon at Franklin Field, the Kittens closed their most unsuccessful season by losing to the Penn lightweights to the tune of 52-0.

As was the case in their four previous loses, the 150's had little or no teamwork at any time in the game. There are plenty of good players on the squad but it seems that they just can't click together for any more than two or three minutes.

Bottino Sensational

The one bright spot in a dismal game palyed on a slippery field was the Kittens sensational tailback, Charlie Bottino. Charlie's running and passing was the whole Villanova offense and without his great defensive work in safety position, the score could easily have been much higher.

Grab Early Lead

The Quakers were off to an early start in the first period when their triple-threat tailback Dick Schroeter tallied three times on runs of 24, 17, and one yard. Schroeter converted for the extra point on the second TD and at the end of the quarter the score stood at 19-0.

'Good 2nd Period'

Play in the second quarter was by far the best in the game and neither of Penn's touchdowns in that period came as a result of poor play on the part of the Kittens. As the period opned, the Quakers were deep in Villanova territory and as a result of Schroeter's fine playing had a first down on the five. From this point, Slough plowed over for a score. After this the Kittens came to life and paced by Charlie Bottino and Mike Grozinski and started playing ball. But just as in other games, they didn't come in the last thirty seconds of play on a 65 yard pass by Schroeter to Charlie Suchmucker.

Slough Scores Twice

The thirh quarter saw Slough go over twice from close range, with

Doherty Recipient Of Sports Writers Award

HONORED

Bill Doherty, 'Cat quarterback who rereived the coveted Maxwell Award for his outstanding play in the 13-13 tie with University of Kentucky.

Star Quarterback Is Given Maxwell Award

Last week, quarterback Billy Doherty became the first Villanovan to receive the highy coveted Maxwell award this year. The Maxwell plaque is awarded each week during football and basketball seasons to the outstanding high school and college athlete in the Philadelphia area.

Doherty became the recipient of this award for his outstanding play in the Villanova-Kentucky game. A fleet-footed runner and a sharp-eyed passer, as well as a good kicker and an outstanding defensive safety, the Wilmington Wonder finally attracted the attention of the Philadelphia sports writers.

Called All-American Calibre

With the exception of Ed Delaney, of the Daily News, who terms Doherty as All-American calibre, New York sports writers have given Bill far much more deserved publicity than the local writers, up until last week.

Last season, Bill Lilienthal, Villanova's All-East tackle, was the only Wildcat to receive the award, although John Weglicki won it during basketball season.

Doherty is a 155 pound senior who played mostly on defense during his first three years at Villanova. This year he came into his own as an offensive man and now shares the quarter slot with Andy Gordon.

Surprises Texans

To the amazement of most of the fans, Doherty took over the offensive quarterback position in the Texas A. & M. opener, and handled the position with skill that rivaled that of any player in the country. Until that time, he had been known only for his tremendous defensive ability.

However, to Coach Oliver and those who knew him Doherty had always been great on offense, and only the outstanding passing ability of Andy Gordon had kept Doherty on the bench. In fact, after watching the Texas A. & M. game, Army scouts told reporters that he was the man they most feared on Villanova's team. And they were right, because Doherty distinguished himself in that fray even though the Wildcats lost.

In the last quarter the Kittens again started playing good ball with Bottino and Jim Gallo but they still couldn't break into the scoring. Penn's last score came on a nice 65 yard runback of a punt by Schmucker.

Odd Play Occurs

An interesting play occurred in the closing seconds of the first when Jim Gallo intercepted a Penn pass on the Villanova twenty. Schroeter passed to Slough and as Slough took it he was hit by three Villanova men. As he was going down the ball came out of his hands, and in some way bounced off his back. Jim Gallo took the ball and for a split second didn't know whether or not to run. Then one of the officials waved him on and he brought the pigskins up to the 50. However, it was later ruled that Slough's knee had touched the ground and that the ball was fumbled and therefore Gallo could not run wth it. It was then brought back to the 20 where the Kittens took over.

Cats Close Season This Sat. Face North Carolina State

Two Of Top Defensive Teams In Nation Meet

Next Saturday afternoon the Wildcats will bring down the curtain on a very successful season when they meet the Wolfpack of North Carolina State at Raleigh, North Garolina.

Cats Have Edge

On the previous records of both clubs, the Cats with a 6-2-1 record, are favored by a couple of touchdowns over State whose 3-6 mark is not too impressive. The only common opponent of both clubs was weak Duquesne whom the Cats swamped 46-0 and State beat 20-6. Although comparative scores usually don't mean too much, it is, however, an indication of the strength of the two teams.

Strong Opposition

The Packs other two wins over Davidson and Chattanooga have also come over weak squads. Even with this rather unimpressive record, State's loses have been to first rate teams such as Clemson and William and Mary.

Line Even

On the line the Cats and the Pack will be most evenly matched. In the National rating on total defense North Carolina State is sixth with 183.3 yards per game while Villanova is seventh with 184.3. As in previous games, it will be the Wildcat line that will bear the brunt of the attack and, as in previous games, the line is expected to do a great job.

Great Guards

All-Southern Guard candidates, Bernie Watts and Charlie Musser, have been going great-guns all season, and the Pack's reserve forwards, three deep, led by an up and coming group of sophomores, are expected to be ready to play their best game against the Wildcats. Other top performers on States line are center Hal Saunders, a 200-pound junior, and end George Blomquist, one of the leading pass receivers of th eSouthern Conference.

In comparing backfields, the Wildcats easily have the edge. With two equally strong quartettes, the boys in Blue and White are expected to shine just as they have in other games.

Weak Backs

State is comparitively weak in the backfield and only two men have really done anything. These two are Sophomores John Huzvar and Ed Mooney who have both been doing a good job. Against Duquesne Mooney engineered two last half touchdowns with his running and passing to pull the game out of the fire. Throughout the whole season Huzvar has been a consistant ground gainer and has helped the Pack's cause greatly.

Alumni Quintet Adds Dons To Victory List

By Mondschein and Klucsarits, Inc.

For the fourth straight week Alumni Hall's smooth basketball machine dominated play in the intramural basketball as they rolled over the Dom's 63 to 40. Father Dunne, in a bit of coaching strategy attempted to halt the high-flying league leaders by having his team freeze the ball from the outset of the game. This maneuver was successful in the first few minutes, until Frank Buckley Alumni's All Star forward, dropped in 8 buckets in as many shots to give his team a 32-13 half-time lead.

"Buckets" accounted for 20 points in the first half and wound up with 25 points for the game, to tie the league record for individual scoring in one game. His teammate, Hal Diot, had also tied the record in the previous game. Although Buckley lead the scoring, it was again a team triumph for the men from Alumni. Their passing and drive bewildered the Doms' defense, with Bobby Oelz, a standout all season, and Bill Barry, especially brilliant in this department. Ed Doyle, who played only in the second half, came through with 10 points for Alumni.

Skippy Morrisey, fiery Dom guard, led the losers with 13 markers. Jim Gallen and Joe Barrack officiated.

Austin Wins, 48-23

In a rather dull game, Austin encountered little trouble in disposing of Fedigan's five 48 to 23. With John Farley hitting from the Pivot and Bill Lemmer and Tom Reismier connecting on hook shots, Austin, defending champs, moved into a 25 to 11 half-time lead which was never threatened. This victory enabled Austin to stay in first place contention. Fedigan, after a promising start, has now dropped two in a row. Bob Steinke, Fedigan's set shot artist, was good for 8 points and Dave Frink, in a personal duel with John Farley, was only able to connect with three shots for 6 points. Colletta and Mondschein officiated.

Bks. Nips Mendel

In other games of the week Bks. 1 & 4 came from behind to upset Mendel 58-51 and Bks 2 & 3 topped Good Council in a low scoring game, 28 to 26. Bks. 1 & 4 played the entire game without any substitutions as only 5 players appeared for the game, but these "Iron Men" managed to outlast the entire Mendel Squad. Tom Flynn, ex-Ions Prep ace, sparked the victors offense and defense as his 22 points made him the evening's top point-gatherer.

Ably assisting him in this department was Frank Breslin, who scored 15 markers including some "impossible" shots. For the losers, Gavin had 14 and Becotte scored 11. This was the first victory for Jim Plunkett's team. Jim, who coached and played, rounded out the squad with "Little Lou" Maiero and Tom Madonia.

In a game that saw no field goal registered until 11 minutes had elapsed, Bks. 2 & 3 eked out a 28 to 26 victory over Good Council. This field goal netted by Mike Michalik, the old man of the Intramural league, was the only Good Counsel basket in the first half. The Bks. outfit, who didn't score a field goal until 15 minutes had gone by led at half-time 9 to 6. McGlinn of the Cks. took high scoring honors with 13 points while Mark Webber tallied 10 points in a losing cause.

SPORTS CHATTER

By Bill Canino, Sports Editor

Shibeshire Slants . . . Last Saturday's win over San Francisco was one of the most sensational exhibitions of "comebacksim" ever witnessed. The scant crowd of 10,000 saw the 'Cats rise from the doldrums of almost certain defeat only to stage a 33 point scoring spree in the final period. It was the fourth time this season that the Blue-White were forced to come from behind. The Dons surprised the fans with an over-abundance of strength in the first two quarters but after the 'Cats tied the count at 13 all, the visitors collapsed completely. The outcome of the fray was decided in the line play. In the first half Don Panciera, Don quarterback, had plenty of time to throw those spiral passes of his. On defense the West coast eleven gave way little ground to the charging Wildcat backs. After the intermission however, the scene changed and the reserve strength of the Ottvarmen began to wear down the foe. By the time the final 15 minutes were being ticked off, our club had complete control of the situation and it was just a matter of time until we began our scoring barrage.

Although we were on the winning side, many of us could not help remembering that it would be the last time we would see several of the men play in Shibe Park while wearing the Blue and White. Although there is still the North Carolina State game ahead, few of us will be making the long haul to Raleigh to see these fellows in action. To say that men like Andy Gordon, Bill Doherty, Bob Polidor Al Schmid and Milt Komarnicki will be missed would be a great injustice to such standout athletes. Syl Yannelli, Joe Scarcelli, Lou Ferry, Bob Riley, Ed Berrang, Bud Kane and John Sheahan are also leaving and it will be hard to replace fellows of this calibre. Hats off and lots of luck to a fine bunch of ball players.

When the team travels to North Carolina next week to play N. C. State it will be the third encounter between teams representing the two schools. Oddly enough, the series began in 1910, and there has been a period of 19 years between each contest. In the curtain raiser the Mainliners were held to a 6-6 tie by the Wolf pack. In 1929 a Harry Stuhldreher coached team won handily, 24-6. While we are on the subject, there is still room for three or four more fellows on the special bus which is being chartered to bring supporters to see the game.

The Passing Parade . . . While most of us were cramming for the mid-terms, the Villanova basketball team has been playing some fine basketball. During the past two weeks the hoopsters have turned back La Salle College, West Chester State Teachers and the Reading Keys. West Chester and the Keys provided little or no competition to the high scoring 'Cats aggregation but the Explorers were really troublesome. The informal scrimmage was conducted thusly: the two first teams battled for about 40 minutes and then the second stringers did likewise. At the end of an hour and twenty minutes the two starting teams met again. At the end of the scrimmage the 'Cats held an eight point margin, with most of the lead being built when the subs were on the court. Most of the opposition came from La Salle's Larry Faust and "Ace" McCann. The battle between Faust and Paul Arizon was the most interesting to watch. The former holds more than a 2inch advantage over Arizon but neither could stop the other's shots. Brooks Ricca continued his fine play as did Perry Del Purgatorio and Joe Hannon. With the season only a week and a half away we feel that the squad is ready to take on all comers and win more than their share of games. Let's hope so.

Ross Is Third To Black, Ashenfelter In IC-4A Meet

By Bill Cooney

Browning Ross added another honor to his already large collection of notable achievements in athletics by taking third place in the annual IC-4A cross country meet held in New York last Monday. The little harrier from Jersey crossing the wire behind Bob Black of Rhode Island and Horace Ashenfelter of Penn State.

This was Black's second win in two years in this event. By curious chance last year it was Ashenfelter who trailed the Rhode Islander. Brownie, probably feeling that something new should be added, broke into the top of the heap this year to become one of the three best in the East. In general, the IC-4A is composed of Eastern schools, but this year the team title went to Michigan State's strong team. Incidentally, Brownie moved up eight places from his last season's eleventh.

Had 3 Wins

This performance was in keeping with his style for the whole season. His records for the four previous meets includes three wins in dual competition with Army, NYU, and Seton Hall, and a victory in a triangular meet with Notre Dame and Navy. In this last meet he set a record for the Annapolis course.

Everyone, including coach, Jim Elliot, was pleased with Brownie's performance, but hardly anyone was surprised, for his performance in the 3000 meter steeplechase at last summer's Olympic Games proved him to be a great athelete.

In NCAA Meet

Unfortunately, this paper makes a deadline too early to cover Monday's NCAA meet so we can't carry the results. Ross, of course, will be on hand, in addition to George Thompson plus a yet unannounced team. With eight down and two to go among his IC-4A coleagues plus the men from non-IC-4A schools Brownie had a stiff test of his ability at Lansing.

Had Trouble Winning

Although Ross and Thompson performed very well, Villanova's team did not win a meet. They bowed to Army and NYU and were shaded by a mere point by Seton Hall despite the fact that Brownie and George tied for first. They did beat Navy in their triangular meet but here again they ran second to Notre Dame. This does not mean that the Blue and White have a poor team, for the competition was stiff. For example, Army took the Ivy League title and was third in the IC-4A. The boys ran against the best and proved themselves worthy to do so.

Besides Ross and Thompson the team is composed of Charlie McKee, Jim McGehrin, Tom Conboy, Jim McKenna, and Jack Steele.

Repairs Eliminate Alumni Danger

The road which extends from the West wall of the Commerce and Finance Building behind Austin Hall to Spring Mill Road is under alteration in front of Alumni Hall. A rather sharp curve which heretofore has been dangerous to pedestrians when automobiles and large delivery trucks were passing is being removed in order to promote safety and allow motor traffic to pass more freely.

Heavy Traffic

Many trucks delivering food, supplies and equipment to the Pie Shop and the various halls and buildings make frequent use of this road. The work now being done culminates the series of road improvements which began last year.

Mickey Frinzi provided the biggest thrill of the afternoon on the next play when he raced around left end and aided by a terrific block by Ted Oroski on the 38, raced 72 yards for the score.

Taking over on the 24, the Dons moved the leather to the 33 on third down inches short of a first. They gambled for the yard and fumbled on the next play with the Oligarmen gaining control and setting up another score. Johnny Sheehan went over for the fourth play on a 34-yd. heave from Steve Romanik and Clevin again kicked the point.

RADIO SHOW

It was announced today that Villanova will receive mention on a national radio show, the Chesterfield Supper Club. Carried over the NBC network, the program comes on at 7 P. M. EST. The mention comes through the efforts of the local Chesterfield Campus representatives.

Villanova is one of the few colleges to be so recognized. The date of the program is tentatively, Friday, Nov. 27, or Friday, Dec. 4. An attempt was made to have the Alma Mater sung, but such is not the policy of the program's sponsor.

Villanova students, moved by the spirit of the season, will again take the opportunity this year of "making Christmas a little brighter for some youngster", as one of the prospective Santa Claus substitutes here on the campus said.

Highway Block Forces Action; Begin Work On Traffic Light

Bauman Is Removed from Critical List — Injured Severly

John R. Bauman, Commerce and Finance Junior who was injured at the intersection of Ithan and Lancaster ave's on Nov. 23rd., is reported to be improving at Bryn Mawr Hospital.

When first taken to the hospital his condition was listed as "critical".

Among Bauman's many injuries, any one of which is considered serious, the one causing most trouble is a fractured pelvis. Doctors say that he probably will be hospitalized for at least two months.

Students desiring to see him are asked to await further notice. However, cards may be sent to the Bryn Mawr Hospital, Room 301.

John, son of Mr. James H. Bauman of 1653 N. 59th St., Phila., has a brother Joseph in the Army stationed at Ft. Dix, New Jersey. His father was discharged from a hospital a few months ago after spending three months there recuperating from an operation.

Metropolitan Dailies Give Demonstration; Continual Publicity

News of the traffic light demonstration on Wednesday November 24th, received much widespread publicity even as far as Michigan and Massachusetts. Local papers, summoned to the scene, covered the news completely with articles, pictures, and editorials.

The Philadelphia Bulletin regarded the incident as a front page item and with their extensive coverage of the campaign they brought to the attention of the public the urgent need for a traffic light at Ithan Ave.

Editorials in the Philadelphia Inquirer were instrumental in arousing public opinion and forcing the issue. Pictures, included in both dailies, showed the effectiveness of the blockade.

JUNIORS NAME RING COMPANY: WALDRON TO HANDLE ORDERS

Better Quality at Lowest Prices

The Junior class, in a meeting last Tuesday evening, voted unanimously to award the class ring contract to Waldron and Co., Inc., of Philadelphia. Several bids were submitted to the Ring committee by various jewelry manufacturing concerns. A committee of fifteen then considered each offer from a quality viewpoint. The Waldron company met the rigid specifications required by the Ring committee.

Seal Remains

It was announced that the school seal which appears on the ring is official and will remain in the design of the present ring. Many students were of the impression that a mistake had been made when actually the seal is official but not used as often as the "Tolle Lege" seal. Basically, the design of the ring is the same.

April Delivery

The Waldron company, besides giving full consent to the specifications of the Junior class, also entered the lowest bid. Orders will be taken in a few days by a representative of the concern who will have a display of rings to aid the student in his choice. Delivery is guaranteed by April 1st., 1949.

Refreshments were served after the meeting was adjorned.

It was announced during the smoker that names would be taken, starting immediately for the many Junior Week committees. Any Junior desiring to volunteer his services to such a committee is urged to contact any class officer.

Barricade Stops Pike Traffic; Hundreds of Vehicles Wait Hours

Aroused by the series of accidents that have occurred since the beginning of the semester, a group of 600 Villanova students formed a humn barricade on Lancaster Pike, at noon on Wednesday, November 23rd.

Incensed over the critical accident to John Bauman, a Commerce and Finance Junior, on Tuesday evening, the movement was a spontaneous action on the part of the students to protest to State and local authorities the dangerous traffic condition that exists on the corner of Lancaster Pike, and Ithan Avenue.

Orderly Demonstration

The demonstration itself was conducted in a very orderly manner. The students assembled on the road at the intersection, completely blocking all traffic in both directions.

Efforts by the local police to break up the demonstration were futile. The college authorities intervened, and the group disbanded only when they believed that they had attracted sufficient attention to their cause. Banners, and placards supplemented the chant of "We want a Light".

Student Action

Immediately following the return of the students to classes on Monday, November, 29th., a group of three College students, Paul Cooney, Jack Applegate, and Joe Kenny, sought out the College authorities to see what further action could be taken to procure a traffic light or other remedy for the dangerous situation.

Appoints Committee

These three, along with Tom Sullivan, Chairman of the Student Council, and Frank Guzikowski, Editor of the VILLANOVAN, were appointed by the College President, Rev. F. X. McGuire, O. S. A., as a special committee to present the request of the students to the Board of Commissioners of Radnor Township. The college authorities

ADVENT

FOR CHRISTMAS THERE IS NO RICHER GIFT

The Chaplain's Corner

"Prepare Ye The Way"

Preparation is the keynote of our age. People in every walk of life are constantly preparing. Recently Sir Laurence Olivier reached the goal of every post-Elizabethan thespian—"Hamlet". Then long years of preparation did Olivier give to a two and one-half hour film production.

The theme of the Advent season of the Church's liturgical cycle is one of preparation. Preparation for the first event of the Christian Era: the Mystery of the Incarnation. Isaias the prophet, that mighty man of God—John the Baptist, and Mary, God's Mother, each in their own way gave a life time of preparation for the central fact of all history: the Birth of Christ.

Estote parati: be you—the Men of Villanova—also prepared for Christ's coming. Enkindle in your souls the spirit of preparation that dominates the liturgy of Advent.

That Inner Glow

Attention is called to an article appearing in this issue. It concerns the orphans for whom Christmas won't have much meaning this year unless some of us let our hearts be touched. They ask for no help but it is in our power to give them a "break".

In fact, if we do go out of our way a little and take the time to escort them in their tour of "Toyland", so much the better. We dare say that some of us will get that inner "glow" that we're continually talking about.

Present Cemetery Blessed Prior To Turn Of Century

Former Location Near Monastery

By Ray Raclawski

There is a knoll on the campus, a shadow's length of chapel spire where are the stones that stand guard over those that once made Villanova history. A mighty scene greets them. From the hill they gaze along a grassy plain stretching to the left below. One of nature's most beautiful monuments, a tremendous and beautiful tree stands as a feather in the cap of each for his precedent at Villanova.

Founder of Order in U. S.

Prior to the opening of the cemetery at Villanova, the friars and brothers were buried in the vaults at Saint Augustine's in Philadelphia or in the cemeteries at Lawrence, Mass. and Troy, New York. Among those buried in the vaults at St. Augustine's are Rev. Thomas Carr, O. S. A. founder of the Augustinian Order in the United States; Rev. John P. O'Dwyer, O. S. A., first president of Villanova College; and Rev. Patrick Moriarty, O. S. A., who was instrumental in the founding of the College.

The cemetery at Villanova, blessed on November 20, 1878, was formerly located where the monastery is now situated, and the first member of the Order to be interred in the new cemetery was Brother Thomas M. Darragh, O. S. A. Others soon followed. In 1899, the bodies were moved to the plot in front of Saint Rita's Hall to make room for the new monastery.

Names We Have Heard—Fedigan

Notable among those buried in the Villanova cemetery in subsequent years are Rev. John J. Fedigan, O. S. A., at one time president of the College and Prior of the Order; Rev. Thomas C. Middleton, a convert to the Catholic faith and author of the "Historical Sketch of Villanova". His Excellency Bishop William A. Jones, O. S. A., a close relative of Rev. Thomas Burke, O. S. A. lies buried in the center of the cemetery. Augustine De Berghes, a convert who was an "Archbishop" in the "Old Catholic Church," a schismatical sect, rests here as a cleric novice.

Friars, teachers, pastors, simple lay brothers, known only as Brother "Tom" and Brother "Pat" and the saintly Rev. Francis Tourcher, O. S. A., whose holy memory is still recalled by college men and friars in the monastery, rest here in the shade of the copper beeches.

"When the Twilight Shadows—"

When the twilight shadows gather", and the DeProfundis bell sounds, and when passing the "Gate of Heaven", let us remember those who rest here in our presence, and in our charity, let us occasionally say, "Eternal rest grant unto them, O Lord—".

"Lucky Lou"

by Bill Carroll

Those of you that were committed to sea duty during the last war might recall some of the misfortunes that befell the "boot-sailor" on the occasion of his first shot of sea duty. In the Merchant Marine, the experiences of "first-trippers" were rather trying at times. I would like to relate the tragic tale of "Lucky-Lou", a young man of great ambition and initiative who served as a "wiper" in the engine department of a vessel I had some traffic with.

Lou Puts in an Appearance

I met Lou shortly after he came aboard, he was busily engaged in telling the crew about his last ship. It was a most intriguing and questionable tale of high adventure and low veracity. When he inquired about his quarters he was escorted post-haste, up to the chief engineer's room by an "old-timer", who had Lou "pegged" the first minute he saw him struggling up the gang-way with enough gear to cloth the needy in Europe.

Lou Deceived

Lou was instructed that he was to use the settee in the chief's office for a temporary bed until "his room" was ready. The office was rather large and Lou graciously assured his escort that this would do quite well. A deceitful steward provided Lou with blankets and clean linen and the now thoroughly victimized Lou proceeded to make himself right at home. The chief engineer, who was off the ship during Lou's arrival, returned, and to his consternation found Lou's clothing in his desk drawers. His feelings were given adequate and colorful expression in some English I hardly feel would be proper to quote.

Another Pitfall

I won't go into details as to where Lou was finally housed, suffice it to say he was put where he belonged in the first place. The crew of course were in full sympathy with Lou's complaints, when he moaned of the injustice of the chief engineer who had the temerity to employ TWO rooms, while Lou was forced to sleep in ONE small cabin with THREE other crew members.

This particular ship was running empty, with the exception of water ballast that was carried in the number Five hold. This kept the stern of the ship properly weighted down.

One afternoon a heartless member of the crew confided to Lou; while our hero was working in the bilges, that he was foolish to do that kind of labor when the ship was sinking. His theory was; "why should Lou break his back on the old rust-bucket when it was only a question of a few days before it would be shifting it's weight on the ocean's floor. To prove his point he led Lou up on deck and lifted a small section of the hatch covering on number Five hold, and showed Lou the tremendous amount of water that had already leaked in.

The Grand Coup

This was proof enough for friend Lou who with great dispatch hastened to the Chief Engineer's office and rather inelouently and somewhat disrespectfully informed the Chief that "no longer was he going to be taken advantage of, no sir!" Imagine, if you can, the Chief's reaction that the Chief was responsible for Lou cleaning up a "sinking ship's bilges". To support his point, friend Lou, led the now amazed and concerned Chief to the hold full of water. When the Chief gazed down at the water ballast and realized what the story was, he slowly turned to innocent Lou and in a passion rivaled only by the elements he said (censored). And that wasn't all! No indeed!

*Cloudcuckootown

By Bud Walsh

Come with me to the land of Cloudcuckootown; Persuasive and Hopeful will guide us; we will eat the magnificent bird with a cooking apple in his mouth.

Today, thought is on the way to the twentieth-century Cloudcuckootown. It is a land of dreams, where the Id is perpetually naked, all the goodies and bon-bons have escaped from the subconscious wrappings; morality is a myth, similar to the ancient Draconic laws, used to subdue the poor; religion has been lifted to the aesthetic level of a morality play, and God, that metaphysical necessity, has been reserved for prduish young ministers, who like to display their morning coats, after baggels, on Sunday morning.

In Decades Past

Twenty years ago, "it was the thing" to be a communist. Today, you are not a member of the initiate unless you are mixture of atheist, agnostic, tempered with a little Aristotle, sprinkled with little German excerpts from Kant, and gold embroidered with nice Crocian aesthetics. These funny little birds, who run around American universities today, are pathetic cases of a terrible disease called Existrodhead.

Recently there was a lecture given in one of the local colleges on Hegelian dialectics. After one hour of Marxian jig-saw-puzzling, a question symposium was opened. The question that interested all the philosophy—majors most, had to do with the economic repercussions of such a philosophy, or the different paths this dialectic could take, or how many children Marx had. No one noticed that the Godhead, quietly picked up his hat and sailed out the window.

Automotion

In Hegelian or Marxian dialectics, reality goes through a process of thesis, antithesis, and synthesis. A good example is a negative electron meeting a positive one to form a neutral. Everyone had a grand time discussing the itinerary this dialectic would undergo, but when the question appeared, "how did it start?"—a deep hush fell upon the room, and the answer was merely, "why, it started itself."

Let us close with an excerpt from a twentieth century speller:

Creation: conjugation of "to create,"

I created myself,
You created yourself,
He, she, it created themselves.

Philly Views Screen Hamlet

by Kaiser and Richards

When "Henry V" was first brought to the screen a new era for Shakespearean plays was opened. The picture showed a deep respect for tradition, but at the same time was streamlined enough to be appreciated by modern audiences.

This same approach has been applied to "Hamlet" but with an altogether different treatment in the actual makeup of the screen-play "HENRY V" is a brilliant and illuminated text come to life on the screen. "HAMLET", in keeping with the mood, may be compared to a black and white etching. Sir Laurence Oliver hasn't adapted a stage play to movies. He has used the cinema as a medium of expression, and not just for the purpose of photographing action on the set.

Screen Improvements

In bringing "Hamlet" out of the confining walls of a stage, it has been possible to bring in many details from in and around the castle of Elsinore. The use of close-ups enables one to get entirely different meanings out of the famous soliloquies. Some of the words are transmitted not as spoken words, but as thoughts something which lends not only variety, but ties in with the cinema. In short, it is a somewhat ironic note since the gold is finally returned to the rightful owners.

Violent Ending

In "Gotterdammerung", Wagner brings the Ring series to a rather violent close. The death and funeral of Siegfried and the immolation of Brunnhilda is portrayed in the final scene. It concludes on a somewhat ironic note since the gold is finally returned to the rightful owners.

The opera is probably most remembered in the minds of those who like the music of Wagner, for it is the first complete use of Motives or musical phrases assigned to characters in the plot and played at their appearance or mention. In this way the listener can determine the action even though he may not see the stage.

A distinguished cast has been gathered for this opening. Helen Traubel the great Wagnerian soprano, will sing the role of Brunhilde, the war-like maiden and wife of Siegfried, and Lauritz-Melchior will sing the part of Siegfried. The remainder of the cast will be made up of such notables as Gergreat Pechner, Joel Burglund and Astrid Varnay.

As a "must see" — be he a Shakespearean scholar, theatre-goer, or student at Villanova College.

Met Opens

The Metropolitan Opera Association will open its belated 1948-49 season this evening in Philadelphia. Because of the delay involved in the labor troubles early in the summer, the season has been shortened to eight operas.

As the opening work, the "Met" has chosen Richard Wagner's mighty music drama "Die Gotterdammerung." This opera is the last of the "Ring of the Nibelungen" tetralogy, being preceded by "Das Rheingold", "Die Walkure" and "'Siegfried." Wagner has used "Gotterdammerung" as a summation of the past action and depicts the "end of the reign of the gods in Valhalla" as predicted in the beginning of the "Ring" series.

After Wednesday's basketball game we heard Brooks Rice ask Leo Wolf if he took a shower. Leo roared "Why — is one missing?" Dangerous Doaner spent the evening trying to collapse the stands on unsuspecting Loyola rooters. Tom Sabol didn't need the new glass backboards to make points — he used the ball — yak! yak! (ED. NOTE: PFFT!) Coaches Frank Wagner, Ed Rush, Phil Piro, Don LeBanca, Charlie Rodden, and John Dougherty were unanimous in their opinion that Loyola was like an old shoe with a broken Lacy. The freshman team were as speedy and deceptive as a Villanova student trying to cross Lancaster Pike at Ithan Avenue with their 86-38 win over the Loyola frosh. The varsity game ref was about as useful as the two black posts at the P&W-Chapel Hall)—ROBERT "I have so much more than Einstein, why should I fight it". POPE has come up with the following statistics:

A year has 365 days, but you sleep 8 hours a day. These hours amount to 122 days which subtracted from 365 days leave 243 days. Then if you rest or play 8 hours a day each day, away goes another 122 days and only 121 days are left. There are 52 Sundays in a year which reduced the 121 to 69 working days. Then if you have a half day off each Saturday, 26 more are marked off leaving only 43. With an hour and a half for lunch each day, a total of 28 are used in filling the tummy so that you can work the remaining 15. But if you have two weeks vacation out of the fifteen you only have one left. Then remember Labor Day—nobody works on that day. So you really don't work at all. So what are you kicking about.

"Gorgeous" Bog" Pigeon told his wife to "Move the well closer to the house, dear, so I won't have to drive myself to drink."

In closing a bit of advice from that phootloose philosopher Warton Tears who says:

"Of all life's sad surprises
There's nothing to compare
With treading in the darkness
On a step that isn't there."

A word of congratulations and appreciation to Frank Guzikowski, Paul Cooney, Tom Sullivan, Joe Kenny and Jack Applegate for their effort in making Radnor Township see THE LIGHT.

WATCH THIS SPOT FOR AN IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT IN A FUTURE ISSUE.

By BILL NARY

We are once again in the season of the year in which men cast their eyes toward the future with its celebration of the divine birth. Just as the Jews twenty centuries ago had their patient expectance of a coming Messiah more than satiated by a birth in a Bethlehem stable, so thé people ever since then are each filled with great joy over the commoration of that long awaited miracle.

To say they were ,and are not disappointed would be a gross understatement. Instead of wondering whether the event measures up to its anticipation, should we not consider the real question to be just the converse. Disregarding the past, should it not be; "Do we of the present satisfactorily prepare ourselves for celebrating perhaps the greatest feast of the year?" Shouldn't we concern ourselves with asking whether our anticipation measures up to the actuation?

We all know the spirit desired for this time of the year—Advent, 1948. We all want to meet that spirit with our greatest energies. This writer, however, would like to re-emphasize what has always been a most erudite bit of didacticism—an exhortation for presence at daily mass. But, as is the case with every piece of advice, in itself it is absolutely useless. It's worth is measured solely by the effect which it causes, a worth which each Villanovan again possesses the energies contingent for realization.

While experiencing the capabilities, don't we also have the will to properly anticipate Christmas, 1948. Advent is not coming; it has come; the time is now for a decision which will permit us to remember the 1948th birthday of our God and the preceding weeks of anticipation with just contentment. Again, it's all in your hands. Will you come across?

Letters Reproduced

Dear Mr. Bauman:

This year's basketball team has already proven its ability to draw 'em through the turnstiles. The opening game last Wednesday saw a full house plus some celebrities as Chink Crossin, of the Philly Warriors, Fritz Brennen, coach of Lower Merion, Joe Lord, who holds the record for high scoring in one game in the Philly area, Charley McGlone, Coach of La Salle, John Kotsulis, ex-basketball great at Villa, etc.

The Villanova Club of New York had themselves a time at the Pennsylvania Hotel's Keystone Room day after Thanksgiving. Rocky Rochford, Mike Marshall, John Lopategui, Gerry Farnan, and about 20 other undergrads helped to celebrate the Whoopee. The fastest trick of the night was performed by a group of sports who beat the corkage fee.

Downtown Philly department stores are bulging with Villanova Marketing boys. Joe Michalik; Tony Menaglis and Cap Capriotti are all helping Ellis Gimbel; Art Hidderly, Bob Manifold and Leo Dillion are coining the green at Strawbridge's while John Goldschmidt and Frank McBride armed with their shoe horns, draw their checks at Wanamaker's and Snellenburgs, respectively.

We hear the Day-hop basketball team is having all sorts of trouble getting a schedule this year—Tom Sullivan informs us that tomorrow is the last day for seniors to get their personal histories in for the year book.—Belle Air Office is now in the basement of Mendel Hall. Russ Baum, the fabulous party-giver from Wynnewood, came through as usual after the Army-Navy game, only this time he had a guest list with 5 cops to back the list up. Nevertheless, George Guida, Harry Schaffer, Jake McUlvey and Charley Malloy were all on hand — The Newman Club of Hunter College paid Villanova a little salute in their paper a few weeks back — Thank you, Terry and Pat Lynch.

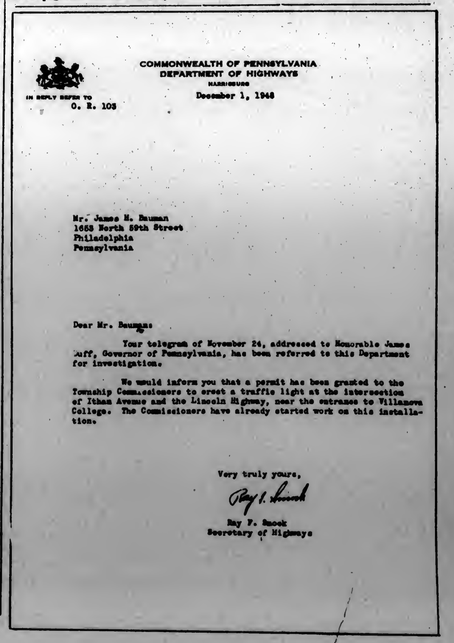
Trafology

As most everybody knows by now, the much needed traffic light at Ithan Ave. will become a reality within the week. Students of Trafology (the study of the movement of cars on Lancaster Pike with relation to the many Villanova lads) can really chalk up a huge victory.

Our little bouquet of the week naturally shall go to the 3 men who worked so hard to make it all possible, viz, Joe Kenney, Paul Cooney and Jack Applegate.

Christmas

Today, 7 years after that black Sunday at Pearl Harbor, a look at the calendar reveals that there are only 8, eight, more school days left, before the start of the Christmas holidays. Incidentally, the 16 days of actual holidaying will set a new college record for a lengthy Yuletide season.



Football

Despite our prediction to the contrary (we said that the Villanova squad would vote "no" to a bowl game), the 1948 Wildcats will be meeting much heralded Nevada come 1 January. It should be a terrific contest, to say the least. Their All-American quarterback, Stan Heath, has a passing record that looks something like Avogadro's number.

But Nevada, which met its match in a bang-up game with Santa Clara already this year will have passing troubles of its own, in the form of Andy Gordon and Billy Doherty. Then there is the dreadnaught running attack, coupled with an air tight defense to cope with.

The local Longshot Lews (Who have already lost heavily on Villanova this year) have already unofficially made Nevada a 7 point favorite. But not so with us.

If Coach Jordan Olivar can field a fit first team of Wildcats and IF the Southern Cal climate is all its cracked up to be, the Main Liners will go hard on the Longshot boys again and bring back the Harbor Bowl pigskin for the trophy case.

Student Council Meets In Regular Bi-Weekly Session

Student council members, meeting in their regular bi-weekly session on Tuesday, November 30, took action to investigate newspaper publicity possibilities with specific regard to the Philadelphia area.

In a motion brought before the group by a council member, it was pointed out that sports publicity given the Mainliners was far below what might be expected. Among examples cited was the comparatively small emphasis placed on the Wildcat acceptance of the Harbor Bowl bid.

In the discussion which ensued it was further brought out that the crux of the matter probably did not lie on the effort of the school's publicity bureau which faithfully forwards an abundance of material to local news sheets. Wide publicity given to Villanova teams in other areas supplied with material from the same source was given as proof of the point.

Attention Lacking

One councilman suggested that the lack of attention given Villanova in this regard stems from public indifference and that "if the public were more interested, so might the newspapers be." As a remedy, he advocated special game rates to pre-college students. His belief was that this measure would insure a larger amount of devotees and followers, now and in future years.

The whole problem was referred to a special committee, appointed to look into all aspects of the situation and make recommendations to the Council.

Committee reports presented showed that a nearby shoppe had promised full cooperation in maintaining only an approved list of reading material.

Many Villanovans Attend N. Y. Dance

A surprisingly numerous aggregation of Villanova undergraduates turned up at the Thanksgiving Dance of the Villanova Club of New York, at the Hotel Pennsylvania, New York City, on Friday evening, November 26th. Co-chairmen James E. Halpin, '42, and Warren M. Brown, '33, expressed the gratitude of the club for the support from the students in a short greeting to the group before the dance.

Undergraduates were under the direction of Mike Marshall, '50, who is also Chairman of the Student Council Spirit Committee. All current classes, from the Seniors to the Freshman, were represented in large numbers.

The dance was held in the Keystone Room of the Hotel Pennsylvania, from 9 P. M. till 2 A. M. to the music of a favorite local orchestra. Halfway through the dance, and by previous arrangement, the undergraduates, accompanied by the orchestra, introduced the new fight song, "V for Villanova", to the alumni. All the grads joined in, following with the "March of the Wildcats", and the "Alma Mater", climaxing the show of loyalty with a loud yell, "Beat North Carolina State".

Engineers Attend G. M. Scientific Progress Show

Students and faculty members of the Engineering school witnessed a scientific show on the progress of Engineering yesterday morning, December 6., at 9 A. M., in the Field House.

The show included a lecture and demonstration by the General Motors Co. and was sponsored by the Villanova branch of the A. S. M. E.

Dean Morehouse dismissed classes for engineers from 9 till 10 so that all might participate. Over 500 students were present.

Smoker Planned

Plans for a smoker have been arranged by Phi Kappa Pi, Engineering fraternity, to be held Tuesday evening, December 14th., at 8:30 P. M. in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium.

A meeting was held last Thursday afternoon at which Bob Pope and Don La Banca were selected as refreshments committee co-chairmen. "Unfinished Rainbows", a movie, was shown at the conclusion of the meeting.

A. I. E. E. Plan

Bud Hunter, president of the A. I. E. E., Villanova Branch, has announced an evening meeting at which a prominent speaker from the Philadelphia area will be engaged for Wednesday or Thursday evening, December 15th. and 16th. respectively. John Payne and John Foster, as co-chairmen of the Program Committee are making the necessary arrangements.

COLLEGE GRADUATES GIVEN COMMISSION FOR NAVAL AVIATION

The Navy last week announced the program for college graduates and those Seniors about to graduate for a Naval Aviation career. A commission as Ensign upon entrance into pilot training is afforded with the commensurate rate of pay in training.

Requirements

This opportunity is open to anyone who has satisfactorily completed a four-year course (120 semester hours or 180 quarter hours) in an accredited college or university, who is a native-born or naturalized citizen for at least ten years, and has reached his 19th but not the 25th birthday on July 1st of this year.

In addition to meeting the physical requirements for Naval Aviation (20-20 vision, normal color perception, hearing, pulse, etc.) each candidate must successfully pass aptitude examination to determine his fitness for military flying.

Immediate Commission

All applicants accepted will be immediately appointed Ensign, USN. Officers so appointed will sign a contract agreeing to remain on active duty for two years after the completion of flight training.

Minimum total pay and allowance of an Ensign in flight status amounts to $290 per month. Flight training lasts about 15 months, which added to processing periods, changes of station, and leaves, totals 18 months.

February graduates who are interested are advised to apply immediately, so that they may receive their commissions immediately upon graduation if accepted. June graduates should apply some time in March. Villanova students interested in this program should seek further information from the Office of the Professor of Naval Science in Commodore John Barry Hall.

Spanish Group Holds Fall Festival, "Noche Espanola"

Fiesta was the keynote last Thursday evening in the C &F Auditorium when the Spanish Club held its annual Fall Festival, "Noche Espanol". Spanish music filled the air and the Castilian of Cervantes flowed glibly from the tongues of the students as they entertained themselves and their guests during the evening.

President of the club, Anthony Guiotta, as master of ceremonies, introduced the program, highlighted with the presentation of "El Novato" (The Freshman), an original one-act play written by Rev. Lorenzo, O. S. A., the moderator of the Club.

Centered on Puerto Rican

The action of the play took place on the Villanova campus and centered around Andres Mejias, a freshman from Puerto Rico, who was portrayed by Alfred Wrobel. It concerned the difficulties Andres encountered in attending "Noche Espanola", and how these problems were solved by his friends, Carlos, played by Ed Burton; Fermin, portrayed by Richard Sigg; and Father Burke, played by Frank Bundick. Also in the cast as supporting players were: John Wolf, Carlton Hoese, Joseph Moran, Ed Cassidy, John Claffey and Don McCourt.

Dean of Arts

Preceding the play, Rev. Edward J. McCarthy, O. S. A., Dean of Arts and Sciences, spoke on the topic, "Impressions of My Trip Through South America." Following the lecture, the entire club, under the direction of Fr. Lozano, joined in the singing of Spanish songs. Theodore Garcia, pianist, accompanied the group, and soloed with "Malaguena" and other Spanish selections.

After the intermission, during which refreshments were served, the program was concluded with the showing of "Castillos en el Aire", a Spanish moving picture.

Prof. Marecek To Lecture Tonight

The general monthly meeting of Delta Pi Mu, Arts and Education fraternity, originally scheduled for December 1st. has been postponed until Tuesday, December 7th. Professor Karel Marecek, Ph.D., J.U. Dr., Sc. Pol.D., will address the meeting on "The Spirit of the Czech Cultural Life and Universities".

Wide Experience

Dr. Marecek's previous experiences as Minister-Counsellor to the Prime Minister of Czechoslovakia, and professor of International Relations at Charles University in Prague, qualifies him as an eminent authority on the subject. At present the doctor is a member of the Political Science Department at Villanova.

Painting of Mendel Nears Completion

The interior of several offices in Mendel Hall is currently receiving a gleaming coat of paint. Walls are being decorated with blue, green, and buff shades, the ceilings receiving the traditional white. Most of the work on the first floor is nearing completion, and the project is expected to be completed by the end of the Christmas recess.

While the many offices in Mendel Hall are being painted, a Western Electric crew is installing an entire new telephone switching system for Villanova. Ninety-eight stations are to be operated throughout the campus, as well as twenty trunk divisions. The switchboard will be housed in a new information room being readied in Mendel Hall, and the relay racks are being set up in the adjoining room.

'Cats Top N. C. State 21-7

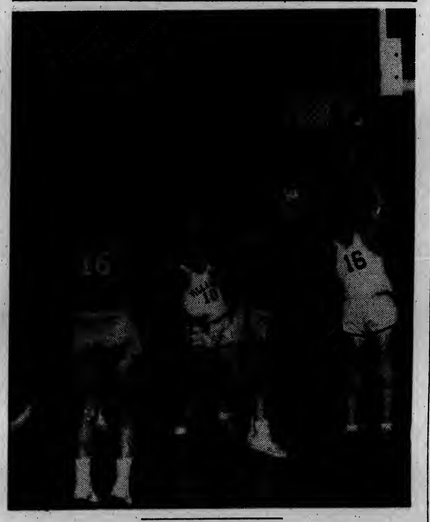
The Wildcats of Villanova ended their most successful season in years by trouncing the fiery wolfpack of North Carolina State, 21-7.

After six minutes of the initial period Villanova marched fifty yards to the Wolfpack six-yard line. From here big Ralph Pasquariello crashed the gates of pay dirt country on a six-yard off-tackle drive. Tom Clavin put a tail on Pasky's six-pointer and rounded out the score to 7-0.

Great Line Play

The remainder of the first quarter was a see-saw battle full of penalties and terrific line play: The 'Cats were unable to get within the Southerners thirty yard line due to a slowing up of their attack, but neither could the 'Pack score.

Penalties Halt Villanova



North Carolina created a brilliant rally in the second quarter. Ben Smith wheeled off great chunks of earth battering his way down to the Villanova thirty-five. Jim Mooney, a sensational Carolina tailback, then took over and lugged leather around right end and was finally pulled down on the Cats six. Playmaker Sid Bozeman faded back and handed the mail to Mooney. Mr. Mooney faked a run and flipped the sphere to Bill Thompson in the end zone. Byler converted and at half-time the Wolves and the 'Cats were deadlocked 7-7. The Olivarmen found themselves in scoring position many times but infractions of the rule book halted their drives.

Polidor Scores Tiebreaker

In a "rip-roaring" third period Bobby Polidor shot out of nowhere

TWO POINTS FOR DEL

Perry Del Purgatorio, Villanova basketeer, takes a shot from under the basket to score his first field goal of the current season. Del's two pointer, one of 28 which the 'Cats netted, aided in the 71-54 victory over Loyola College of Baltimore. Tom Sabol, (10), awaits to take rebound as Loyola's Lacy (16) watches.

Terriers Plan To Upset 'Cats; Tigers Here Sat.

'Cats To Meet Nevada In Harbor Bowl

William M. Connelly, Director of Athletics, announced last week that the Wildcats had accepted an invitation to meet the University of Nevada in the Harbor Bowl at San Diego on New Year's Day.

The Wildcats will be looking for their first victory in a post season game. Previously, the Cats had played in the Bacardi Bowl in Havana where they were tied by Auburn, 7-7, and last year the 'Cats were defeated in the inaugural of the Great Lakes Bowl at Cleveland by the Wildcats of Kentucky, 24-14.

Heath All American

The Wolfpack have smashed all existing college total offensive records mainly through the effort of their All-American quarterback, Stan Heath. Heath has completed 126 passes this year for 2005 yards to break the record previously held by Davey O'Brian, former Texas Christian great and Bud Schwenk, now performing for the New York Yankees grid squad. Besides this, 22 of Heath's aerials were good for touchdowns.

To offset this, the 'Cats will rely on their ground attack, the greatest in Villanova history.

A hot time may be in store for the Villanova basketeers tomorrow night when the Terriers from St. Francis College of Brooklyn invade the local gym. Rumor has it that the "Flatbush Flugies" are out to avenge last season's 52-47 defeat suffered at the hands of the Wildcats.

On Saturday evening, it will be the 'Cats turn to attempt a win at the game of revenge. Princeton will be at the Field House hoping to duplicate last year's 40 to 30 victory over Villanova. The Tigers will again present a formidable array of players headed by versatile George Sella.

Series Even

A win over each of these teams would tip the record scales in favor of the locals since Villanova has played eight games with both St. Francis and Princeton and has won four times in each series.

The Terriers will be led this season by Tom Gallagher and Paul Labanowski, co-captains. Wildcat fans will remember Gallagher as the man who scored 15 points against Villanova last year to be the game's high scorer. Tom O'Connor, who dropped 12 markers through the hoops in that fray, will also be on hand.

Bough to Start

Rounding out the first team will be Roy Titus, Bill Paterno and Levi Bough. Bough is the first negro ever to play on a St. Francis team. Two men who are also slated to see a lot of action in tomorrow night's game are sub guards Jim Luisi and Tom Garguito.

The Terriers can already boast of two victoris, one over the Alumni and the other over American University. Villanova's last win over them was really a heartbreaker and they intend to square the record.

Freezing Almost Failed

In that game, the Wildcats, after having led all the way, concentrated on freezing tactics to protect their 10 point lead with four minutes remaining. The Terriers' Tom Gallagher almost upset the apple cart when he twice stole the ball and made two quick field goals and a foul to cut the lead down to 49-45. But Joe Hannan split the meshes with a set shot and Leo Wolf added a foul with 57 seconds remaining to put the game on ice.

To Avenge Upset

The Villanova-Princeton game last year marked the last time the locals played before using the fast break type of offense. The 40 to 39 upset handed the 'Cats was probably the reason for this. After that fray the Wildcats went out and averaged 70 points a game for their next 20 contests. Arizen & Co. intend to get their edge in the series on Saturday night.

Last year, it was not until four minutes of the second half had gone by that Villanova tied the score at 31. They then went on to take a 36-33 lead only to see it disappear on two field goals by Holman and fouls by Sella and Lawry. Shy Raiken cut the score to 40-38 on a layup with 40 seconds to go. Princeton started to freeze the ball but Joe Hannan stole it and passed to Raiken who was fouled while shooting with only 20 seconds to go.

"Freeze" Aids Win

Shy's first shot was a heartbreaker, going in and then out of the hoop. His second shot was good but Princeton got possession of the ball and held it until the end of the game.

Lawry of Princeton was high scorer for both teams with seven field goals and two fouls for 16 points. Ricca led the Wildcats with ten points, followed by Wolf and Raiken with eight points apiece.

ALL-OPPONENT TEAM CHOSEN BY VARSITY

The Villanova football team, resting between the completion of a successful season and their bowl game on January 1st., sat down and selected a team which consists of the toughest eleven men they faced during the past campaign.

For the fourth consecutive year the U. S. Military Academy dominated the squad. The Cadets, victor over the Mainliners by a 28-0 score, placed Dan Foldberg, Joe Henry, Bill Yeoman, and Bobby Jack Stuart. Yeoman, who is the Captain of the Army squad, is honored for the second year in succession. However, this year the giant center was chosen unanimously by the voting players. Mentioned throughout the land on numerous All-American teams, Yeoman is the only man who remains on the field whether his team is in possession of the ball or not in the two-squad system introduced at West Point this year.

Army's End Great

Foldberg, who scored one of the winning touchdowns against the 'Cats, is teamed at the end position with the incomparable Art Spinney. Spinney, a standout for Boston College, was amongst those honorably mentioned on last years mythical eleven.

Bob Gain of Kentucky and Ernie Startner, another B. C. mainstay, share the tackle spots. Stautner has been chosen on many All-East squads this season and his huge frame did no little to aid his club upset the Blue-White at Boston.

Henry and Ed Flynn of Miami were selected to man the guard positions. Flynn, who played 60 minutes in a losing cause, received only one vote short of being unanimously chosen.

Backs Named

The backfield has Don Panciera, University of San Francisco; Bob Campbell, Miami; Wally Gruber, Detroit; and Stuart, Army. Villanova fans, who were unable to see Campbell and Gruber in action, may be surprised to see these men listed but both of them were chosen by all the voters.

Panciera, the sparkplug in the San Francisco passing attack, received all but 4 votes. These ballots were cast for Armys' Arnold Galiffa. The Don ace chucked passes all over the terrain for almost three periods and only after

Severancemen Rout Loyola In Opener; Turn Back Rhode Island By 75-67 Count

Ricca Leads Scoring With 37 Points; Weglicki Paces Victory Over Rams

Having successfully completed their two opening engagements against Loyola College of Baltimore and Rhode Island State, the victorious Villanova Basketbal team is now preparing for their encounters with St. Francis and Princeton this week.

The Wildcats gave an impressive showing in their home opener last Wednesday by subduing the Loyola Greyhounds 71-54. Saturday's 74-68 defeat of the Rhode Island State Rams proved even a greater feat as the Mainliners more than matched the "Fire-house" brand of ball which is played by the New Englanders. With scores of 71 and 75, the '48-'49 'Cat quintet has an average of 73 points per game which is well over last seasons final average of 66 per game.

Ricca, Arizen Tops

Brooks Ricca and Paul Arizen, last years top scorers, are again setting the pace. Brooks garnered 20 against the Greyhounds and 17 against the Rams while Arizen notched 19 and 13 in the two frays.

In the opening half of the first encounter, Arizen set the pace with 14 points but after 6 minutes of play in the second half he was forced out of the game via the foul route.

Wolf Outstanding

By far the outstanding performance of the Loyola battle was rendered by Leo Wolf who captained the Severancemen. Wolf managed to dunk in 6 points while playing a superb floor game and holding Loyola's scoring ace, Jim Lacy, to five points. Lacy, the nations fifth leading scorer last year, was held to one point in the first half and it wasn't until five minutes of the second canto had passed that he sank his first two pointer. His second field goal came with only a minute and a half remaining in the game.

Mike Zedalis led the Mason-Dixon Conference champions with 15 points and was very effective from the free throw line, sinking 11 of his 12 penalty shots. Andy O'Donnell and Herb Mienert each registered 10 tallies for the losers.

Except for an early 4-2 lead, Loyola was never ahead in the scoring but at the same time were never behind by more than eight or ten points until the final three minutes.

Saturday night's affair saw the Blue-White hand the Rams their first opening loss in nearly 30 years. The entire first half saw the lead change hands innumerous times with Ricca and Wolf shooting the 'Cats into a 32-21 lead at half time.

Barrage Starts

Paul Arizen took command as play resumed dropping 5 swift points for coach Al Severance's crew, but Rhode Island, paced by Ken Goodwin, found the range and brought the score to 39-36 after five minutes which was as close as the Rams got for the remainder of the game.

Weglicki Sparks Rally

Johnny Weglicki went on a terrific scoring spree right after this which resulted in a total of 12 points for the lean substitute. Seven of these markers came in one burst and were enough to put the skids under the fast playing men from Kingston.

Aided by their strong, hard-to-crack defense, the Wildcats were able to stymie scoring splurges at the end of both contests which attracted over 4,000 spectators. The new stands in the field house were put to much use as the capacity crowd of 3,000 saw the opening game.

The composite Villanova box score is as follows:

	F.G.	F.	TR.
Sabol	6	4	16
Ricca	15	7	37
Arizen	13	6	32
Wolf	7	2	16
Hannon	5	4	14
Raiken	7	3	17
Del Purgatorio	1	0	2
Weglicki	4	4	12
Totals	58	30	146

FROSH QUINTET HAS SUCCESS IN OPENER

Last Wednesday evening, coach "Bob" McDonnell's Frosh hoopsters, in their debut, crushed a powerful Loyola quintet to the tune of 86-38.

Take Early Lead

The Kittens began to rack up their heavy-ended score after Joe Lastener of Loyola sank a foul in the opening seconds. Taking advantage of an intercepted pass Tom Brennen sank a long "tom" to start the engines of Villanova's irresistable force. Loyola maintained their equilibrium until late in the first stanza when their attack fizzled under the steady, ever aggressive, Mainliners.

From this point on the Marylanders presented no threat and at no time did they make a bid for victory. Joe Griggs, Tom Brennen, and Bill Beherans continued to pour it on until the close of the half when the scoreboard showed a lead of 43-27 for Villanova.

Stage Short Rally

The second half brought out a new Loyola squad who with Don Johnson and Joe Lastener began to move. Johnson netted a game total of nine tallies while Lastener was close behind with eight. The combined efforts of the Baltimore squad lasted only a short time when Villanova began their coordinated attack and stemmed the Grey-Green tide.

Joe Griggs began a steady scoring barrage for the Kittens and ended up high scorer for the evening with a neat sum of nineteen markers. Runner up to Griggs was his teammate Bill Beherans with a total of seventeen. Tom Brennen was third highest for the victors netting four field goals and three fouls while playing a terrific defensive game.

Basketball At Villanova; From 1920 To The Present

Editor's Note: Now that basketball season is a thing of the present we thought that the readers would like to know where and when this sport had its beginning at Villanova. The following is the first of three installments which will be presented weekly in the Villanovan.

Just twenty-eight years ago, Villanova opened its first season of basketball as a major sport. Prior to that year basketball was merely a minor sport with the teams playing only an informal schedule. The job of starting the "Blue and White" on the road to success was given to the worthy and capable coach Mike Saxe, former Penn star.

Trim Catholic U.

The Wildcat quintet opened its first game against Catholic University and defeated them 43-40. In the second game they proved themselves the victor once again over a strong St. Joseph's five to the tune of 31-22. The Villanova five closed its first season with a record of 7 wins and 7 losses.

During the 1921 season, the second year of basketball, the Blue and White opened against Hahnemann College and defeated them 55-16. The Villanova quintet followed up with Catholic University being nosed out by a 25-23 count. As the season continued, the squad played against such teams as Pennsylvania, Georgetown, Temple, St. Joseph's and many others. The Wildcat quintet ended '21 season with a record of nine victories to three losses.

The third and fourth years, 1923 and 1924 proved to be highly successful for the yet young sport. Villanovans established for themselves the impressive total of 20 victories against only 3 setbacks.

11-5 Record

1925 marked another bright spot in Villlanova court history, as the 'Cats compiled a record of 11 wins, losing but 5 contests. Although the season was a great success, and the Villanova followers were highly pleased with the work of the team, they began to taste the bitter with the sweet for at the close of the campaign it was announced that their coach was to turn the reigns over to someone else.

It is to Mike Saxe that we owe much for his time coaching at the birth of Villanova basketball. Through his efforts and untiring interest in the school the Mainliners became looked upon with respect by all in the field of basketball.

SPORTS CHATTER

By Bill Canino, Sports Editor

The Passing Parade . . . Now that we've seen the numerous "All" teams we would like to extend a hand of congratulation to those men who have been numbered among the select few who are named each year. Ed Berrang, our bone crushing end, was named most frequently by the selectors while Bill Doherty, one of the most-underrated players in the business, Bob Polidor and Lou Ferry also received a good number of votes. Ralph Pasquariello was named on the first team of the "Can't Say His Name But He's Terrific" A. A. The Chicago Tribune, which polls the players throughout the country, listed Berrang on the second team and Ferry Honorable Mention.

In our humble opinion the Colliers mythical eleven should be the best out. These people went through the trouble of taking pictures of all the college games weekly. These movies were sent to the voting panel which includes almost every college coach in the country. The coaches picked sectional teams in the final balloting all the coaches saw the pictures of the 55 finalists and made their selections. The system may not be completely foolproof but it certainly has it all over the various news service polls. You might remember that in '46 a former Villanova center was given mention by one service while all during the season he was marking time in the Army. Hmmmmmm!!!

The national rating systems also become confusing. It seems that the experts just can't decide where Nevada our worthy opponents in the Harbor Bowl, should be rated. Last week we read that Stan Heath & Co. were in the first 20 but a look at another paper and another system revealed that they were rated in the 50's. Recently, a front ranking columnist wrote an exposé on the method which sports writers, who see no more than 2 games a week, rank the teams throughout the country. It was mentioned that several years ago a small college received votes which were enough to rank them 24 in the nation. However, there were many red faces since the school named didn't even have a football team!!!

The Basketball Scene . . . On the brighter side we see all the Blue-White followers with a broad smile on their faces now that the 'Cats have two wins under their belt. This is a good sign since Coach Al Severance, in his usual pessimistic way, predicted a miserable season in which his minions "won't win three games". Come now, how despondent can one be???

Much credit for last week's win over Loyola should be given to Leo Wolf, the sharpshooting, playmaking demon. Adding to his already brilliant accomplishments, the ex-Trenton Catholic luminary, shared, with Joe Hannon, the task of limiting the scoring opportunities of the Greyhound's Jim Lacy. His backboard play was also a neat thing to watch and with all this going on Leo found time to make 3 out of his 11 set shots good for six points. The team as a whole had an average of 39.2% on their shots which is good in any league.

Brooks Ricca, who led the team in scoring with 20 points, also had the best average with "9 for 16" or 56%. Paul Arizen, ejected from the fray while he was just getting started, neted 8 of his 19 attempts to compile a mark of 42%. Tommy Sabol, who has been on the injured list during most of the pre-season drills, hasn't reached his form of a year ago but his backboard play maks him too valuable to keep off the court. Tom sank 3 of his 13 tries, Hannon, shooting from far out, bagged 2 field goals in 8 shots. "Shy" Raiken dropped 2 twin pointers through the hoop in his 4 attempts and Perry Del Purgatorio scored on his only shot of the game.

Two for Two . . . It was too bad that we weren't able to see Saturday night's win over the Rams of Rhode Island State. It's always a pleasure to turn back the boys from Kingston since they are usually a team which is closely watched by basketball fans in the East. From all reports we find that big John Weglicki was again the big gun the scoring spree which put the game on ice for the 'Cats.

We can't help remembering his fine play against this same R. I. State team last year. For his great performance John received the Maxwell Award and he became the only Villanova basketeer to receive this honor all season. It appears to us that this capable Junior likes to show his best form when he plays in "Poor Little R. I.". John, as a star at La Salle High School, was named the most valuable player of the Eastern States Catholic Invitation Tourney in '46 when he led the Little Explores to the championship.

ALUMNI HOLDS LEAD; AUSTIN CAN TIE IT UP

Mondschein Inc., and Klucsarits

Good Council was subject to the one-two punch of the Intramural League in their past two games as Alumni handed them a 70-36 pasting and Austin, after a tough tussle, came out on top 54-43. In the game with Alumni, played before the holidays, the outcome was never in doubt, as Alumni held a 33-9 halftime lead.

Frank Buckley, the league's leading scorer, again paced the winners as he amassed 22 points to send his seasonal total to 81. Jack Jamison, aggressive Alumni guard, notched 14 points and his output was matched by Mark Weber of the losers. Mike Michalick trailed Weber with 4 field goals for 8 points H. Knecht and J. Crossin officiated.

In the other pre-Thanksgiving contest, the Doms came from behind to overcome Bks. 2 & 3, 51-42. O'Brien and Morrissey sparked the Dom offensive with 14 and 12 points respectively. For Bks. 2 & 3, Seman led the scoring parade, snapping 19 points through the hoops to stay among the leaders in the individual scoring race. Gene Koval and "Waldo" Coyle referred.

Picking themselves off the floor after the Alumni trouncing, Good Council played Austin on even terms for most of the game before absorbing a 54-43 defeat. Joe Crossin, diminutive Austin guard, sparkplugged his team's scoring with his accurate one-hand running shots. "Serious Joe" contributed 15 points and did a fine job of guarding Mark Weber. Despite Crossin's defensive prowess, Mark still managed to net 13 markers to lead his team's scoring. Bill Lemmer and John Farley, who saw only limited action, in the contest scored 14 and 13 points respectively for the victors. The Mondschein twins handled the whistles.

In the "grudge game" of the season, Fr. Dunne's Dims bowed to Fr. Gallagher Bks. 1 & 4 quintet, 56-37. This was a mild upset probably because of the large squad that represented the Barracks. Six men appeared for the game. The "Tom" scoring twins, Flynn and Madonia, paced the Jim Plunkett coached team with 19 and 17 points. Frank Breslin hit for 14 counters to match Bill Savage's scoring which was high for the Doms.

A feature of the contest was the outstanding defensive play of Carlos of the Barracks who held Al O'Brien, Doms leading scorer, scoreless and almost "shotless" in the second canto. Al only managed to get two field goals in the entire game. Bobby Oelz and Jim Gallen officiated.

Austin maintained their runner-up spot and a mathematical chance to tie Alumni for the lead, when Fr. Kemme's five disposed of a game Mendel team 57-39.

The scoring was well distributed for the winners as Bill Lemmer and Joe Buffalino paced the attack with 11 and 10 points. Leading the Mendeleers was Becotte, their leading scorer, who took scoring honors for the evening with 16 points. Austin has now won five in a row after dropping their opener to Alumni, Jim Gallo, 150 pound star and Frank Breslin were the referees.

Alumni assured themselves of at least a tie for first half laurels, drubing a punchless Fedigan team 58-22. This victory was accomplished without the services of the league's leading scorer Bill Buckley and Hal Diot, who were sidelined with minor injuries. Barry and Oelz with 11 and Doyle and Norton with 10, took over the scoring duties and along with Rice, Jamison, and Lynch had little trouble in disposing of the Fedigan bid. Frink's 6 points was the best offensive effort for Fedigan. Jim Gallen and Mark Wbere on the whistles.

and scampered fifty yards for the tie-breaking score. Ciavin converted and the Mainliners led the battle again at 14-7. The final rally began with the entrance of John "the Jet" Geppi on the muddy battle-scarred turf. Slithering loose he soared for eighteen yards followed by "Jolting Joe" Rogers who paced off fifteen more.

Statistics Of Season Prove 'Cats Power

Although we don't claim that statistics tell a true picture of any individual football game, we do believe that seasonal totals give somewhat of a clear representation of fact. Therefore, we thought that you might be interested in seeing, statistically, what the 1948 edition of the Wildcat team has accomplished.

A quick comparison with last years records show that the 'Cats scored 154 points in the regular season, for an average of 17.1 per contest. During the past campaign they amassed a total of 255 points for an average of 25.5 markers per game.

In the first down department this year's eleven accrued 119 against 84 for the opposition while last year's combine were outdone by their opponents 97-94.

In total offense there was a difference of 81.2 yards per battle between the two seasons with this year's array having a total of 3133 yards as compared with 2089 yards last season.

In all, the Blue-White this year will go down in Villanova history as one of the greatest offensive teams in the 54 years of the sport. Not only did they erase all previous scoring marks, they also ran roughshod over the opposition in every offensive department.

bered for his fine performance at last year's Junior Prom.

Socially Known

Since then, he has played several much-covered engagements such as the Democratic National Convention, and the Baltimore Bachelor's Cotillion. The latter is considered by the "Smart Set" to be THE affair of the nation's social season. Howard Lanin has played at the Cotillion for the past eighteen years.

In the immediate future, Lanin is looking forward to playing for the Yale Prom (for the third consecutive year), several Princeton dances, and the Annapolis Ring Dance.

Jazz Band

The noted maestro will feature his six-piece Dixieland Jazz Band, the "Rampart Street Boys", to entertain during intermissions at the Belle Aire Ball. This will insure an evening of versatile and continuous music. Lee Morgan, lovely star of radio and television, will handle the vocal chores.

John Scopetta, chairman of the decorations committee, has voiced assurance that the setting will equal the music. The theme is unannounced as yet, but decorations are expected to outdo anything witnessed on the campus to date.

desiring to play big brother to some little lad for a few hours, is asked to contact Sister Gertrude Marie, who can be reached by calling BAring 2-1210.

Big Brothers

The boys, all orphans ranging in age from eight to thirteen years, are allowed to visit the various stores in the company of reliable adults after school on weekdays, and on Saturdays and holidays. "Big Brothers" need not buy anything more than an ice cream cone for their charges whose one big desire is to "see Santa Claus".

College Boys

As Sister Gertrude Marie said: "If one could see how their eyes light up when we promise them that some of the college boys would be down to see them, I think it might bring a little moist spot to the eyes of your huskiest football player."

The orphanage is located a scant fifteen minutes from the 69th Street Terminal, and only a five minute ride on the Northbound 70 trolley from 52nd and Market Streets.

Beta Gamma

Beta Gamma, debating society, under the direction of Mr. Joseph T. Jonas, has been holding practice debates among its members for the past month. This afternoon at five, a debate will be given on the subject: "Capital Punishment Should Be Abolished By Federal Law". The affirmative speakers will be Morgan and Oberle, while Wright and Rechner will give the negative view.

National Topic

Four teams are already working out on a national question being examined by most collegiate debating societies: "Resolved That the Federal Government Should Adopt a Policy of Equalizing Education in Tax-Supported Schools by Means of Annual Grants."

Twenty-four debates have been scheduled with other college groups.

Approval On Way

The Radnor Township commissioners stated that they had made formal application for this light to Harrisburg on October 25, 1948, and were awaiting approval on it. However, the student group informed them that the Highway Commission had informed them that the approval was in the mail.

Temporary Measure

Work was begun at once on Wednesday morning to install the necessary stanchions and cross-highway wiring required for the operation of the light, and it is expected that the light should be in complete operation sometime around December 7th.

This light, however is to be a temporary measure until the highway itself can be re-graded to reduce both the vertical and horizontal curves. Such action, which will be the only way to insure adequate vision for traffic will be completed during the spring of 1949 according to reports received from the State Highway Commission.

Interview C. & F. Seniors

Two insurance companies will have representatives on campus Thursday and Friday to interview Commerce and Finance seniors for positions as salesmen. The positions are unique inasmuch as they will not be on commission but on the basis of a salary of $2800 while going to school for six months, with a subsequent raise on completion of the special schooling.

$2800 Average Salary

To date, men have been contacted and hired by such firms as North American Aviation, General Electric, R. C. A., Mutual of N. Y., Penn Mutual and many others. The average initial salary has been $2800, but high of $3600 was offered to several seniors.

The Alumni Association has been instrumental in arranging many of the contacts for the Seniors. Tom Finan, '36, is director of training and education for R.C.A.

For the information of those seniors yet to be interviewed, the representatives of the firms have been marking the candidates on five factors; extra-curricular activities, work experience, hobbies, personality, and disposition. Again it is urged that the Seniors contact the Placement office to schedule interviews with recruiting representatives.

President Host To Faculty At Dinner Tonight

Entertains Diocesan Leaders Thursday

This week Rev. Francis X. McGuire, O. S. A., President of Villanova, will preside at two campus dinners. This evening the entire faculty of Villanova will meet at their annual gathering. Thursday evening the High School Rectors and College Presidents of the Arch-Diocesis of Philadelphia will be present at a dinner in the President's room.

Tonight's affair will be held in the Field House at 7:00 P. M. Over two hundred people will be present. Besides the faculty, the Board of Trustees and the General Advisory Board will attend.

This will be the second annual banquet held for the faculty since the close of the war. Last year the first affair served to introduce the new members of the faculty.

Thursday, Fr. McGuire will welcome fifteen School Rectors and College Presidents of Catholic Institutions from the Philadelphia area to a dinner in his quarters. Among the prominent educators present will be: Dr. Reilly, Supt. of Schools, Brother G. Paul, F. S. C., of LaSalle College, Fr. Long, S. J., of St. Joseph's College and the Rectors of the High Schools.

Capacity Banquet Crowd Pays Honor To Football Team

Five hundred alumni, friends, and students attended the Philadelphia Club Banquet, held in honor of the Wildcat football squad last Tuesday evening in the Main Ballroom of the Warwick Hotel. Paying to a capacity house, committee members were forced to turn away would-be diners who had failed to reserve places.

"Best Ever"

An annual affair, this year's testimonial dinner was hailed as the most successful yet sponsored by the Philadelphia group of graduates.

Find Christmas In Bethlehem

The Christmas season engulfs us again in a myriad of trees and bells and holly and wreathes. Crowded streets, over-crowded shops, huge boxes wrapped in assorted colors, repeated strains of Christmas music are all part of the annual scene. It seems to be a rather strange way of celebrating the Birthday of Christ. Yet the charity and love made concrete in the boxes and ribbons can well have their source in the stable of Bethlehem. In our modern America there is only the danger that too many of us, supposedly Christians, may in time forget the fact that Christmas is Christ's Birthday.

The Star of Bethlehem should have deeper meaning for us in these trying days. It's light should banish the darkness in so many human minds. Originally it brought Shepherd and King, Man and Angel to a stable crib which served as the throne of the King of Kings, where each heard the pledge. "Peace on earth to men of good will".

Our wills act in the wake of understanding. Men of good will must first discover the truth and accept it. We cannot pass Christ by and discover true peace. The joy and peace of Bethlehem came from the discovery of a Babe in a manger. The Babe was God adored alike by the Shepherds, by the Oriental Kings, by the Angels.

It is not too much for us to hope that the average man in our modern American street, the leaders of our government, and all, will come to learn of His birthday of the strength, and power, and love of Christ; that the knowledge of the basic truths of Christianity will illumine an otherwise darkened universe; that such understanding may be the precursor of the good will which is so absolutely necessary for peace on earth.

Our Christmas message to Villanova men is an exhortation to the spirit of Christianity with the solemn warning that you will find it deep down beneath the sham and fanfare of modern commerce—deep down in the Cave of Bethlehem.

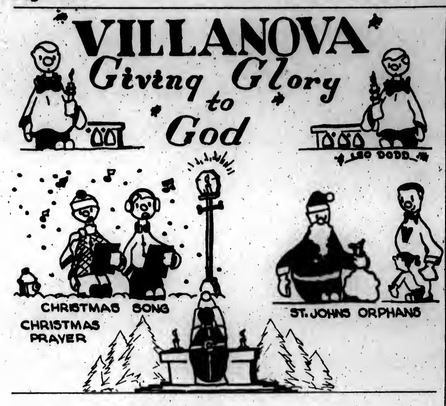
Christmas Display Draws Thousands To View Campus

Work has begun on the Christmas lighting display on the campus and once again the decorations are expected to attract thousands of people from Eastern Pennsylvania. Preparations should be completed and the lights turned on by Tuesday of next week. The display is lighted every night thereafter until January 5.



4000 Bulbs

Mr. Loughrey, School Superintendent of Maintenance, estimated that more than 4000 gaily colored bulbs will be used to decorate the trees and shrubs through the front of the campus. The arrangement of the light will be much the same as in preceding years, he announced, with the string of bulbs stretching from the Commerce and Finance building all the way across the campus to O'Dwyer Hall. Each tree will be lighted individually, with special emphasis placed on the blue spruce west of the Chapel. In addition to this the maintenance crew will also place lights around Fedigan and Delurey Halls and possibly other locations on the campus.

First Decorations 13 Years Ago

The decorations were first used on the campus 13 years ago when Mr. Loughery and his men decorated one tree near the chapel. Each year after that more and more lights were added to the display

A Guest Editorial

"Glory To God On High..."

Editor's Note: Christmas-time calls for an editorial. Oftentimes, in writing these editorials we overlook the most simple things and go beyond the obvious into the involved, looking for something to say.

This year, we call in a guest writer. His writings were done some years ago but become more valued through the ages. You will recognize his work and will know where to find the many other examples of it, so readily accessible. This is simple but beautiful, patent yet full of deep meaning.

At that time, there went out a decree from Caesar Agustus, that the whole world should be enrolled. This enrolling was first made by Cyrinus, the governor of Syria; and all went to be enrolled, every one into his own city. And Joseph also went up from Galilee out of the city of Nazareth, into Judea to the city of David, which is called Bethlehem, because he was of the house and family of David, to be enrolled with Mary his espoused wife, who was with child.

And it came to pass, that when they were there, her days were accomplished, that she should be delivered. And she brought forth her first-born Son, and wrapped Him up in swaddling clothes, and laid Him in a manger, because there was no room for them in the inn.

And there were in the same country shepherds watching, and keeping the night watches over their flock. And behold an angel of the Lord stood by them, and the brightness of God shone round about them, and they feared with a great fear. And the angel said to them: "Fear not; for behold I bring you good tidings of great joy, that shall be to all the people; for this day is born to you a Saviour, Who is Christ the Lord, in the city of David. And this shall be a sign unto you: You shall find the Infant wrapped in swaddling clothes, and laid in a manger.

And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly army, praising God and saying: Glory to God in the highest; and on earth peace to men of good-will.

The Case For Liberal Arts

John Locke complained once that boys were instructed at school in the things that are not needed by them in after life, ("after life" meaning adult life.)

"Reason, if consulted with," said he, "would advise, that children's time be spent in acquiring what might be useful to them, rather than that their heads should be stuffed with a deal of trash, a great part whereof they never think on again."

Are Liberal Arts Trash?

The trash referred to by Locke consists in large measure, of the same courses prescribed in a liberal arts curriculum. The studies of history, languages, philosophy and literature are the liberal arts, or humanities. Because of the tremendous scope of this curriculum, the liberal arts student and the liberal arts college can scarcely be accused of specialization.

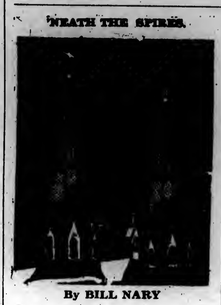
The modern trend of education moves upon the assumption that "the separation of professions and the division of labor tend to the perfection of every art, and to the general well-being of the community." The profusion of specialists within the modern social framework is proof of the fulfillment of this plan in its practical sense.

An Individual Loss

Perhaps the chief criticism of specialization of study was summed up by Coplestone, as quoted by Cardinal Newman in "Idea of a University." There can be no doubt that every art is improved by confining the professor of it to that single study. But, although the art itself is advanced by this concentration, the individual who is confined goes back. The advantage of the community is nearly in an inverse ratio wth his own."

Versatile Intellect

Chancellor Hutchins advances the opinion that the liberal education, if it will not be useful to the student after he leaves the university, will cultivate the intellectual virtues; and the education which does this is the most useful education, for the intellect properly disciplined is an intellect able to operate well in all fields.



The discipline to which Dr. Hutchins refers is the discipline found in the suspended judgment of history, in the perception of ideas in literature and in the problems of analysis in languages. The discipline of the classical education is, so to speak, the groundwork for any learning.

Learn to Learn

The liberal arts man is not proficient in any partcular field. He cannot command a special wage for his special ability. The liberal arts man spends four short years learning how to learn, and discovering the sources of knowledge. Graduation for him marks, as it must mark for everyone, the beginning of his education.

What the liberal arts graduate is fitted to do after he has completed the "formal" part of his education is not an easy question to answer, if it can be answered at all. The very nature of his instruction implies less emphasis on the part of his educators for the means by which he earns his bread. The understanding demands only that the means be ethical, if no other qualifications exist.

The fact is, that technical skill to which he may aspire must be attained after he has graduated. For the liberal arts education is essentially a part of the study of oneself in the light of recorded human experience. It is probably this study which may be said to be the justification of the liberal arts education.

By BILL NARY

Anatole of France once wrote a rather moving story of a poor, ignorant juggler who plied his trade in France a few centuries ago. From this narrative can be gained a lesson of what the spirit of the coming season really means.

Many of you know the story of the humble juggler who was admitted to a monastery by a benevolent prior and who was greatly disturbed at having no fine gift to give the Blessed Virgin on Christmas Day. As the story developed, Barnaby finally stood on his head before the altar of the Mother of God and juggled his copper balls and shinning knives as best he could. This truly pleased the Blessed Virgin, for she, herself, descended to that very altar to wipe his sweating brow with the hem of her robe. She was so grateful and overjoyed that this poor ignorant man who, having so little to give, nevertheless, gave it all.

Ought you not stop and wonder what you have to give in comparison? There are countless homeless, poor, needy, suffering people whose souls would be filled with great joy were you to extend them even the smallest part of what you possess. Yes, it is in your power to cause a wonderful feeling of exultation in your fellow men which, being done, will in turn create a commensurate one in you; for who can give without likewise receiving?

So, before December 25th ask yourself two questions: What have I to give? What will I give? Then, on Christmas, be able to say: "I have really given of myself commendably!"

The Saga Of A Rug

By BILL CARROLL

Our captain has been on this ship for several years. In his travels he had managed to acquire a number of unusual souvenirs. One of his most valuable articles was a most singular Hindu prayer rug of unique design and striking color. It had a history that sounded like a chapter from the "Arabian Nights".

Operation "Wash-Out"

During a trip home the "old man" elected to wash out his priceless bit of carpetry. With the help of a sailor he spread the "treasure" out on a hatch cover and proceeded to scrub it. After ministering to the gem of floor covering for an hour or so, the captain had one of his boys, break out a fire hose for the purpose of washing the soap out of the rug.

Fate Plays The Hose

The "old man", poised on top of the hatch, with the rug reflecting its soapy beauty, made a memorable picture. With a light, happy note in his ordinarily strong voice he directed the sailor to turn on the water, thus to wash out the accumulated dirt of the centuries. The ablution, he felt, would reveal new colors in his priceless rug, but the scene that followed beggars description.

Issuing from that fire hose was a mixture of oil and bilge water. The startled hoseman, after thoroughly inundating the carpet with this noxious mixture, realized the mistake and quickly diverted the stream upward and away from the now ruined masterpiece of thread and twine. Not similar in nature to the first unfortunate, was the next victim of the stream. On the contrary, it was very much alive, and what was worse, 'twas very much the captain.

"To Injury We Add This"—!

After the hose had been turned off the captain, flushed red with anger, seized an end of his rug and dragged it slowly ste rnward. The soliloquy that accompanied the trip aft smacked strongly of uncontrolled ranting of a man bereft of reason. Reaching the stern he stood up to the rail, and with a great flourish committed his once peerless possession to the deep.

There he stood in a restrained silence for a moment, when he turned around, he was confronted by a desperate little man who was excitedly narrating the disjointed tale of another tragedy. The litte man was the steward just returned from "washing-out" his newly scrubbed refrigerator compartments. The engineer, the responsible party, was sent for, and what followed can be easily appreciated by exercising a little imagination!

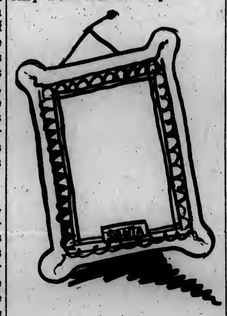
Spirit Of Christmas



Help Bring Santa Claus To Orphanage

How do you do. Let me introduce myself. I am the artist who painted that picture of Santa Claus.

I understand that it is a little hard to appreciate since it is a picture of an invisible Santa Claus but I wanted to give you the same feeling that a lot of people are going to experience all over the world, during this Christmas time. Santa Claus is not made of flesh and blood, actually Santa s a feeling. He is the feeling one receives when he does something for some one. Our religion calls it charity. The world spins 'round on charity.

Non-Existing Santa

At St. John's Orphanage, many a little boy will be gazing at invisible Santas unless something is done to make this feeling of doing something for someone — real. Most of the boys at St. John's don't believe in a Santa Claus, not because they think that he never existed, but as one boy said to me, "at one time he existed, but he died quite a while ago." How can you blame such an attitude. One boys at the orphanage did not have a chance to leave the school for an entire year—no one came to take him out and the number of visitors only went a little way.

Every year, when the birth of Christ is celebrated again, huge machines stop rolling, farmers lay down their tools, the gigantic commercial titians lay down and slumber — everyone is at peace with his neighbor and himself. Right then and there, Santas are born again, dead Santas are risen, all over the world, in every odd little nook and corner.

Immortal Santa

Santa Claus will never die, people are only people and they will never get over the thrill of doing things for one another. Let us not hinder the birth of a 1948 Santa at St. John's rather let us give him all the blood plasma he needs.

We need money—not a lot, just enough from each student to put a patch in Santa's quilt pants. Drop a coin in the little bell banks you see floating around the school—you won't feel it but the orphans will.

The money will be used for a big Christmas party, to be given this Wednesday, for all the orphans, in the name of the Villanova students.

PHILOPOTRIAN & PLAYERS

by Kaiser & Richards

Philopatrian Theater Guild

The Philopatrian Theater Guild a "little theater" doing large theater productions which would be of interest to those who enjoy something that is better than average. This group while still in the growng stage has produced a number of plays with a marked degree of success.

Three years ago this group banded together in order to replace a negative theory of "don't see this or that" with a positive one. The members of the Philopatrian Theater Guild believe that it is much better to recommend plays than to condemn them. The best way, and possibly the only way to recommend is to produce acceptable plays in their own playhouse at Saint Edward's Theater, 7th. and York Streets. The theater has had a long history and has housed many good theatrical groups. One thought should be made clear immediately, and that is that the hall is really built to produce plays. It is constructed in a way to give all with a large stage.

Another distinguishing feature is that this group welcomes new plays and endeavors to present as many of these as possible during the regular six-month season. At the moment they are trying to establish a repertory of ten one-act plays which may be produced at a moment's notice to give Guild members an opportunity to gain experience and confidence in all phases of the theater.

This month's selection was "CHRISTMAS IN THE MARKET PLACE", a nativity play in two parts, by Henri Gheon. It was without doubt one of the most unusual and cleverest plays that this column has seen on the subject. Briefly, the plot concerns a band of gypsy players who act the Nativity in the market place, each member of the troupe taking several roles. Adults and children of Saint Edward's parish offered the musical background of popular Christmas carols.

"I REMEMBER MAMA", recent hit of Broadway and screen, will be the January selection. It is to be given on January 20th., 21st. and 22nd.

An invitation is extended to all those who have some degree of talent or technical skill to join in active membership with the Guild. Also, those who live in or about Philadelphia can become subscribing members of the Guild and receive a series of ten admission tickets. For additional information write to Mr. W. L. H. Bunker, 715 Spruce Street, Philadelphia 6, Pa.

Not far from the location of the first theater in Philadelphia another "little theater" has been in operation for 29 years. The Neighborhood Players, sponsored by the Neighborhood Center, can claim the distinction of having one of the first 'little theaters" in Philadelphia.

Its present location, 422 Bainbridge Street, is a small theater of fewer than one hundred seats; its stage is small but the accomplishments are big.

Villanova's Christmas Tale

by Nowlan, Metzger & Mulkeen

Christmas Cast:
Scrooge—John Mallick
Tiny Tim—John Sandusky
Marley's Ghost—Leo Wolf
Bob Cratchit—Jack Pleban
Christmas Past—Phil Richards
Christmas Present—Jim McCarey
Christmas Future—Jules Kurtz
Scrooge's Nephew—Hugh Johnson
Alms Collector—Dan Robinson

Bob Pleban Cratchit sat sweating over his desk as his boss Scrooge stomped out the can of sterno. "Tomorrow's Christmas", he said, "how about a special issue.". "Bah, humbug" said Cratchit. "Drop dead,, said Scrooge who was angry because his three ghost writers were corny. The Christmas bells were tinkling in the background—only ten minutes more until the last class before Christmas. "Bah humburg" said Scrooge as Marley's ghost, Leo Wolf, came dribbling out of the typewriter. (NOTE: Marley was Scrooge's partner but was killed crossing Lancaster Pike at Ithan Avenue, back in 1948 B. R. (Before Redlight) Scrooge stormed out of the office into the street.

"Bah! humbug" he said because he neglected to open the door.

Scrooge's nephew (Hugh Johnson) who was the real "brains" of Scrooge's business pulled up in his new Cadillac and said, "Hop in, unk", we're off!" "Bah, humbug," said Scrooge, "I already know that". It was Christmas eve. even the blinking traffic lights were flashing green and gold. On Donder, on Blitzer, on the 18th of April in '75—well, that's another story—Pulling up in front of Alumni hall, they were accosted by alms collector, Dan Robinson, who was collecting money to build an old home for new photography editors. "Bah, humbug" said Scrooge. "You make more money than I do now."

Scrooge was so mad that his hair was standing on his head. He got out of his nephew's car and went into his house.

Scrooge was tired, for he had worked hard that day. He picked up the paper to read and since it was the VILLANOVAN he was soon fast asleep. In Scrooge's house NEARLY EVERYBODY READS THE VILLANOVAN. Soon the figure of a ghost crept into his slumber—The ghost of Christmas Past (Phil Richards) who took him on a tour of the campus. The first person met was Tex Houston. The ghost asked him—Do you read CATS PAWS. Joe said "Why no, I don't even read the VILLANOVAN.

So they moved on into the Pie Shop where the Ghost of the Present (Jim McCarey) was drinking Louie's coffee—black coffee — in honor of those who had drunk before.

The new ghost took him to meet (meet—meat—how did that get into the Pie Shop?) Tom Van Brunt and again the ghost asked—What do you think of CATS PAWS "Pritty sharp", he said—no, no, I mean the CAT'S PAW in the VILLANOVAN." Oh, that! It's the only column I can't understand — Pardon me, I have to leave, here come those men in white coats again."

Scrooge was then taken to see the Ghost of Bigger and Better Things (Jules Kurtz). This ghost of Christmas Future brought up the same question to George Guida. "You have to be fast to keep up with a thing like that," he said, "but I'm not quite as fast as that".

"What a horrible dream,"Scrooge said as he awoke—with all the people in the world to dream about—why did I have these three??? Just then a knock came on the door. "Bah, humbug" Scrooge said as the door opened. "Who are you?" I am Tiny Tim Sandusky," said a small voice and I have come to tell you I have tackled all situations up till now but I cannot fight a line like this.

And, with the spirit of good will at Christmas, Scrooge picked up Tiny Sandusky on his shoulders and carried him outside to look at the Three Ghost writers who were going to be decorated.

THE 5TH COLUMN

By HUGH JOHNSON and HARRY JACOBS

Dear Fran and Bobbie:

We're glad you asked us to describe dear ol' Villanova College here on the eve of Christmas because we feel that maybe there are other readers who also have the same interest in our Alma Mater. So here goes:

With only three more exam-packed school days before the start of the holiday vacation, the natural topic of discussion is Christmas, with all of its implied manifestations. Little groups about the campus are putting the final touches to their plans for joint celebrations in the various cities—all the way from Miami, to St. Louie, Rochester and Boston.

Even the grounds themselves are conducive to the season. Like the town of Bethlehem, Villanova, too, has "turned on its lights". (All we need now is the snow . . .).

But the Holiday season could very easily be marred by the quarterly marks which are just about due on the home fronts. In fact, things are so bad that at a recent convocation of the student body, Fr. Dwyer, our dean, gave us the word . . . either we put our noses to the grind or get the axe.

The name "Wildcats" has been pretty prominent in sporting circles this year with lots more to come. As you most probably know, our football team was listed by the Associated Press in their final weekly ratings. And of course, there's that Harbor Bowl game on January 1st, against Nevada way out west in dear old San Diego.

Even more than football, though the main topic on the sports chatter agenda is our basketball team. "Sure, they'll lose one or two games—maybe even three or four—it's hard to picture any basketball team in the country winnin' them all—but you can be sure they could look good against any—any team in the country . . . " Words like "Gardens" and "Team of the year" . . . Maybe! ! At least we all here sure do hope so.

Recently we had a little trouble here at school. One of our classmates was hit by a car, a bus, and the same car again. And, you may remember, it wasn't the first accident to take place in front of our Field House. So, the students, fed up to the ears with the red tape involved in getting a traffic light for that intersection, staged an effective road block until action was assured. Today, thanks to that spontaneous demonstration of collegiate solidarity, Lancaster Pike is safe for Villanova, (and Rosemont, too).

We'll run on as space will allow). Our Senior Prom, with Howard Lanin's band, will be held on 14 January. For some of us, it'll also be a graduation dance as over 100 seniors finish their work by 22 January . . . Our new library, a building of which all of us are proud, should be opened and ready to function by the opening of the spring semester . . . The biggest joke discussed here at Villanova is the movie called "Apartment for Peggy" . . . "You're all I want for Christmas" tops the juke-box hit parade . . . most everybody smokes Chesterfields; goes to Fords for entertainment and to the Hamburg Hearth for "excellent cuisine".

WVIL, our own radio station, is operating almost as smoothly as a professional outfit now with programs that the average college students like to hear. Next year, WVIL and the Belle Masque, our dramatic society, are going to co-operate in presenting some of the old and neo-classics without the drudgery of commercials, which should prove interesting.

Well . . . guess that does it for now. Naturally, we extend to you, to all of Villanova and to all its friends, especially Sr. M. Scholastica of Mt. St. Francis, up in Peekskill, N. W., (who always remembers us), a very Merry Christmas and prosperous New Year. So, with oceans of love, we remain your Philadelphia correspondents . . .

HUGHIE and HARRY,
(Frank and Dan)

"Villanova Response . . Godsend"

Sister Gertrude Marie of St. John's Orphanage, 49th and Wyalusing, said today that Villanova's response to a request for assistance in giving the orphans a chance to "see Santa Claus" has been a real Godsend. She mentioned that close to forty children have benefitted to date and more calls are coming in daily, to BAring 2-1210, the phone number at the orphange.

Doing a bit better, Villanovans are arranging a big Christmas party to be provided for the orphans from funds contributed by students in classroom donations. Contributions are still being accepted to help fill the "bell Banks" you see placed in the Pie Shoppe.

The Santas of many downtown stores were visited by St. John's orphans escorted by Villanovans the past week. The visits were noticeably enjoyed by all concerned, though the stamina of the children seemed to exceed that of the students.

Permanent Naval Reserve Commission Given To Six

Several weeks ago six persons at Villanova received their permanent appointments in the Naval Reserve. Among them were three priests who were appointed permanent Lieutenant Commanders n the.Chaplain Corps of the USNR. Their appointments were received through the Office of the Professor of Naval Science, and they were sworn in by Capt. Thomas C. Thomas, USN, Professor of Naval Science at Villanova.

Rev. Ralph E. Handran, OSA. Rev. John J. Daley, OSA, and Rev. Michael J. O'Donnell, OSA, received their permanent appointments on November 22nd. They had been released from active duty during the Spring of 1946.

Charles H. Nugent, a Junior in Pre-Law, received his permanent appointment as Lieutenant (JG) USNR. Nugent was released from the Naval Air Corps, in November of 1945.

Joseph P. Healey and Roland M. Marshall both released from active service in the Merchant Marine in July of 1946 were also made permanent Lieutenants, (jg), USNR.

Villanova IRC To Meet at Rosemont

At a recent meeting, Mr. Leo A. Donn, the club's new moderator, outlined a program of activities that includes participation in radio programs, telecasts, forums, and panel discussion groups and cooperation with such organizations as the Foreign Policy Association, and the United Nations Council. NFCCS Unit Meets; Plans Relief Drive For Near Future

Last Sunday afternoon a meeting of the regional council of the Philadelphia division of the National Federation of Catholic College Students was held at Manor College, one of the newer girls' colleges, situated in North Philadelphia.

The opening item on the agenda to be discussed was the organization of a plan of action for the Philadelphia district in the Student Relief Drive which will commence in the near future.

Spiritual Bouquet

The principal theme of the convocation was a plan in the best possible manner to offer the Spiritual Bouquet for the intention of The Holy Father. The Bouquet is to be divided into three phases: Rosary, Benediction, and Communion. Throughout the United States similar observances of this type are to be offered for this purpose.

Villanova's representatives, Dan McGrath and Kevin McChesney, are planning N.F.C.C.S. activities for the college which will begin directly following the Christmas holidays.

This was the final session of the Greater Philadelphia N.F.C.C.S. unit for 1948.

Choral Club Gives First Recital

Last Sunday evening the Villanova Glee Club gave its first recital of the season at the Philopatrian Club on December 12th. On this occasion the Glee Club presented a portion of the entertainment at the International Catholic Students Assocation Congress. The program consisted namely of Christmas carols.

At the present time the Glee Club has thirty members. The president is Henry Houseman; the secretary, William Miller.

The concert orchestra has begun practice under the direction of Rev. Ralph E. Handran, OSA, to fulfill a schedule of ten concerts at nearby colleges, including Chestnut Hill, Rosemont and Immaculata. Each concert will include selections by the Glee Club, the orchestra and the combined groups.

We'd like to take this opportunity to wish all Villanovans a Blessed Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Seniors Set Dinner Dance Price at $7.50; Expect 400

Dinner Dance Committee chairmen, Gene Kelly, and Mike McCarthy, announced today that ticket prices for the Seniors have been set at $7.50 per couple. The Stephen Girard Hotel's main ballroom will be the site of the affair which is scheduled for Saturday evening, January 15, the day following the Belle Air Ball,

To Accommodate 400

It was also disclosed that there will be accommodations for over four hundred people. Ticket chairman, Vince Pedano, predicts that expected brisk ticket sales will quickly use up the supply of available tabs.

Final seating plans are being drawn up early this week, with initial vending of the ducats beginning subsequent to the completion of that necessary procedure.

Choosing Orchestra

The choice of orchestra to provide the music for dinner and dancng has not yet been made public, pending the signing of the final contract. Decoration plans, likewise, have not yet been set up. Chairmen of these sub-committees point out that budget requrements place limitations on the scope of their financial working field.

Clubs Addressed By Personnel Man

Last night Mr. William Breen, personnel manager of the Philadelphia and Camden A&P Stores, addressed the combined membership of the DPE Fraternity and the Industrial Relations Club. Mr. Breen spoke on various phases of labor management topics.

Prior to the discussion The IRC held a business meeting to start a dues drive so that a banquet may be held at the close of the school year. Plans were also formed for a tentative trip to Washington next semester. The purpose of ths trip is to visit the offices of the CIO, OF of L, Secretary of Labor, the Capitol and committee hearings.

Bill Stern To Broadcast Harbor Bowl Game Jan. 1

In what is expected to be one of the most thrilling, high scoring, and wide-open post-season games ever held, the Villanova Wildcats will clash with a passing University of Nevada eleven on New Year's Day in the Harbor Bowl at San Diego, California.

While only a few students will be able to make the trip, all will be able to listen to the game on their radios since it was announced last week that Bill Stern, dean of American sportcasters, will broadcast the game over the NBC network. For the Wildcats, this is the third game of the year to be broadcast over a nationwide hookup.

SCOTT BEASLEY.

Team Leaves Dec. 26th

Question of the hour is "How is Mr. Stan Heath going to be stopped?" Only one team this past season has been able to accomplish that feat. That team was Santa Clara and they frankly admit that without a stiff wind, it might not have happened. All-American Heath and his favorite pass catching end Scott Beasley, plan to leave for Hawaii immediately after the game for another post-season tilt in the 49th State Bowl on Jan. 5th.

The 'Cats will entrain for the West Coast on the day after Christmas. They were given their choice of traveling by plane or train and chose the latter.

28,000 Expected

A capacity crowd of 28,000 is expected to fill the large Balbon Stadium in San Diego. It will be the third time in history that a Wildcat eleven has performed on the Pacific Coast. The first time was in 1937 when Villanova romped over Loyola of Los Angeles, 47 to 0. In 1947, the 'Cats edged out San Francisco, 21-19.

Practice was resumed yesterday, and Coach Olivar is concentrating mostly on improving the pass defense. Weather permitting, the team will work out for a week and a half. While the train stops in Denver, Colorado, for a day, the team will go through a practice session in the mile-high city.

Frosh Score Wins Over Temple High And Brown Prep

The frosh squad remained undefeated last week by trouncing Temple High School 71-38 and barely eking out a win over Brown Prep 60-56.

The "Kittens" in blasting Temple had the tilt under control from start to finish. In the opening seconds Villanova took an immediate lead but Temple came back to tie it up. Angelo Scotese then turned on the juice and the Frosh roared ahead with a comfortable margin which wasn't threatened throughout the night.

Temple pulled all of their tricks out of the bag late in the first half and were scoring at will only momentarily against the Main-liners second division. Coach Bob McDonnell then sent his well known big guns into the fray. Paced by Scotese the Frosh gained their balance and at half time found themselves on the big end of a 33-16 count.

The final chapter spelled doom for the Temple men who had lost some of their earlier vigor and were up against the high spirited fiery frosh. Scotese blasted the iron rim for a grand total of 20 points, thus becoming high scorer for the evening. Tom Brennen and Bill Naimoli backed up Scotese with 12 apiece. Joe Griggs and Bill Beherans netted 10 each.

BEAT PREP

The Frosh collected their third victory in as many by easing out the Brown Frepman 60-56. In one of the wildest games on the "Kittens" record. Joe Griggs and Tom Brennen paced the kittens with eleven points each but Norm Grekin, all public selection from West Philadelphia High, tallied eighteen. The first half was a rip-roaring galaxy with both teams showing plenty of fight and throwing around a lot of talent. The battle was an up and down affair with either side taking the lead throughout. The Villanova freshmen managed to scrape through at half-time leading 32-22.

The second half proved to be a repetition of the first with Villanova trying desperately to maintain the upper hand. They were successful only for a short time however,

ARIZIN GIVEN PLAYER OF WEEK AWARD

Last Monday the Sports Writers' Association of the Philadelphia area selected Paul Arizin, Villanova center, as the outstanding player of the week in the district. The award is given to the player who in the opinion of the writers, performed the finest play in games the previous week.

Scored 19 Points

Arizin, last year's leading scorer, was selected for his work in the opening contest against Loyola College of Baltimore. Although he was ejected from the contest early in the second half, the lean Junior, tallied 19 points only one short of the 20 which were dropped by the 'Cats' Brooks Ricca.

The 6'4" hoopster was the spark of the Blue-White attack during his stay in the encounter. At the end of the first half he had accrued a total of 14 markers and would easily have scored over 25 points had he not been the victim of some debatable whistle-tooting.

PAUL ARIZIN

SHALL WE DANCE!!

Villanova's Joe Hannon attempts a shot against Princeton in Saturday night's tilt in which the 'Cats scored a 47-25 win. The victory brought the Blue-White sklen to three in a row.

Cats Turn Back Terriers, Tigers

Last week the Villanova quintet victimized its third and fourth opponents to continue undefeated. On Wednesday, the Wildcat hoopsters scored an unimpressive win over St. Francis by a 64-48 count while on Saturday the Severancemen, in one of the worst games played at the Field House in the last three years, turned back Princeton, 47-25.

Playing before 1800 fans, many of whom were Brooklynites, the Terriers picked up an early three-point lead but it was quickly overcome when Tommy Sabol dropped his first field goal of the night. Th.s gave the 'Cats a lead which was threatened throughout, but never overcome.

Miss Frequently

In the first frame the homesters, who missed repeatedly from the floor, led by 10 points, but this margin was sliced to 6 points when Tom O'Connor sank a set shot and J m Luisi netted a pair of fouls. The visitors might have forged ahead had it not been for a five-point barrage by Villanova's Paul Arizen, Johnny Weglecki, 'Cat substitute center, added a pair of fouls as the half ended with the Blue-White on the long end of a 28-20 score.

The opening minutes of the second half followed much the same pattern, as had the first 20 minutes, but the 'Cats managed to hold a slight edge over the Terriers. Our Blue-White finally hit their stride. Saboi led the way in the attack with a five-point outbreak. With a 12-point margin, coach Severance cleared the bench. Of the reserves, Dolan looked impressive he he garnered three quick field goals for 6 points.

Sabol Paces Scoring

For the night's work, Sabol split the net for 14 markers, while Arzin had 5 field goals and 2 fouls for 12 points. Brooks Ricca held down third position with 8 points.

Saturday night's win over the Tigers from Princeton proved nothing to local fans except that the boys from Jersey have one of the most unpolished clubs in the East. The game, played before a packed house of 3,000 was marked by poor shooting and inept ball handling on the part of both sides.

Midway in the first period the home team, slowed down considerably by the set style of play of the visitors, lead by only 1 point, 10-9. Arizin then went to work and scored 5 quick points and it was just

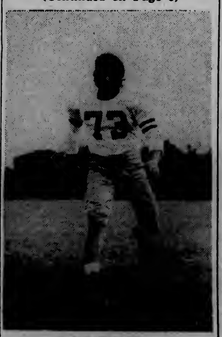
Schedule Announced At Football Dinner; Doherty Honored

Last Wednesday night the Villanova football team was feted by the Villanova Club of Philadelphia at a dinner at the Warwick Hotel. The banquet was attended by over 500 members of the Alumni and friends of the squad.

The occasion which has been given yearly durng the last 27 years, featured many prominent sports figures of the country and included the leading sports writers of the district. Tim Cohane, Sports Editor of Look Magazine, gave the main address of the evening..

Seniors Receive Awards



Thirteen members of the Wildcat football squad, all Seniors, were given miniature gold helmets for their fine work. This award was inaugurated this year by the Philadelphia Club.

The National Alumni Association Award, which is given to the most valuable player of the season, was presented to Mr. Theodore Riemel, '24, President of the Association, to Billy Doherty. Doherty, as everyone knows, was outstanding from the opening kickoff of the Texas A.&M. game until the final whistle sounded at Raleigh where the 'Cats beat North Carolina State University.

ALSO FACE W.-M. DURING VACATION

While the entire campus is heading home for the holidays the Villanova court campaign will continue in full swing with two games on the card. On Saturday evening the Wildcats will head for Bethlehem, Pa. where they will swap shots with the Engineers of Lehigh. Tuesday following Dec. 21, they encounter the William and Mary Indians in the Mainline field house.

Won Only 2

Having had a rather disastrous season during the 1947-48 campaign, Lehigh will attempt to again raise her position to head the "Little Three" of Lehigh, Lafayette, and Rutgers. Coach Dan Yarbro has six lettermen returning from last year's squad which won only two games while losing 16. A 47-44 win over Bucknell and a 68-57 victory over the Merchant Marine Academy were the only bright spots on last season's record.

Villanova Scores Freely

Villanova's 85-45 lacing of the Engineers in '47 was surpassed in scoring only by Army's 88 and Muhlenberg which helped bring the opponents points to 1207 while the luckless Lehighians could muster a mere 844. Yarbo, who is accustomed to producing champions, serves notice that there will be quite a change in results during this, his third season as coach.

The starting array of the present varsity does not boast of a single man over six feet, although several tall reserves were given a good chance of making starting positions before the season, which opened last Saturday against Scranton, got under way.

Geoly, Klucher Back

Last season's two highest scorers, Charley Geoly and Bob "Chuck" Klucher, will be back at their forward posts while Gene Frymoyer, Harry Conway, and Jack Petrone round out the finest five. Geoly popped a total of 148 points last season while Klucher rattled the rim for 108.

Indians Headed for War Path

Returning home on Dec. 21, the 'Cats will find the Indians of William and Mary out for their scalps. The Indians are one of the newcomers on this season's court card and should give Coach Alex Severance and his lads plenty of trouble. The Southeners are undertaking a stiff 20-game program, this year and aided by seven returning lettermen intend to make the best of it.

Among the seven veterans are last year's four highest point producers. John Giermak lead the squad last season when he dunked a cool 304 points in 23 contests. Jim McMillian came behind him with 221 tallies in the same number of contests, while Bob Sokol tickled the tassels for 173 in 17 games. Jack Bunting rounded out the four by just missing the century mark by two digits in 16 battles.

Best Performance Against North Carolina

Last year's team rose to its greatest height when it turned back Western Maryland 75-49 and was held to its lowest score gy the Duke Bluedevils 45-36. W. & M. rang up a total of 1290 points to the opposition's 1158 while winning 14 and losing 10.

Edged by N. C. State

Playing one of their best games of the year, the Indians threw quite a scare into North Carolina's Tarheels before bowing 63-61. This was followed by a 5-game win streak which included a 61-56 win over Wake Forest and a 71-48 mauling administered to the Generals of Washington and Lee. North Carolina State's powerhouse ended their streak with a 78-52 defeat.

Basketball At Villanova; From 1920 To The Present

II

The 1926-27 basketball season was marked by the appearance of a new coach, "Rube" Cashman. Rube, as he was known to everyone, was not a stranger to Villanova, as he had assted Coach McGeehan the previous year in turning out Villanova's most successful baseball team.

Coach Cashman was faced with the problem of replacing George Jacobs, last year's star center. As the season continued Joe Sheehan was named captain of the Blue & White.

Best Textile

Villanova inaugrated the 1926 season with a clean-cut victory over Pharmacy by a score of 23-14. The Wildcats of the Main Line made it two in a row by outclassing Textile to the tune of 29-19. The Blue and White followed up with Osteopathy proving themselves the victor by a count of 38-11.

The Villanova 'Cats continued the season by playing such teams as New York City College, St. John's of Brookyn, St. Joseph's of New York, Temple, Loyola, St. Bonaventure and others. They ended the season with a winning record of-17 wins, while being defeated in contests.

1927-28 Season

Soon after the season's opening, the dreams of the Villanova quintet were shattered by the loss of Chris Lolas, a reliable pivot man, who was stricken with rheumatism. His loss was sorely felt and may have been the cause for the team's unsuccessful efforts to produce a winning club.

The season's opener was played with Textile as guests. At the end of 40 minutes of play, the score was 60-40 in our favor. It was at this game that Joe Barry was appointed captain of the Blue and White.

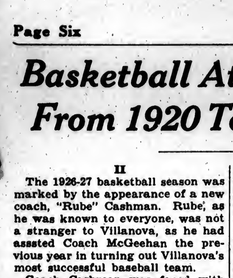
Thereafter, the Villanova five went on to defeat at the hands of Pharmacy, Osteopathy, C. C. N. Y., St. John's of New York, Loyola, not to mention others. The Main Liners ended this season with a record of almost total defeat. While playing 14 games the 'Cats managed to eke out 3 wins.

1928-29 Season

The basketball season was somewhat delayed in getting started this year. The incompletion of Mendel Hall forced the Chemical students to do their laboratory work in the temporary study hall, the "gym". Villanova was forced to use the court of West Catholic High School for the home games.

Wth the start of the season, Hugh Nolan and our present-day coach Alex Severance were named co-captains of the Villanova quintet.

The 'Cats started the court games against a powerful and favored St. Bonaventure's. The confident Blue and White five upset the Saints, 28-17. The Main Liners went on to play the University of Baltimore, Loyola, Manhattan College, University of Pennsylvania, andended the season with St. Thomas of Scranton, where we were defeated 30-29.



This season also ended the coaching chores of "Rube" Cashman at Villanova College.

year and held it throughout his four-year stay at Villanova, was the recipient of the Martin J. McLaughlin Memorial Award. The award is given yearly by the hosts to the man whom his teammates has elected captain of the squad. Last year Al Barker, a sterling guard, captained the squad.

Another "team-chosen" award, the Cyril J. Burke Award, was presented to Ed Berrang for being the "Most Improved Player" of the year. Berrang also received acknowledgement for being selected on the Collier's All-Eastern team.

KYW Award To Doherty

Doherty was again called upon to receive the KYW award for being the "Outstanding Backfield" man in the Philadelphia area. The presentation was made by Bill Allman, KYW's ace sportscaster, who complimented the Wilmington, Del., quarterback for his sterling p'ay.

The evening's talks was keynoted by an address by Rev. E. B. McKee, O.S.A., who listed the coming campaign. As the slate stands, the 'Cats will meet Texas A.&M. in the opener at College Station Texas.

Two Open Dates

There are still two open dates which will be filled n the near future. Rumor has it that both teams which the board of athletics is trying to contact will be opponents of high calibre. One of these teams will be at home while the other will be away. This will bring a total of five games at home while the team will make the same number of trips.

Two New Teams

Of the eight teams already scheduled there are two new opponents. These are St. Mary's College of California and Tulsa University of Tulsa, Oklahoma.

Four teams which the Wildcats played during the '48 campaign were dropped from the schedule. These include Miami University, U. S. Military Academy, University of Kentucky and San Francisco University. It was noted, however, that Kentucky's Wildcats will be met again in 1950. This is due to an inability for the two teams to arrange a mutual date for the battle.

The Schedule To Date:

Sept.	16—Texas A. & M.	Away
	24—Open
	30—Detroit	Home
Oct.	8—St. Mary's	Home
	14—Tulsa	Home
	22—Duquesne	Away
	28—Boston College	Away
Nov.	4—Georgetown	Away
	11—Open
	19—N. C. State	Home

a matter of fulfilling the requirement of playing 40 minutes of the game.

Reserves Spark Attack

The pace was somewhat accelerated when the Villanova reserves were sent into the contest. The second stringers, also hampered by inaccuracy, brought the lead to 26-15 as the first half ended.

Reserves Return

The starting team again opened the second half, but were used sparingly by Severance, and the entire squad was summoned to action before the final whistle blew. For the reserves Shy Raiken led the attack with 8 points while Johnny Weglicki tallied 6.

Arizin, who had "6 for 7" at the free throw line, was high with 14 points.

ALUMNI FINISHES FIRST HALF WITH A CLEAN SLATE

Mondschein Inc. and Klucarits

In a game whose outcome was decided in a "sudden death" period, a never-say-die Bks. 2 & 3 team edged Fedigan 49 to 47. Trailing at one time in the second half by 14 points, the Bks. rallied and pulled ahead late in the contest only to see Fed'gan even it up as the regulation game ended.

In the 3 minute overtime period, the Bks. again took the lead but two fast field goals by Steinke, of Fedigan gnotted the count once more at the final whistle. This forced the contest into a "sudden death" period and set the stage for Carol Wills, Bks. forward, who, with a twisting overhand hook-shoot, gave the Bks. the victory.

Carol Is High

Carol was a demon on defense and notched 11 points. The sensational shooting of Joe Seaman pulled the Bks from the brink of defeat in the second half as the flashy forward scored 14 points. Ray Petit, coach of Fedigan, netted 15 points and Steinke 13, in a valiant attempt to pull the contest out of the fire. Mickey Frinzi and Lefty Mondschein officiated.

1-4 Wins

A Bks. 1 & 4 team, which has shown continual improvement with each succeeding game, added Good Counsel to their list of victims by dropping the latter 47-36. The outcome was closely contested and the score was tied at 32 all with five minutes to go. At this point Tom Flynn, Bks. ace, took personal charge of the scoring as he whipped in three quick goals to knock the fight out of Good Counsel.

Aiding Flynn in the point making chores were Tom Madonia and Frank Breslin, with 12 points apiece. Despite his team's loss, Mark Weber played an outstanding brand of ball, as he has all season, and notched 12 points. Jimmy Moore of Good Counsel was the fastest man on the floor and connected for 5 field goals and continually intercepted passes to offset the fine play-making of Frank Breslin. Jack Jamison and Ed Doyle refereed.

Alumni Unbeaten

Alumni finished the first half of the season unbeaten by whipping an outplayed but not outfought Mendel Five, 65-35. The entire Alumni squad broke into the scoring with Frank Buckley and Jerry Norton leading the parade with 14 points each. Becotte of Mendel again led his team in scoring by copping 5 field goals. Alumni amassed the amazing average of 66 3 points per game for the seven games played in the first half. Mickey Frinzi and Lefty Mondschein officiated.

Austin Runner-up

Austin ended the first half in runner-up spot with a 6 and 1 record. The Doms were the sixth consecutive victims of the Austin onslaught, bowing 41 to 28. Both teams scoring was well distributed and no individual player broke into the double scoring column. Al O'Brien, Doms captain and outstanding player, sustained an ankle injury early in the second half and could not continue. Altman and Bennett were the referees.

then the Brown Prepers, with Grekkin ,opened up. They snatched the lead and began to pour it on. The Kittens, finding themselves in a difficult situation, threw everything but the kitchen sink into their attack. Brown Prep weakened momentarily, just long enough to lose their foothold. Bill Beherans gave the frosh a sizeable margin of six points and Villanova was now the temporary master of the tilt. The Preppmen, however, could not be counted out and came charging back to throw a wet blanket on Villanova's somewhat ' fiery offensive again coming through to take the lead.

The frosh set up a spider web defense and Brown Prep was unable to penetrate its fierd formation. Stewart sunk another field goal which sifted through the net as the gun called an end to this sensational game that Villanova barely won, 60-56.

SPORTS CHATTER

By Bill Canino, Sports Editor

The Passing Parade . . . Much has been said, pro and con, about Villanova's participation in the Harbor Bowl on January first. Many fans believe that it is hardly worth our trouble to travel 3,000 miles to play in such a minor post season tilt. However, now that it is fact, not hearsay, that Bill Stern will broadcast the battle, it should be evident that much recognition will be given to the game throughout the country.

Stern, probably the greatest sportscaster of the day, had his choice between the 'Gator and the Harbor Bowls. It is doubtful that he would have chosen the latter had he believed that it would be an unimportant game.

This is a big chance for Villanova to become recognized to the general public who despite our consistently good clubs, have overlooked us. I doubt that there is a football follower among us who, at sometime or another, hasn't listened to a game just because Bill Stern, in his incomparable way, is broadcasting.

Out at Penn State, there are many red faces since it was made known recently that the Nittany Lions had received an offer to play in the Harbor Bowl. The reason for refusing to participate was that the bowl "lacked the established, reputable qualities of other bowls". It was also mentioned that the whole thing was just a "fly-by-night bowl scheme." This brought much consternation among the State College fans especially since Villanova accepted the bid.

The Basketball Scene . . . Thanks to the schedulemakers, Villanova's hoopsters have gone through two weeks of play unscathed. Saturday night the 'Cats recorded their worst shooting average of the season. In all the Blue-White took 72 shots at the hoop but were able to connect on only 17 of these attempts which is 23.6%. Fortunately, the visiting Princeton five had a meager 13.4 average from the floor. The Tigers sank only 9 out of their 66 "flings" at the basket.

The play of Paul Arizin gave us some elation, however. Paul had "4 for 9" from the floor and made 6 out of his 7 penalty shots. Brooks Ricca did well afield as he connected on 4 of his 7 shots but his floor work left much to be desired. Hannon had one of the worst nights of his collegiate career. Usually good for a long set shot or two, Joe missed all of his 10 shots for the basket.

The Frosh . . . Previously this column has made no mention of the Freshmen basketball squad but after seeing them turn in a fine job in whipping a strong Brown Prep five, we think we should give a hand to "Maj" McDonnell and his boys. The most promising yearling on the squad, we think, is Tom Brennen. This tall center from Brooklyn has displayed the finest defensive ability in all three contests and is a constand threat from the keyhole. The fans "fair-haired boy", Joe Griggs, comes up with a new shot in every game and can easily be the teams highest scorer even though he doesn't start. Bill Beherens had a bad night Saturday but comes up with many a fine shot and should develop into a fine point-getter.

Angelo Scotese, Southern High luminary, is a fine prospect for the years to come. Scotese has a nice eye and does a good job under the boards. On Wednesday night he was high man with 20 points. Ralph Naimoli, another Philadelphia product, is a speed merchant with a better than average eye. His drive may well overcome his height disadvantage.

Ten Join Tertiary Order

The silence that permeated the Villanova campus on the Feast of the Immaculate Conception was witness to an impressive ceremony which occurred in Saint Mary's Hall. For the first time in the history of the college, ten Villanovans went in a body to "seek the mercy of God and of the Third Order Secular of the Order of Hermits of Saint Augustine."

Secular Tertiaries

Members of this Order, commonly called the Secular Tertiaries, live in the world and strive after Christian perfection in a manner consistent with secular life and in obedience to rules approved for them by the Holy See. They are not, properly speaking, religious, since they do not take the public vows of poverty, chastity and obedience, nor do they profess a common life. They differ from other lay people, however, in that they have a distinctive rule and garb approved by the Holy See, (in this country, the garb consists of the cincture worn under the clothing). After a year's novitiate the members make a profession and in a manner adapted to the life of persons living in the world, they seek after Christian perfection.

Mass Celebrated

The Mass preceding the reception of the novies was celebrated by Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O. S. A. The seminary choir rendered liturgical hymns in the background. Following the Mass Father Grimes, assisted by Rev. Thomas P. Farrell, O. S. A., in the presence of Rev. Henry J. Eagan, O. S. A., Director of the Third Order, removed the coats fro meach of the novicec saying, "May the Lord divest thee of the old man with his acts." Then vesting the men in the habit, he continued, "May the Lord clothe these with the new man, who according to God, is created in justice and holiness of truth." Girding the men with the Cincture, he added: "Receive this Cincture about your waist that your loins may always be girt as a sign of temperance and chasity."

Fraternity of the Church

In his concluding remark, Father Grimes reminded the men . . . that . . . "There are many clubs and fraternities on campus, however, you are members of The Fraternity, the Fraternity of the Church. You will not wear a ring or pin, but you will have for your emblem the heart of your Holy Father Augustine, flaming with love and charity."

The step taken by these men is indeed noteworthy, for from that day on the Third Order, canonically established as a collegiate body, will function as a means for charitable works, as a source of charitable and spiritual works of mercy.

Ben Stewart is the most consistent player on the squad. A good man under the backboards. "Stew" handle's himself well at every turn. Rounding out the group of men who were in on the Brown Prep win is Joe Maguire. Joe, who also hails for New York, displayed a deadly eye from far out in Saturday's tilt. He sank four of his five shots and added two fouls for a total of 10 points.

McKee, Ross, One, Three at Camden

"Like father, like son", is a saying we've all heard many times but it took Charlie McKee, smooth Wildcat distance man, to give us a modern proof of the old adage. Charlie and roommate Browning Ross made a storybook finish of the 26th annual Camden YMCA handicap street run of 4.7 miles a week ago Saturday.

McKee, running for the Margate AA, won the race by 75 yards to following in the footsteps of his father, Charles (Ernie) McKee who captured the event in 1925, when Charlie was only a year old. In third place, running for the South Jersey Track and Field Club, came Browning Ross who took the time prize. In taking the time prize, Brownie shaved 28 seconds off the 13-year-old record he missed breaking by one-tenth of a second two seasons ago.

Charlie took the lead a half mile from the finish and won 75 yards ahead of John Wernik, South Jersey T&F in the elapsed time of 27:27.0, having been handicapped at 3:40. At the finish, he was greeted by his father, Margate AA coach, and his mother who, twenty-two years ago had held Charlie in her arms while the elder McKee triumphed in the same race.

In peak form, Ross was the last to start as he was heavily handicapped at 5 minutes and 30 seconds, the only scratch runner among the 72 finishers.

Fr. Coffey To Conduct 106th Annual Retreat

Retreat Begins Monday, January 24, Ends With High Mass On Thursday

On Monday, January 24th, the students of Villanova will begin their 106th annual retreat. The retreat will continue for three days, and close with a Solemn High Mass, Thursday morning. Rev. John J. Coffey, O.S.A., will be Retreat Master.

The retreat, taking place between semesters, will be a period in which students will take time out from studies and other campus activities to examine their activities of the past year with a view to improving their life before God and man in the coming year.

Retreat officially begins Monday at 9:30 A. M. in the Field House with the opening conference, although mass will be celebrated earlier for those who wish to attend. Conferences will be held at 9:30 A. M., 11:00 A. M., and 2:00 P. M. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Holy Hour will conclude the exercises each afternoon at 3:15 P. M.

Students

All Catholic students are requested to obtain their Retreat envelope at the Chaplain's Office getween 9:00 A. M. and 5:00 P. M. on Wednesday or Thursday of this week.

Special arrangements have been made with the P. and W. Co. to run trains from 69th Street, arriving at Villanova in time for the opening conference on Monday and for Mass on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. These trains will stop at the Villanova Stadium station. Arrangements have also been made for trains that will leave the Stadium station immediately after Holy Hour in the afternoon.

Rev. John J. Coffey, O. S. A., who will conduct the retreat is the Master of Professed Clerics at St. Mary's Hall, and has acted as Retreat Master for many retreats throughout the Philadelphia area. (Fr. Coffey's letter to the students making the retreat appears on page 2).

Following Holy Hour on Wednesday afternoon the Blessed Sacrament will be exposed on the alter in the gym and, as last year, the resident students will participate in all-night adoration, until the closing

Requiescat In Pace

The student body and the Villanovan extends their sympathy to Fr. Thomas P. Purcell, OSA, Assistant College Chaplain, and Vincent Pedano, Circulation Manager for the Villanovan, on the deaths of their fathers during the holidays.

Second Issue of Lynx Out; On Sale Now To Students

The Fall issue of the Lynx, campus literary magazine, was distributed just before the Christmas holidays but the editors hope the postponement has not dampened the unprecedented enthusiasm of the student body for this publication. The magazine is now on sale in Mendel Hall. During the remainder of the week another subscription drive will be held for those students who were unable to buy a subscription during the last campaign.

Explains Delay

Principally, the reason for the delay of the issue has ben the overabundance of material from which the final copy was selected. Students are urged to submit any suitable material they may have as there is a constant need for poems, short stories, essays or articles of any literary value. Letters to the editor are also welcome. These statements come from Paul O'Brien, editor-in-chief.

The editorial staff of the Lynx promises to have the next issue on the stands on schedule, said Fr. McShea, faculty moderator.

Final Examinations Begin Monday; Announce Next Registration Date

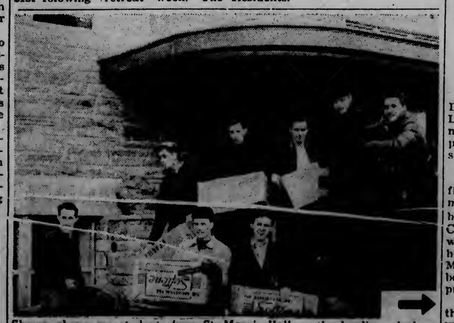
For Villanova students the coming month will be a busy one as they finish one term, make a retreat and begin a new semester.

Next week, beginning Monday, January 17th, will be examination week.

The examination schedule appears elsewhere in the paper. Course number, times, and places are listed.

The week following, will be devoted to the annual retreat which all Catholic students are obliged to attend. Opening at 9:30 A. M. on Monday, January 24th, the retreat will conclude Thursday morning with solemn High Mass.

Registration for the Spring term of 1949 will begin Monday, January 31st folowing retreat week. The registration schedule is as follows:



Monday, Jan. 31st — Freshmen Non-residents.

Tuesday, Feb. 1st—Sophomores, Juniors, Non-residents.

Wednesday, Feb. 2nd—Seniors, Non-residents.

Thursday, Feb. 3rd—Freshmen, Sophomores, Residents.

Friday, Feb. 4th—Juniors, Seniors, Residents.

STORM DOES WHAT WOLFPACK COULDN'T; GRIDDERS MAROONED

Train Stalled by Snow in Green River, Wyo.

After whipping the highly-touted Nevada University football team in San Diego, California, on New Year's day, the Villanova squad embarked on one of its most hectic trips. Boarding a Northern route train on the Sunday after the game, the boys have been treated to more snow, than they have ever seen.

Slowed by Blizzards

The Far West and Midwest have been plagued by blizzards and severe cold weather for the past two weeks. Transportation has been brought to a virtual standstill, and the train carrying the team was not excepted. It was slowed down by snowstorms several times, and finaly stalled completely in Green River, Wyoming, along with five other trains.

Many Stranded

Our athletes had plenty of company as the East All-Stars football squad, the Hamline basketball team and the U. of Michigan hockey team were also stranded. For two days the team was isolated with 1200 other people in the small town.

The Villanovans made the best of a bad situation. The trains were crowded with college students including many co-eds returning from the holiday vacations. Until the time of publication the football team was still in a temporary "Valley Forge," at Green River, Wyoming.

Senior's Theme Is Winter Wonderland

To Dine and Dance on Saturday Nite; Sales Stop Today

Members of the Class of '49 are brushing up on their best table manners in anticipation of the coming Senior Dinner Dance to be held in the main ballroom of the Stephen Girard Hotel, on Saturday evening.

The dinner, the second such affair sponsored by the class in the last year is scheduled to begin promptly at eight o'clock. George Young's orchestra will supply music for dancing.

Candlelight Dinner

The Stephen Girard, located at 20th and Chestnut Sts., is situated in a position where suitable automobile parking space is abundant. Tall candles placed on each table will carry through the "candlelight-dinner" plan.

Speeches Limited

Co-chairmen, Mike McCarthy and Gene Kelly, said that, in addition to class members, there would be only four invited guests present. These include: Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, college president; Rev. E. B. McKee, vice-president; Rev. E. F. Grimes, college chaplain, and Rev. T. A. Burke, class moderator. Speeches will be held to "a minimum".

Ticket Sales End Today

Ticket sales will stop today at

Snow Scene Setting Expected to Insure Pre-Prom "Sellout"

Transforming the Field House into a near-perfect imitation of an arctic icecap, the decorations committee for the coming senior promenade revealed the theme a "Winter Wonderland". Dancing will start at nine o'clock on Friday evening and last on into Saturday morning for an hour.

John Scopetta, chairman of the group in charge of decorating the gym, stated that the theme evolved as a natural outcome of the winter season. It was first shelved because of anticipated budget limitations, but was picked up again as the best possible idea when various preliminary problems were solved.

Never Used

The chairman in charge of all sub-committees, Robert Stoelker, pointed out that the winter scene has not been used in the past to the best of his knowledge. The theme of the last dance sponsored by the Class of '49 was the very popular "Parisian Street Scene".

An elaborate program booklet, bound in leather, will be handed to each couple at the door. Printing is now in progress acording to James Plunkett, in charge of obtaining sponsors.

Sales Good

Ticket sales are going along at a "better than fair" rate acording to Anthony Scarpa, who has directed vending of the ducats both in the Pie Shoppe and in Mendel Hall ticket alcove. On being asked how most students felt about the $5.40 selling price, he mentioned that those who understood the financial problems involved in staging an affair of the size anticipated, considered the dance a "good buy."

Limiting sales to five hundred was done to prevent overcrowding on the dance floor, according to Frank McBride and Joe Hennessey publicity chairmen.

Music by Lanin

The music by Howard Lanin and his orchestra will feature the vocal selections of popular and lovely Lee Morgan. Continuous dancing throughout the evening will eliminate bothersome intermissions. In 1948 the same orchestra played to a full house at the Prom held here during Junior Week.

Library Nears Completion; To Open For Spring Term

In an interview last week Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O. S. A., College Librarian, stated that work on the new library is rapidly nearing completion. Work began late in the spring of 1947.

1500 Volumes Moved

Father Falvey said that already fifteen hundred volumes have been moved to their new home. The books, which had been stored in the Commerce and Finance building, were moved during the Christmas holidays by the students from St. Mary's Hall. All of the books have been catalogued and placed on their proper shelves.

During the weeks of the exam and the Retreat, the bulk of the books will be moved from the temporary library in the wing of Austin Hall into the new building. Much of the work of transferring will be done by seminarians while a good share will be performed by students of the college. The Student Council is making arrangements to ask the student body for assistance.

Opens Next Semester

The new library should be in operation at the beginning of the next semester. Although work might not be fully completed at that time, the library will be open for "business." The facilities of the new library are enlarged and its capacity great enough to accomodate the ever increasing enrollment of the college.

Besides offering better library service the structure is one of the most beautiful and imposing buildings on the campus. Landscaping on the library grounds will be done in the spring.

Let's Use It

We asked for it so let's use it. To put "our" traffic light through took a long time and demanded a lot of "pressure". Now, lights are installed at two vital crossings—the one in front of the Field House at Ithan Avenue and Lancaster Pike, the other in front of the chapel at the P. & W. crossing.

But these safety measures, so necessary to our welfare, are being neglected and ignored in some instances. Students have been observed crossing the highway against the light. There is no excuse for it. If anything happens now, only the individual can be blamed. A minute or so isn't too long to wait.

It might be noted also, that observation will show the need for the intelligent use of the pedestrian light at the P. & W. crossing. Indiscriminate stopping of traffic, using the light as a toy, will eventually backfire. Proper use will benefit everyone.

"Time Out"

In this age everything runs at a rapid pace and we can't help wondering if anyone is taking time out to enjoy living. Economic conditions have forced the American people to press to their limit to live comfortably so they cannot be blamed entirely for breakneck speed of modern living.

Here at Villanova "time out" is called just at the moment we need it most. Our Retreat is the perfect "time out". Obviously we have an opportunity that many people never enjoy in a lifetime.—The opportunity to stop and think seriously about our spiritual welfare. When time is called in we will remember that in God is the real fulfillment of life.

This paper is dedicated to one of the finest men who ever entered Villanova: Scholar, athlete, gentleman — LEO GOODREAU

By JERRY MICALLE

"Learn as if you would live forever; live as if you would die tomorrow." Is this sound advice for the freshman of today, and his upper classman? The first half of our piece of adult thought can be seen very easily at this time of the year, because there is so much material that we have "forgotten", and must learn over again for the final exams. If we had learned it properly the first time, learned for a lifetime, we would have eradicated one of our biggest problems of the hour.

But how about the second part" . . . live as if you would die tomorrow?" This, of course, is most sound advice. If we lived with anticipation of death always with us, we could not forget God. We could not fall prey to the devil. Living with our Christ always before us, not one of us could betray Him.

The thing we are trying to get across is that God made us, and He will not forget us, even for a moment, if we are in great need of His graces or simply His regular ration.

Keep close to God; think of Him often. Not only when you pass His House on the hill should you think of him, but often during the day. And don't forget, when you pass the Chapel, stop in and greet Him. Just a little, "Hi Boss, Stick with me, Pal." Have to go now, see you later on."

Retreat Master Offers Greeting

Dear Friend,

In accepting the invitation to conduct your annual retreat I am quite honored and awed; honored, to have even a small part in the formation of your Catholic outlook on life; awed, at the tremendous importance of the few days we shall spend together.

A retreat, primarily, means getting away from the daily routine and viewing the most important issue in life; am I or am I not growing in spiritual stature? Physically or mentally we might "have gone as far as we can go". But spiritually we can and must expand. The question for the retreat is: what actually stunts our spiritual growth? Too much self-centeredness to the exclusion of God? Most likely this is the answer. On the retreat, then, we must learn to become more Christocentric.

To draw close to God, though, a spirit of reflection is a must. We must resolve to dedicate these three days to "thinking about the things of God, in the Presence of God, applying them to ourselves." To ask you not to think at all about personal, social, or intellectual problems may be asking too much; but, at any rate, we do urge that your friendship with Christ. It could be that the problem of your life is a problem, simply because you have failed to talk it over with Him. Don't bypass this opportunity!

Much could be written—both good and bad—about the Apostolic spirit of the men of Villanova. Let this, though, suffice! Over a year ago a man put an ad in a London paper that read: "Wanted—A very capable speaker seeks a first class cause". Could not the VILLANOVAN print this: "Wanted—a first class cause, Catholicism, needs apostolic men!" We feel sure you will also want to do something about becoming more apostolic while making this retreat.

With every desire to help you, and with full confidence that our triangle—you, myself and God—will profit eternally by our meeting with each other, I am,

Sincerely yours, in Christ,
(Signed) John J. Coffey, O. S. A.

Thank You Letters From Orphans

Above are shown a few of the many letters received from the St. John's orphans. They express the gratitude of the young ones to the Villanovan's who made Christmas so enjoyable for them.

Trivia

By BOB CARROLL

The spirit of Christmas is done with for another year—They're posting cut lists again. Those thing just roll on and on, like Niagara and the New Deal. It certainly is disheartening to see so many dear friends listed day after day, especially after we had covered up so well for the majority of them.

Have you noticed how that traffic light gums things up at the Field House intersection? We had to wait a full one minute the other day before crossing. Something could be done about it. What we had in mind was a mass demonstration, say two hundred students, to blockade the pike in shifts, in a protest to have the light removed. We could pull the stunt every day at about five in the afternoon, the busy time. Could also wire a protest direct to the Governor if necessary. It should work. We've seen it done . . .

Sorry to say, the card players haven't lost any of their zip over the holidays. Played a little pinochle the other day and was thoroughly embarrassed. We always thought it best to draw trump, establish the long suit and exist with a meld, in that order. But that's passe. Henceforth, we deal the cards, grab the kitty and run—in that order.

We lost a close friend during the vacation, a fellow most of us knew pretty well. He had ben ailing since the beginning of the term and—well, the most pleasant thing we can say now is that he was well prepared and courageously resigned, and he made a beautiful exit. There was an informal viewing Christmas eve. The Marriage was Christmas morning. Requiescat in pace.

The checks are in—the government's, the post office's and the family's. We haven't cashed ours yet. We want to fondle it a while. It makes nice reading these cold nights.

Letters To The Editor

Mr. Frank Guzikowski
Editor-in-Chief
Villanovan
Dear Sir:

I believe it most fitting and appropriate to take this opportunity to commend and to congratulate Monsieurs Eamon Walsh and Frank MacDonald. These two Villanovans, in response to an article written by nuns from St. John's Orphanage requesting Villanova students to take their wards to see Santa Claus, didn't stop at this request; but they solicited this college and the neighboring merchants to the tune of $650.00 in cash and $180.00 in food and gifts. It can be easily inferred the great deal of time and effort expended for this large collection, which provided the wherewithal for a gala Christmas party for the St. John's youngsters.

I might add that these gentlemen were motivated by their own initiative and charitable desire, and further comment that their actions most certainly bespeak and indicate a fulfillment of the Christian charity inculcated at this institution.

An appreciative Villanovan

In response to numerous requests to the editors of this column, "Town Talk" will faithfully try to adhere to a New Year's resolution of publishing, once a month, a list of where to go and what to see. This list shall be accompanied with as few personal comments as possible, so as to devote its major space to "what's doing in Philly".

Academy of Music

Philadelphia Orchestra holds forth every Friday at 2:30 P. M., and every Saturday and Monday at 8:30 P. M. For detailed programs and soloists see the local papers. The Academy is so constructed that the program may be heard equally well, be it in the parquet, or in the amphitheatre, commonly called "The Peanut Gallery", or "Music Lovers' Heaven".

Burton Holmes returns to Philadelphia with his travelogues, and this year will lecture on the following:

"Sweden"—Jan. 14, 8:30, Jan. 15, 2:30.
"India"—Jan. 21, 8:30, Jan. 22, 2:30.
"Switzerland"—Jan. 28, 8:30, Jan. 29, 2:30.

The Metropolitan Opera Company comes to Philly on the 18th., and brings with it an all-star cast to present Mozart's comedy "Marriage of Figaro".

Philadelphia's own La Scala Opera Company's only January production is Puccini's "La Boheme". For both the Metropolitan and La Scala it is advisable to purchase tickets as far in advance as possible, for both opera companies have been performing to sell-out audiences.

Little Theatres

A number of the little theatres are idle during January, but excellent shows at reasonable prices—by that we mean equal to that of a movie in town—may be seen at the following theatres:

Immaculata Roles Open; Partake In Rosemont Tryouts

Villanova students have been invited to participate in dramatic performances to be staged by theatrical groups from two of the neighboring Catholic girl's colleges.

Produced by Seniors

The Cue and Curtain Society of Immaculata College will present "Murder in the Nunnery" during the middle part of February. Produced by members of the Senior class, the February feature will be "the" play of the year. Tryouts for the male parts, to be portrayed by Villanova students, will be held sometime soon.

Last year's play "Little Women" marked the first appearance of Villanovans in Immaculata dramatic showings. Previous male parts had been portrayed by the girls themselves. "Little Women", directed by Sister Mary Donatus, IHM, was acclaimed as one of the most successful presentations of the Cue and Curtain group.

Our Lady of Fatima

The Rosemont College Jest and Gesture Society held tryouts last evening to fill the 13 male parts open in their late February selection, "Our Lady of Fatima".

The non-distaff parts were open to students from La Salle, St. Joseph's and Villanova Colleges.

Doctor Borowik Veteran of Two Wars Appointed To Faculty

A long and distinguished military career in two wars and in the interim is the accomplishment of of one of the recently appointed faculty members at Villanova. Dr. Albert Borowik, M. Sc. in Mech. Engineering, D. I. C. in Metallurgy, Ph. D. in Engineering in Metallurgy, was born in Minsk, at the turn of the century, and attended Mikhailovsky Artillery College in Petersburg.

Wounded in War I

In World War I he was wounded on two occasions, and at the close of the conflict, which saw his mother country, Poland, revived, Dr. Borowik attended the Technical University in Warsaw, receiving his Master's degree in 1925.

His activities, after graduation, were concentrated in the Polish Army, and he rose from the rank of Lieutenant to the Captaincy, in quick succession. He was assigned to the Ammunition Factory in the Polish capital, where as a young officer he headed various sections, in design, tooling, then as manager of the artillery fuse workshop. The Doctor earned a promotion to Major, in 1934, containing in his chosen field as a consulting expert and research officer, and Technical Director of the Armament Division as well as senior lecturer in the Warsaw Technical College, Warsaw.

With the onset of World War II, and the collapse of Polish resistance under pressure from two fronts, he made his way to France, where he became a technical adviser to the French armament industry. When France gave up, Dr. Borowik was taken prisoner by the Nazis, but managed to escape, and rejoined the Polish Forces, then re-organizing in Britain.

DR. ALBERT BOROWIK

Ph. D. From London U.

He was attached there to the Scientific Research Group of the British Ministry of Supply and threw himself busily into research, developing anti-aircraft artillery ammunition, and at the same time doing research in Physical Metallurgy at the University of London. While serving in this capacity he was promoted to Lieutenant Colonel, and the University of London paralleled it with an award of a Doctrine in Metallurgical Engineering. The Imperial College of Science and Technology in London awarded him a Diploma for research in Metallurgy.

In 1948, as a member of the Polish Resettlement Corps, under British command, Dr. Borowik was demobilized in the rank of Colonel.

Arriving in the United States, Dr. Borowik was appointed Associate Professor of Chemical Engineering at Villanova College, in 1948, bringing with him a wide experience in the field of metallurgy.

Well Traveled

A broad knowledge of Europe, its customs, and languages characterizes the professor's background, having traveled and lived at various times in Russia, Switzerland, Germany, Italy, France, Spain, Portugal, the Balkans, England, Denmark, Sweden, s well as Poland.

The Doctor survives his wife, who died in 1936, and has a son, Zbigniew, 17, a student at Malvern Prep.

Men or Petunias

By Bill Breninghouse

Are we men or are we petunias? The time has come for a showdown. If we permit them, the cosmetic manufacturers of the nation will have us smelling like a bunch of lilac bushes. Not satisfied with selling millions of dollars worth of beauty in bottles to the women, they are now trying to foist their beauty preparations on the men. This is a new and hitherto untouched market, and they are exploiting it to the utmost. Just look at one of the ads. Like the product, it reeks. The whole advertising campaign is based on that old standby, sex appeal. It seems that the way to a woman's heart leads right up her nose, at least they would have you think so. Let's take a look at some of these products.

For shaving alone, there are scores of before-shave, after-shave, and while-shaving lotions. These come in assorted colors and scents. They have lavender orange, with just a teeny touch of peppermint that is just dandy before shaving. It makes these big bad whiskers just swoon. Then, while shaving, it is very wise to apply a little indigo hyacinth skin tenderizer that wouldn't think of letting that nasty razor hurt your pretty face. When you are through shaving, you just apply chocolate talc, pink and green after shave lotion, and some terrific skin-bracer that "wows" the ladies. Oh yes, the shaving cream you use has been improved by adding J-49, the wonder element, without which shaving would be well nigh impossible.

Have you been working hard Are your dainty hands red, and rough and oh so awfully rough? Why not try Bergen's Lotion; it soothe right down to the bone. What's that? You thought that Bergen's Lotion was for girls. Why, you foolish boy, you too can use Bergen's. Yes, you too can use Bergens! What would the boys in the poolroom think if you came around with dishpan hands? While you're at it, why not try our new men's fingernail polish? It's just what the doctor ordered for worn-out cuticles.

And then, there is perfume. Somehow, someone has given sex to odors. They say that some smells are definitely masculine. Anything that has to do with the outdoors is given a real gone name, like Rustling Maple Leaves, or Burnished Fish Scales. It's put in leather flasks and sold as sure bait for women. They believe that the men's perfume industry will reach its peak when they develop a bottle of Locker Room Lotion. Just think, someday your picture may be in a national magazine over the caption: He's Lovely, He's Engaged, He Uses Salt Water Passion. I'll take vermouth, thank you.

By HUGH JOHNSON

Today, the 11th of January is . . . 3 days before the annual Belle Air Ball, and 14 days before the Senior Dinner Dance. . . . by 6 days, the last Tuesday before that mecca of all that is evil, EXAMS. . . . . 11 days after the biggest victory that Villanova has ever scored on the gridiron. Even Bill Stern, who couldn't pronounce Pasquerielle, Polder or Komarnicki, but who had little trouble in saying Stan Heath, had to agree that it was a memorable triumph for Jordan Oliver's eleven.

. . . is the day we've decided to go way out on a limb and pick an All-Philadelphia-area basketball team. To wit:

1st Team
Larry Foust . . . LaSalle
Paul Senesky . . . St. Joseph's
Paul Arizin . . . Villanova
Nelson Bobb . . . Temple
Jim Riley . . . Swarthmore
And then a sort of second team:
Ed Lerner . . . Temple
Brooks Ricca . . . Villanova
Ace McCann . . . La Salle
Herb Lyons . . . Penn
Sol Tolin . . . Haverford

And while we're on city basketball, we would like to reimpress upon the Philly Sportswriters that Villanova has already dropped La Salle, not once, but twice before this season began. Thank you.

. . . the 16th day of married bliss for Ed Szkurodnik who was married by Fr. Kleketka, Moderator of the Villanovan. It's also about the same number of days since Lee Dodd announced his engagement up in Rochester. Also married, John Scopetta, also engaged, Tess Sullivan.

. . . only a few weeks before the opening of our new (as yet unnamed library). Over the holidays, most of the Seminarians turned to and dumped close to 15,000 volumes into the massive storage stacks.

Remember the sendoffs that we gave the football team? We'd like to go along with Bill Canino, Sports Editor, in suggesting that all the troops fall out Friday to give the basketball team a rousing sendoff.

Radio Show Pits Villanova Against London Students

Four students, representing the Villanova college student body, will take part in a broadcast over radio station WPEN on Sunday afternoon, January 23, at 1:30 P. M. The program, one in a series of twenty-two matches the students from an English College with those from an American school, in an International Quiz.

All Local Colleges

The English students, submitting questions to the Main Liners will be from Bedford College, located in the city of London. To date, ten local colleges have participated in the program. These include all of the major colleges and universities in the area. Six decisions have been awarded to the British and four to the Americans.

Taking part in the half-hour long program will be: Eamon Walsh, Tom Sullivan, John Wallace and Francis Mirante. All students are invited to listen.

Juniors Order Class Rings

Pictured above is the Villanova College ring. The Junior Class awarded the contract for this ring to Waldron and Co. last December. Waldron's showroom is located at 1211 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Sanctuary Society Meets; Makes Plans For Retreat

Last Tuesday evening, at the monthly Sanctuary Society meeting movies of the Villanova Centennial in 1943 were shown after the regular business meeting. Featured in the movie were the Centennial Mass celebration by His Eminence Dennis Cardinal Dougherty, and the Academic Convocation held in May 1943

During the business portion of the meeting arrangements were made for First Friday Adoration by the society the monthly mass on Thursday, and the coming Retreat.

The revised constitution was presented by the chairman of the Constitution Committee, Ed Krieg, who read it in entirety after which it was unanimously accepted.

Emeric Michalik, president of the group, conducted the meeting. The society extended a vote of sympathy to Moderator Rev. Thomas P. Purcell, O. S. A., upon the death of his father.

WVIL Readies For Formal Opening

Villanova's campus radio station, though not yet formally opened is broadcasting each evening. This is being done mostly to acquaint the staff with radio technique before the station goes on full schedule.

Three meetings were held within the past week. The business and broadcasting policies of WVIL were discussed at the meetings and the formal opening ceremonies were planned.

Early next semester will see an enlarged and improved WVIL broadcasting on the campus, stated Tom Sullivan, station manager.

Hear Fr. J. J. Vrana

The Villanova chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers will hold its second and last smoker of the semester tonight in Room 215, Mendell Hall, at 7:30 P. M. Co-chairmen for the smoker are James O'Shea and Benjamin Palladino.

Rev. John J. Vrana, O. S. A., will be guest speaker of the evening, and his subject will be Architecture.

Refreshments will be served and entertainment provided. All civil engineers are invited to attend.

International Relations Groups In Joint Meeting

AIEE Hears GE Co. District Manager

A large audience of engineers enjoyed a talk given by Mr. R. H. Rensch, District Sales manager of Philadelphia General Electric Co. last Wednesday evening. The talk was sponsored by the Villanova chapter of the AIEE, and was held in 215 Mendel.

"Right Hand" Rensch, as he is known at General Electric, talked on the opportunities and trends in Engineering. Bud Hunter, President of the Society, introduced the speaker.

What the engineers can expect upon graduation, and the oportunities offered by Business in research, sales, and design, were the main topics of Mr. Rensch's talk. Following this phase of the meeting, a picture on jet propulsion was shown to the gathering.

Bud Hunter announced that a meting of the AIEE will be held in the Dynamo Lab, Thursday, January 13th. Plans will be formulated for all future meetings and arrangements made for speakers.

December 15th a joint meeting was held with the Rosemont International Relations Club. The topic considered was "The Chinese Dilemma". Bill Carroll, of the Villanova club, inaugurated the proceedings with a speech about the history of the Chinese Republic. All members of both groups participated in a lively debate which followed.

Attending from Villanova were Mr. Leo Donn, Moderator of the Villanova I. R. C., Bill Carroll, Mark Doyle, Richard Mathews, Bill Nary, Roger Hanafin, Jim Devine, and Joseph Friend.

Plans for the future include participation in radio programs and debates. A television show has been considered. Delegates are sent to the Student Council and the Foreign Policy Association of the United Nations and to State conferences.

The club encourages and desires new members. Those interested should watch the bulletin board in Mendel Hall for notice of the next meeting or contact Mr. Donn in 112 Mendel.

'CAT ELEVEN RETURNS FROM COAST

Paul Arizin, sterling Villanova hoopster, goes high to net field goal against North Carolina State. Arizin paced the 'Cat victory over the Wolfpack with 20 points and continually outjumped the taller State players. Sam Renzino and Norm Sloan, of State watch as Bob Garrison fails to block shot.

Basketeers Extend Victory Skein To Eight Straight

With bursts of the phenomenal, the Villanova basketball team has now proven themselves to be one of the leading contenders for Eastern championship honors by virtue of eight straight victories without suffering a single defeat.

Paced by the sensational Paul Arizin, who has tallied 145 points for an average of 51.5 points per contest, the Severancemen have amassed a total of 515 points for a 64.8 average.

Win Four More

Since before the Christmas holidays the 'Cats added Lehigh, William and Mary, Rutgers, North Carolina State to their list of conquered oppoinents. The first of these provided little competition for the high scoring Blue-White while the last mentioned threw quite a scare into the swift moving, sharpshooting locals.

Against Lehigh the fray was decided in the first ten minutes of play. The 'Cats, without the services of Tommy Sabol, used Arizen to greatest advantage and the lean marksman paced his mates to varying leads of between 8 and 12 points. At halftime the Mainliners were ahead by a 38-29 count.

Arizin Scores 22

In the second half the Blue-White outscored the boys from upstate by a 28-17 margin to win 67-45. By virtue of his eight field goals and six free throws Arizin led in the scoring department with 22 points. Johnny Weglicki, Villanova reserve, chalked up 11 markers while Joe Hannon scored 10.

The 'Cats then returned home three days later and brushed by a highly touted William & Mary quintet with a 70-48 win over the Indians from Virginia.

With Arisin again being the big gun on the offensive, the homesters gave their best exhibition on the home court in the past three seasons. Displaying superb accuracy afield and shrewd ball handling ability, the 'Cats met their first real test of the campaign. After being behind 4-2 the Mainliners dropped eight quick points and were never headed thereafter. At the completion of 20 minutes of play they led 42-28.

In the second half the pace slackened somewhat after Arizin had bolstered the lead to 48-28 on three straight twin pointers from the pivot. In the final stanza the Blue-White outscored their opponents by only two points, 25-23.

Every Villanova basketeer that was in the lineup broke into the scoring column. Arizin duplicated the figures of his Lehigh performance with eight shots from the floor counting and six 15 footers going through the net for 22 points. Perry DelPurgatorio and Brooks Ricca hit the hoop for eight apiece while Joe Hannan and Weglicki notched 7 each.

Whip Rutgers

Success number 7 came over a highly touted Rutgers five which boasted of the "lespingest" player in the East in the person of "Buckets" Hatchett. Amazing accuracy from the floor and ful line and continual control of the backboards gave the Blue-White a 78-61 win on the elongated hardwood at Rutgers last week.

A barrage of field goals in the first 12 minutes of play gave the 'Cats the lopsided lead which they never relinquished. Sparked by Hannan, who bagged four long set shots without a miss, the Severencemen sank eight field goals before one of Arizin's shots rolled out to break the spell.

42-27 At Half

After a halftime lead of 42-27 the tiring Mainliners began their weave and the tempo slowed down considerably and the 'Cats were content to outscore the Scarlet by 2 points in the second half, 36-34.

Arizin paved the way, as usual, by netting 9 of his 18 shots from the field and getting "5 for 6" at the foul line for 23 points. Sabol, who played an outstanding floor game tallied 16 while Hannan and Ricca scored 15 and 14 points respectively.

Capacity Crowd

Of the more than 5,000 basketball fans who wanted to see Saturday night's tilt with North Carolina State only 4,300 were given the privilege of witnessing one of the most thrilling battles waged in the area in several years as the 'Cats turned back a never-say-die Wolfpack five, 62-59.

Before the frenzied screams of a partisan crowd which was the largest ever to see a basketball game in the field house, the Blue-White were forced to come from behind after having an early 11 point lead stolen by the tall, swift-moving visitors. Behind 57-55 with less than 3 minutes remaining, Arizin was fouled while shooting and made both conversions to knot the count at 57-all. Paul then took a pass, dribbled under and made a perfect layup from underneath the hoop.

Sabol Tallies

State's Bob Garrison then matched Tom Sabol's tally but the fiery Sabol drove under to attempt another layup but was fouled as the

'CAT QUINTET FACES STIFF OPPOSITION IN FUTURE SKIRMISHES

By JACK McGLINN

Tomorrow night will find the Fordham Rams striving to slow down the now smooth functioning attack of the powerful Wildcats. Offensively, the burden will be placed upon Gerry Moyer and Gerry Smith who have been pacing the visiting quintet in the early season games and have attracted much attention in the New York area.

Last season the Rams stopped the Villanova winning streak at four when they were victorious over the 'Cats by a 59-57 count in the Fordham field house. Paul Arizin scored 16 points for the Mainliners while Johnny Bach registered the same amount for the hosts.

Rally Fails

In last year's meeting, Fordham held a commanding lead with but seven minutes remaining when Tommy Sabol and Arizin went on a scoring rampage for the Blue and White which saw the score rise to 57-57. With 20 seconds to play, the Cats blew their golden opportunity when Leo Wolf's long shot from midcourt hovered on the rim but fell out. A few seconds later, Arizin missed two foulshots and the Rams managed to freeze for the remaining time.

Saturday night, The Blue and White meet the Jaspers of Manhatten. The Cats will be seeking revenge for the 52-48 setback handed them by the wearers of the Kelly Green lost season.

Byrnes Sets Pace

Jack Byrnes, a veteran of last season has been the big gun in the Jaspers attack this season. Byrnes will undoubtedly be handled by Paul Arizin, for big Paul held the high scoring Byrnes to 9 points in

Season Opens With Inquirer Meet On Jan. 21

By HARRY RANGE

With their spikes tucked away until the outdoor season, the Wildcat trackmen have been working out on the boards for the last month preparing for the coming indoor meets.

This season's curtain raiser will be the Philadelphia Inquirer Meet at Convention Hall on the twenty-first of this month. The whole squad is slated to appear that night while the following night will find George Guida, Browning Ross, George Thompson, Jim McKenna and three or four others up in Beantown for the Boston K. of C. Meet.

In Garden Twice

The next three weekends will be filled with three invitation meets, the Millrose Games at New York on the 29th, the Boston A. A. Meet on February 5 and then back to the Garden for the N. Y. A. C. Meet on the twelfth.

The entire team makes its next two appearences at the National A. A. U. Meet in New York on the 18th and 19th and at the IC4A Championships the following week also at Madison Square Garden.

The K. of C. Meet on March 5 closes the indoor season in New York and from there the 'Cats swing westward for the Newark A. C. Games on the 12th, the Cleveland K. of C. on the 19th and the indoor final at the Chicago Daily News Meet on March 26.

With McKenna now running with the varsity team and without any injuries or other mishaps the mile relay team should be tops in these parts. Guida, who hit the country's best time of 1:10.8 in the 600 last season, is slated to take every 600 he enters. Ross, Thompson, and the rest of the squad are all in top shape and with such bright prospects the Wildcat runners are sure to figure prominantly in the National sportlight.

Snow Storm Delays Squad In Wyoming; Away Two Weeks

Last Sunday morning, the victorious Villanova football team finally returned home from San Diego, California where they trounced the University of Navada, 27 to 7, in the third and probably last Harbor Bowl game, on New Year's Day. Away from home for over two weeks, the Wildcats were certainly glad to get back on the campus.

The Los Angeles Limited, which transported the Main Liners in two special cars, and five other Eastbound trans got snowbound in Green River, Wyoming for three days.

Tired But Happy

However, the 'Cats took all their difficulties, including the sub-zero weather, in stride because they were returning with a win under their hats. The triumph over Nevada was a decisive one and the outcome of the game was never in doubt after the first score.

Although the Wolfpack coach, Joe Sheeketski, made disparaging remarks about Villanova "playing dirty", his words seem to have the tone of a poor loser. Something like this might be expected of a coach who gleefully rolled up scores of sixty and seventy points over weaker opposition during the season.

Everyone Used

It is to be noted in Coach Jordan Olivar's favor, that he refrained from rolling up the score against Nevada which he could have easily done. Every man on the Villanova squad who made the trip, was given a good chance to play. The Wildcats have invited the Nevada coach and team to view movies of the game and show them where they "played dirty".

Eleven Play Last Game

The Harbor Bowl tilt was the last college game for eleven graduating seniors. They were: speedy halfback, Bob Poildor; quarterbacks, Bill Doherty and Andy Gordon; end, Ed Berrang, John Sheehen, and Bud Kane; tackles Bob Riley and Lou Ferry; guard, Tony Scarcelli, and centers Milt Karmonicki and Syl Yanelli. All these men played plenty of good ball for Villanova and needless to say, Coach Olivar is sorry to see them go.

Berrang To 'Skins

It looks like quite a few of them will be playing professional ball next season. Ed Berrang, who was sought after by the New York Yankees in the A. A. C., decided to sign with the Washington Redskins. The Redskins were particularly interested in Berrang because of the recommendation of Kentucky coach Baer Bryant, who had many words of praise for this All-Eastern end. Bryant recently turned down a losing term coaching contract with the Washington club.

Doherty, Polidor Sought

It is reported that Doherty and Polidor are being solicited by the Chicago Cardinals of the National League. While the train stopped in the Windy City during the trip, both these players were approached by officials of that team.

Tackle Lou Ferry has been drafted by the Green Bay Packers in the National League but hasn't signed with them yet. This is the same team which signed Nevada's famed passing star Stan Heath.

Heath Stopped

In the New Year's Day contest, Heath was consistently bottled up throughout the game. The hard charging Villanova line rushed him time after time and allowed him to complete four short passes out of eleven throws. Near the end of the first half, he was hit so hard that he forced to leave the game for good.

The statistics of the game will tell the story of the game:

Basketball At Villanova; From 1920 To The Present

By JOHN MAHONEY

There were only two regulars from the last season who greeted "Doc" Jacobs, the new mentor, when he called out candidates in the gym in early November. The prospects were not of the sort that might send a coach into ecstasies. The new mentor had a majority of sophomores to deal with.

Blows 15-1 Log

The first step of the new coach was to create in the team belief in themselves. The boys moved along in the season to produce a record of 11 wins while being defeated only 6 times.

Down in the gym Textile ventured for the curtain raiser. The Textile five lost to the tune of 40 to 21. The Wildcats went on to play such teams as Pharmacy, Osteopathy, George Washington, Catholic U. It was Lehigh who gave the Main Liners their first setback. The season ended with a favorable contest for the Blue & White against St. Thomas, 23-23.

1920-21 Season

With only one senior on the entire squad, the 1921 Villanova basketball team went through the formalities of a twenty-game schedule, while coach made plans and prepared for the next two years. With a squad of inexperienced boys, Jake, as he was known to everyone, turned out a fair club.

The Villanova Challengers consisted of such clubs as Montclair A. C., Wake Forrest, North Carolina State, Seton Hall, and others. The Blue and White ended with a season of 6 wins and 12 setbacks.

1921-22

The wind-up of the 1922 season proved to be a sad affair. The team just didn't have the goods to produce a winning club. During the last game of this season Bucknell spotted their hosts a 21-14 lead at half time, but the Bucknell five finally won the game 28-27.

1922-23

This season witnessed one of the greatest comebacks that any team has ever made. The meteoric rise that took place this year was one of the greatest in Collegiate circles.

Winning 9 and losing 4 was the record that the Blue & White compiled this year, and when one regards the opposition encountered even more satisfaction can be gained. The Cats ended the season with a victory over Dickinson College, 40-36.

1923-24

The season opened with bright prospects of a great year. The main-stem of the team last year was back, Barry and Shevlin. It was during this season that the longest shot ever to be made at Villanova was scored and proved to be a fitting end to a fine basketball game. It happened when LaSalle was leading the Blue & White by one point with only 30 seconds to play, the Villanova guard lashed the ball to win the game by one point.

The 'Cats compiled a record of 9 wins with only 3 setbacks.

Future Skirmishes

last year's encounter. Leo Wolf was the high scorer with ten points while Arizin in his second college game of his career hit the nets for 7 points.

Saturday, January 29, will find the Mainliners in Washington, D. C. for the third of eight consecutive games away from home.

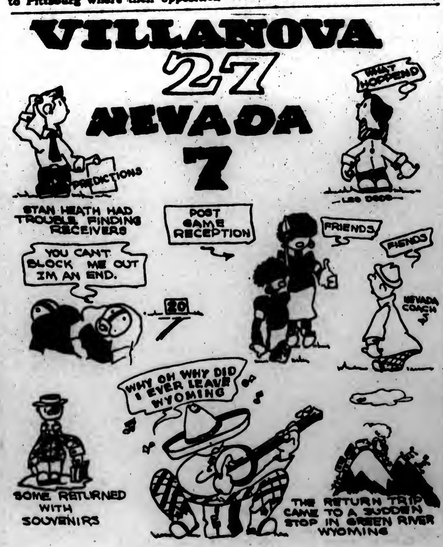
Hoyas 'Cats Split

Last year the teams split even, the Hoyas taking their home game, 66-46, (which was the worst defeat suffered by the 'Cats all season), and the Severancemen winning in their home field house by a 71-56 score.

Ray Coorley, the Washingtonian's captain, paced the Capitol City boys' victorywith 18 points while teammate Danny Kraus was right behind with 13 markers. Arizin led the losers by chalking up 15 points.

In the second meeting Brooks Ricca lead the Wildcats fast breaking squad to victory with 23 points while Arizin tallied 13. Kraus headed the visitor's scoring with 13.

Meet "Dukes"



From Washington the 'Cats trek to Pittsburg where their opposition will be the University of Duquesne "Dukes" who were one of the top teams in the nation a year ago.

The Dukes, under the tutelege of their new mentor Dudey Moore, will have to perform quite well this year to match the record established by their former coach, Charlie "Chick" Davies' '47-'48 array. This combination was the last major team in the country to be defeated.

Veteran Squad

Coach Moore's starting array is composed of all veterans with the exception of "Red" Manning, the sensational Sophomore, "Gaga" Gallagher, "Red" Dahler, Chuck Cooper and Joe Cypler round out the first stringers. In pre-season tilts the Dukes took five straight without a loss and to date they have conquered many of the top clubs in the East.

Plenty of opposition is expected by the Villanova squad since following the Duquesne game they must face stiff opponents in Baldwin Wallace, Bolling Green, Loyola of Chicago and Navy before they return home.

ALUMNI UNDEFEATED CLOSE SCORING RACE SEEN IN FIRST HALF

Mondelsohn Inc., and Kitcenarits

Alumni Hall, with 64.3 points-per-game average, swept through the first half of the Intramural Basketball League, undefeated in seven games. Led by Frank Buckley and Hal Diot in scoring and the fine playmaking of Bobby Oelz and Bill Barry, Fr. McLaughlin's squad was never pressed after a 56-45 opening game conquest of Austin. This setback was the only blot on Austin's record.

The most improved team at the end of the first half was Bks. 1 & 4, who absorbed setbacks in their first three games and came roaring back to notch four consecutive triumphs to finish in a third-place tie with "cousin" Bks. 2 & 3.

Flynn Leads Scoring

Bks. 1 & 4 also boasted the leading scorer in the league in versatile Tom Flynn. The Iona flash tallied 101 points, the only player to break into the century circle. Runner-up in the scoring parade was the surprising Joe Seaman, of Bks. 2 & 3, who cashed in with 97 markers. Following these two pacemakers were Frank Buckley, Alumni, 95, Bill Lemmer, Austin, 77, Mark Weber, Good Counsel, 75, Hal Diot, and Bill Barry, 71 and 70 respectively.

Special mention goes to Mike Mihalik, Good Counsel's stellar guard, who was an institution to the older students on the campus and anasset to his team throughout the first half, with his fine, steady floor game and his clutch shooting.

The Final First Half Standings:

Team	Won	Lost	Pct.
Alumni	7	0	1.000
Austin	6	1	.857
Bks. 1&4	4	3	.571
Bks. 2&3	4	3	.571

'CAT PLAYERS TOP DETROIT "ALL" SQUAD

Detroit, Dec. 16, 1948

The eight members of the Villanova football team placed on Detroit's all-opponent squad testify to the lasting impression the Wildcats made in their 27 to 6 beating of the Titans last season.

Four of the Philadelphians landed on the first team. They are End Dan Brown, Tackle John Sandusky, Guard George Pavalko, and Quarterback Bill Doherty.

Four others, End Ed Berrang, Tackle Lou Ferry and backs Bob Polidor and Ralph Pasquariello, were named to second team berths.

The complete lineups were as follows:

FIRST TEAM—End: Brown and Tom Marsailes (Marquette); Tackles: Sandusky and Ernie Settember (Miami); Guards: Pavalko and Sam David (Miami); Center: Art Davies (Miami); Backs: Doherty, Lee Alberts (St. Louis); John Parise (Denver) and John Hazley.

SECOND TEAM—Ends: Berrang and Edward Dopkowski (Wayne); Tackles: Ferry and Ross Nagel (St. Louis); Guards: Tom Flynn (Miami) and Bob Lussow (Marquette); Center: Bruno Marana (Wayne); Backs: Jimmy Finks (Tulsa), Jim Ryan (San Francisco) and Polidor and Pasquariello.

Next to the Villanova team, Miami was next to monopolize the all-opponent selections.

The Hurricanes, only team to shut out the Cardinal and White, placed three linemen on the first squad and one on the second team.

The Toledo Rockets were the only opponents who failed to place a man on either squad.

Back in the old days every man had two bottles in his room, a quart of bay rum and a fifth of rye. Now he needs a boudoir to store and use his cosmetics. This situation is aggravated, no end, by doting aunts who purchase gift sets for birthdays and Christmas. Every man is bound to receive at least one handsomely cartoned gift of Cologne, shaving lotion, and some kind of Mum for men.

Something must be done! At this rate, men will soon be fighting women over who smells prettier. Down with goo for men! As long as we don't smell like the monkey house in midsummer, we can get along without it.

team did a great job and the basketball squad seems to be headed for an outstanding season. The Cross-country team was unable to win a meet but there are prospects of good years to come. Browning Ross was nothing short of spectacular and George Thompson did well throughout. On the gloomy side of things, the 150's were out there trying but they just never got started.

While we're on the subject we would like to say something pertaining to the rumor that the sport will be abandoned next year. We hope this is not factual because we think that the Eastern league which has been set up is one which we should be proud of belonging to. Even though the record was poor we should remember that if every school abandoned a sport whenever they had a bad year there would probably be few teams fielded these days.

To get away from tht past and look into the future we would like to offer a suggestion to the Student body. How about giving the basketball team a well deserved sendoff this Friday afternoon? These fellows are playing a fine brand of ball and they want, need and deserve your support. You all did a swell job for the football team, so let's put all that spirit behind one of the greatest basketball outfits in the East if not the country.

More Than Half-Million Spent On New Library

Regular Services Initiated Yesterday With the Same Hours as Previously; Formal Opening Scheduled for April.

Villanova's new library opened its doors for full service yesterday. The formal opening will not be held until some date in April. Various facilities will not be completed until that date.

400,000 Volumes Capacity

The last of the three new buildings completed, which were begun in January of 1947, it is said to have cost over five hundred thousand dollars. The library has a book capacity of four hundred thousand volumes and has given shelf space for many volumes which had to be kept in storage because of lack of space in Austin Hall.

Hours the Same

Library hours will remain the same as usual, Weekdays 8:30 A. M. to 9 P. M. and 8:30 A. M. to 5 P. M. on Saturdays. The library will be closed Sunday.

Regulations on the use and borrowing of books are for the most part the same as before. New regulations are posted at the circulation desk on the main floor.

The Library Staff:

Miss M. M. Henrich, Asst. Librarian.
Mrs. M. G. Mallon, Reference Librarian.
Miss M. A. Dorrian, Circulation Librarian.
Miss A. M. O'Neill, Asst. Cataloguer.
Miss M. E. O'Neill, Library Asst.
Mrs. F. R. Marshall, Library Asst.
Miss M. J. Kuhn, Secretary to Librarian.

Juniors To Meet To Appoint Junior Week Committee

On Thursday, February 17, the Class of 1950 will hold a general meeting in the C and F Auditorium, as announced by Ed Krieg, Class President. The purpose of the gathering will be to discuss plans for Junior Week activities.

Traditional Junior Week will be held from May 2 to May 7, and will include Mother's Day exercises, Blazer Ball, Junior Prom, and the Dinner-Dance. Committees are to be appointed to work out details for the various activities. Volunteers will be accepted to aid the chairman in selecting bids for Blazers, naming the Prom orchestra, choosing the site of the Dinner-Dance and other phases of Junior Week.

Villanova Student Body Attends Annual Retreat

The 106th Annual Retreat, conducted by Rev. John J. Coffey, O.S.A., was held January 28th, immediately after Exam Week. The Retreat was a success spiritually although, physically, the weather imposed many hardships during the four days.

Daily exercises consisted of morning Mass, several conferences, a Holy Hour, and night prayers for the resident students. A Solemn High Mass, celebrated by Rev. Edward B. McKee, O. S. A., College Vice President, brought the Retreat to a close. During closing Mass a record number of men received Holy Communion.

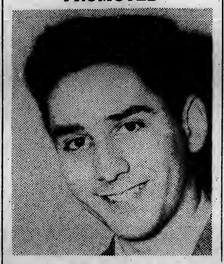
Exposition

Following the Holy Hour on Wednesday, the Blessed Sacrament was exposed on the altar, and students participated in an all-night adoration until the closing Mass.

Fr. Coffey, Retreat Master, who guided the retreat makers during their self-examination, is Master of Professed Clerics at St. Mary's Hall.

The Field House was converted to a temporary Chapel in order that 2300 Villanovans could be accommodated. The Altar which was located on the stage was decorated simply and beautifully with banked ferns.

Members of the Sanctuary Society under Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O. S. A., College Chaplain, and Rev. Thos. P. Purcell, O. S. A., Assistant College Chaplain, undertook all necessary details and duties in order that the Retreat be successful.



The highlight of the retreat was the Exposition of the Blessed Sacrament. Students kept all night vigil in Retreat Chapel beginning after the Holy Hour at 3:15 and continuing till closing Mass the next day.

ABREU PROMOTED TO TOP POST ON STAFF OF CAMPUS WEEKLY

Rev. John A. Klekotka, O.A.S., moderator of the VILLANOVAN, this week announced the appointment of M. Albert Abreu as editor-in-chief of the college weekly. The appointment fills a post left vacant by the recent resignation of Francis Guzikowski who has had charge of the newspaper since last May. The former editor will remain on the staff in an advisory position.

PROMOTED

M. ALBERT ABREU

Prior to his recent promotion, Mr. Abreu was managing editor of the student weekly and will become, "ex officio", a member of the student council. A native of North Easton, Massachusetts, he came to Villanova after Naval Service and at present is a Junior II in the Commerce and Finance school. His other extra-curricular activities include the

RETIRES

FRANCIS GUZIKOWSKI

Turf and Tinsel club, Radio WVIL, and the DPE fraternity.

With his resignation, Guzikowski concludes a long period of valuable VILLANOVAN service since coming here from the Uon of Mississippi. In addition to being very active in class and club activities, he shas consistently merited on the Dean's scholastic Honor Roll.

In a letter to the staff, the former editor thanked them for their cooperation and stated among his reasons for leaving that "There are a number of things I'd like to do before my graduation this June, which preclude the possibility of my devoting full time to the newspaper. I leave with regret but feel it is a necessity."

SYMPATHY

The staff of the VILLANOVAN and the student body extend sympathy to John Van der Berghe and his family on the death of his mother. Mass will be celebrated in the College Chapel for the repose of her soul.

East Wing Of Austin Will Become Lounge

Construction to Begin This Week; Expect to Complete Conversion This Semester

Last Wednesday it was announced publicly for the first time that action was being taken in an effort to provide permanent facilities are made available.

Conversion of the east wing of Austin Hall, which housed the old library, into a lounge for all students will begin as soon as possible. Work will commence after engineers have inspected and tested the structure, and it is hoped the lounge will be available before the end of the semester.

Television Set Envisioned

Tentative plans call for the moving of the Field House pool tables to the lounge, and to use other equipment available in the Field House bowling alleys thus making the alleys available to students. Plans also envision the installation of a television set. The student council has been approached regarding the "video" set and action is now being taken on the proposal.

The room which was previously used as a reading room will be utilized as office space and will be separate from the lounge.

It is expected that the lounge will provide recreation and comforts for both the day-hops and residents. The former group, especially, student leaders pointed out, should find the lounge a great convenience.

Washington Whirl Is Surprise Dance

Well over a thousand dancers are expected to attend the Senior Class sponsored "Washington Whirl" next Monday evening at the Field House. The $1.50 plus tax admission charge and school recess scheduled for the holiday following are expected to draw many who are anxious to attend one more pre-Lenten dance.

George Guida, class president, in appointing Phil Appleby chairman, stated that the Class of '49 was anxious to play host to the whole student body this once more before June graduation.

Dancing tothe music of the Villanovans, popular student orchestra, will last from nine until one. Profits accruing from the program will be earmarked for the '49 scholarship fund, providing benefit for future students.

Ticket chairman, Ed Quinn, announced that lists of students vending the ducats will be posted today. A partial list of class members working on the affair includes: Mike Santacroce, Len Lizak, Dick Deitos, Leo Dodds, Gene Kelly and Frank Guzikowski.

Mindszenty Trial Hailed as Persecution; Villanovans Urged to Voice Opinion

Every Villanova student should now be aware of the dangerous implications of the Cardinal Mindszenty "trial." The Cardinal has been persecuted for carrying out his moral obligations to his people. Obviously the Red plot is against Christianity and particularly Catholicism.

Steps must be taken now before all of Europe is engulfed by a wave of religious persecution. The people of this country should, and are urging their leaders to voice the protests of this country to the Hungarian government. To this end the Student Council of Villanova College sent a telegram to the Hon. Dean Acheson, Secretary of State.

We now urge all Villanovans to address personal letters to President Truman, or their representatives in Washington, demanding that this country take steps to stop the imposition on human rights.

Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, President,
Villanova College, Villanova, Pa.

Dear Rev. McGuire:

A number of complaints have been received from motorists regarding Villanova students carelessly crossing Lancaster Pike at both pedestrian and traffic lights as well as between them. From accounts there have apparently been close calls.

Yesterday at 2.40 P. M. our Health Officer, Mr. John J. McGovern, was driving his car west on the Pike about halfway between the lights, when a man ran directly in front of him—just missing another car proceeding east, necessitating the operator to hastily apply his brakes to avoid an accident.

Other complaints have been received with respect to boys making a practice of changing the pedestrian light for the purpose of soliciting rides.

We would appreciate so much your giving this your attention before more lives are lost.

With best of wishes and thanking you for your many courtesies, we remain

Most respectfully yours,
WILMER N. CLEMENCE,
Captain of Police.

Catholic Press Month

There has grown up in this country the custom of dedicating various days, weeks, and months to sundry ideas and institutions in order to publicize and foster them. They range from the important to the ridiculous, depending upon the nature of the idea or institution being given this publicity.

February is CATHOLIC PRESS MONTH and for us of the Catholic community in this country, and especially the Catholic student community; it is deserving of enthusiastic support. The purpose of CATHOLIC PRESS MONTH is to acquaint Catholics—and others—with the excellence and importance of the Catholic Press. It is without doubt one of the most important agencies we have at our disposal for the spreading of our ideas, our philosophy, our viewpoint, the Truth. Periodical literature is especially important, because it maintains, for the most part, a high degree of literary excellence, vitality, originality, and apostolicity. It is catholic as well as Catholic. Many who seldom, if ever, read a Catholic book do read Catholic periodicals.

A multitude of Catholic editors were generous enough to donate quantities of their publications for our use during the retreat. Some of the periodicals were most enthusiastically received by the men. Opportunity will be given to students during this month to subscribe to these periodicals at a reduced rate through John Stanley, the college agent for these publications. Also, during this week individual copies of the magazine "INTEGRITY" will be sold at a reduced price.

This is your opportunity to support one of the most important media for the spreading of Catholic thought. Remember, we are suppsed to be One, Holy, Catholic, and APOSTOLIC.

Sissy Stuff

by
BILL BRENINGHOUSE

Pink shirts, yet! Yes, they say that the men of America are now becoming lovers of dainty pastel shades in their clothing. Psychologists explain that after so much khaki and blue, the boys want more soft and smooth hues in their wearing apparel. Of course, why they have waited for more than three years for this revolution is unexplained. It looks like another victory is being chalked up for advertisers and manufacturers who like to make people wear repulsive articles under the guise of good sartorial taste. As long as the public is a slave to fashion these same characters will rake in the profits. Just think, however, of the possible obnoxious results.

Picture, if you possibly can, a handsome, virile, athletic, American college student, like yourself, all dressed up for a date with the one and usual. You arrive at the home of this lovely maiden and place a soft lily-white finger on the doorbell, noticing as you do so, that your manicure is really terrific and your nail polish is quite exquisitely applied. Naturally, the girl is far from ready, so the old man leads you in to the parlor with a few unintelligible grunts and leaves you to your own devices.

A full-length mirror attracts your attention, and vanity forces you to give your beautiful self the once-over. The first thing you notice is that since you dyed your hair, a tender cerise to go with your eyes, you improved your whole appearance. Your light indigo corduroy suit is evenly pleated, its wide lapels well gone with pinking shears. An aquamarine bow tie puts wings on the collar of your subtle lemon shirt. Under the cuffs are visible a pair of russet and coral argyle sox which disappear into a beautiful pair of vermillion, orange-laced shoes, with three inch sponge rubber soles.

The above can happen if the buying public lets this trash get shoved down its throat. New styles should only be suggested, not forced on the buyers, under the fallacy that they are essential to social success.

What we males need is an organized drive against coercion in advertising. The next time he is in Gimbelberg's Department Store, every despiser of the drive toward sissy styles should let the people in the store know his ire. He shouldn't start any big fires, well, not too big, or incite rioting. A good approach would be to approach the clerk or clerkess (wonder if that's correct?) and say politely, "Pardon me, sir, but I don't approve of this product. In fact, I think it is lousy." This new style business must be defeated with a landslide of adverse public opinion. An indifferent market will only encourage such monstrosities. We may soon be wearing violet underwear.

It appears that there are some men who like these styles leaning toward femininity. If you are one of these, don't despair, you may be completely normal. If women can enhance their femininity with their clothes, why can't we emphasize masculinity. Anyone who thinks that lavender, pink, orchid, etc., are masculine, is color blind. The day may yet come when the white-collar worker will be known as a cerulean short laborer, or even when an Augustinian monk will be robed in delicate pink. So, remember, let's not look like a modernistic wall paper design. All that stuff is for girls.

Trivia

by
BOB CARROLL

This mild weather's playing hob with our cuts. Other years at about this time we've always been able to legitimately skip an occasional early morning or late afternoon class by crediting the absence to hazardous driving conditions, fuel shortages or power failures. Fair weather be hanged! We're thinking of transferring to Nebraska A. and M.

Valentine's Day certainly has lost its glitter through the years. The gaudy cards and sticky verses we used to exchange in high school are gone, along with ipecac and mechanical brakes. And what ever happened to the pretty girls? Sadly enough, we've forgotten them, or yet, we've married them.

According to this friend of ours, who should know, the Turf and Tinsel Club is up to no good. Their Spring production, something about Cleopatra and that crowd, has just gone into rehearsal and the initial review was startling. Not only have they distorted Roman history beyond recognition but they've given Caesar and Mark Anthony wonderful singing voices. We can only imagine what the effect will be on the younger students. Dr. Hartman will have his hands full straightening them out later on in the term. Now the Belle Masque is playing safe with a fine performance of "Cyrano de Bergerac" on their schedule. Only complaint we've heard was from Dr. McGrath, who would have preferred original French scripts.

The new library is open, but not quite completed, we've been told. Next Monday a half dozen hospital cots will be installed in one of the basement reading rooms and thereafter a trained nurse will be in attendance five days a week. They say it's for the benefit of the senior and junior engineering students.

Oh yes—registration. We were truly gratified at the efficient way we were assembled, classified, sorted and stamped this time. And the choice of course was dazzling.. We were going to take logic, again, this term but we unfortunately passed it last time, breaking the fine string of consecutive failures we had. These courses with the long names, —Cosmology, Ontology, Histology, Epistomology, Thermodynamics, Theoretical Physics—sound fascinating. Too bad the books are so heavy.

To All Men Of Villanova,
Villanova College,
Villanova, Penna.

Dear Friends,

I left Villanova College two weeks ago. At that time I said, "Goodbye-Good luck-and So-Long," to a good many of my friends. However, there are many whom I had no chance to see; many whom I would have liked to thank for their friendship and favors.

Well, regardless, of whether I knew you or not I want to wish each and every student of Villanova, resident or day-hop, the best of luck and a sincere "So-Long."

Very sincerely yours
Bob Polidor

'NEATH THE SPIRES

by
Tom Galloway

With Uncle Sam watching us, his future men in uniform, with an appraising eye, and with our attention being focused more and more on the great number of traffic fatalities, a thought ocurred to me that otherwise would have remained hidden in the darkest recesses of my mind. Death is always near at hand.

Death is everywhere; lurking at the top of every flight of stairs; hiding beneath the icy crust on the road, glaring hopefully at each intersection of a highway; waiting patiently within the blinding high-beams of each on-coming car; lying unnoticed in every railroad station; watching carefully each fluctuation in world politics which might result in a war that could mean destruction to a great many of us; following at our heels, quitely, cautiously, a grim specter until the opportune moment. Then his shadow closes over us, we see a brief resume of our complete life. Then we stare into the gleaming realms of heaven, or gasp at the sight of millions like us, screaming in their pains, then closed from our view by leaping searing flames.

But we need have no fear of this visitor from the unknown. Our lives will guide our deaths. The only man who need take fright at the nearness of death is he whose life has invited the horrors of eternal death. In fact, to one who has led a life of good works, and good living in general, death can be a thing to be looked forward to as an escape from the evils of the world, the doorway to Heaven and an everlasting of real pleasure, and true happiness.

Creeping slowly down upon us,
Something black, unseen, unheard,
Watching, waiting, laughing at us—
Black and silent vulture bird.
He's watching, ever patient,
Every escapade.
Some can wait for him and smile—
The good, God will aid.

In keeping with the general policy of this column it will continue to bring information on the outstanding events of the week in the musical and theatrical world. The policy will vary slightly, however, in that at the beginning of each month there will be a summary of the leading events to take place in and about the city for that month.

Rubinstein Only Appearance

Outstanding for the week's musical entertainment is the annual concert of Arthur Rubinstein under the local management of Emma Feldman. This is the only Philadelphia appearance of this season for this great artist. In the past his concerts have been a high point of the season, and tickets should be secured as soon as possible. The concert will take place in the Academy of Music on February 17th.

Ormandy to Conduct

This week will also mark the second performances of the noted British pianist Clifford Curzon. He will play with the Philadelphia Orchestra at the Academy of Music on February 18, 19 and 21. Mr. Curzon will play the Beethoven "Concerto No. 5 in E-Flat major" on the regular Friday afternoon and Saturday evening concerts, while Monday listeners will hear the Rachmaninoff "Concerto No. 2 in C minor". The orchestra will be under the direction of Eugene Ormandy and will offer the "Symphony, Mathis der Maler" by Paul Hindemith, and Arnold Schonberg's "Theme and Variations in G minor for Orchestra." The latter will be the first performance by the Philadelphia Orchestra.

A Film Must

There is a motion picture in Philadelphia which is worthy of mention. It is "Joan of Arc," now at the Karlton Theatre. The very size of the production would be enough to impress the public but the acting and technicolor impresses them even more. For what might be called an inexpensive evening this pictures makes a suitable investment.

"Oklahoma" Returns

On the living stage, Philadelphia is having another visit from the cowboys and cowgirls of "Oklahoma." This play, a presentation of the Theatre Guild, has been running now for a number of years and it seems that it will continue on and on indefinitely. It is a fresh today as it was when it was first placed before the public. Tickets are not too hard to get and are reasonable for the mid-week dates. "Oklahoma" will continue for the next two weeks at the Shubert Theatre.

Above is shown the Periodical Room of the new library. It indicates the design which was used throughout the entire library.

A Century Of Progress

By the end of last week the doors were thrown open at the newest of Villanova's building additions, the new Library. After weeks of preparation the staff began its routine in different surroundings, even as painters, carpenters and plasterers were putting in the finishing touches.

The third largest building on the campus (Mendel and Alumni are larger) houses an impressive and beautiful array of rooms constituting the dream of a century, a library, just and only.

Students and faculty wandered through the three floors with wide-eyed glee. All the modern equipment and facilities were eagerly investigated. Rev. Daniel P. Faivey, O.S.A., Librarian, after weeks of hectic work which included moving the old library into its new home, recataloguing, and arranging books and furniture, was a perfect picture of a man contented and relieved.

There was, in fact, something about the newness and beauty of the building that was exhilirating. The lobby itself, illuminated with indirect lighting was stunning. In the middle stood the huge blond-oak circulation desk, complete with many new features (including slots for returned books, etc.). Behind it, the built-in card catalogue stretched the entire length of the room. Opposite the desk was the periodical room, and to its right, the entrance to the two-story high reading room. Curtained windows, almost from the floor to the ceiling filled this room with homey warmth.

At the circulation desk information was given freely, and for most it was a Godsend. Getting lost was not too difficult for the neophite.

Low ceilings made it easy to fit in five levels of stacks between the two wings of the three-story building. Entrances to the stacks could be found on each of the three wing-floors.

A browsing room, a music room, the Villanova Room (containing all the relics and books that had played a part in the 110-year history of the college), a faculty room, a library science room, and several seminar rooms, stood out among the many facilities.

Day quarters for the library staff were provided on the ground floor. It includes a lounge, a kitchen and a dining room.

Completion of the building marks the end of two years of major construction on the campus. Begun in January, 1947, with ground-breaking exercises, actual work on the library proceeded slowly until the other two buildings, the Chemical Engineering Bldg. and Commodore John Barry Hall, were nearly completed last winter. The transfer of the books from the old library in Austin Hall and from the storage rooms in the C&F Bldg. required over a month of work.

The new Library, valued at over a half-million dollars, has a book capacity of four-hundred thousand volumes.

The reading room, the largest room in the structure, occupies the entire two floors of the north wing. Book racks line the walls at about shoulder level, and long blond-oak tables with matching chairs are arranged in the room. A window on the second floor corridor permits a view of the reading room below.

An apparent shudder of amusement could be noticed as several veterans toured the library and noticed the loudspeakers in each and every room to be used for calling. It almost gave a feeling of being on a sleek mammoth battleship. What a perfect spot for the N.R.O.T.C.!!

After seeing the building, Villanovans, used to the cramped quarters of the old library in Austin Hall, exited pleased and a bit proud. And in a way they had a right to be proud. Perhaps the other extreme was reached when a Sophomore was heard to remark that he was looking forward to standing in the old library and crowding out his whispers of a year and a half with a long and loud yell.

By JACK METZER and MIKE NOWLAN

Barring suspension by a congressional investigation, the Fifth Column will be written (and brother, that is really going out on the limb) by Jack Metzger and Mike Nowlan. The latest is that ex-writer of this column Hugh Johnson and Harry Jacobs (same person) was exiled to Puerto Rico for his part in editing this column. But, no kidding, he's down there on Navy duty since his recent graduation.

A new semester means new faces new rosters, and new worries. Among the new faces in the campus is that of Tom Linahan, piano virtuoso and composer of a number of fine pieces of music.

The recent vacation had its high points and low points. A grand hurrah for Joe Hannan who sparked the team against Baldwin-Wallace and looked very good against Bowling Green and Navy. Prom, which was some time back, was a grand success. Howard Lanin was great, but twice in a row is enough for any band. Just a suggestion for future committees.

The next production of the Belle Masque, our dramatis society, will be "Cyrano de Bergerac." Don't pass this one up.

Joe McKeever joined the growing list of married men. But, best wishes any way. That old-timer Bob Pigeon is expecting an addition to the family before the finals.

A letter by Chas. Pelsmer to sportswriter Jim Kelley of the Denver Register reprimanding him on overlooking Villanova as a top Catholic college quintet in the East netted an apologetic reply and sincere wishes for the team's success. It seems the mid-westerners are hoping to see the Wildcats come out the Denver tourney. Two alumni of Villanova, Dave Ryan, '48, and Howard McCall, '41, who are now staff members on the paper bent Mr. Kelley's ear before the arrival of Pelsmer's letter.

The revived "Villanova Engineer" has gone to press and will be available today or tomorrow. Speaking of publication, the Catholic Digest is on sale in front of the Chaplain's office. A lot of the boys have come to realize it is a pretty good book, and not just another "Sunday-school publication.

Real color has been added to Immaculata's latest play, "Murder in the Nunnery", which was held last Sunday, Feb. 13th. Joe Hennessy, Jack Applegate, Dan Robinson and Paul Altenpohl from Villanova assisted Mary Boyle, Rosalie Boylan, and Elaine Lee in putting the show over.

Fr. Dunne has announced that the day-hop basketball league is getting underway. Schedules are to be listed this week.

In our daily mailbag, the Villanovan finds that many of our correspondents insist on addressing us as Villa Nova College. Here is an interesting clipping from the Erie (Pa.) Daily Times of Feb. 3rd.:

"Tuesday evening, Feb. 1, the girls of Villa Nova college were entertained by the students at Mercyhurst College. The night's activities started with a basketball game that ended with Mercyhurst leading by seven points. The cheerleaders from both schools added vim and color to the occasion. After the game, guests were treated to refreshments in the Mercyhurst Lounge. One section of the lounge was devoted to singing of group songs. However, most of the girls were busy comparing campus privileges and studies or discussing home towns and old friends."

And all the time we thought our basketball team was on the road playing rough teams like Bowling Green, Duquesne, and Loyola of Chicago. Mercyhurst College is a girls' school in Erie. Nice time, men???? They must have meant Villa Maria College, of Erie, huh?

Editorial Excerpts About Cardinal Mindszenty Trial

The Philadelphia Inquirer

"The persecution of the Catholic Church in Hungary illustrates both the single-handed purpose of the Kremlin to exterminate all suspected enemies and its extraordinary stupidity in believing it can win a war against religious faith . . . . . Here is merely another type of Soviet pressure. If it helps Communist aims, well and good; if it fails — another tack will be tried. But never lost sight of is the ultimate goal: destruction of human freedoms everywhere. Every move that Moscow makes, religious, political or military, has in common that evil end. It is an evil pattern that we of America must never, for one instant, overlook."

. . . . . .

New York Herald Tribune

"The conviction of Cardinal Mindszenty by a Hungarian Communist court will almost certainly take on a historic significance going far beyond the immediate legal or personal issues involved. The satellite regimes have found it necessary to resort to the methods of judicial murder or suppression against other Western minded leaders — Petkov in Bulgaria, Maniu in Rumania, possibly Masaryk in Checkoslovakia — and the West has duly expressed its horror or repugnance to the method, without noticeable effect . . . .

If there was need of stressing the basic viciousness of Communist rule, this satellite (Hungary) of the Soviet has furnished an unforgettable example of its workings."

. . . . . .

New York Times

"The mock trial of Cardinal Mindszenty has come to its pre-determined end in a travesty of justice staged for their own purpose by the Kremlin and its Communist henchmen in Hungary . . . . . The Cardinal's last sacrifice in pleading 'partly guilty' to violating the letter of the Communist law, which makes all opposition a crime, has failed either to avert this new blot on our civilization or even to starve the end for which it was made — the furtherance of peace between the church and a totalitarian state which regards the existence of any independent body as a mence to its existence . . . . .

Cardinal Mindszenty thus takes his place among, and becomes the symbol of, the manq thousands and even millions of martyrs who have fallen victim to the Communist state."

GUIDA SETS WORLD MARK FOR 500

ARIZIN BREAKS ALL SCORING RECORDS

WILDCAT STAR WINS BUERMEYER RACE IN 56.9 AT NYAC MEET

'Cats Also Star in N. Y., Phila., Boston

By BILL COONEY

Villanova's George Guida, turning in his greatest performance of the season, shattered the world's record for the 500 yard run last Saturday night when he galloped to victory in the New York A. C. games' Buermeyer "500". His time for the event was 56.9 seconds, two tenths of a second under the old mark set by Al Diebolt of Colgate University in 1942. This was the second time in three years that the fast stepping Wildcats has won this event. In doing so he retired the Buermeyer trophy to his own permanent possession. He took first in the 1947 race but last year failed to repeat. Thistime he burned up the boards and the rest is history.

The fruits of victory must have been particularly sweet to Guida, for just as the starters were at the line it was announced that he had not even taken a show position in the 1948 running. 65.9 seconds later there must have ben at least one red face in that Garden crowd of 12,000 as the great "comeback" was staged. The above visage does not include the flushed faces of the competitors either.

This time Guida departed somewhat from his usual form of staying in the pack and coming up fast at the end. As the gun went off he jumped from the blocks and seized the lead. Pouring it on and never letting up he stayed in first by about five yards for most of the route. Steaming by the quarter mile post at 49.4 he started down the stretch with Jack Hammack of Army in hot pursuit. Hammock who held second all the way showed a beautiful kick but there was no catching the speedy lad from South Philly that night for he too shifted into high.

Hammock tied the old mark of 57.1, two yards behind Galloping George, but that hour belonged to Guida and Guida alone.

Inthird place 12 yards back was Roscoe Browne of the New York Pioneer Club, who in turn was trailed by big Jim Gilhooley of N. Y. U.

The "600" was Guida's fifth win in six starts and it came at an appropriate time, for the Villanovan's first loss came just last week in the Boston A. A. 600 yard run. Victories so far this year include the "500", the Inquirer 300, and triumphs at 600 yards in the Washington Sta rmeet, the Boston K. of C. games, and the N. Y. Millrose games.

In the Baxter Mile, which went to Willie Slykhuis of Holland in 4:09.2, Villanova's Browning Ross took fourth. Since second was taken by France's Marcel Hansene and third by Sweden's Ingvar Bengtsson, Ross became the first American across. In last summer's Olympic games he duplicatedthis feat when he was the first American to finish on the 3000 metre steeplechase.

Ross had to come from behind to beat out John Twomey of the Illinois A. C. and just missed catching Bengtsson. The winning time, was the fastest of the season, and Ross' 4:13.2 was his best fo rthe long grind. His prvious best for the season was 4:14.6 at Boston while last year he did 4:13.6 in winning the Washington Star mile.

Washington Star Meet, January 15th

George Guida won the 600, and in doing so established a new meet record or 1:13.2 for the event. The old mark of 1:13.5 was set in 1948 by Herb McKenley of Jamacia. Guida beat his old rival Frank Fox of Seton Hall to the tape and thus

It's Arizin with another two points as he goes on a one-man scoring rampage against Naval Air Material team. The scoring tyro dumped in the fantastic total of 85 points. Others look on in awe.

HOOPSTERS TORPEDO THE NAVY BY 67 - 46

Coach Al Severance's Wildcat quintet, apparently fully recovered from the effects of the disastrous road trip, handed the Middies of the United States Naval Academy its worst defeat this season. For Villanova it was the 14th triumph in 17 starts this season.

As usual, Paul Arizin led the 'Cats in the scoring column, connecting for 24 points on 9 field goals and 6 fouls. The high-scoring Wildcat center missed three out of 9 foul tries. Arizin dazzled the Middies as he displayed his complete repertoire of shots. Arizin was equally brilliant on defense holding the Naval Academy's top point-getter, Bill Wilson, to 3 points.

Hannan Breaks Navy's Zone

Navy used a zone defense in the opening minutes which enabled them to jump to an early 9-4 lead at the end of 5 minutes. Joe Hannan threw a wrench in the Middies' defensive plans as he connected on two straight set shots followed by layups by Brooks Ricca and Arizin. At that point with the 'Cats leading 23-11, Navy abandoned the zone defense.

The score was tied twice more in the first quarter before Paul Arizin, Hannan and Tommy Sabol combined to score 12 straight points to push the 'Cats to a 30-19 lead. Shortly after this splurge the half ended with the 'Cats enjoying a 36-23 lead.

Cats Sport 26 Point Lead

The Wildcats kept pouring it on until they finally stretched their lead to 26 points at which point, Severance flooded the court with reserves.

Joe Hannan continued the terrific pace he has set since the beginning of the Western trip as he sank five set shots, mostly in the first half. Hannan was also the only player to have a perfect average at the foul line sinking 4 for 4.

Tommy Sabol appeared completely recovered from the injury he suffered in the Loyola game in Chicago when a mouth injury forced him to retire for the remainder of the game. The lanky 6'2" forward chipped in with 13 points on 6 field goals and one out of three fouls.

TRACKMEN TO ENTER NATIONAL AAU AND IC4A MEETS IN N. Y.

Eastern Indoor Track fans are eagerly looking forward to the next two weeks, for, coming up on this Saturday night and the following Saturday in New York's Madison Square Garden are the two most important meets of the season. On February 19 the National A. A. U. Championships will be held a week later, on the 26, the IC-AAAA will conduct its annual indoor classic.

Both of these meets are of interest to Wildcat fans as Coach Jim Elliot sends a strong Villanova delegation to compete in the games:

In the A. A. U. meet, George Guida will seek to regain his title in the 600-yard run, which he won in 1947, and lost last year to Dave Bolen. That was the thrilling race which also featured Herb McKinley, whom George beat out for second place.

Guida was undefeated in this event this year until the Boston A. A. games where he lost to Bolen. This should only add interest to what looks to be a very hotly contested race.

Also running for the Blue and White in the '600' will be Jim Mc Kenna. Jim, who has been doing fine work all season on the one-mile and two-mile relay teams, took a second in the Inquirer '600' behind Tom Dickey of Louisiana State. The Philadelphia race was McKenna's only individual competition so far this year.

Browning Ross and George Thompson are entered in both the mile and the thousand. Naturally, each man will only compete in one of the events, but as of this writing Coach Elliot has not decided who will run what.

Both have done well in these events throughout the season, but Ross' 4:14, in taking third in the Boston mile, gives him a slight edge.

Sophomore sprinter Tom Irish is entered in the 60-yard dash, and will no doubt be on hand for the sprint medley relay. Joe Semple, another Soph, who is entered in the shot-put, completes the team.

In the ICAA Championships, Ross, Thompson, and Charlie McKee are all entered in the thousand, the

Tallies For 85 Points In 'Cats Rout Of Naval A. M. Center

117-25 Count Tops the Previous Scoring High by 18 Points

By JIM PLUNKETT

Those 1000 fans who watched the Wildcats of Villanova hand the Navy Air Material Station a 117-25 pasting left the field house last Saturday with the knowledge that they had witnessed the greatest individual scoring performance in the history of basketball.

Aecord upon record fell by the wayside as Paul Arizin aided and abetted by his teammates scored 85 points on 35 field goals and 15 fouls.

Behaving in an almost carnival like manner, the small band of fans rocked the Villanova field house on 5 different occasions with their tumultous cheers.

Crowd Goes Wild

The first spontaneous outburst came when Arizin tied Larry Foust's record of 39 points which the La Salle center set les than two weeks ago at Convention Hall. The second cher came when Paul broke oJe Lord's 2 year old field house record of 45 points which Lord set against Kingspoint. The crowd went wild again as Arizin scored his 63rd point which enabled him to tie the Phila. record set by Joe Fulks less than three days ago. Then as Paul with a jump shot from the right side o fthe basket scored the record breaking 65th point, the fans went absolutely bezerk. From then on Paul kept pouring them through the hoop until with 30 seconds remaining, Coach Al Severance took him out of the game amid a wild ovation by his teammates as well as the spectators.

Joe Hannan started the festivities by dropping a 2 pointer from the 30 feet out and big Paul followed with two quick field goals. After Brooks Ricca had scored on a layup, Paul tallied on four straight goals and a foul try to run the count to 17-0.

The Naval Center finally got into the ball game when Carl Grieve sunk a foul shot. A minute and a half later with the clock showing 7¼ minutes already gone in the first quarter, the Navy scored their first field goal on a set shot by Sam Dolan.

31 Points at Half Time

With his teammates shooting only when they had intercepted the ball Arizin kept up his individual pace and at the end of the first half had 31 points with the Wildcats in the lead, 58-15.

Arizi nprobably set a record for the most points scored in 7 minutes. Hitting for 12 out of his first 14 shots at the opening of the second half Paul scored 23 points before the Material center could hit for a field goal.

During the second half, only two shots were taken by any other Wildcat player. Tom Sabol lost his head for a second and scored on a duck fro munderneath. The fans gleefully greeted Tommy's score with a barrage of boos that turned the 6'2" forward's complexion a deep shade of re dmuch to the delight of his teammates.

Leo Wolf took the other shot if you could call it a shot. It was more of an attempt to allow Arizin a chance for 2 points on a rebound.

New Swimming Club Organized; Father Burke Is Moderator

There are and have been men at Villanova who have an interest for all things aquatic. There are the former high school swimming stars, the summer life guards, and yes even the fishermen who are interested in all activities concerned with a pool of water. These men want all the physical, mental and moral goodness that accrues to the sportsman and athlete, but have been been restricted and deprived of them because their specialized endeavor has not been provided with an acceptable outlet.

Well, over half a hundred of men have, however, gotten together to present to Villanova, its first Swimming Club. Such an association can only be a substitute for a swimming team, but they have outlined a program, which is thought will instruct, exercise and entertain to a pretty fair degree.

There will be classes in fancy diving, given by Charley Jamieson as soon as he has recovered sufficiently from his recent accident. Jamieson knows diving and how to teach it. Therein is the opportunity to learn to "wow" the women in the summer time.

Classes in Senior Life Saving and Water Safety will be given by Bill Barry, Joe Gallen and Bill Elrich. These men are willing to instruct men in the various preventative and curative methods applied in water disasters. Each man who completes this course satisfactorily will receive a Red Cross Senior Life Saving badge without even sending in box tops.

Probably most attractive to men who swim will be the intramural swim meets that will be held at bimonthly intervals. It is hoped that later medals will be awarded to the winners of these contests. If interested students should get in touch with the following men who will captain these teams.

Tom Concannon, captain of one of the dayhop teams. He is a freshman C&F student and can probably be found at the pool or in the pie shop.

Roger Hanafin, captain for the Barracks, who can be found in 321 in barracks No. 3.

Joe O'Brien, captain of another day-hop team and treasurer of the club.

Gene Eagon, captain of the team from Austin Hall.

If none of these men can be reached, Bill Elrich, of first floor Alumni, who is the secretary of the club, will assign candidates to one of the several other teams now forming.

For those who are not so flashy in the sprints, but who go for a really rough and tough sport water polo games will be held on the weeks between swim meets.

Joe O'Brien, Bill Elrich, Ed Connolly, or even the little man with the big cigar, the moderator, Fr. Burke, invite queries.

They Couldn't Stop Him

Last Saturday night in the College Field House, 1000 fans were treated to the most prolific scoring exhibition they will probably ever witness intheir lives. With almost mechanical repetition, Paul Arizin, the fellow who couldn't make the basketball team in high school, poured 85 points through the hoops in 39 minutes of play.

In the press row, representatives of Philadelphia tabloids were frantically wiring their papers to look up the records, "any kind of records". A few minutes later, the ticker came back with a story about some 7 foot schoolboy scoring 80 points in Kentucky. The sports writers ran back to their typewriters. Then anther message, about a lad from Tennessee who once made 83 points in a game.

At any rate, all existing scoring records appear to have been broken. With the provisions that he doesn't lose the use of both arms, several more existing records will be broken before Arizin leaves Villanova.

In 41 performances for this Main Line Institution, he has split the meshes for a massive total of 645 points, an average of 15.6 a game. This season, Paul has been averaging 21 tallies per tilt. In all likelihood, Arizin will be the first Villanovan ever to go over the 1,000 point mark.

A rather amusing feature of Saturday night's game was Arizin's efforts to make his teammates shoot. In the last ten minutes, Paul practically begged the others to try for a basket. They ignored his pleas. Then he put his foot down, and, as they worked the ball in to him, he threw it back out. Not to be defeated in their purpose, his mates immediately threw the ball back in to him, and the 6:03 pivotman found no other alternative but to shoot.

It is noteworthy that Paul refused to cooperate with his teammates. The yordered him to wait under his own basket so that he would not wear himself out running up and down the court. The ever humble Paul said no and insisted on being the star on defense as well as offense. He dominated the opponent's backboards grabbing off most of the rebounds. Arizin, of course, had very little chance to get rebounds off his own backboard because there were so few.

The final tabulations showed that Arizin made 60% of his shots. This is phenomenal considering that he was "off" with his set shots.

Tomorrow night, the 'Cats play Fort Dix in the College Field House. If you go down to th gam it might be wise to keep your eye on this boy called Arizin.' He will bear watching.

ever scored in a game (117—field house).

Besides that Arizin also scored more points in one game than the whole team has in any game this year.

Arizen Leads District Race

Paul's record-breaking total also enabled him to grab the lead in the local race for scoring honors. In 18 games played so far this season he has scored a total of 378 points on 143 field goals and 92 fouls for an even 21 point average. This puts him in the lead in every department but the game average.

So far, four different averages have been given. She Inquirer had Paul hitting for 35 out of 63 for a .550 average. The Bulletin had Arizin shooting 55 times for a .630 average while this reporter had Arizin shooting 54 shots for a .640 average.

The most ironic fact about the whole game was that the referee O'bie O'Brien, coach at La Salle high school, had cut Paul from the team when Arizin was a student at La Salle. If coach O'Brien had only known.

Breaks World Mark

Until they read it in the papers Sunday morning, no one knew that Paul had broken the former national college record of 83 points set by Bryant of Lincoln Memorial College, of Tennessee. The former record was set in 1945. The new mark will be accepted or not is a matter of conjecture since it was not scored in an intercollegiate game.

After the game, Arizin was presented with the ball by his coach, Al Severance.

In the last wire from our South Jersey statistics agency, the smart money boys were asking for Fort Dix and 44 points against Arizin. The game this coming Wednesday won't be much of a contest but if it even resembles last Saturday's tilt, it will be quite a show.

Trackmen To Enter

mile, and the two-mile. Here again, Cocah Elliot has not given the final word, but the guess is that Ross will probably run the mile. Last year he took second in this event behind Gerry Karver of Penn State.

In the two-mile run last year, George Thompson took fourth but has not attempted the long trek this year, and will probably stick to the shorter distances.

The start of the '600' will find Jim McKenna at the line. This will be his first 1C4A varsity meet, but we have a good index of the Gotham lad's ability from his work on the Freshman relay last year.

AUSTIN TOPS ALUMNI IN INTRAMURAL TILT

Klucearits & Mondascheins, Inc.

While February 10 will be remembered by some as the night that Fulks scored 63 points in one game, in Villanova intramural history for that date will be recalled as the Waterloo of Alumni's "dream team." A fightig Austin squad started the 1949 half of the basketball schedule by upsetting the hitherto invincible Alumni aggregation to the tune of 46-38.

Credit for the victory belongs to the entire Austin squad led by Captain Joe Doris, whose all-around great play inspired his quintet in their up-hill battle. John Farley, the victors tall center, controlled both boards and whipped in 13 points, while Bill Lemmer scored a like number of points and aided the cause with his fine ball-handling and sharp-shooting. Little Joe Crossin broke up many of Alumni's downcourt passes and the short speed demon was continually harassing the losers attack. JoeDoris, in addition to his great floor game also came through with four buckets and three fouls for 11 points.

For Alumni, Frank Buckley sparked the attack with 15 points while Bobby Celz had 10. However, Hal Diot, high scoring forward was held to five points while Bill Barry could only cash in with one foul shot. The failure of these two to crash through Austin's rushing defense was a big factor in Alumni's first loss after seven straight lopsided first-half victories.

In the evening's windup a never-say-die Barracks 2 & 3 team outscored their "cousins" from Barracks 1 & 4 for the second time this season with a 58-54 victory. The contest featured some terrific shooting by both teams as a total of 49 field goals were made. Fr. Gallagher unveiled his chief threat to the scoring title in 6'4" Tom Falkowski who scored 21 points to lead the evenings point makers. A surprise starter, Mike Halloran, taking the place of the injured Tom Flynn rattled off 12 points while Tom Madoina, the dependable play-maker, contributed 16 points to the losing cause.

Guida Sets World Record For 500

started the hottest series of competition on the boards this season.

Another George Thompson by name, followed Jim Grosholz of Haverford around in the 1000 until the last lap when he passed his fellow Mainliner to take the race in 2:16.3. These two were followed by Thigpen of Seton Hall.

In winning Thompson not only came from six yards behind, he also sprinted at top speed to a 12 yard lead as he crossed the line.

The third Villanovan victory was garnered by the two mile relay team which took the class "A" Inter-

George Guida

Collegiate crown. The team was made up of Thompson and Ross who did double duty that night plus Charlie McKee and Jim McKenna. In this event the Cats' were threatened by a strong Georgetown four but they showed plenty of power and won in 8:01.5.

Philadelphia Inquirer Meet, Jan. 21

George Guida continued his winning ways in his own home town by easily taking the Paddock Memorial 300 in 32.7 seconds.

He leaped into first place at the outset ahead of Lancaster of Penn State and N. Y. U.'s Kaplan. It was strictly a no contest affair with Guida holding an eight to ten yard lead for the whole route.

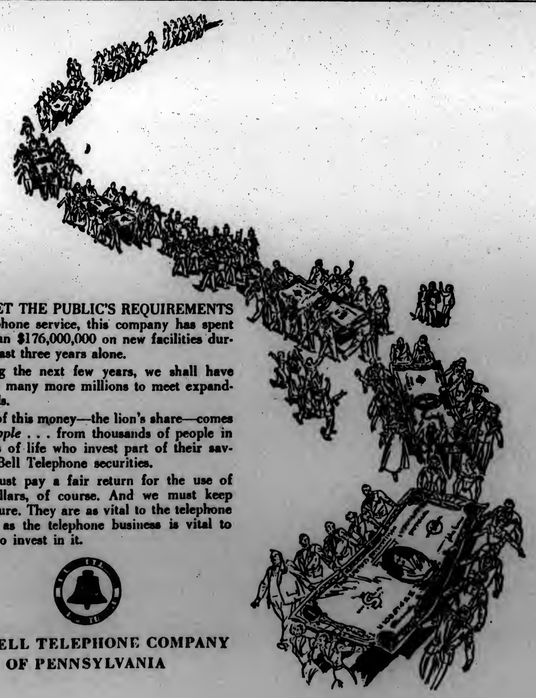
Jim McKenna starred by taking second place behind Louisiana State's Tom Dickey in the 600. The time was 1:14.5 and the race was a thriller. The lead was held by almost every one at one time or another. Dickey grabbed it on the last lap, however, and McKenna's hard charging sprint at the finish was not quite enough to get it back.

Another third place was obtained in the afternoon by Jack Steele in Novice 1000. Steele took second in his section but his time of 2:29 was third best.

Boston K. of C. Meet, Jan. 22

George Guida made it three straight the night after up in the Hub City when he nipped Frank Fox at the tape to win the Prout Memorial 600 in 1:12.3. This race looked as though it were lost for Guida when Fox came thundering down the stretch in the lead. Guida, running furiously, made a desperation lunge over the line in a finish which brought the crowd to its feet. So great was his effort that he went sprawling after finishing. When the smoke had cleared Guida was declared winner by only fractions of inches.

Millrose A. A. Games, New York, Feb. 5



In his first New York appearance Guida took the Big Town by storm when he again defeated his arch rival Frank Fox in the Mel Sheppard 600. The time was 1:12.2 and as per usual it was a hot, close, hard-fought race. Being an Invitation event the best talent was on hand and the two men certainly proved it in their customary almost-photo finish.

Boston A. A. Games, Feb. 5

Once again the cats invaded Boston but this time the results carried an ironical note. Both Browning Ross and George Thompson turned i nttheir fastest time of the season but neither man won his event.

Ross did 4:14 in trailing Curt Stone of Penn State and John Twomey of Illinois over the wire in the mile; while Thompson turned in a terrific 2:13.6 in the 1000 only to come in fourth. The race was a handicappers dream for there were four men over in less than a second, the winning time being Groshols's 2:12.8

The Blue and Whites' only win of the night came in the one mile relay which the quartet won in 3:24. The high point of that race was Jim McKenna's blazing 49 second anchor leg to put the race in the bag for the Wildcats.

During the next few years, we shall have to invest many more millions to meet expanding needs.

Most of this money—the lion's share—comes from people . . . from thousands of people in all walks of life who invest part of their savings in Bell Telephone securities.

We must pay a fair return for the use of these dollars, of course. And we must keep them secure. They are as vital to the telephone business as the telephone business is vital to those who invest in it.

Video Opportunity For Student Talent

College students attending institutions in Philadelphia and vicinity who have entertainment or dramatic ability are in line for a unique opportunity to test their talents on television.

College Capers

Donn Bennett, well-known television producer, has just announced that he will produce a program to be called "College Capers," which will feature only talent from the local and nearby institutions of higher learning.

The program will be a half-hour show and will be set against an appropriate collegiate background. It will not be the usual amateur show with its emphasis on the "big break," but rather a unique opportunity for students with real ability to get the benefit of actual participation in television performance while continuing their studies.

Every form of theatrical and entertainment talent is required—musicians, instrumentalists, singers, solo and group dancers, actors, monologists, magicians, ventriloquists, jugglers, puppeteers, cartoonists—specialists of any kind, both male and female. For those interested in announcing or acting as master of ceremonies, opportunities will also be offered.

All students who participate in the show will be compesated and repeat performances may be possible where justified. The program is to be televised once each week from a major Philadelphia station.

"I believe this program will be extremely helpful to college students," Bennett said in announcing the program. "It will offer experience on a professional level as well as a satisfying means of creative expression and public recognition of the talents of those who participate.

"It should also prove quite useful to the colleges and universities in this area, affording them an excellent showcase for their outstanding students in the entertainment line, and it should also help foster college spirit in the field of entertainment, since in every case the student's college will be mentioned.

"I am now planning the first auditions for the program, which will go before the cameras very shortly. I would be pleased to hear from any students or group of students who feel that they are qualified to go on the program, and will arrange for auditions for those interested as rapidly as possible. Of course, any acts offered should be of finished calibre, but we are open for dramatic club and glee club performances among others.

"Interested students or groups should communicate with me at my studios, in the Perry Building, Room 808, 1530 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia. The telephone number is LO. 7-7722.

IRC Presents Busy Spring Schedule; Plans U.N. Trips

Members to Attend Wayne Forum Series; Academy of Music to Conduct Seminars.

Last month members of the IRC, together with other local groups, attended the regional conference at St. Joseph's College. "The Balkans," was the topic considered. Highlights of the meeting were the presentation of two documentary films and an informative talk by a Turkish student from the University of Pennsylvania.

On the following evening, members of the U. N. Student Council participated in a panel discussion on "What is My World Outlook?" Speakers included three foreign students from International House. A question period and refreshments followed.

The first of the Wayne civic-sponsored forums, will be entitled "Europe—1949." on February 16. The speakers will be Mrs. Helen Taft Manning, Professor of History, Bryn Mawr College, and Melvin K. Whiteleather, editorial writer for the Evening Bulletin.

The IRC presents a full schedule for the spring semester. On February 18 some of the members will travel to Lake Success to view the proceedings of the United Nations Councils. Further plans call for participation in a model Security meeting at Bryn Mawr, February 23. The topic will be "Shall Spain Be Admitted to the United Nations?" Villanova will be affiliated with Rosement and will represent the views of the Republic of Cuba on the above proposal. Maryrose Johnson will be the speaking delegate.

During the semester there will be several college seminars at the Academy of Music in Philadelphia. Students are given the opportunity in a forum and dining with some of the world's leading statesmen.

On March 23 there will be another meeting of the model-Security Council, convening at Swarthmore College.

The North American Conference of International Relations Clubs is planning a convention at Denver, Colorado during the four-day period April 21—24.

Numerous other invitations have been received which the club would like to accept, but at present are handicapped by a lack of members.

Representative Is Newly Appointed

Mr. William Selig of the Campus Merchandising Bureau in New York City recently confirmed the appointment of M. A. Abreu as second campus representative for Chesterfield cigarettes. The new representative joins F. J. Guzikowski who was appointed last September and was instrumental in obtaining the former's confirmation as a Chesterfield promotional agent.

The two men will participate in a nation-wide Chesterfield sales program. Last November, Villanova, in the person of its Chesterfield representative, won national recognition in a country wide contest competition with all of the major colleges and universities in the United States. It was further stated that a recent survey shows nearly fifty percent of cigarettes sold to Villanova students to be Chesterfields.

FACULTY-STUDENT FORUM SERIES TO BE INITIATED

Very Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., President of the College, announced last week the inauguration of the "Villanova Forum", the first activity of its kind in the history of Villanova. The Forum, to consist of a series of public lectures, will be sponsored by the faculty and student body under the chairmanship of Mr. Charles P. Bruderle, of the Department of History and Political Science.

The Student Council appointed the following men to work with the faculty in the presentation of the forum, Phil Barrett, George Schuster, George Guida, and Emeric Michalik.

General Theme

Mr. Bruderle announced that the current series of three lectures will be based upon the general theme. "The Catholic Church and the Modern World." The opening lecture scheduled for Thursday, March 3rd, at 8:30 P. M. in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium will be given by Mrs. Catherine de Hueck Doherty, whose subject will be, "The Catholic Church and the Race Question".

Escapade from Russia

Mrs. Doherty, better known as the Baroness de Hueck, escaped from Russia during the Bolshevik Revolution of 1917-1918, eventually reached Canada where she established the first "Friendship House" in Toronto. She established similar houses for work among the poor in Ottawa and Hamilton, and later in Harlem. More recently, Friendship Houses have been opened in Chicago, and Washington, D. C., all lasting monuments in the career of one of America's most outstanding laywomen.

Student Dramatic Society Plans "Cyrano de Bergerac" Production

Under the direction of Rev. William J. Krupa, O.S.A., Belle Masque, the Villanova dramatic society, began production on their annual performance. This year's play is entitled, "Cyrano de Bergerac," written by Edmond Rostand. Belle Masque members are working in union with the Gest and Jesture Society from Rosement College for this production.

Ted Doyle, in the title role, is co-starring with Nancy Glackin from Rosemont. This is their third week of practice for the play. They have both had a great deal of experience in this type of drama, and should make an excellent team.

Cast

The cast consists of Ted Doyle, R. Resnick, R. Zande, J. Miale, J. Gray, W. Breninghouse, R. Hanafin, R. Quinn, C. Fleming, A. Scarcelli, J. Applegate, W. Rademacher, W. Fleming, J. Kelly, J. Neylon, and from Rosement, Nancy Glaekin, Jeanne Goode, Katherine Tennis, Kathleen Rowan, Virginia Sullivan, Caroline Enloe, Myria Ranierey, and Dorothy Kelley.

Dates To Be Announced

There has been some confusion concerning the actual dates of the three day run of performances. But it will be held sometime in the beginning of April. Since the organization of the cast Fr. Krupa has been holding three rehearsals each week and says that rapid progress is being made. He claims that his performers have great talent and that he expects this year's play to excel those in former years. The

Civil Engineers To Sponsor Two Day Exhibition In Field House

The model of the new Main Generating Station Building for the Pennsylvania Power and Light Company Steam Electric Station at Sunbury, Pa., will be on display at the Villanova Field House on February 24-25. On Thursday evening, February 24, there will be a lecture given by Mr. George M. Keenan, Vice-President of the company in charge of Engineering and Construction. Accompanying this talk, there will be a colored film of the actual construction of this building.

The model is a very unusual one (¼ inch to the foot scale) and was made for the company to facilitate the design of the station. It will occupy a space 25 feet by 35 feet in one corner of the Field House, and will be open to inspection following the lecture and throughout the next day. The company will have experienced men on hand to answer questions about the model and the project.

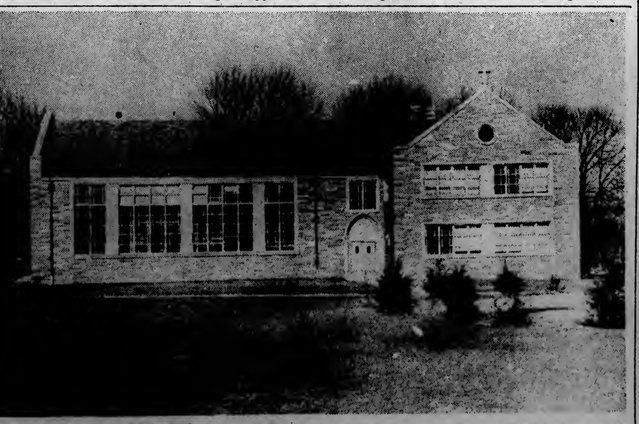
Dan Haflinger assures the position of photography editor. The former head of that department was Dan Robinson, on whose staff Haflinger worked.

Vincent Pedano will continue to handle the circulation department, and Dick Randolph retains the post of feature editor. Jack and Barry Gibbons manage the business affairs of the weekly.

Chem. Engineering Building Opens

Climaxing its coverage of the new buildings on the campus the Villanovan closes this series with a report on the facilities of the modern Chemical Engineering Building now in use. Although functional in design, the exterior of the structure retains a distinctive beauty, finished in native-stone with limestone trim.

Oval Spray Pond



The building itself is in the form of a modified "Tee", and directly in front of it is a large oval spray pond, where the water used in the building may be recycled for purposes of cooling and aeration.

Entering the new home of the Ch. E's ,from the side facing Mendel Field, several features of the building are apparent. From the right in a counter-clockwise direction is the Metallurgy Laboratory, next to it the entrance to the Boiler Room, the X-Ray Room, the Photo Dark Room, and the entrance to the two-story Unit Operations Laboratory.

Second Floor

On the second floor are located two well-lighted classrooms, a small Research laboratory, the office of

Freshmen Meet To Pick Councilmen

Ed Quinn, chairman of the Orientation Committee, has called a meeting of the Freshman Class to be held tonight in the C & F Auditorium at 7:30 for the purpose of nominating additional candidates for the election of Student Council representatives. This meeting was made necessary by the withdrawal of several of the candidates nominated at the Freshman Class meeting last week.

Emil Mikan, chairman of the Elections Committee, is slated to address the meeting on the spirit of the election. Its probable date, March 2, will also be announced at this time.

The Freshman are entitled to have two members of their class to represent them on the Student Council, and the election is held annually just after the beginning of the second semester. It is customary procedure for the six nominees to form three parties, but definite plans in this regard will be made at the meeting.

The coming election is for Student Council representatives only. The election of class officers for the

The popular Chemical Engineering student made his home in Phillipsburg, New Jersey. The staff of the VILLANOVAN extends its sympathy and that of the student body to his family. Mass was said for the repose of his soul in the College chapel.

Spring Term

The Spring Term is here, and we have a long stretch of work ahead of us, interrupted only by the Easter vacation. Many of us now realize we coasted during the first semester. The final exams provided a rude awakening for many. It is well that the exams did jolt us out of our ennui which is out of place in this age of speed and competition.

Each Spring Term always reveals the mistakes we made during the Fall Term. It is encouraging to note that as many resolutions are made at the beginning of the Spring Term as are made during the New Year season. Even more encouraging is the fact that the resolutions made by the student are strong and in good faith.

The lethargy of the Fall Term claims many victims, but Spring is a season of new life and promises. Every student has his chance to make good, if that is his real desire.

As corny or trite as it may sound, work and perseverance are still the necessary elements if you are to be consistently successful in college studies. We can't always wait till Spring Term to attain an ambitious spirit.

Active Awareness

The recent trial of Cardinal Mindszenty in Catholic, but Communist-controlled, Hungary should awaken us and force us to realize the strength and vigor with which the atheistic forces of Communism are opposing Christianity.

We have known for some time that the Communists are at work here in our own country with the purpose of undermining and overthrowing our democratic, our God-based government—they have shown it in many ways. Neither, has it taken any particular shrewdness on our part to observe the imposition of Communistic doctrine in many governments of Europe, South America and Asia, and we see this quiet infiltration of atheistic principles culminating in the violent overthrow of their God-respecting governments.

It doesn't take too much imagination for us to visualize the consequences if just such things happened in the United States. Our whole way of living and even dying would be radically changed, down to the smallest detail. Our culture would be rocked to the very core, and the dignity of man would be shattered along with his rights and religion.

One of the major obstacles that must be surmounted, if Christianity is to survive, is that of overcoming our complacency. We must force ourselves to the realization to the seriousness and the import of the situation. We must realize that Communism is not just an ominous word, but a vibrant snarling, active thing, poised ready to take advantage of any weakness on our part. At present, it is finding these weaknesses in our smugness and ignorance, and we are being pushed back. Communism is spreading; it is making gains.

As college students who in a short time will take an active participation in the affairs of the world, it is rightly expected of us that we should be prepared to take measures against this possible national calamity. An awareness of the issues involved along with a watchful eye will help show us the way of action against these subversive elements. By means of the press, the radio, and various periodicals we can observe the communistic advances in foreign nations and in our own government, in our own labor unions and in our own businesses.

'NEATH THE SPIRES

by
Tom Galloway

Within the foundations of our mentalities there is built a strong structure which embodies a sixth sense—another sense of taste; taste fo rthe finer things; taste for delicacies; taste for things that suit our individual personality; taste for pleasure through the other five senses. I feel obliged to offer some explanation for the preceding statement, which might seem completely absurd. If only the traditional sense of taste for food existed, hash would naturally taste different than a large medium-rare steak, but it would not afford that pleasure of crushing the sweet, juicy meat between the molars and the satisfaction of allowing the substance to rest momentarily on the tongue before passing it down the epiglottis.

And with regard to the senses of sight and touch, while dancing with a beautiful girl we can see and feel the difference between her and a homely girl; but this sixth sense is the one that gives us that thrill other than the merely mental process of differring between the two. And through the ears and eyes we can sense either a musical comedy or atwenty-five cent double-feature; but the satisfaction, beauty, and appeal come to us through some unknown means—the sixth sense.

Lent Begins

It seems I've taken the long way around to an unnecessary announcement that Lent begins a week from today with Ash Wednesday. Lent is defined as "The annual season of fasting and self-sacrifice, consisting of forty days (Sundays excepted) preceding Easter Sunday, the first being Ash Wednesday. "None of the customary demands for the Lenten season will be found in this column.

The curb of the theoretical sixth sense should be much the same sacrifice as is usually undergone durin gthe coming season. In the Lenten period we may continue live normal lives. We might, though, in memory of the forty days of fast in the desert by Jesus Christ nineteen-hundred and sixteen years ago, give our sixth sense its six weeks of rest, and do the things which give us less pleasure than our ordinary actions.

When your spirits are high,
And you're loaded with fun,
You might stop and recall
What the Master has done
If you're sacrificed much
And you don't seem to mind,
Satisfaction in Christ
Is the joy that you'll find.

Oscar Twomp, Realist

by BILL BRENINGHOUSE

Consider the case of hapless Oscar Twomp. There he was, an innocent sophomore at Villanova, happy, carefree, unacquainted with the myriad evils of this modern world. On one dark and miserable Saturday afternoon, his roommate; a character named Woolsocks McStrone, brought a popular magazine into their cozy little cubicle. As he thumbed through page after page of advertisements, Oscar began to realize that life was more complicated than he had ever thought possible when he was working in the pineapple fields.

Oscar definitely had symptoms of B.O., D.D.D., borderline anemia, pink toothbrush, scaly skin, rough hands and other serious maladies. Not only that, he could not pass the F-N test, and his T-zone was all out of shape. Life was getting darker with every brightly-colored full-page ad. (There on page 167 was proof that if he had used the right toothpaste in his childhood, he would now be a millionaire movie idol. All these years he thought that he was using soap to keep clean. Now everyone knows that soap does far more than keep people clean. It brings health and romance.

Gad, had he been living a sheltered life? No wonder people avoided him; No wonder girls would have nothing to do with him; no wonder he was a complete social flub. All the time he thought it was his banana-shaped nose, pointed bald-head, puny build, pouting personality, and his bad habits, like biting people's knee caps that made him unpopular. He closed the magazine and stood erect, fingers scraping the floor. This was the new Oscar Twomp! No longer was he Twomp the Blomp; from now on he would be known as Twomp, the all-time big-time operator.

To get rid of B. O., Oscar ate three cakes of Lifebuoy. It didn't taste too good but he realized that medicine never does. Next he took a bath in Kennen's Skin Bracer. Would he wow the ladies! He stepped from his bath looking like a boiled lobster, but a gallon or two of Bergen's Lotion soon made his tender skin nice and smooth. Ducky Strikes, si xcartons, were smoked by our hero in four hours. Feeling low? Feeling tense? Not our boy, Oscar; he just felt sick. He gave himself a sixty-second work-out with Fitalis, but all it did was make his head of skin shine in the dark.

Ridiculous, you say? Just take a look at some of the ads that blare their obnoxious messages from the pages of periodicals. Oscar may have been a nitwit, but it can happen to anyone, even you. Doctor's statements, clinical tests and thousands of testimonials support every claim.

He thrust himself out into the cruel world no longer a hopeless outcast of society. Alas, sad disillusionment reared its tragic form. People still laughed at him, only longer and louder. Oscar was broken, but he was not yet through. He gargled with Tameroot Cream Oil to make himself smooth, drank three buckets of Shmovaltine to give himself strength and climbed up to the rail on the bridge.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

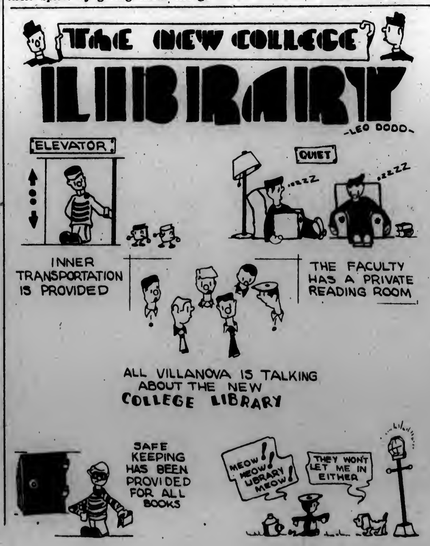
Editor of the Villanovan:

Dear Sir:

Just want to let you know what a swell time I had at that Turf and Tinsel dance last week. Let's have some more affairs of this kind. And that seems to be the consensus of opinion among most of the students I know who attended the dance. Seems as if it gives us all a chance to get to know the local lovelies lots better.

But how about a tip to the fellows! Let's get out on the floor and dance with the girls, instead of just hanging around the sidelines and looking them over. One crowd of lassies (and not dogs by any means) was wondering whether we have courses in How to be a Wallflower. Why not get up the gallant chivalrous spirit we dream so much about and step around with somebody, anybody. You don't have to be a dancing school graduate to make them happy and yourself happy at the same time. All the girls I know (both of them) would sooner have you crush their toes than crush their spirit by giving them the go-by altogether.

So let's hop to it at the next Dutch Treat Hop. Beneath many of those "She's no Ingrid Bergman" exteriors beats a heart that can make you the happiest man in the world, so just step up and say "May I have this next dance?"



Arthur Murray, Jr.

Editor of the Villanovan

Dear Sir:

I wonder if you could help me to procure a set of recordings of the Villanova College songs. I want to teach my young son these lovely tunes, but every time I open my mouth to sing them to him, he runs screaming to his mother. I feel sure that with the help of records I could get him ready to enter Villanova with the real Wildcat spirit in the class of '67. I can already guarantee that he has the lung power to sing and yell the 'Cats on the way to victory.

Proud Father.

Feeling that the epic struggle between the old-line "Jazz enthusiasts and the modern, left-wing, Boppers should be brought into the light of day, the editor of this noble campus organ, poor fool that he is, has asked us to set down our various arguments pro and con, concerning the two warring factions along with a little miscellaneous chit-chat.

This is to be a simple, straightforward thing, the only requirements mentioned by the editor were that it must be interesting, educational, witty, concise, clear, to the point, current and popular. It must also concern music. As firm believers in doing one thing at a time, from here on in, we will endeavor to be musical whenever possible.

By way of introduction, Bruce Taten will take up the defense and doings of—ugh—Bop, while I will attempt to champion the cause of Jazzdom.

Dizzy Sends?????

As an old follower of the music with a beat, I have to admit a deep resentment towards the modern encroachment on the realm of Basin Street, Beale Street and the like. Dizzy Gillespie only sends me away from the radio and I consider Charlie Ventura a good man gone wrong. As a non-participating music lover, (I play nothing more than the radio) I find so many things wrong with Bop I hardly know where to begin.

But first things first, so let's try to clarify the basic concept of the thing. Is Bop, by nature, musical or sartorial? What's with the berets, horn-rimmed glasses and silk scarfs, not to mention the seeming discord it presents to the untrained ear; it is really hard to say.

Musician's Music?????

Any bandsman, whether he be for or against Bop, will readily admit to the intricacies encountered in playing Bop. It is definitely a musician's music, a new horizon opened to those who have already achieved near-perfection in the field of modern music, and in so doing, found themselves at the top with no place left to go. All well and good, and very cozy to say the least, but where does this leave the average music fan, like you and me, poor, musically-uneducated guys that we are, the stuff just doesn't seem to have the foot-tapping appeal that makes us come away feeling good. Since we're laying out the scratch involved that is the least we should expect.

Speaks for Itself?????

For the time being, I'll rest my case with perhaps the best argument of all. The stuff speaks for itself so why not give it a listen.

As for Jazz, by way of suggestion, try something by "Wild Bill" Davidson, specifically his "When Your Lover Has Gone." It isn't "Frantic" as they say in Bopology, but you won't develop a complex trying to figure it out, and it doesn't take a music critic to appreciate the feeling "Wild Bill" puts into the song.

And now may I present "Timber" Taten, a young man with a yen for things occult.

Bop New Idiom?????

Thank you, misguided one!

Bop is the new idiom in Jazz. The berets, horn-rimmed glasses and antics of the extroverts may be discounted as a poor attempt at individualism, much as the black face and growling voices of the early advocates of the old Jazz school. Nor is Bop necessarily blaring or loud solo work. To the contrary, in my opinion, the best form of Bop is the close ensemble work, exemplified in such platters as "Dizzy Athmosphere." Bop also far surpasses limited Jazz tastes insofar as it requires more than the ability to stamp one's feet in reasonably accurate time, in short, the relation of Bop to the old Jazz is similar to the relation between Rembrandt and some commercial artist.

Ventura Shows Way?????

Charlie Ventura, of Krupa fame, has shown the way which unfortunately most of the diehards are either too old or musically-equipped to enter. Dixieland men agree that he is tops even though he plays a restrained, melodious horn such as most of them have never attempted. His ensemble work is opposed to the Dixieland habit of seemingly playing five different tunes at the same time. It sounds to me as if the boys got their music mixed.

See you later, I've got to trim my my goatee and polish my horn-rimmed glasses.

Thirty-five Years

by Dave Anthony

A shabbily-clad, grey-haired tramp in his early fifties gave me the following story as the reason for his failure in life. He did seem quite intelligent and I was prone to believe him.

"Up until the time I was in my second year in college, I had lived a normal life, and was considered more or less normal with no noticable mental deficiencies. Then I became a Blank—just that quick too—but now after thirty-five years of being a blank, I've finally snapped out of it and I want to defend myself.

It starts way back when Wilson first became president and I was in my sophomore year at Villanova. I had always been a dreamer and many times I sat in my overstuffed lounging chair, (standard equipment in Austin Hall) smoking my pipe and mentally traversing the entire universe.

On one particular occasion, after three pipefuls of a particularly strong tobacco, I felt my head become a little light, my eyes become blurry, the room started to twist and turn and then it turned completely around, and I felt myself hurled through the vast darkness of space. It wasn't long until I settled down and I gently alighted on a lush green carpet of grass supported in the sky only by the fluffy clouds.

Filled with wonderment I started to explore the place and everywhere there were chunks of a beautiful orange substance. I decided that it might be of considerable worth and immediately collected a huge pile of it. This tired me a little so I laid down to rest but no sooner had I folded my hands behind my back than I was greeted by an odd looking, elf-like character. He was friendly enough and after answering his query, who I was, I asked him if he could tell me what this orange substance was? "Sure," he replied, "time." "Time?" I exclaimed, "Orange rocks are time?" Surely people wouldn't leave something that valuable lying around like this?"

My friend explained that this actually wasn't time itself but was used as a means of banking time and that this was all unwanted time; yet at first he wouldn't let me keep even a second of it. Finally though, he succumbed to my outspokenness and agreed to let me keep a pile about two feet high and worth about thirty-five years. Anticipating my next question he said that he would show me around and show me how time was accumulated and saved. First of all, he said that everyone carried a Time Book which corresponds to our bank book. In the course of a day the ordinary person has to wait for many things, the sun to come out, service in a diner, the evening paper and a host of other things. Instead of considering this as lost time they would merely add it to their account. It was not unusual at all for a person to have saved three or four hours in a day. Also some of the people had acquired the habit of fast sleeping. In this way a good fast sleeper could get eight hours of sleep in only six and therefore could save the other two.

I saw right away that the advantage of this time saving was terrific. Why, I had thirty-five years in one neat little pile and I began to think of the million different ways in which I could spend my time. I could see myself laughing, mocking at the ringing alarm clock as I sleepily deducted a couple of hours from my time book, and went back to sleep. I could see myself lengthening those all too short evenings that I spent with a certain someone. I had visions of always being on time, of middle of the day vacations. I planned to give a small amount to doctors to help some liver. I pondered on the use athletes, generals, and pilots could put that time to.

Trivia

by BOB CARROLL

Last Tuesday, I went up to Labs in Mendel Hall to see this friend of mine. He's some kind of chemistry student and doesn't get out much so I make it a point to go see him at least once a week and tell him about the pinochle games at the Pie Shop and the cut lists and things like that. I told him what with the nice weather we've been having he should try to get away for fifteen or twenty minutes every day, but he said he didn't think he could do it what with one thing or another. He said he guessed he'd wait for the summer. He really had his hands full Tuesday afternoons.

The Lab was crowded with fellows, two to a table, fooling around with glasses of colored stuff, and gas jets, and rubber hose and the like. He had this jar full of iodine and another one full of ammonia, I think it was, and he was mixing a little bit of iodine with a little ammonia in another jar. He had his table covered with all these funny looking pieces of glass, some of them standing straight, and some held sideways by rubber hooks. On one side he had a gas fire under a big round glass-jar with a cork in the top, and two glass tubes coming out of it. One of them went to the sink, but the other one went into another big glass tube with holes along the side and steam coming out of it. Something was supposed to condense, and then he was supposed to titrate it, I think he said, but it wasn't coming along like he planned.

Every so often the instructor would come over and stand behind him and make some remark. He looked tired and discouraged—I guess because the guys weren't getting anywhere and were breaking many things. I wasn't there twenty minutes when whatever it was this friend of mine was heating boiled up and ran over the desk and himself and the instructor's shirt cuff.

The instructor got a little peeved and so did this guy, and then everybody else came over to the table and asked each other what happened. I thought maybe I'd be blamed for something because I didn't belong in the class so I got out quick and headed for the Pie Shop.

I met Eddie and Monk on the way in and we bought a deck and played a little three-hand pinochle. Eddie's a C. and F. boy and so is Monk. Maybe some day I'll take them up to Mendel and show them the labs. They should get a big kick out of it.

THE 5TH COLUMN

By JACK METZER and MIKE NOWLAN

Villanova's new library won't be opened officially until April. However, last week found many of the more curious individuals on the campus investigating every nook and cranny. The Browsing and Reading rooms are ultra de luxe intheir furnishings, and should be more comfortable for relaxation than the hard chairs of the old library. Perhaps the relaxing qualities of the new library's furnishings are what prompted the administration to lay plans for a lounge in the now vacant wing of Austin. At least, it will help segregate the snorers and scholars, and help eliminate some excess from the somber surroundings of the pocket-sized version of Grand Central which we call the new Library. We'd suggest a brief manual on how to use the water fountains, and might mention that we know a nice number to install in the cloak room in the basement. One thing we couldn't find, and that was the bowling alleys.

The PTC strike continues to wreak havoc with the dayhops. Many a student has been embarassed to find himself answering an invitation given to someone else, thereby getting a ride. Remember, Villanova men are gentlemen, and so when someone waves don't kick the old girl next to you. It isn't nice. Just give her a shove, and you'll still get the hop.

There's been a lot of comment on the doings the basketball team, and a lot of pros and cons as to the NAMC and Fort Dix incidents. Undoubtedly, this has given the Commies grounds to fill PRAVDA with the great weakness of the Army and Navy, but it has done little else. The general consensus of opinion is that Paul Arisin is a great ball player. The team is tops, and we don't need these soft spots to prove it. It is fairly evident that if the weakness of these teams were apparent, neither would have been scheduled.

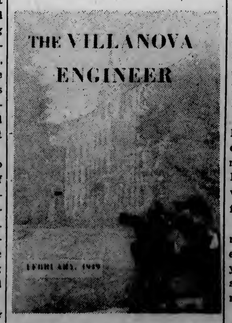
Engineers Publish Magazine



by Mike Nowlan

The first "Villanova Engineer," the Engineering School quarterly, in five years, was distributed to all engineering students last Wednesday, February 16th. It was first published in 1925 as the "Owl" and later taken over by the Engineering School in 1933 under the moderatorship of Rev. John J. Vrana, O.S.A., at which time it was renamed the "Villanova Engineer." Publications was discontinued in 1944 due to difficulties encountered in accelerated scholastic programs and constant change in student personnel.

Articles in the magazine fall into two distinct classifications, those of technical nature and wide diversification, and features which tend to enliven and balance the publication. The first mentioned are of collective interest to the students of the four major fields of engineering: electrical, mechanical, chemical and civil.

Retained in the magazine are many of the original features, characteristic of its original development. Such features as "Cross Section", "Collegiate World", "Campus Activities", and "Faculty Personalities" are included in the present edition.

"The "Engineer" developed from a small booklet of few pages to a complete magazine with national circulation. In 1935 it was accepted into the Engineering College Magazines Association. This affiliation climaxed its national recognition among other engineering school publications.

Featured in the initial issue is "Chemical Engineering at Villanova" by James A. Drobile and William Loughery. Covering the history, development and scope of the Chemical Engineering School with a thorough description of all the facilities of the new, modern Chemical Engineering Building.

Dean of Engineering J. Stanley Morehouse, communicates to the engineering student through the magazine's regular feature, "The Dean's Page." The Dean offers advice and encouragement to the future engineers.

Work has already begun on the next issue, to be published in April, and will be the last issue for this year, but next year the editorial staff plans to issue the "Engineer" monthly.

The Editorial staff includes:

Engineering Frat Plans Initiation For Thursday

Pledges Will Attend Basketball Game With Required Initiation Regalia Wed. Eve.

A meeting of all members and applicants of Phi Kappa Pi was held last Wednesday at 5:00 P. M. Plans were discussed for the coming initiation, and instructions were given to the pledges concerning their part in the activities. Initiation will take place on Thursday evening, February 24, after two days of preliminary hazing.

Pledges at Game

As part of the build-up to the final ceremony, all pledges will attend the Villanova-Muhlenberg basketball game in a body, wearing the required initiation regalia, including rolled-up pants, different socks and signature cards. They will also be required to carry T-squares with them to the game.

On Thursday evening, all members will report to Mendel Hall at 6:30 P. M. for a pre-initiation warm-up, while the pledges assemble in 215, Mendel, at 7:30 P. M., replete with paddles made to specifications, and a handkerchief for blindfold use. It is urged that old clothes be worn to the initiation.

Immediately following the initiation activities, refreshments will be served in the cafeteria, with guest speakers from the faculty of the Engineering school in attendance. Among others, John S. O'Leary, O. S. A., popular moderator of the fraternity, will welcome the new members in a short talk.

General chairman of the Initiation ceremonies Dan Haflinger was aided by the following committees:

Campaign Committee: Al Scarcelli, Bruno Uberto, George Schillinger.

Refreshment Committee: Charles Loeper, Daniel Walsh.

Publicity: Roland Mayer.

M. E. Lab Chairman, Joseph Sullivan; E. E. Lab Chairman, Mike Nowlan; Chem. Eng. Chairman, Jim Dugan.

Raffle Will Aid Foreign Students

It was announced by the NFCCS of the Philadelphia region that an automobile is to be raffled in order to raise funds for Student Relief. Tickets are to be sold in all Catholic colleges in the area.

Dan McGrath, Chairman of Student Relief, and Kevin McChesney, NFCCS representative for Villanova, will conduct the sale of tickets at a later date. Full plans will be announced at which time a list of those men selling tickets will be made known.

The auto raffle is part of a national drive to raise funds for the relief of foreign students, and is being coordinated through regional councils, where representatives received full instructions on conducting their campus campaigns.

It is hoped the students of Villanova will back their campus drive completely.

Spanish Club To Plan Celebration

The monthly meeting of the Spanish Club will be held Thursday afternoon at 12:30 in the C &F Auditorium, annouced Rev. 'Lozano O.S.A., moderator of the Club.

At this meeting preliminary plans for the annual Spanish Club celebration of Cervantes Day to be held on or about April 23. Fr. Lozano also disclosed that the announcement of the Spanish essay competition will be made dring this meeting. This contest is open to all the members of the Spanish Club. The topic will be the life of Cervantes, and as first prize there will be a diploma and medal presented by the National Spanish Club of Columbia University.

Since it will be necessary to appoint committees for the Cervantes Day celebration during this meeting, Fr. Lozano urged that all members of the Club be present.

Well Qualified

She is well qualified to discuss the race question because of her long experience in relief work among the people. The problem is one of prime importance to every thinking Catholic especially in this day when race prejudice is being used as a weapon against national security.

Student Tickets

Tickets for general admission, obtainable in advance at the Chaplain's office, or at the door on the night of the lecture, are on sale at $1.00 each plus tax. Student tickets are available at half-price, and Villanova students will be required to present their matriculation cards. It is expected that students from the Catholic schools of this area will take this opportunity to hear intelligent discussion on a prime problem of the day.

Plans are under way for the second and third lectures in the current series, to be given some time during April and May. Announcements concerning these lectures will be made in future issues of the Villanovan.

IRC GROUP ATTEND BUSY UN SESSION

Final plans have been drafted for the model Security Council conference to be held on February 23rd. Delegates from eighteen colleges will represent the various countries of the Security Council. The meeting is scheduled to begin at 7 P. M. at the 'Deanery', Bryn Mawr College. Admission will be by ticket only.

Members of the local IRC groups journeyed to Lake Success last Friday to observe a session of the United Nations, and gather pertinent information on the question to be considered at Bryn Mawr tomorrow night, "Shall Spain be Admitted to the United Nations?" Attending from Villanova were Bill Nary, Roger Hanafin ,and Don Smith.

Last Tuesday,"the IRC sponsored a panel discussion concerning the "North Atlantic Defense Pact." Chairman Bill Nary defined the principles of the pact and held the discussion within bounds of relevancy. The most important problem facing the group was: "Does the pact help peace?" Sentiment was equally divided among the participants. Of equal significance was the question concerning the right of a member nation to interfere with the internal affairs of another member nation. Those participating were: Tom Driscoll, Jim DeVine, Emanuel Rubin, Roger Hanafin, Joseph Tyszkiewicz, Don Smith, Bill Nary, and Arthur Smith.

A Constitutional Revision Convention took place at Haverford College on February 18th, 19th and 20th. The convention was sponsored by the Political Science Departments of Bryn Mawr and Haverford Colleges and by the student organizations of the United World Federalists. The purpose of the gathering was to determine the scope of revision of the United Nations Constitution in order to make it a more workable organ for world peace. Featured was James Warburg, deputy advisor to OWI overseas, and personal advisor to the late Pres. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

At the February 10th meeting of the club a new slate of officers was selected, as follows:

Villanova Alloted Fifteen For Marine Platoon Leader Class

The Marine Corps today announced the opening of enrollment for the Marine Platoon Leader Class for Villanova students. At the same time it was announced that the Marine Corps has alloted 15 candidates to Villanova, for this program.

The plan offers a reserve commission as Second Lieutenant upon graduation from college and completion of two summer training periods, and limits their instruction to six weeks for each of the two periods. Training will be conducted at the Marine Corps Schools at Quantico, Virginia.

Among the requirements the candidates must be either freshmen, sophomore, or junior students in college, unmarried, and of officer calibre. Since several students were admitted to the program from Villanova last year the allotment has increased to 15. According to Major Francis P. Dayton , U. S. M. C., of the Naval Science Department, he has already distributed applications to more than the alloted number, but the candidates will not be selected until May 1st.

For the next two weeks applications and information will be issued by the Navy office to interested parties. Further information, and application blanks may be obtained from Major Dayton, room 111, Commodore Jhn Barry Hall.

Under the plan candidates will be exempt from the draft. During the first summer periods they hold the rank of corporal and are paid $90.00 a month and board. The second summer they hold the rank of sergeant and receive $100.00 monthly.

Villanova Professor Guest At Bucknell Conference

Rev. Francis A. Diehl, O.S.A., Professor of Psychology at Villanova College, will be one of 30 guest speakers at Bucknell University's seventh annual Religion in Life Week, February 20 to 23.

Sponsored jointly by the University and the Baptist Board of Education, the Religion in Life Week program is under the direction of Bucknell's Christian Association. The committee arranging for this important event includes approximately 200 students and faculty members.

Two Hundred

Two hundred sessions, including seminars, classroom meetings and informal discussions, will feature the program, centering about the theme, "We Are Not Alone."

Father Diehl studied at Villanova, the University of Pennsylvania and Catholic University. He is a contributor to various journals and has served as a critical reviewer for McMillan Publishing Company. Before joining the college faculty he was director of studies at St. Mary's Hall, Villanova.

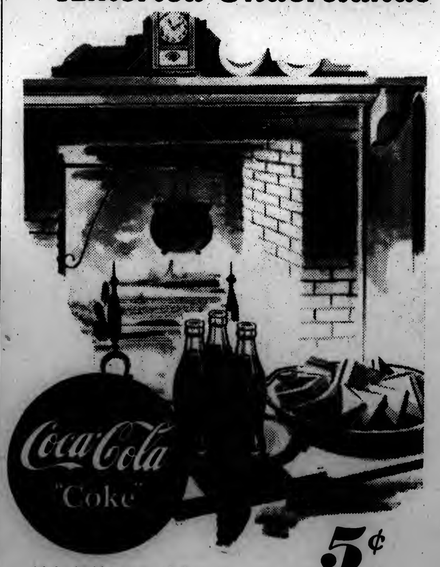
Washington Whirl Social Success

Close to five hundred couples attended Monday night's Washington Whirl held in the Field House. In pronouncing the dance a success, Senior Class President George Guida extended his thanks "to all those who attended the affair.

Limited time and the proximate dates of basketball games on the same floor, precluded the possibility of making arrangements for extensive decorations. Emphasis in that regard was placed on the bandstand and a giant centerpiece in the middle of the gymnasium floor.

Free Day

The free day occasioned by the celebration of Washington's birthday was a contributing factor to the large size of the crowd. It was pointed out by many of the couples attending that it was on this same floor that Villanova basketball star, Paul Arizin, rolled up the record breaking 85 point scoring total.



Grads Present

Profits from the first of what is expected to be a series of "Washington Whirls" were placed in the Senior Class scholarship fund. The Decorations chairman was Joseph Healy.

Many February graduates made the event the occasion of their first visit as alumni to their Alma Mater. These same graduates are listed as members of the Class of '49.

Sprint Medley Team Wins In 1:55.5 At AAU Meet

McKenna Sets Pace as Trackmen Easily Win Over Penn in "Polar Bear" Meet

By Bill Cooney

Defending champions were unseased and a national record came within a hair's breadth of being shattered as the sprint medley relay team of Villanova copped first honors at the National A. A. U. Indoor Track Championship. The place was Madison Square Garden, the time (elapsed) was 1:55.5 and the principals were Jim McKenna, Tom Irish, Jack Holmes, and Joe McCreary.

This terrific combination seized the title crown from a hapless New York Pioneer Club quartet who couldn't begin to approach the outstanding performance turned in by the Wildcat four. Not only did the Mainliners' take first in the finals but they even turned in the fastest time of any of the afternoon heats, and consequently both the best and second best times of the day.

Villanova Takes Lead

The combination was on fire from the time the starting gun sounded. Jim McKenna who was scratched fro mthe 600 at his own request ran the lead off 440. Slim Jim zoomed from the blocks so fast the officials suspected Jato was being used. Pounding around the pine boards in 49.5, he was a good 7 yards ahead when he handed the baton to hundred yard man, Tom Irish. Irish took off and handed it to 220 man Jack Holmes. In this interval the fortunes of the Pioneer Club, did not improve particularly. Holmes in town did his bit and turned the stick over to 300 yard anchor man, Joe McCleary who brought home the bacon. 12 yards ahead of the second place team. The time again, for the whole operation was 1 minute, 55.5 seconds.

This win broke the virtual monopoly the New York teams had on this event. Gotham Clubs suffered a decisive setback this year, however, for in third place was N. Y. U. and fourth, Manhattan.

Thompson 4th in 1000

Another Villanovan, George Thompson, figured in what turned out to be "the" race of the night, the thousand. This was the event in which favorite Marcel Hansene of France was upset by Mealey of Cornell. Traver Perkins of the Illinois A. C. was third and the Wildcat runner was fourth. The whole race was confused by Seton Hall's Thigpen's deliberate slow pacing and use of elbows for which he was disqualified. When the pack finally broke Thompson came alive and at the finish was coming up fast, but not quite fast enough to pass the leaders.

'Cats Beat Penn

On Monday the 14th on Franklin Field's 8 lap outdoor board track, Villanova decisively trounced the Penn cinder and board team in an informal "Polar Bear" meet. This was one of the few athletic contests held between Penn and ourseives and it bodes well for the future. More such meetings should be held not only with Penn but also with other local schools.

Starring for the victors was (who else?) Jim McKenna who won two events in addition to anchoring the winning relay. McKenna took the 60-yard dash in the good time of 6.4 seconds to start his string. He was trailed here by Joe McCreary and Tom Irish. This event seems to have been an omen for these three men gave a good account of themselves the following Saturday night.

Jim's second triumph was in the 600 which he won in 1:13. Here he was followed by Pete Simigan of the Wildcat Freshman squad, who turned in a good 1:15 performance.

Curran, Ross Star

Bill Curran, also a frosh, won the thousand in 2:18; while Thompson took the mile in 4:22. The two mile belonged to Browning Ross as the result of a 9:25 performance. Ross doubled up on the relay along with freshmen Cienjo and Pitis to enable Jim McKenna to anchor the team and add five more to the Blue and White score.

To prove that they can do fairly well off the boards, Joe Temple henved the shot in the vicinity of 45' 6" to win thatevent. To continue the good work O'Neill leaped 5' 11 inches and took the high jump. Only the pole vault went to the Quakers, and even here they had to share their points as the result of Bill Allen's third in that event.

1st Swim Meet Sees Dayhops Down Barracks Mermen

Tweet! There's the opening whistle in Villanova's initial intra-mural swimming meet for the 1949 season! This was the scene as the Day-Hop team matched strokes against Barracks 2 and 3 at the Field House on Thursday afternoon. Day - Hops won, 43 25.

The first event on the agenda was the fifty-yard free style race. Bill Diaz-Norra copped the honors for the Barracks in a 30:6 performance, while Howie Eisler of the Day-Hops and Tom Curran of the Residens placed behind him.

'CATS VS. MUHLENB'G TONIGHT; FACE SETON HALL TWICE IN WEEK

Meet Pirates Away Sat. At Home on 2nd

The Mainliner hoopsters find on their agenda next week the Pirates of Seton Hall, and the Mules of Muhlenberg. In last year's battles, Villanova was slashed 52-40 in the first game by the Pirates, but came back fighting mad in the second engagement to upset the Buccaneers to the pretty little tune of 68-60. The Mules too did not fare too well at the hands of the Wildcat in losing a single 54-41.

In the first game with Seton Hall, Villanova, due to poor foul shooting, gave way to a powerful Pirate five. The Jerseyites were beaten, only twice previously, while the 'Cats suffered their seventh. Villanova jumped to an early 12-11 lead but thi lead wa hort-lived, and once eton Hall got behind the wheel they never relinquihed the marg'n of victory. At half-time the core read Harry Donavan, Muhlenberg ace, has consistently led team scoring.

27-17 with the Severancemen trailing.

The second heat proved little different as the 'Cats scored only once to the Pirates 6. Before the Mainliners had time to think about the situation, their conquerors bolstered their lead to 39-19. From this point on the 'Cats were in misery, for when the subs took over the helm for Seton Hall, they could not rally, and we went down to defeat at the final gun, 52-40.

However, the second game with the Seton Hallers was the upset of the year in Villanova circuits. Paced by the all-round brilliant play of Paul Arizin, who scored 27 markers, Villanova, by a score of 68-60, upset the twice-beaten Pirates before a capacity crowd at the Field House. Ricca put Villanova into the lead soon after the tap-off with a free throw. The boys from New Jersey were never out of the ball game, which made it a game to see, but then again the 'Cats never lost the small margin which they maintained at any time during the ball game.

Determining factors in this tussle were the magnificent play of Arizin and Ricca in clearing the backboards. They broke up the defensive play of the Pirates, crippling them beyond hope. In the final chapter the Hallers staged a terrific rally to no avail as Brooks Ricca chopped in to blast them wide open with a one-man side show that netted him a final 20-point game total and the laurels of high scorer. Setonians were bereaved for their third loss when the buzzer bowed the mout with an eight-point deficit at 68-60.

Muhlenberg proved a rough foe on their home floor by holding the Wildcats down in the first canto, but with the rip-tearing spirit that assailed the 'Cats in the last half the Mules were put todeath by the score of 52-40. Arizin sparked the Villanovans with 18 tallies, while Ricca ran away with the defensive honors.

Army Has Bad Week As Cadets And Soldiers Bow

Black Knights Can't Check Speedy Pace

By Neal Fahy

Dueling for their third straight casaba gonfalon in as many campaigns, Villanova's knights of the waxed court easily dubbed Army's Black Knights of the Hudson, 66 to 48, before 3000 Saturday afternoon at West Point.

It was the 17th win in 20 starts for the 'Cats who are rated first in the East by the Associated Press and one of the best in the Philly District by local scribes.

Arizin Gets 31

"Phenomenal Paul" Arizin was again high scorer of the game, collecting 25 markers in the first half and making no effort to score as heavily in the second frame. By virtue of his game total of 31, Arizin jumped into the select group of the top three scorers of the Nation. His total of 432 tallies puts him just behind Yale's Tony Lavelli with a 21.6 point per game average. Paul is also third in the race for Philadelphia District scoring honors.

Oddly enough, Villanova showed no interest in rolling up the score as they did last year in setting the Academy field house record of 85 points, and bettering the total of 83 points Army's football team scored against the 'Cats in '44.

Take Early Lead

Jumping to an 8-1 advantage in the first three minutes of play, the Cadets found themselves bombarded by 12 straight markers by the fast-breaking Wildcats. The lads from the Military Academy spurted briefly again for six points, but during thi stime Arizin was busy making nine points.

However, Army came back to harrow Villanova's lead to 24-21, but striking with the accuracy of a cornered cat, the Main Liners piled it on to lead at intermission time, 39 to 26.

In the second half, the action slowed down considerably with the Wildcats content to rest on their large lead. They ditched the fast-break for the weave and Toad Hannan began to set from the outside making good on 6 field goals.

Defense Good

Although the Cadets made good more than 35% of their shots, a better than average amount, they couldn't get close enough to the bas-

'Cats Trump Ft. Dix; Gunmen Not Ringers

Last Wednesday night the Villanova basketball team, minus the services of Captain Leo Wolf, and Brooks Ricca, ran roughshod over a Fort Dix five by an 86-39 count. It was the 16th victory for the 'Cats while th eSoldiers suffered their 11th defeat. The incomparable Paul Arizin paced the attack with 23 points.

As approximately 1500 of the faithful were anxiously awaiting the opening tip-off of the contest there was only one suestion on the minds and lips of the spectators, "How many will Arizin get?" The 6' 3" sensation had smashed all previous collegiate scoring records only four days before, when he ammassed a total of 85 points against the Naval Air Material Center, and less than four hours prior to the game it was announced, amid much controversy, that the record had been accepted by the NCAA.

As the teams went into action all eyes were focused on the slender Arizin as the nation's fourth leading scorer went to work. Vociferous "Ohs" and "Ahs" were emitted from the fans when the lead sharpshooter missed on all of his first eigh tshots at the loop, but the 'Cats All-American candidate was not to be denied. He connected on his next two tries and by half-time he had collected 11 points.

In the second half, Arizin attempted 10 shots and hit for four field goals. At the foul line he was even more effective converting "four for four". This brought his free throw aggregate to nine for a 1.000 mark for the night.

The "Wildcat" mentor, Al Severence, made no attempt to have his minions roll up the score on the hapless visitors, and his starting five was sitting on the bench with 3 minutes to play in the first half. However, the reservists helped mount up the score, and at the intermission the Mainliners led 44-18.

The second half followed much the same pattern as Arizin, Jack Crossin, Shy Raiken and Sid Gecker scored freely. The homesters outscored the Dixmen by 21 points in the final 20 minutes of the contest.

In the preliminary game, the "Wildcat" freshman quintet outclassed the 39th Infantry fice, 100-57. In notching their eight win of an unscathed record, it was the first time the yearlings scored 100

From The Sidelines

By Harry Range, Sports Editor

As we open our first column, review, discussion, or what ever else you would care to call this questionable contribution to American prose, we would like to make a few complimentary and thankful remarks about our predecessor.

For the past thirteen issues the sports department of the leading campus publication has been under the direction of the dynamic sports editor and prognosticator, Bill Canino. Bill did a tremendous job running the sports staff during the last semester but was forced to resign due to study requirements. However, he's still writing for the "Villanovan" and you can take a look at sports reporting in the Canino style on page five.

We'd like to give a tip of the chapeau to Bill for a swell job and wish him lots of luck in the future.

Court Capers

We've all heard an awful lot of talk and seen numerous newspaper reports about Paul Arizin and his 85 points scored against the Naval Air Material Center. Well, how about going back now and tracing the events that led up to and succeeded the game played at the Field House a week ago Saturday.

During the war Villanova's teams in all sports were made up mostly of Navy V-12's and Marines who were continually being transferred and as a result no coach could be sure of whom he had to enter in the lineups from week to week. Besides that, a great number of colleges had dropped sports completely and therefore, intercollegiate competition for the 'Cats had been reduced considerably.

So, Villanova was forced to book a majority of its games with service teams who, at the time, were packed full of All-American talent. In football, basketball, track and baseball the Mainliners played such powerhouses as Army, Navy, Kings Point, Bainbridge, Manhattan Beach, Valley Forge Hospital, Willow Grove, and Fort Dix. The 'Cats were slaughtered time and again but, still fielded a team for every meet and came along with all these handicaps still managed to make a good showing.

Now, with the war four years over it's a different story. The Colleges are the ones who have the talent and it's the service teams who are clamoring for competition. But, in sports as in almost everything else, the serviceman has been forgotten and most colleges will not book any service clubs.

But Villanova, remembering that during the war we were in the same position, booked games with a few service teams. It must be remembered, though, that these games were booked almost a year in advance and that the Athletic Department had no idea of the strength of any of the service teams on the schedule.

The game scheduled for February 13 was originally supposed to be played with Willow Grove, but due to a transfer of personnel, the commanding officer of the Naval Air Base requested that Villanova drop the game and arrange a contest with another Navy team. It was through this chain of events that the game with NAMC was played and which ended in a 117-25 count in favor of the 'Cats with lanky Paul Arizin hitting for 85 points.

In the papers for the following three days many remarks were made about the Mainliners playing a bunch of grandmothers and that the NCAA should not recognize the record. However, the College refused to press the issue and wisely decided to leave the entire situation up to the statistician of the NCAA.

It must be remembered, at this point, that neither the sports writers nor the College are a rule-making body and therefore it was definitely the job of the NCAA to determine whether Arizin's 85 points were a record. So, when Homer Cooke, official and unbiased statistician of the NCAA, received the results of the game on Monday morning after the game, he entered the game on the records and found that Paul Arizin had brokn all existing markers for points scored in a single game.

That's the story. The game was official with official refs sent by Asa Bushnell, the record was declared official by an official statistician, and Arizin has been officially declared the player who scored more points in a single game than any one else in the country.

While we're on th esubject of Arizin, with his 139 points in the last three games, he's a sure bet for the Philadelphia Sports Writers trophy . . . That 66-48 trouncing of the Black Knights of the Hudson made up for the Cat pigskin luggers' loss last fall . . . Tall Paul was just five points shy of the scoring record for the West Point field house.

AUSTIN REMAINS UNBEATEN; BUCKLEY'S 30 SETS NEW MARK

Day Hop League Is Inaugurated

By Mondschein & Klucsarits

The Doms beat Fedigan 51-40 and Mendel topped Good Counsel 47-33 in the second half inaugural for these four teams.

In a roughly-contested and loosely-played opener the Doms, led by Bill Knecht outfought Fedigan to gain one of the first-round victories. Dick Altman, ex-Mendel captain, in his first game for the Doms contributed 8 points while Healy and Constantino tabbed 7 apiece. The entire squads of both teams saw action in this affair and Paul Becotte, another ex-Mendeleer, left via the foul route early in the last quarter. For the losers, player-coach Ray Petit, in a valiant attempt to keep h's team in the game, netted 18 points while teammate Dave Frink had 13. Paturco and Gallen officiated.

In Tuesday's nightcap the two weak sisters of the league clashed head-on with Mendel emerging with a 47-33 triumph. Benny Mascal, of Mendel, proved too much for Good Counsel's defense as he racked up 18 points. Captain Jack Denuel had 8 points to follow Mascal in scoring. Scanlan of Good Counsel matched Denuel's output in a brief second-half flurry which failed to dent Mendel's big lead. Altman and Gallen, officiated.

Alumni again hit its winning stride by handing Bks. 1 & 4, their second successive setback, 70-55. Frank "Buckets" Buckley, set a new individual intramural scoring mark as he dropped 14 goals and 2 fouls for 30 points. His buckets came from all angles of the court as he put on a terrific exhibition of accurate shooting. Hal Diot with 14 and Dick Rich with 12, aided "Buckets" in notching Alumni's first second-half victory. Big Tom Falkowski kept up his scoring pace up again hitting for 21 points for the Barracks. Stewart and Maguire of the freshman team refereed.

In the second half of the twin bill, Austin continued undefeated by dropping Bks. 2 & 3, 60-51. Lanky John Farley was the main cog in Austin's offense with 17 points and brilliant back-board play. The issue was definitely decided late in the game through the deadly marksmanship of little Joey Crossin and Bill Lemmer who caged 13 points each.

For the Bks., Joe Seaman as usual, led the scoring with 15 points, while Bob Ruggerio scored 12 in a great supporting role. Phil Piro and Jack Denuel called the game.

The Day-Hop League, after many difficulties, was inaugurated on Thursday afternoon with a game between the Chem Majors and the EE's. The latter came through with a 32-19 win in a sluggish ball game. Leading the victors' attack was Burns with 12, while Connelly notched 8 points. Longo led the Chem Majors offense with 12 markers. The halftime score was 24-9. Dom Pendino was the referee.

Missing from the Intramural scene this semester in the Resident league are some outstanding first-half players. Hardest hit was Bks. 1 &4 who lost Tom Flynn, the league's leading scorer, through an injury, and Frank Breslin by graduation. The Doms lost "Obie" O'Brien, All-Star guard, Harry Knecht and Bill Savage. Mark Weber, Good Counsel's sparkplug also graduated.

Al Zerbe brought home the bunting for the 100-yard free style for the rampaging Day-Hops in the time of 1:06.6. Al Gorbia of the Barracks and Tom Concannon of the "transients" took second and third places respectively.

220 Yard Free Style

Charles Snow brought new hope to the Barracks unit with his sterling display of power in the 220-yard free style race in 2:48.3. Al Zerbe o fthe daily visitors and Bill Faye completed the trio of tankmen in this contest.

Jack Jamison displayed excellent form in taking the honors in high diving. Peter Kelly and Al Corbine placed second and third in this event.

The Day-Hops also reigned supreme in the 150 yard medley relay. Joe O'Brien took a slight lead in the back stroke, Dick Mullen clashed5:4 in the breast stroke, and Ed Connelly climaxed the victorious avalanche.

Day Hops Prevail Again

Our "learn as you travel" students culminated the day with a burst of water-cutting speed to take the 200-yard free styl erelay. Charlie Reek, Frank Haskins, Bill Rath, and Tex Houston formed the winning combination.

Future Events Listed

Coming attractions at the Field House pool include a waitr polo skirmish between representative Barracks and Day-Hop aggregations tomorrow afternoon, and another regular meet between the Day-Hops and Barracks 1 and 4 Thursday afternoon.

'CATS DROP 3; OUT OF THE UNBEATEN LIST

Watch the Wildcats! These were the shoults of an aroused student body and faculty as undefeated Villanova embarked on a crucial road trip. Only four outfits in the nation were on the select list: Western Kentucky, Villanova, Hamline, and Minnesota.

The hoopsters gave Georgetown both guns in a 64-49 rout of the Hoyas at Washington on the Saturday following Retreat Week. Tom Sabol, Paul Arizin, and Brooks Ricca starred in the Wildcat scoring parade as all the substitutes saw action. The contest was never close except during the opening minutes when the Washingtonians held the score fairly even, but after that it was all Blue & White as our quintet completely outclassed the Blue & Gray.

The sweet fruits of victory turned sour when the Wildcats met Duquesne at Pittsburgh the following Monday. Charley Cooper & Co. ran away with the entire affair as the 'Cats bowed to a superior Steel City five 65-37 for their first loss of the season.

Loyola of Chicago continued the steamroller with a 75-43 score. Ed Earle & Ralph Klaerich led the Windy Cityites in this tussle. Villanova was never in front as Paul Arizin led the hapless Main Liners with a ten point total.

After the two night dive, Villanova perked up and completely crushed Baldwin-Wallce by a 75-43 verdict. The Yellow Jackets took the lead during the first few minutes, but the rejuvenated 'Cats surged ahead and took a 35-26 halftime lead, After the second half opened, the Blue & White marched up and down the hardwood at will with little opposition from their opponents. Joe Hannan with eighteen counters and Shy Raiken with fourteen led the Villanovans to the triumph.

Bowling Green ran down the curtain on the Western road trip with a 57-46 pasting of the Wildcats. The Blue & White matched the Falcons point for point until the final ten minutes when the Ohioans scored on two quick baskets and were never again headed. Ed Leaded was the outstanding player of the evening and was the prime reason for the Main Liners defeat. It was Bowing Green's 56th consecutive victory on their home court, no mean feat in itself.

The remainder of the Villanova schedule, with the possible exception of the Muhlenberg tilt at the Field House, should prove to be not too high a hurdle for the 'Cats to clumb for their best season's record since the unstoppable Blue & White 1939 quintet.

LKD Addressed

Dr. Joseph Seifter, former professor at Western Reserve University, at the Wyeth Institute of Applied and present Chief Pharmacologist Biochemistry, addressed the LKD Fraternity at its regular monthly meeting last Tuesday evening.

In a very interesting and illuminating address, Dr. Seifter centered his talk on "The Thinking and Research Behind the Discovery of a New Drug and Its Introduction Into Clinical Practice." The speaker was introduced to the future medics and biological research men by Dr. Alexander Gero, Assistant Professor of Chemistry at Villanova.

Prior to Dr. Seifter's address, the group, led by Bill Ludin, treasurer, discussed the dinner-dance to be held in April, the purchase of fraternity keys and pins, and two smokers to be held this semester.

Students Compete For J.A. Contest

The New York Journal American is sponsoring a nation-wide oratorical contest for College and University students. Reverend William J. Krupa has been appointed moderator of the preliminary contests at Villanova.

This series of preliminary contests are for the purpose of elimination, and began last Monday evening in room 215 in Mendel Hall at 7:15. The faculty acted as judges and based their decision on the context of the composition, on its rhetorical value, on the delivery of the speaker, on the poise of the speaker, on his preparedness, and on his general attitude at the rostrum.

The tppic was Alexander Hamilton, and great leeway was allowed the speakers in their approach to, and general conception of, the topic. The speeches were not to have exceeded six minutes of speaking time. Not more than one-third of the written matter was to be quoted.

The name of the winner has not yet been announced. He will, though, receive an all-expense-paid trip to New York City for the finals, in which he will represent Villanova College. The prize for the winner of the finals will be a one-thousand dollar cash prize.

the Chairman of the Department, and built-in lockers for the use of the students. Through the door to the second-level of the Unit Operations Lab, are reached the Design Drafting Room, and the offices of Mr. Francis Blanchard and Dr. Albert Borowik.

The third floor, from the Spring Mill Road side, contains storage spaces for equipment for the Unit Operations Lab.

Unit Operation Equipment

Each of the rooms is furnished with the latest in classroom, office, and laboratory equipment. Most important of all, Unit Operations represents a vast expenditure and a varied array of equipment. Among the major of these are a 14-inch experimental distillation column, a high temperature rotary gas-fired drier, an evaporator, a large low pressure packed absorption column, several filters, crushing mills, and particle size analyzers, with accessories and other standard operating equipment.

Occupying a combined portion of the first floor and basement of the new building, is a large boiler and steam turbine installation. This equipment, along with an elaborate electrical control system, was purchased from the Westinghouse Electric Company and was incorporated into the new building to supplement the Mechanical Engineering course in Heat Power.

The Design Drafting room on the second floor is equipped with modern drawing tables and a large industrial catalog file, to be used in conjunction witha Senior course in Plant Design.

X-Ray Studies

Metallographic studies are enhanced by the installation of first-rate X-Ray equipment and elaborate photographic equipment.

Adjoining the Unit Operations Lab on the first floor is a machine shop for servicing the various experimental units, and a well-stocked store room.

On the second level of Unit Operations an iron grill walkway borders the two-story room on three sides, and gives access to the faculty offices and drafting room, and to the third floor storage space.

Blanchard Supervises.

Most of the installation work has been supervised by Assistant Professor Francis J. Blanchard. Possibly several years of work will be required to complete installation in Unit Operations according to previously laid plans. This excludes the above-mentioned equipment, work on which is complete, but includes the building out of the second level grill walk over the whole floor to accommodate lighter machinery.

Original plans for a building were drawn in 1937, and have been redrawn twice, the present location, guarding the Spring Mill Road campus entrance with Fedigan Hall on the other side, finally being chosen. The structure answers the need of an up-to-date and progressive Chemical Engineering School. Designed by Henry C. Dagit and Sons, McCloskey Co. were the builders.

Dr. White Heads Department

The building houses the department headed by Dr. Robert E. White, B. Ch. E., M. Ch. E., D. Ch. E., Associate Professor of Chemical Engineering. Dr. White studied at the Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute, taught at Bucknell, and brings a wide range of experience to direct the modernized and expanded school.

A discussion was held concerning special points of interest in the Junior Week activities. Especially discussed was the problem of choosing a suitable dance band.

The School Ring situation was clarified by a representative of the Jostyn Company. He explained that the Waldron Company through which the Villanova order was first handled was actually representing the Jostyn Company. The Jostyn Company is the third or fourth largest ring concern in the country.

During the meeting word was received that one of their classmates had passed away that evening. The class urged to attend the Mass said for the repose of Richard Tirrel's soul. He automatically was enrolled in the Seminary Guild.

The meeting was then adjourned by President Krieg with the request that all Juniors contribute in some way to the success of Junior Week.

1st—1949 Plymouth.
2nd—Big 16" Philco Television set.
3rd—$500.00.
4—14th—$100.00 each.

The region raffle is part of a nationwide drive for funds for student relief in Europe. The drive is an annual function of the NFCCS in this country. Each year the results have been quite gratifying and the raffle which is a new feature is expected to raise the funds wanted, and each region in the country is sponsoring its own contest.

Below is printed the text of the letter sent by the Pope to American Catholic College students thanking and blessing them for the help they extended to their Europeam brothers. A photostatic copy of the original letter is posted on the Chaplain's Bulletin board.

To our beloved children,
The Catholic College Students of America,

With glad and grateful heart have We received, beloved children, the supplies which you sent Us for distribution amongst the needy students of the countries affected by the war.

Amidst the sorrows and anxieties of the present time, this generous gesture has been a source of comfort and consolation to Our paternal heart, because We realize that your campaign for the relief of your fellow-students is prompted by an admirable spirit of fraternal charity and that your thoughtfulness in placing the fruits of the campaign at Our disposal for distribution is motivated by your loyal filial devotion to the Vicar of Christ.

The material aid which your efforts and sacrifices have made available will be of valuable assistance to the students who benefit thereby; but more valuable still will be the encouragement which they will derive from the knowledge that in their difficulties and privations they can count on the moral support and sympathetic understanding of the Catholic College Students of America.

We assure you, beloved children, of Our cordial appreciation of your magnanimous gesture, and We pray that Our Divine Lord may requite your praiseworthy charity with abundant graces and favors.

With this prayer We lovingly impart to you, beloved children, to your parents and teachers and to all those who collaborate with you in this noble crusade, Our paternal Apostolic Benediction.

From the Vatican, January 16, 1949,

PIUS PP. XII.

Editorial

The National Federation of Catholic College Students has begun its annual drive for student relief funds. Each year we have been asked to contribute what we were able to afford. We gave, but I would be willing to bet that very few of us really stopped to consider what, exactly, we were doing; to consider the beneficiaries of the funds so raised.

In the United States, sadly enough, the importance of a college education is almost entirely measured in terms of dollars and cents; a result of our high-speed economy. A college education in the Old World still is a means of accomplishing the education of the people as a whole. The college graduate truly is a leader among his people.

We know Europe was left economically crippled because of the ravages of war. Money is in the hands of a very few.

FR. TUOHY IS NAMED TO NEW POST AS THE DEAN OF FRESHMEN

A new administrative post, that of Dean of Freshmen, has been established, Vice President Rev. Edward B. McKee, O. S. A., announced yesterday. Rev. John W. Tuohy, O. S. A., assumes the new position effective immediately.

It is hoped that the new arrangement will foster a greater participation of the freshmen in college activities, and will enable the first-year men to better adjust themselves to the details of college life at Villanova. Counselling, disciplining, and recommendation of improvements will comprise Fr. Tuohy's principal duties in the new office.

Responsible to Vice-President

In the administrative set-up the new dean will be responsible to the Vice- President as is the Dean of Student Activities. As soon as space can be made available, the dean of Freshman will have an office in Mendel Hall.

The new program anticipated for the freshmen is to be a full-year program. Orientation of the fledglings will be part of the new juris-

Lay Faculty Plan Private Retreat

For the first time in the college history, a lay faculty retreat will be conducted at Villanova on the March 5-6 weekend, as announced by Very Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O. S. A., College President.

The idea of a retreat began as a result of suggestions from faculty members, and arrangements are being made under the direction of Mr. Charles P. Bruderle, Assistant Professor of History. Mr. Bruderle announced that the faculty retreat was fortunate in having as their first retreat master, Rev. Dermot McArdle, C. P., of St. Mary's Monastery, Dunkirk, N. Y. The Passionist priest is well known in retreat circles.

Commencing at 9 A. M. on Saturday morning, March 5, with Mass in the chapel of St. Rita's Hall, the retreat will run to 4:30 P. M. Sunday afternoon, the 6th. Turf And Tinsel Cast Prepares May Musical

Whelan and Noake Direct All Male Cast in "CleoWas A Lady"

By the end of last week Turf and Tinsel had completed its third week and rehearsals for their spring production, 'Cleo Was A Lady". An annual affair at Villanova, the musical comedy is scheduled for late in May. Dick Lauman plays the lead in a large cast of varsity athletes and other students.

"Cleo Was A Lady" is an original musical comedy dealing with the life of Cleopatra as she becomes involved with her famous suitors Mark Anthony and Julius Caesar. The book is by Bill Breninghouse, with score and lyrics by Robert M. Whelan. George W. Noake as usual will direct the dancing.

In the past the purpose of the Turf and Tinsel Club was to encourage varsity athletes and other interested students to engage in dramatic activities. This year the organization with one year of experience behind it and a staff of o..cers guiding it, has decided not to restrict the membership to athletes, or upper-classmen. To qualify for membership in the future, all applicants will be required to participate in at least one production.

WVIL Holds Open House This Week; New Studios Readied

In a little more than a year, the campus radio station, WVIL, has risen from its doubtful struggling infancy to a position where it compares favorably with any college radio station in the country. Originating in an unventilated linen closet in Austin Hall, the infant station was built entirely by students, whose untiring efforts and unwaning interest proved that this dream of many Villanova students could and would become an active reality. The quality of the programs presented last year, plus the interest of both faculty and students prompted the administration to supply WVIL with the much needed space and technical equipment required for continued presentation of top-flight programs.

Temporary Buildings

The new studios of WVIL are located in the temporary building which also houses the campus tonsorial emporium. They consist of a large main studio, a spacious control room and a smaller studio suitable for one- and two-man shows. Large double-lighted windows give the audio-technician in the control room a clear view of both broadcasting studios. A sound-powered phone system supplies communication between studios and control room. Walls and ceilings are completely sound-proofed with the latest acoustic materials. All interior painting and construction was performed by staff members.

Furthermore, the technical end of the station boasts a new transmitting system, two new two-speed, sixteen-inch turntables, five high-fidelity microphones, and a variety of floor and table stands. Loudspeakers in each room provide for monitoring of all shows. The entire set was constructed by the station engineering staff, which boasts of

Daily Mass

Every opportunity to attend daily Mass is being afforded us but too few are taking advantage of it. This is readily evident if one peers into the chapel in the morning or at noon time. The worshippers present could be counted by a youngster of five whose numerical talents don't extend beyond a score.

The Mass at noon should be especially well attended but it isn't. A minimum of inconvenience and hardship is involved. Every student has time off at noon for lunch. That same procedure takes a bare twenty minutes. A few minutes of the remainder of the hour could be put to good advantage by attending Mass in the chapel. This would not have to be done every day but only several times a week.

Day-hop or resident, the student who is honest with himself will find little reason for neglecting this so important part of Catholic life. We are attending a Catholic college but are we seeking the benefits of a full Catholic education?

Lent

When Lent rolls around each year, sermons and editorials admonishing us to do penance seem to appear as if they were a natural part of that Holy Season. I suppose they are, but they wouldn't be quite so necessary if only we would seriously consider what Lent actually is, and what it really means. We've been taught that those six weeks preceeding Easter are set apart as a time in which we should make a special effort to do penance for our sins. A statement such as that though, is used so many time and heard so often that it becomes hackneyed and loses its force in spite of the earnest and impelling meaning contained in it.

The real meaning of Lent and penance lies at the very root of our Christian religion and becomes more clear when we consider the place which that religion has in our everyday lives, and when we consider the great mercy and goodness of God.

Oftentimes we lose sight of these things because it is always difficult to fully appreciate something which we have always had and have never been without, no matter how important that thing is to us. This seems to be especially true of the numerous gifts and blessings of God which we take for granted.

If suddenly they were all taken away, we would see how cold and barren our lives would be. We would immediately begin to appreciate what Christ's Redemption means to us. We would strongly realize how ungrateful and selfish we would be if we didn't try to make some satisfaction to God for our many offenses against him.

Christ means a love of God instead of a fear; He means the guiding hand of the Catholic Church, the Seven Sacraments, a perfect Model for our lives, and He means that personal and intimate union with God upon which we place so much value.

His sacraments provide us with grace, strength, and assurance through our entire life. We can be relieved of the terrible oppression of mortal sin through the merciful confessional, and in Holy Eucharist we can always find the true God longing to give to us the consolation and encouragement that we need. Christ, by His model life and unselfish sacrifice of that life, has provided us with a well-lighted path, which not only leads us to eternal happiness, but which also contains a good deal of happiness in itself.

All year round we lead a pleasant life filled with many expectations, achievements, and joys, and always with the assurance that God is with us and behind us. We can go forward with complete peace of conscience, knowing where we are going and why.

'Neath The Spires

by
Tom Galloway

This is a topic that is widely, rather universally, discussed in all nations in all languages; and has been discussed since the first blood was shed through hatred in our world. Just as loss brings the desire for recovery, so war brings the eagerness for peace. Great nations promise peace to the world, then go out and fight for it. And there are our brawling selves who pray for peace, only to commit an uncharitable act in sequence to the prayer. But will discussion of peace, will eagerness for peace, will fight-prayers for peace bring us that total tranquility for which we have such a yearning?

It is needless to say that the answer is in the negative.

Abolish War

Since this problem is of such a deep nature we must explore far into it to see how it can be attained. And since peace is a state of tranquility and freedom from war and hatred, we must find a means of abolishing war and hatred; and restoring tranquility to the world Just as in training a swimmer, it is necessary to point out the faults of his former stroke in order to show him the perfection of a racing stroke, so the infamous nature of war must be pointed to the world in order to show it the beauties of peace.

The Heart

As in scientific study it is found that the molecule is matter as well as a large substance, and that the nature of the molecule is equal to the nature of the mass, so in the world it is seen that the human heart, in most respects, is the same as the heart of the government. Let us then, today, glance at the human heart. The heart is the source of our emotions. The heart—that susceptible crowd follower, that gullible home of pride! That is where the trouble lies; there! deep in the winding dark corridors of this machine that pumps hatred and revenge to every quivering nerve, to every tense limb of the body.

"I Hate You"

How often have these words surged to your lips, sometimes expressed, sometimes to burn there in silent contempt, sometime recalled before uttered through fear or sudden remorse? How often have you felt the longing for revenge; the mad passionate desire for the sight of blood; the unscrupulous craving for the destruction of another? How often have you spent sleepless nights pondering biting remarks to trouble an enemy?

Enemy Defined

"... An enemy ... What is an enemy? Webster says "an enemy is one hostile to another, one who seeks the overthrow or failure of that to which he opposed ..." For general or legal purposes this matter as deep as this the definition must be lengthened, and the cause must be sought—the effect is well known for it lies under millions of crude white crosses on the blood-saturated battlefields of Europe. in this, our day and age, an enemy is anyone of different nationality, color, belief, political view, (or anyone who possesses that which we desire).

Many of the causes of enmity are contained in this definition. These causes—briefly, desire and difference of opinion—all hide in dark crevices and corners in the hallways of the heart. They crouch there, cringing with fear, hiding from the light of truth and reason. They know that the moment they are exposed to the sparkle of veracity and logic they will be destroyed. So they hide and grow there in the heart. Truth broadens the outlook and hate cannot lurk where logic lives.

If the whole world were gathered into one place, and all came simultaneously to the conclusion that they have never given their neighbor the benefit of a doubt; that they have never stopped to think before criticizing; that they have never believed themselves to be wrong, and their neighbor right; that would introduce that beam of light into the heart. But when the man in the castle shakes hands with the man in the cabin; when

by
Bill Breninghouse

According to the latest March of Time to reach the local cinema, more and more American women are taking up careers. Before going into any discussion on this all-important subject, there is one question. What is a career girl? Well, a career girl is a young lady who, after failing to catch a man after five or six years of relentless searching, decides to give up and go to work. Of course there are exceptions to this definition but they usually get married before they have time to launch a successful career. Many of these girls get their pre-career training in institutions which they call "colleges," where they dance and have parties and meet the greatest guys and study ancient Sanskrit. In these places the spirit of woman's independence is drilled into them until they feel that they owe it to the world to take up a career in fashion or the theater or even in industry. Only one thing will alter their decision, a man, and the sooner he shows up the better.

Many a potential career has never been realized simply because the young lady was fortunate enough to reach her first goal first, that of becoming a blushing bride. Now it may be that some will object to the above statements. They will point to successful career women who are beautiful and charming and who also say that they would never let a man interfere with their work. All that can be said for these is that there must have been some unfortunate incident in their childhood that warped their minds, or else they have been living a very sheltered life. This is still a man's world despite the fact that women are becoming more active in many businesses. Naturally a few women will always take up careers, but just think of the consequences if we allow women to think that they are taking over.

Politics, business, Industry will all go to ruin once the career woman is recognized as equal to a man. First, and probably foremost, the race of man will die out in a few generations because the women will be too busy to take a few days off to have children. In the time before we become extinct, however, they will manage to gum up the works. There will be continual war because our lady statesmen won't know when to stop talking. Finance will go on the rocks when some influential wall street millionaires states that she just doesn't know where the money goes. Our president, a Texas cowgirl, will get many awards for throwing the bull, but will accomplish little else. In sports, lady wrestlers will dominate the television screen and girls' softball will become the national pastime. And we men? We, my friends, will be delegated to washing dirty socks and dishes. Our only claim to fame will be that we can really do a terrific job on soft boiled eggs.

So, if you happen to run into a prospective career girl, for the sake of humanity; stop her, even if you have to marry her. Every new career girl is another step on the road to oblivion. One last reminder, if she wants to mix marriage with a career tell her that you're more important than any career in the world. If that doesn't stop her it looks like you'll have to search in greener pastures.

Town Talk

by Philip Richards

The second of the Great Master Concerts given by the Bach Festival Society will be performed March 7, at the Academy of Music. At that time this splendid group of choral signers will present a varied concert of the choral works of Brahams, Bach and two works contemporary composers, the late Herbert J. Tily and Frances McCollin.

"A German Requiem" by Johannes Brahms will make up the major portion of the program. The work was performed two years ago with considerable success. Unlike the conventional Requiem, this composition by Brahms does not follow the general form of a church Requiem. Most Requiems contain a "Kyrie" and a "Dies Irae," but Brahms uses eight sections dealing with the general subject of death, which in way resembles a church work. It was not the intention to write something that was to be performed at a death of some famous person, as many of the Requiems have been.

The Cantata No. 50 by Bach will also be performed at this concert. It is one of the lesser known of the Bach Cantatas but will provide a contrast of the "Requiems" in tone color. Unlike the Requiem it was intended to be performed by a church group. Since the composition was written late in the 17th century it has undergone many revisions and transcriptions. The almost famous translations and transcriptions by Henry Drinker will be used.

A work by the late Herbert J. Tily "Why do the Nations" will be given and will be the first performance of the work in Philadelphia. Another work, played for the first time in Philadelphia, will be the composition by Francis McCollin, "Ring out Wild Bells."

Very few of the potential college people can possibly overcome the obstacles presented to them in the form of book and supply shortages. Their hope lies in America. We have Catholic college students in Europe who are in desperate need of the things we use so casually. The NFCCS affords us the opportunity to help those students overcome the obstacles in their path to Truth. These Catholic students must graduate and become leaders in the fight against the atheistic forces working from the East. They will be fighting our battle.

It will be so easy to give this year. Just imagine, you will be getting something immediate for your contribution, a chance to win valuable prizes. Giving couldn't be made more painless for you.

There is no reason why every Villanovan cannot take a book and sell it.

Back this drive to the limit.

Taten & Mayer

Here we are—the second time and our friends still talk to us, our matric cards are still good for meals, and the editor, Allah Abreu, gives us more space. (You can tell he's new on the job) By now you should be either startled, disgusted or interested. If startled we don't blame you; if disgusted we apologize; and if interested—we feel for you. It has been rumored that we will be replaced by a lovelorn column emanating from Rosemont, but this is highly doubtful. Whoever heard of a lovelorn Rosie?

Surprisingly enough we try to write this with the one quality that is aiding Bop and presently absent in old Jazz—sincerity. The old jazz masters, most notably Armstrong, were and are sincerity personified. Unfortunately though, too many jazzists have corrupted into commerciality. Such a man is Tommy Dorsey. In his old field of swing and ballads he is tops as his records bear not so mute witness, but when he goes to pure jazz the result is usually disappointing. True he has made some excellent jazz records, but an average of one out of ten is not good for a man of his reputation.

On to Bop

To get on to Bop though, I should like to point out the ability and talent necessary for its performance. Fortunately it is rehearsed. It is not spontaneously erratic as is old jazz; rather it is planned and designed to produce an effect. It is generally conceded that it requires far more musical ability to play Bop than any other form of contemporary music. Make a list of the top men in jazz such as Charlie Ventura, Shelly Manne, Kai Winding and Eddie Safranski to mention a few, and you'll find they are playing Bop. The reason is obvious, Bop is more sincere, an improvement, and most important of all alive. Latin is considered a dead language because it never changed, for the same reason Dixieland is dead. Bop is the new, live, jazz!

Jazz is Repetition???

The great majority of all old jazz or Dixieland, as concerns my colleague, is merely the repetition of old tunes or the reissuances of the works of past masters. Dixieland like Latin is dead because it failed to realize the need for the change that Bop provided.

Before turning you over to Mad Mayer, I'd like to recommend "Street of Loredo," a new popular release and a good old jazz number "House Party" with Bechet and Meyrrow as well as "Lemon Drop" by Woody Herman.

Thank you, Mr. Taten!! Yes by all means fans, do give a listen to "Lemon Drop" by Woody and the choir. It's a lemon, sure 'nough!

Boperahouses

Say, ain't it awful what people will do for laughs these days. To see them jamming the so called Boperahouses and to hear them talk you would think they actually understood that Bop stuff. Most of them wouldn't know a chord from a piece of string. Still they go around extolling the beauties of "Yard Bird" Parker's flatted fifth or Dizzy's frantic phrasing. Whom are they kidding! I guess we'll just have to put it down as another fad in this era of fads, but you'd think the "new look" would have been enough to sober mankind on that sort of thing for at least another century.

Musical Self-indulgences

As I mentioned last week, Bop is strictly a musicians music, something that only they can appreciate, so when they feel it necessary to give vent to these little musical self-indulgences why can't they confine them to the bath tub like the rest of us, and give the listening public something it can dance to and appreciate without periodic visits to a psychiatrist.

While in New York recently, I had the opportunity to catch both the Benny Goodman and Tommy Dorsey stage shows. Perhaps at this time they're both a long way down the line from jazz, but I can't help reminiscing a bit about that terrific Goodman sextet and T. D.'s unforgettable Clambake seven.

Contrast in Shows

I found the contrast between their respective shows rather interesting, if not indicative of coming trends. T. D. has deviated very little from his old style, and while this might be considered "stick in the muddish" in this age of progress, his show has been held over so long now, he should be eligible to vote in the New York elections. His latest thrush, Lucy Ann Polk, is well above average as a femme vocalists go, and Charlie Shavers is still a hot man with a hot horn.

Goodman Show Letdown

Goodman's show was a bit of a letdown after his many previous sojourns in the Big Town. It was a good show but not up to his usual par. His new outfit is noticably in the vocal department and when midway through the show his crew whipped out a batch of gaudy berets and tore into a bop number it was hard to tell whether the audience laughed louder at the costuming or the music. If his venture into bop was meant to be experimental, I certainly hope B. G. learned something from that little fiasco. At any rate after a short run the ole maestro folded his tent like an Arab, and I strongly suspect he's brooding by himself somewhere along the Borscht circuit right now.

And so till next week, adieu, music lovers!

Trivia

by Bob Carroll

From this week's mail:

Dear Sir,

Recently I've been troubled with insomnia. I've tried numerous remedies but without any noticeable effect. Have you any suggestions?

E. M.

Ans.—Try a little warm milk before retiring. Better yet, schedule a few early morning Business classes and catch up.

Dear Sir,

My boy friend sent me a Valentine saying he loved me. Then, I found out he sent my girl friend one just like mine. I am heartbroken. Does that mean he loves my girl friend, too?

Troubled

Ans.—Not necessarily. Has this girl friend money?

Dear Sir,

I am taking a course in Theoretical Physics and am having some trouble. One of the formulae in the textbook is stated: The speed of an electron in any given substance is obtained by subtracting its weight from the molecular weight, dividing this into the speed of light and extending to five decimal places. Given an inert, unknown substance, how would I solve for electron speed?

B. S.

Ans.—Draw trump, establish the long diamonds and, as a last resort, finesse the club queen. What can you lose?

Dear Sir,

I am engaged to a rather wealthy girl but am a little hesitant about marrying her now as I feel I am too young. What would you suggest I do?

Andy

Ans.—Subtract your age from the average age of your parents. Divide this into your financee's expected dowry. If the quotient approaches five figures, marry her.

Dear Sir,

I have just completed an excellent course on William Shakespeare. For years my soul has been starving for want of good literature and Shakespeare has only whetted my appetite all the more. I hunger for self-expression; I thirst for Truth and Beauty. Should I satisfy this craving by writing poetry?

J.

Ans.—No. What you need is a good hot meal.

Dear Sir,

Could you tell me what day the Villanovan comes out each week?

B. C.

Ans.—No. And furthermore, those initials look a little funny. You sound like a troublemaker.

Inside Opera

by
Bill Carroll

For most people, Opera appears to be a rather painful combination of garbled dialogue, "deep-end" music, and over-acting. The strange thing about this popular concept of the art is: it's true! For me the redeeming feature is the story the singers attempt to tell. Admitted, the tales are cloaked in such settings and conveyed through such a medium that it is extremely difficult to follow the plot. Nevertheless, I have found a rather unique character who has mastered a system for uncovering the movement of action that the performers hide from people who fail to understand Italian, French and German sung in high C.

Not long ago I "sweated out" Wagner's "Siegfried." To be honest with you, I was a lost soul when it came to getting anything out of it save my two lower limbs, that spared themselves the strain by going to sleep. At times I wished the rest of my body had exercised the same judgment. The thing that saved the evening for me was the narration of the plot told in the incomparable language of my now close friend. Here is the way it appeared to him.

Nature Boy

"Siegfried" (a tenor) is an ambitious fair-haired warrior who makes his home in the forrest. His buddy is a dwarf that sings bass. The two of them are always beating each other's ear about something. Finally, nature boy gets the little man to tell him about a certain ring that gives it's possessor all kinds of extra-curricular privileges. To get this finger marble he has to knock off a dragon. The kid makes himself a fabulous sword; splits an anvil to test it, and checks out after the animal.

The Search

The dwarf; a crafty basso, intends to slip the kid a mickey after "golden boy" has taken the ring from the monster. Next we find Wagner's "Gorgeous George" bounding about the forest in search of a dragon that sings bass. He finds him, and after a lyric exchange of insults the dragon decides to "go" on this tenor. Unfortunately, the dragon (a walking smoke bomb) turns out to be a little slow at in fighting and is dropped for the count.

The dwarf attempts to palm off his home brew on the kid and get the ring, but golden boy thinks it's a phoney deal and plants his king size stiletto in shorty's floating rib, (right side). Another dwarf appears on the scene and makes a stink about the killing. He gets knocked off for opening his big mouth. All of this activity attracts a big-dog god who begins a song and dance. The lad doesn't go for it and to show his contempt he takes away the god's power by doing an axe job on the enchanted one's spear. This rocket is really on the go now.

Surprise

Next we find him bounding through a wall of flame (without a press card) and discovering a sleeping warrior "sacked off" on a flat rock. He takes advantage of the sleeping figure and relieves it of shield, spear and armour. Then he makes a profound discovery. He jumps back and screams out "Das ist nein mann," (well how right can you be?). No kid, you lucky lad you; that's no soldier, it's two-hundred pounds of Wagnerian soprano.

Frightened by his new discovery he begins to cavort from rock to rock letting the audiences in on the "big" secret. This wakes up the soprano who figures that "bounding boy" is about the best the forest has to offer, so she starts to sing. (What else?) Nature boy now turns out to be the greatest lover since Solomon. After about twenty bars of a duet the curtain comes down with the kid holding a lot of "nein mann" in his straining arms.

According to this friend of ours, who should know, the Turf and Tinsel Club is up to no good. Their Spring production, something about Cleopatra and that crowd, has just gone into rehearsal and the initial review was startling. Not only have they distorted Roman history beyond recognition but they've given Caesar and Mark Anthony wonderful singing voices. We can only imagine what the effect will be on the younger students.

THE 5TH COLUMN

By JACK METZER and
MIKE NOWLAN

Each week brings a more idiotic selection of possibilities for post-season tourneys. A local New Yorker wants two of the new York teams; it's a good thing the tourney isn't played in Shippensburg.

It would take a Mafwell Differential Equation to figure why Villanova dropped out of the first twenty while teams with six, seven, and even eight defeats are still in the better class of the A.P. selections.

Two overtimes and a floor show featured the Muhlenberg game last Wednesday. That wasn't all that was featured, the fellows bringing dates found an accompanying featured price.

The Allentowners take their basketball seriously, and don't like to see their local team lose. The operator of the Liberty Bell Limited was so mad he wouldn't even stop at Villanova to pick anyone up.

Getting away from the scholastic aspect for a few minutes we'd like to pass out a verbal orchid to WPEN for their wise choice in selecting Matt Goukas as sports director. From his performance thus far we'd say he'll be every bit as good at that job as he was at his old one on the court.

Might be a little premature talking about Junior Week, but the activities of that include the selection of an orchestra for the Prom. Since the orchestra is voted upon by the class we suggest a little thought on the possibilities of bringing in a NAME if the price is as usual; or if the ceiling price is too low for a name then bring down the admission and throw in a local combination. And please, please, don't bring back Mr. Lanin this time.

It's a little late to be talking about Washington's Birthday—and far be it from these columnists to deride the father of our country—BUT George Washington's father did not pat George on the shoulder with parental condolence when George confessed to chopping down the orange tree (not cherry—they're red, and George would never tolerate Communism). But, the rod was applied where it hurt young Washington's pride. It must have been, because he still couldn't sit down when he crossed the Delaware.

Beau by Beau description by Marty Mulkeen of the Washington Whirl held a week ago last Monday found Tom Daly with Mary McCarthy —most of the evening. Among other things introduced at the Whirl were a pair of Argyles, the occupant of which was Joe Heck. The manufacturer was there too—Doris Lynch, to be precise . . . From across the river and down near the sea (at least nearer than Philadelphia) came Bill Scanlan, the reason for such perambulating being the obvious one of la femme.

Rose Marie Sucher and Chris Sickler were seen together—I guess because she had a date with him, since no other reason suggests itself. Miss Sucher may be seen every other week at St. Francis de Sales and the Arcade (for those interested). Where Chris may be found at night is more of a question.

Tragedy struck at Tex Houston and Jim McCarry—at least for a while—their chariot broke down. But like Horatio at the bridge, Tex's father filled the gap. Mr. H. hastened to the rescue, and having played the part of an A. A. A. emergency man, the caravan finally arrived at the revelry. Another one tripping the light fantastic was Bill Benham and his oh-so-cute girl friend.

Those goofs we saw carrying T-square last week were not goofs at all. They were the Engineering Frat's pledges. Thier two days of expiation culminated last night in a horrible orgy of aquatic inundations, electric shock and other forms of preternatural machinations. Of course this was to be expected from the slide rule people, whose aguse is usually heaped upon less animate objects. The pledges now may look to next year.

Why are the back stage windows of the Field House painted? To keep people from looking at the secret rehearsals of "Cyrano de Bergerac." If you think your room mate's nose is big, wait'll you see Cyrano's!!

The Russian people are going to have their own radio program, called the "Voice of the People". It will consist of a daily half-hour of silence.

The Nose

by
Jerry Micallef

"Cyrano de Bergerac," starring the incomparable Ted Doyle, will be presented by Belle Masque the first Sunday, Monday and Tuesday of April! (The third, fourth and fifth.)

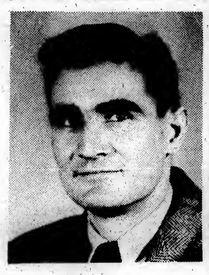
This facinating romantic-comedy (with emphasis on comedy) was written by that famous playwright of comedies, Edmond Rostand.

Father Krupa, director of "Cyrano," has had the show in rehearsal for over a month and is surprised and happy that things have snapped into the present shape in such a short time! Rehearsing ten and twelve hours daily, and everyday refusing offers to take the show on the road is keeping Father very busy!!

The cast, too, is being kept busy with rehearsals and also dodging autograph hounds who have heard how well the show is coming and want to be the first to get autographs of the stars!

Co-starring with Mr. Doyle will be Nancy Glackin, of Rosemont, as Roxanne, the one and only of Cyrano and Christian (Bill Fleming).

Also interested in fair Roxanne is De Guiche (Bob Resnick) and Le Bret (Dick Zande), who get in each other's way and accomplish nothing but to pull laughs from the audience. Complications are spread far and wide by the post-baker-philospher-playwright-etc. Raguenau (John Kelly)!



"Cyrano de Bergerac" will certainly be a riot (call the cops!) from start to finish when Belle produces it April 3, 4, and 5 under the direction of Rev. William J. Krupa, O. S. A., now residing at St. Mary's Hall. Don't miss this hit! ! !

Carroll Represents College In N. Y. Oratorical Contest

Chosen in Eliminations by Beta Gamma

William Carroll took first place in a recent oratorical contest sponsored by Beta Gamma, Villanova's Debating Society. Carroll is a Junior II in the Commerce and Finance School.

"Alexander Hamilton" was the topic of the orations; this will be the topic of the forthcoming New York Journal-American Oratorical contest. Carroll, by virtue of his winning the other evening will represent Villanova at the Journal-American contest and compete with representatives of many of the prominent colleges and universities.

Speaking Inducement

The Journal-American contest is an annual affair held in New York and sponsored by Hearst's Journal-American. It has built the reputation of being one of the foremost public speaking inducements to schools and colleges.

Last year Bill Regan represented Villanova at the contest in New York. Although Regan made a wonderful showing amongst the competition he was not successful in winning.

A judging panel composed of faculty members chose Carroll's speech as the best written, the best prepared and the best delivered from among a number of contestants.

Carroll's trip to New York will be all-expenses-paid. There he will compete in the nation-wide finals for a one-thousand dollar cash prize.

Star Debater

Bill Carroll has had public speaking as a hobby since his high school days when he was a star debater. He has been one of Beta Gamma's greatest assets in inter-collegiate debates for three years. The faculty and student body are looking forward to his bringing prestige to himself and to Villanova in the nationals in New York.

Faculty members may obtain additional information as to the retreat schedule from either Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O. S. A., in the Chaplain's office, or from Mr. Bruderle.

Festival Planned By Spanish Club For April Date

Preliminary plans for Cervantes Day were made last Thursday, in the C&F Auditorium, during the February meeting of the Spanish Club. Cervantes Day is the club's annual festival commemorating the death of Miguel de Cervantes, the great Spanish writer. The affair will be held, as usual, in the form of a dinner-dance on or about April 23.

At the meeting the rules were announced for the literary contest to be held in conjunction with the Cervantes Day celebration. The contest will be in two sections, one for the writing of a prose work in Spanish, and the other a poem, both based on the life of Cervantes. Each of the winning works will be read at the dinner-dance and the prizes, a diploma and medal from Columbia University, will be presented at that time. Further information regarding the contest may be obtained from Father Lozano.

Choose Committees

Election of members to the festival and entertainment committees will take place at the March meeting, it was announced.

An invitation to the members of the clug to attend the Spanish motion picture programs shown daily at the Teatro Lincoln, Broad and Lombard Streets, was extended, after which the meeting was adjourned by Anthony Guiotta, who presided.

IRC Group Participates In Conference At Bryn Mawr

Participants at the recent model Security Council conference held at Bryn Mawr College expressed approval of the efficient manner in which the program was conducted. Displaying the qualities of the ideal hostess, members of the Bryn Mawr International Relations Club provided adequate facilities and refreshments for the delegates.

Villanova and Rosemont represented Cuba on the question, "Shall Spain be Admitted to the United Nations?" The speaking delegate was Mary Rose Johnson of Rosemont College, Anita Wright of Rosemont was the military advisor, and Bill Nary and Don Smoth the political and economic advisors, respectively.

The Argentinian delegate opened the meeting with a proposal that the Security Council vote for Spain's admission into the United Nations. This was followed by a lengthly proposal on behalf of the United States stating their opposition to the Franco regime, their sympathies toward the Spanish people, and advocating "the exclusion of Spain from membership in all international agencies set up at the initiative of the United Nations and from participation in international conferences until an acceptable government is formed by the people of Spain." The Cuban delegation offered, as a compromise resolution, that Spain be admitted to five of the official, non-political agencies of the United Nations. The motion was not carried.

Many Colleges Attend

Other colleges attending included: Beaver, St. Joseph's, Muhlenberg, Franklin and Marshall, Bryn Mawr, Temple, Haverford, Lehigh, Ursinus, La Salle, Lincoln, Swarthmore, and the University of Pennsylvania.

This was the first of a series of Security Council meetings sponsored by the Foreign Policy Asso-

Ch. E. Class Attends Students Funeral

The entire Chemical Engineering class attended the funeral of the late Richard D. Tirrell in Phillipsburg, N. J., on Monday, February 21. Representing the administration and the faculty were the Very Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O. S. A., College President, and the Revs. Edward B. McKee, O. S. A., Vice-President, Edwin T. Grimes, O. S. A., Thomas P. Purcell, O. S. A., and Ralph E. Handran, O. S. A.

A solemn High Requiem Mass was celebrated by Rt. Rev. Msgr. William J. Lannary, with Fr. Purcell, as deacon, and Fr. Grimes, subdeacon. Father McGuire read the prayers over the grave at Saints Philip and James Cemetery in Phillipsburg.

Villanova students from Phillipsburg, and close friends of the deceased, Michael Frinzi, Raymond Manione, Jerry Norton, Robert Reilly, Salvatore Attinello and John Lilly acted as pall bearers.

Mass was said in the College Chapel the same day at 12:10 P. M. for the repose of his soul.

Tirrell who died from complications following a short illness on February 17, at the Bryn Mawr Hospital was a Junior II in Chemical Engineering and served in the Navy before coming to Villanova. Before joining the Navy he had attended the Millard Preparatory School in Washington for one year.

CATS DOWN PIRATES FOR 19th WIN

CATS CLOSE SEASON WITH ST. BONAV'URE; SETON HALL; HOYAS

By Jules Kurtz

The Wildcats commenced the final four-game span of the 1948-49 basketball season with high hopes of maintaining the admirable record which they have established thus far.

Seton Hall will be entertained by the basketeers on the Field House hardwood tomorrow evening in what promises to be a tense struggle for superiority. Frank "Pep" Saul and Tom Leverte will lead the Pirates' attack in their quest for revenge after the Main Liners inflicted a crushing 67-56 defeat on the mon their home floor.

16-5 Record

Buffalo's Memorial Hall will be the scene of the encounter with St. Bonaventure's on Saturday evening. The Brown Indians have compiled a brilliant 16-5 record during the current campaign. Ken Murray, masterful hook-shot artist, sets the pace for the Bonnies at right forward. He has aggregated an 895-point total thi sseason. Ed Krouse, Fred Dlute, Sam Urzetta, and Frank Walsh round out the starting five. St. Bonaventure's has whipped such formidable quintets as Lafayette, Canisius, Niagara, and St. Francis of Brooklyn. Coach Ed Mulkovich is planning to upend the Villanovans with an aggressive, sliding man-to-man defense in the initial game of the Buffalo double-header.

Finish Season

Georgetown furnishes the opposition in the concluding contest of the regular season at the Field House next Monday evening. The Hoyas have fought valiantly, but have been unable to make an unenviable record this year, and the 'Cats should experience no difficulty in downing the Washingtonians for the verdict.

Villanova should have a fair chance of entering the NCAA tourney in Madison Square Garden if they prevail in these three remaining skirmishes.

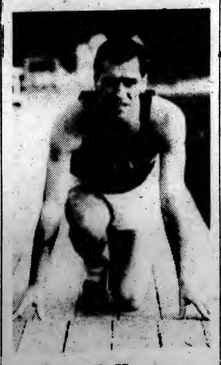
Paul Arizin's 22 points against the Pirates brought his sesons total up to 477. In the Muhlenberg game Paul broke Joe Lord's record of 438 markers for a Villanova player and is now within reaching distance of the 505 point record set by Paul Senesky for a player inthe Philadelphia district.

The Other Side

Seton Hall, a traditional basketball rival for the Blue and White has produced their usual good team losing to Long Island University by a few markers after leading for most of the encounter. Syracuse University, hot and cold up-State New York combine, 56-55 in a stirring finish, at the South Orange institution's million-dollar Field House. Oklahoma A. M. also defeated the Setonians over the Christmas holidays by a close score. The Villanova conquest of the Pirates marked the worst defeat for the South Orangeites in the past decade.

Little Three League

St. Bonaventure's, after an outstanding football season, came up with an equally impressive hoop squad. The Bonnies share the spotlight in the Little Three League, composed of the Griffins of Conisius, and the Purple Indians of Niagara University. In a surprise upset, recently, the Oleanites added to their fine reputation by toppling Niagara, 58-56.



Tom Sabol hits for two against Muhlenberg. Sparked by Tom's sensational backboard and court play, the Cats won, 62-49. Also visible are Shy Raiken (12) and Toad Hannon (5).

Jim McKenna Third In Years Best 600

Trackmen Take 11th in IC4A; Ross Fourth in Mile

By BILL COONEY

Villanova's sophomore track trackstandout, Jim McKenna, ran in his first important collegiate race last Saturday night, and in doing so upset many an expert's dope sheet. The fast movin yearling garnered no less than third in the IC-4A 600-yard run, a good trick if you can do it, even better on the first try. The Villanovan placed about 9 yards back of winner

Jim McKenna

Frank Fox of Seton Tall, and about 6 behind second place man Jack Hammack of Army. Fox is the lad who was pushing George Guida to those terrific 600's early in the season; while a look at the record shows that cadet Hammack equaled the old world's record for 500 yards at the NYAC meet's Buermyer 500. Unfortunately he did it two tenths of a second after Guida set a new one. Therefore if anyone is insconsolable over McKenna's "loss", let him remember that he was not exactly competing in the PAL or parrish CYO championships.

The time for the event was 1:11.5, the fastest IC-4A 600 since Jimmy Herbert's 1:11.2 which he did in 1940. This places McKenna's time somewhere between 1:12 and 1:13, good in any league.

The race was run in 3 heats, a qualifying heat in the afternoon with the semi finals and the finals in the evening. Even to be in the finals of this marathon of sprinting rates acclaim. McKenna ran second to qualify in the afternoon and second again in the semis to N. Y. N's Gilhooley in the slowest (1:13.8) of the heats.

Fox Wins

In the lineup at the start of the final it was McKenna on the pole, then Hammack, Fox, Holland, of Columbia, and Moore, of Cornell, with Gilhooley on the outside. At the gun McKenna broke fast and after ¾ of a lap with 3 to go he was running second to Hammack. Fox moved up past him coming off the turn and with 2 laps to go he was running third, Hammack still leading. Moore of Cornell flashed by on the next lap, and with one to go, Jim was fourth ahead of Holland and Gilhooley. At the bell lap, Fox grabbed the lead from Hammack on the backstretch, meanwhile McKenna unleashed a powerful kick and passed Moore with a scant 70 yards to go. Hammack now in second was wavering, but 6 yards to make up in a 600 is too much and McKenna still running strong broke the tape third. Moore stayed at fourth, Holland was fifth and Gilhooley finished as he had run the whole way, last.

In the most exciting event of the season, the mile, Browning Ross, of the Wildcats, placed fourth behind Wade of Yale, Dianetti of Michigan State and Pratt of Syracuse. The time was a sizzling 4:14.6 which made it the 3rd fastest IC-4A mile ever run, and only a second and six-tenths over Les MacMitchell's 1941 effort of 4:12.

Mile Run in Sections

Something new was added in the long trek, for it was the first time in the history of the meet that the mile was run in sections. Because of the large numbers of competitors the field was split into three parts and the five fastest times were taken as place. Wade and company set such a spirited pace, however, that the first five in that heat scored, and the athletes in the other heats were shut out. The,

Muhlenberg Beaten In Two Overtime Periods, 62-49

Sabol Stars as Cats Win After Slow Start

By NEAL FAHY

In one of the closest games ever played in the Villanova field house, the Wildcat basketeers notched their 18th straight at home in trouncing Muhlenberg College 62 to 49 in two overtime periods, Wednesday evening, before 3000.

Only in the second extra frame did the Severencemen begin to show the form which labels them the best team in the East this year. With the score tied at 47 at the end of regulation playing time and 49 all after the first overtime, the 'Cats threw up a barrage of points in the last five minutes to the glee of the screaming partisan fans.

Game Starts Slowly

Almost three minutes went by without a score, but Al Semmer broke the muscular monotony with a neat lay-up on a pass from Donovan. In the meantime, Aripin had been made to waste three shots, being closely guarded by Captain Dick McGee of the Mules. Coming upcourt Leo Wolf was awarded a free throw which he promptly sank but it wasn't until over a minute later that speedy Toad Hannan crashed through for Villanova's first field goal.

Then Tom Sabol, who turned out to be the star of the game, dropped a beautiful two-pointer on a pivot shot and made wto foul goals to advance Villanova's lead to 7-2. Leo Martini countered for the Mules, gut Paul Arizin drove through for his first two points of the game, as the clock showed 5:40. He was also fouled on this shot and made it good.

Mules Lead at Half

Martini scored again for the Mules and then Ricca for the 'Cats. Arizin made Villanova's next 8 points but in the meantime, Muhlenberg was scoring 15. With four minutes left to play in the first half, Sabol tapped in a rebound to even the count at 22 all, but Baker, Saemmer and Harry Donovan all tallied while Ricca made Villanova's only point leaving the scoreboard to show a 26-23 Muhlsnberg lead at halftime. Midway in the first frame, Paul Arizin broke the all time Villanova point scoring record of 438 points in a season made two years ago by Joe Lord.

Arizin Gets Hot

Harry Donovan started the second half activities with a one hand set shot, but Arizin dropped in 6 points before Saemmer cashed in on a free throw and Ed Donovan scored on a set to send the losers once more into the lead.

Tom Sabol set and tied the score at 31, however, Elmo Jackson looped one in to keep the 'Cats behind. Arizin tallied again to even the count but Harry Donovan, who perienally appears on Villanova's All-Opponent team, scored four points on two fouls and a field goal.

Villanova countered and the score teetered back and forth until five minutes were left. Then John Weglicki, who had just entered the contest, sank a jump shot from the edge of the foul circle to put the Main Liners out in front 45-41, their biggest lead since the opening minutes.

Raiken Saves Game

In the next two minutes, the Mules sparked by the brilliant shooting and play-making of Harry Donovan, came back and took over the lead by two points. As one minute remained, Shy Raiken came in saved the game for the Wildcats with a set that split the meshes and sent the crowd into an uproar.

In the first overtime, Hannan became the second man to save the game for Villanova as he sank his first set shot in 15 tries. Muhlenberg scored on two foul shots and the score was 49-49 as the buzzer

Close Game Becomes Rout in Final Minutes

By Bill Canino

Outclassing the Seton Hall College "Pirates" for forty minutes brought the Villanova Wildcat basketball squad its nineteenth victory in twenty-two starts, last Saturday night by a 67-56 count before 3500 fan at the South Orange Colleges' court.

A fast moving attack, centered around the sensational Paul Arizin, completely befuddled homesters who were primed to stop the prolific scoring tactics of the Blue-White center. Their attempt ended in failure, however, as Arizin paced both teams in scoring with 22 points, and boosted his seasonal total to 477 points which is the new all-time high for Villanova basketeers.

10-All Tie

The Severancemen, who are much in contention for post season bids, were hard pressed in the opening moments of the fray when the Pirates grabbed a quick 7-1 lend. But Arizin went to work and tallied 6 points and at five minutes the count was knotted at 10-all.

Joe Hannan, Shy Raiken and Tom Sabol were effective from the outside and the 'Cats went ahead 18-17. A sharp defense held the Reitmeier men scoreless for the next seven minutes and as the period ended the 'Cats were ahead 27-19. Then the Pirates caught fire against the Villanova substitutes and at the intermission the score was 39-29.

Ahead to Stay

Frank Saul, the Seton Hall peppperpot, sank a foul to open second half proceedings and Paul Renner put the Setonians ahead 34-33 but the lead was short lived and the 'Cats scored almost at will and after five minutes they were out front, 41-34.

The homesters narrowed the margin to 41-38 but Vilanova was not t obe denied. Arizin connected on two field goals and foul to send the 'Cats a seven point lead mid-way in the second half.

At this stage of the battle Seton Hall shifted into a zone defense with hopes of stopping Arizin but this did not hamper the scoring proceedure of the visitors who maintained their 55-48 advantage.

Saul broke through for two floor shots but Leo Wolf, who played a sterling game on the défensive, sank one from far out with less than four minutes remaining.

In the waning moments the Mainliners continued to outplay their foes and coasted to victory.

Arizin Flustered

The contest, which was bitterly fought all the way, had one brief disheartening moment. Arizin, usually cool and collected lost his temper momentarily when the Seton Hall's Leverte deliberately fouled Paul while headed goalward. This culminated a flury of un-called fouls which Leverte had committed against Arizin under the basket.

Amid unsportsmanship yells from the gathering, Arizin stepped up calmly to the free throw line and swished the oval through the net which had a quieting effect on the hecklers.

Frosh Bow

In the preliminary game the Villanova Freshman five became a cropper as the Seton Hall yearlings took a 58-45 decision. The victors were lead by 6'1" Frank Hurt who tallied 28 points. Hurt sank 14 of his 22 field goal tries. Tom Brennan scored 12 points while Joe and Mick Maguire had 9 and 8, respectively, for the Frosh.

Action in the Mendel-Deops game last Thursday night in Alumni Gym. Mendel, by upsetting the Doms, 37-30, moved into a tie with Austin for first place.

first heat was won by Ahearn of Holy Cross. The second heat was won by none other than our own George Thompson.

Thompson reached the semi finals, but in the running of them he got caught in a box at the end and could not break away in time to pass Comerford of Manhattan and Drutzler of Michigan State. He then started in one section of the mile which he won. Unfortunately the last heat was so fast that his time didn't qualify him for a place.

IC-4A Highlights

For track fans who missed Jesse Abramson in last Sunday's Inquirer or who have refused to read his mnince he picked McKenna for fifth, here are some of the highlights, lowlights, and sidelights on the meet.

The 28th annual indoor IC-4A track and field championship team was Michigan State with 35 2/5 points. Defending champion Yale was second with 26 2/5, Seton Hall had 20 and Army 16 1/5. Villanova tied for eleventh with Penn State with 5 points each.

The IC-4A record and world's indoor record for the 35-pound weight throw was mashed by beefy Jim Sholty of Army when he heaved the ball 60 feet 7 and three-quarter inches. The old IC-4A record held by Dreyer of Rhode Island State at 57 feet 9 ins. had stood since 1935. The indoor record of 58, 7 and one-half inches was made gy Perkins of Bawdoin in 1940.

Jim Gehides of Penn State broke the IC-4A and indoor record for the 60-yard high hurdles by soaring down the route in one of the heats in 7.2 seconds. Fred Johnson tied the new record later in the evening when he won the final in that time. The old record of 7.3 was tied not once but six times altogether in the various heats. Gehides and Mitchell of Georgetown tied it twice each in addition to one apiece for Johnson and his teammate Thomas.

The 60-yard dash saw no records broken but the record of 6.2 was tied 4 times. Stanfield of Seton Hall tied it in winning the final and in a heat. It was also tied in the heats by the above mentioned Johnson, and Backett of Syracuse.

The 4000 was won by Thigpen of Seton Hall in 2:14.2. The Freshman relay went to Manhattan in 7:39.2, the broad jump was Johnson's 3rd triumph of the meet; which Michigan State also took the two-mile relay. The one-mile relay went to Georgetown.

sounded again.

Sabol Sparks

The final five minutes became a rout as Sabol started it with a set and a one handerd in the first minute and a half. Leo Wolf got two lay-ups on passes from Ricca in the last half minute. John Weglicki collected a foul shot and Hannan and Ricca got lay-ups as Muhlenberg got only 2 point on fouls.

Arizin took only 11 shots in the entire game being halted by fouling and fanning. However, he ended up high scorer of the game with 23 points. Sabol was next for the 'Cats with 16 markers, four more than Harry Donovan, high man for the Mules.

Day Hop Top Bks 4 In Water Polo, 3-0

Last Wednesday, the pool was a maze of activity as the Dayhops faced the Barracks-4 team. In the initial water polo game of the season the Dayhops won the engagement by the count of 3-0. The first tally came after a lapse of four minutes in the first quarter. Assisted by a pass from Ed Connelly, Bill Rath dropped the ball in for one point.

The Barracksmen came back with surprising ability in the opening minute of the second quarter, but they were unable to score, the Dayhops stealing the ball, and within 1½ minutes after the gun they racked up another marker with Jim Plunkett's long pass to Joe O'Brien who scored. The Residents now definitely on the defensive held again but to no avail as "Fiery" Rath completed a pass from Joe O'Brien two minutes later to notch up another point. With this final tally the Dayhops pulled the game out of the water for their first win, serving notice of the aquatic prowess.

Much valuable assistance has geen given to the swimming club aspirants by Coach Jack Lumsden, who is swimming mentor of Malvern Prep and the Penn A. C. Fathers Burke and McLaughlin also rendered valuable services to the Merman due to their interest in swimming activities.

The next water polo attraction will take place on March 3rd, at 4 p. m. in the Field House Pool, and will see Alumni pitted against Austin. All members of the Swimming Club are requested to report to the Pool today at 4:30 p. m. for Bell Air Pictures.

As far as the competition goes for the Frank Palumbo trophy for the player with the best average in the district, Tall Paul now stands in third place with a 21.7 average. According to the NFSB Arizin, if he continues to hit for better than 22 in his last three games, will break the Philadelphia record for points in a season, win the Palumbo trophy, and have the most number of points for the season in the country.

MENDEL WINS OVER DOMS; IN TIE WITH AUSTIN FOR FIRST

Only a limited schedule was presented to Intramural fans last week because of the intervening holiday. Two games were played in each league, the Resident and the newly-organized Day Hop loop.

Surprise performances were the order of the evening in the Resident League on Thursday. A lightly-regarded Good Counsel team threw a scare into the tall Fed'gan quintet before bowing in the final minutes 42-40. The losers feat is more remarkable in view of the fact that only five men appeared for the contest, and pulled an "iron-man" stunt by playing without substitutions. It was the scoring and the spirited play of Ray Petit that again proved the deciding factor. The rugged pivot-man and coach of Fedigan connected for 17 points in his team's hard-won triumph. Dave "Specs" Fink scored 13 and his drive-in hook shots were an outstanding feature of the contest. Brennan also had 8 points for the winners.

Good Counsel's victory bid was marked by great team play and clever fast passing. Everyone in the lineup broke into the scoring column, as Scanlon led the attack with 10 points. O'Donnell and McCarthy had nine, while Lewis neeted 8 and brick two goals for four points. Perry Del Purgatorio, of the Varsity squad and Tom Brennan, of the Freshman team, officiated.

In the windup Mendel, first-half cellar dwellers, stunned the "experts" by whipping the Doms, 37-30. This win enabled Mendel to climb into a first place tie with Austin.

The diminutive Benny Moshal, Mendel's elusive forward, again led the victors scoring parade with 14 points. Benny's running jump shots proved too much for the battling Doms of Fr. Dunne as they dropped their first game this half. "Red" Case came into his own for the winners with his fien defensive play, great ball-handling and team leadership. He also controbuted 3 baskets to the upset victory, one less than Boyle. "Red" controlled the goards despite the height advantage of the Doms.

The scoring ace of the losers was Paul Becotte with 11 point including 7 fouls out of as many attempts. Bill Knecht, held scoreless in the first canto by Capt. Jack Denuel, scored 8 points in the last half in a futile attempt to overtake Mendel's surprising five. Jim Gallen and Jim Selgarth called the contest in which Mendel led at the half, 21-14.

In the Day Hop contest the EE's came through with the second victory beating "Doc" Brown's Bombers of the Education School, 46-32. The big gun in the EE's attack was again Tom Burns who registered 23 point for half of his team's total. This win gave possession of first place to the EE's. Jim Rosati scored 11 and big George Kodis dumped 9 for the outclassed losers. Eugene Batter and Jim Selgarth did a fine job with the whistle.

Fighting an up-hill battle all the way, after being shut-out, 10-0 in the first quarter, Dwyer's "Tonds" with a great last half scoring drive edged the Arts Day Hops, 32-31. The winners were sparked by McGehrin, who saw only limited first-half action but managed to cop scoring honors with 11 points including the winning foul shot in the last six seconds. O'Brien had 9 and Leonard 6 for the runner-up spots. For the Arts team the Creamers brothers—Shane with 12 and Mike with 9—bore the brunt of the attack. Phil Piro and Phil Appelby officiated.

Tourney Talk

With the cagers' record now 19-3, and with a 22-3 season standing a pretty good bet, the question now arises, "Will the Wildcats be invited to one of the big tournaments?" As we see it, it's about a 50-50 shot which depends upon a lot of "ifs".

To begin with, the 'Cats will have to win their remaining three games with Seton Hall, St. Bonaventure, and Georgetown before we can even talk about a tourney bid. However, the blue and White trounced Georgetown by 15 and Seton Hall by 11 points and both games were away. On the home court the quintet should ge at least five points bttter while the tilt with St. Bonnies shouldn't be too much toruble.

The first tournament is the National invitational at the Garden starting on the twelfth of March. Probable choice to represent the East in the NIT is C. C. N. Y., not by virtue of an outstanding record but because it is a New York team. Villanova, Yale, and Duquesne have all done better during the season, but none of the three clubs would be as good a drawing card as the Beavers. As for the remaining seven teams, they will be chosen from teams in the Middle West and far West which outclass anything else the East has to offer.

With the NIT out of the picture, the next meet for consideration is the NCAA Eastern Regional Tournament at the Garden on the 21st and 22nd of March. Pennsylvania and New York fall into District Two, and with the probability of C. C. N. Y. appearing in the NIT, the only remaining logical representatives are Villanovt and Duquesne.

At present, the Wildcats' 19-3 record is better than the Dukes' 17-4 slate, but the 65-37 loss handed by the boys from Pittsburgh makes the story a little different. We should win the remainder of our games but the Dukes still have Cincinnati on their schedule, to whom they lost earlier in the season. It might be of interest to note that this game with Cincinnati was cancelled a few days ago for financial reasons. However, the game will now be played since the difficulties seem to have been ironed out. Should Cincinnati again win, the 'Cats cagers are almost a sure bet to go to the Garden. A Duquesne victory would return things to status quo with the Dukes having a slight edge over the Mainliners for a tourney nod.

As long as we're speculating on the tournaments, we might as well stick our neck out and predict the other three teams in the Eastern half of the NCAA games. Yale is due to represent New England since there is just no one else. From the Big Nine, we pick Illinois and from District Three our choice is Western Kentucky. These three and Villanova or Duquesne will meet in the Eastern championships and then the top two will travel to Seattle to meet the first and second place teams of the Western Tournament which will be played at Kansas City, Missouri.

Tank Splashings

At this point we'd like to call the newly-formed swimming club to the platform to take a bow. The boys have been operating for about three weeks now and they've really accomplished a tremendous amount. With the help of Fr. Burke and Fr. McLaughlin, a meet and a water polo have been played and there are more coming up on the club's agenda. A great interest is being shown by the faculty and the student body and, as we see it, the club has a bright and promising future. So, bathing caps off to the mermen!

Diamond Dust

Our first baseball news comes from Coach Phil Wienert two days before the first practice session. A meeting was held last Friday for prospective members of the squad where Weinert spoke for a few minutes to some 40 candidates. Tryouts are slated to start this Thursday outdoors and all men are asked to pick up uniforms as early as possible. According toCoach Weinert as few as possible indoor practice sessions will be held with team doing practically all the work on the diamond.

Court Capers

In that double overtime affair with Muhlenberg, the Mules were held to only two foul shots in ten minutes of overtime play . . . On the night four other games resulted in overtime periods . . . According to one newspaper's headlines, our cagers nosed out Seton Hall in a late rally. As we saw it, that "late" rally lasted for 35 minutes . . . After receiving his share of elbows all night long, "Big Bad" Paul Arizin was met with an uproar of boos for being a bully . . . Paul hit for 22 against the Pirates and his average now stands at 21.7 per game, slightly behind Lavelli of Yale . . . Toad Hannon is hustling more than ever; the place went wild as he stole the ball from Pep Saul as he stood poised for a set . . . Leo Wolf did a tremendous job of guarding Saul during the second half . . . Tom Sabol and Brooks Ricca played a great game under the boards.

having several FCC-licensed studio engineers. Recording equipment, sound effects apparatus, a studio piano, and other improvements are projected for the near future. Also, the engineering staff is now at work on an intricate monitoring console that will greatly facilitate and increase the scope of broadcasts.

Select Audience

WVIL programs have been designed to entertain a very select audience, the students of Villanova College. It has been the policy of the station to keep commercials completely off the air. Student activities, however, are always given as much air time as possible. A greater percentage of the programs consist of recorded music, since it has been shown that the students demand a great deal of popular and classical music. The station now has a record library of nearly one thousand records, which is added to monthly. In addition to recorded shows, many live shows are presented weekly. Among these are a student quiz, a faculty forum, and dramatic shows. Every night a fifteen-minute resume of campus news, sports news and comments keeps students informed of doings on the local scene. Programs featuring talent garnered from Villanova and neighboring girls' schools and a larger variety of live shows will soon be aired.

Students Invited

For the rest of this week, the station will sponsor an informal open house every night during broadcasting hours, seven to eleven. Students and friends are cordially invited to inspect the station and its facilities and observe programs being broadcast. It is hoped that many students will take advantage of this opportunity to see the work that is being accomplished. Not only is WVIL meant to entertain but to give interested students an insight into radio work also, and, whenever possible, actual radio experience. Anyone who feels that he is sufficently interested in radio work to devote a good deal of time and energy in it is welcomed to join the staff of the station.

MUSICAL CLUBS GIVE CONCERT AT M'LVERN

On the 23rd of February, the Villanova Glee Club and Band gave their first concert of the year at Malvern Preparatory School. Both organizations were enthusiasticly received by the capacity audience..

The Band presented a well rounded program of various types of music. Under the direction of Rev. Ralph E. Handran, O. S. A. the Band played: "The Skywriter March" by Bergein, a Wagner selection, the ever popular "Funiculi Funicula" by Denza, and a medley of Jerome Kern melodies.

The feature of the Band's performance was Miss Marguerite McFarland, of Immaculata College, soloing on the piano for Greig's "Piano Concerto in A Minor." The other highlight of the performance was a Trumpet duet by John Bianchi and Edward Anzur of the "Helena Polka" by Kiefer. Both of these features were very warmly received by the audience.

Glee Club Sings

The Glee Club sang many well known compositions including: "All Through The Night," "This Is My Country," a group of Victor Herbert selections and a medley of college songs.

Peter Gutwald gave a solo of one of todays most popular songs, "Cool Waters." Martin Binder soloed on "The Gypsy Sweetheart." During a Victor Herbert medley sung by the Glee Club, Miss McFarland sang a variation. Later, Miss McFarland and Martin Binder sang a duet, "Just Because You Are You."

Fr. Handran asked the audience to join in singing when the Band played "Buttons And Bows," "Margie," "Always," and many other old favorites.

Between numbers Fr. Handran made introductory remark concerning the selections following. At the close of the concert Fr. Handran thanked the audience for its gratifying reception of the Band and Glee Club.

Sherwood Kains will conduct the concert in the absence of James Allen Dash, the regular conductor of the Society. The soloists will be David Atkinson, who was seen here in "inside U. S. A." this year and Margaret Keiser. Tickets for the performance can be obtained from the writer of this column in the Villanovan Office.

diction. The new office will not, however, replace the class moderators, who will continue to be selected for each freshman class.

All the first year men whether resident, non-resident or temporary off-campus students will be under the disciplinary jurisdiction of the Dean. In this connection a new program of freshman rules, is to be established, based on the rules that have been in effect. The new rules will be printed in the Student Handbook for next year.

Freshman Hall

One of the features of the new arrangement will bring the freshman hall back to the campus. In the past Alumni Hall had been used as a residence hall for freshman alone.

Fr. Tuohy who hails from Staten Island has been at Villanova College since 1945 in the departments of Education and Religion. He is presently Student Counsellor in Good Counsel Hall.

Ordained in 1946, Fr. Tuohy had entered the Augustianian Order in 1928. He holds a degree of Master of Arts from Catholic University, 1937. His first appointment took him to the Villanova Preparatory School in Ojai, California, where besides teaching he held the posts of Director and Coach of Athletics. He remained on the Coast until 1945 when he joined the faculty at Villanova. He was graduated from Villanova College in 1933 with an A. B. degree. In1947 he was Moderator of the Freshman Class.

Turf And Tinsel

after a number of years lay-off (there were some small productions given during the war years, the Turf and Tinsel produced "John Smith Esq." last season. Also directed by Robert Whelan and George Nonks, the musical concerned itself with the John Smith of American history as he tangled with Indians, dancing girls, and his love, Pocahontas.

Under the direction of Edward A. Keough, the first Turf and Tinsel Club presented as its 1933 premier production, "Look Who's Here"—the only musical comedy production since 1920 in which the depression is never referred to-wasn't it awful? Note the absence of telephone, doorbell, butler, "moon," song, revolving stage, living curtain, original New York cast, beauty contest winners and spears. Assembled and produced by Edward A. Keough, an attorney.

Peppery Production

The second annual production of Turf and Tinsel in May, 1934, was "Let's Go Places." Again under the direction of Mr. Keough, this presentation was described as "A peppery, tropical concoction in three helpings." Both of these plays contained about fifteen of the then current song hits.

Among the actors in the early productions were: Martin Gezzer '33, former football star; William H. Grimberg, '35, football captain and now an official in the National Professional Football League; Metro Weston, '33, basketball captain; George "Whitey" Randour, '34, one of the best of all Villanova football players; James "Jumbo" Elliott, '35, present track coach of Villanova; Michael Clavin, '35' brother of Tom Clavin, Villanova football player; and Edwin Riley, '35, former VILLANOVAN editor.

Cast Picked

This year's production is scheduled for May 18, 19, 20 and 21. The cast as chosen by the directors, stars Dick Lauman as Cleo, Martin Binder as Julius Caesar, and Robert Sabol as Mark Tnthony. Others in the cast include: Al Schmid, Ted Doyle, Bob Resnick, Jack Kelly, Joseph Hennessey, Frank Ware, Robert Penrose, Joseph Remy, Ernesto Smith, and Robert Suarez.

ciation of Philadelphia. Every indication points to the promise that future gatherings will be equally as informative and advantageous. The next conference will be held at Swarthmore College, March 23rd.

Model Conference

The International Relations Club will participate in the Model Review Conference to revise the United Nations Charter, March 18, 19, 20, at Haverford College. The conference has a three-fold purpose:

1. To encourage participants to get a better understanding of the United Nations' history, its theoretical structure and the organs through which it carries out its day-to-day operations.
2. To inquire into the theoretical and practical requirements inherent in the idea of a constitution for a world federal government which is at once workable, a world federal government is acceptable and desirable. (By meant a world organization with the authority and power to enact, interpret, and enforce world law upon individuals within those adequate limits set by its constitution).
3. To attempt to discover how the United Nations Charter may be revised in order to meet the criteria discovered in point 2.

A Preparatory Commission meeting was held Saturday, February, 26th.

FORUM SPEAKER

First Of Forum Lectures Attracts Large Audience

Mrs. Catherine DeHueck Doherty Initiates Villanova Forum; Discusses Racial Problem

"There is no Negro question in America today; there is only a White problem—the problem of prejudice," declared Mrs. Catherine de Hueck Doherty, last Thursday evening, in the C&F Auditorium, during the first of a series of lectures to be presented by the newly organized Villanova Forum.

Mrs. Doherty, a former Russian Baroness, who fled the Bolshevik Revolution, has for the past two decades been actively engaged in social work. Paramount among her accomplishments are the founding of "Friendship Houses", Catholic settlement institutions in New York, Chicago, Washington, and Toronto. Her lecture here marked the beginning of the last leg of her annual nationwide tour to spread knowledge of "Friendship House" and aid to her charitable work.

Attired in a simple black dress from which shone a silver cross, the "Harlem Madonna" presented a nun-like appearance as she denounced the indifferent complacency to the race question on the part of Christianity in general, and America in particulr.

Pleads for Justice

"He who denies that the Negro is his brother, and says he is a Christian, lives a lie," she declared. "It is said that the Negro should keep his place, but who are we to define this place?" asked the Baroness as she pleaded, not for charity, but for justice for the colored peoples. "A further danger," she explained, "is that the White treatement of the Negro has exposed them to the teachings of Communists," who, according to Mrs. Doherty, "are not born, but made—by hypocritical Christians, Catholics included." The solution to this problem, she warned, can come only from action, such as is being done by her "Friendship House".

The lecture, held timely enough during Inter-racial Week, was presided over by Assistant Professor Charles P. Bruderle of the Villa-

Library Announces Acquisition Of Rare Biographical Collection

Last week the new Library announced several recent acquisitions, in donations of the massive literary work "Acta Sanctorum", a 16-mm. microfilm reader, a microcard reader, and in the hanging of two superior portraits.

Donates Study of Saints' Lives

A major contribution to the library came in the form of 65 volumes of the "Acta Sanctorum", a most profound study of the lives of the saints, costributed by the Provincial, Very Rev. Mortimer A. Sullivan, O.S.A., of the class of 1906. The work has been published by the Bollandists, an association of ecclesiastical scholars engaged in editing the literary effort. It is a great hagiographical collection begun during the first years of the 17th century and continued to our own day.

Alumnus Gives Microfilm Reader

Rev. John Sheehan, O.S.A. of the class of 1900, former Provincial, and present pastor of St. Nicholas Church, in Atlantic City, N. J., donated a microfilm reader to the newly opened library.

Efficiency Plus

In the past two decades institutions and business organizations of all kinds have turned to microfilm for speed, safety, ease, and economy in record-keeping. Microfilmed records require up to 120 times less space, assure accuracy, guarantee permanence, prevent misfiling and reduce overall costs up to 50%.

Attractively designed and finished in gray wrinkle enamel, the AO Reader is constructed of aluminum castings and a one-piece metal cabinet. It weighs approximately 90 lbs. and requires a floor space approximately 16" x 22", and is 48" high.

Fr. Rafter Presents Microcard Reader

Donated by Rev. Walter Rafter, O.S.A., of the class of 1910, of Bryn Mawr, Pa., a microcard reader has been delivered to the library lately.

FRESHM'N NOMINATE COUNCIL CANDIDATES TO HOLD ELECTIONS

Campus politics were again stirred into activity with the announcement of the date for the election of Freshman Class representatives to the Student Council. In these elections on March 14, two members of the Class of 1953 will be chosen to fill the posts.

Six nominees for these offices were named last Tuesday evening, in the C & F Auditorium, at a Freshman Class meeting led by Emil Mika and Bob Dougherty of the Student Council Elections Committee. The names of the men in the contest for the Council posts as a result of final nominations are:

Bud Conklin, engineering student, from Red Bank, New Jersey.

Thomas Curran, C. and F., from Duquesne, Pa., who is a member of the Swimming Club and the Spanish Club.

James Gallagher, Arts, from Staten Island, New York, a member of the news staff of the VILLANOVAN and the Belle Air.

Examinations Held For Fall Entrance

It was announced last week by the Registrar, Rev. John H. Mc Donnell, O. S. A., that applications for admission to the freshman class next fall were already being received. It is expected that this class will be equally as large as the present freshman class which was the largest in the history of Villanova.

Applications will not be accepted after July 1 for the 1949-50 year, and it has been advised that early application be made because the applicants must complete entrance examinations before acceptance.

National Exams

The entrance examinations are National Exams given for entrance to most colleges and universities. They are conducted by the Educational Testing Service. Last Saturday, March 5 the first pre-Engineering Inventory Examination was conducted for applicants who intend to enter the Engineering school. It is obligatory that applicants for the Engineering school take this examination. It includes students intending to major in Engineering, Mathamatics, Physics and Chemistry.

Applicants for other schools such as Arts, Education, and Commerce and Finance will be required to take the College Board Examination, given several times each year for college entrance. The next examination will be conducted on the 9th of April.

The Registrar expects very few veterans among the coming class. It will include mostly recent high-school graduates with approximately fifty Navy ROTC appointees. The office of the Professor of Naval Science will again conduct examinations for contract status in the NROTC.

SYMPATHY

The staff of the VILLANOVAN extends its sympathy to Rev. Charles J. McFadden, O. S. A., whose father died on March 1, to Daniel E. Monaghan, whose father died Sunday February 27 and to James C. Long, whose father died Thursday, March 3. Masses will be said for each in the College Chapel.

Easter Vacation To Be Extended

It was announced from the office of the Dean, Rev. Edward M. Dwyer, O. S. A., that the Easter vacation will be extended until Monday, April 24. This change was made because of convention of the National Catholic Educational Association in Philadelphia and the dedication of the new College Library during Easter week.

As scheduled on the college calendar it was planned that classes would be resumed on Thursday, April 20. The change will lengthen the Easter holidays by four days

Joe Hennessey, chairman of the Social Affairs Committee of the Student Council, has announced that plans are being made for the annual St. Patrick's Day Dance to be held March 17th in the Field House. Dancing will be from 9:00 P. M. till 1:00 A. M. and tickets for the informal will go on sale March 10th.

The affair is the second Student Council dance to be held this year and it is expected that it will be a regular policy of the Council to conduct these dances yearly.

Phi Kappa Pi Fraternity Holds Annual Initiation

Over fifty engineers were initiated into Phi Kappa Pi, largest fraternity on the campus, last Monday, February 28th. Rev. Edward B. McKee, O.S.A., Vice-President of the College, addressed the fraternity at the banquet following the initiation.

Two other speakers who addressed the gathering were Rev. John A. Klekotka, O.S.A., and Rev. John S. O'Leary, O.S.A., moderator of the group

Two hours of paddling, crawling, water-ducking, and electric shocking featured the fiendish inauguration. Dan Haflinger, chairman of the Initiation Committee delegated the mechanical hazings to Joe Sullivan, with Jim Dugan working out various stains and dyes for the chemical end of the initiation, and Mike Nowlan rigging up the "hot seat" and 6,000-volt electric ticklers.

Gene Valerio, Charlie Peissner, and Joe Catrobone, three members of the upper class who joined, were given special attention in an evening's activities unprecedented in forty years of initiations.

The fraternity was first organizedized in 1908 by some thirty students, and has grown to a membership of over a hundred and fifty engineers.

John Link, president of the fraternity, introduced the speakers and welcomed the new members who joined, and commended the members for their turnout.

Father Klekotka and Father O'Leary welcomed the pledges with humorous ancedotes and stressed the need of more activities in Intramural sports by the Phi Kappa Pi. They also mentioned the importance of social personality in engineering contacts, and that the Phi Kappa Pi afforded this opportunity.

Sandwiches, cookies, milk, apples, and cup cakes were served in the cafeteria by the Refreshment Committee headed by Charles Loeper and Daniel Walsh.

Officers of the Fraternity are:

John Link, President; Mike Nowland, Vice-President; George Schillinger, Secretary; Al Scarcelli, Treasurer; Don LaBanca, Sergeant-at-Arms, and Iver Peterson, Student Council Representative.

Phi Kappa Pi members initiate neophites at the completion of the ordeals which the new members had to undergo to become a part of the campus fraternity, which represents the engineering school.

Silence

The atmosphere of a College Library should essentially be one of reverent muteness. The reaction to the new building on the part of some of the students has been gratifying in the eyes of the library staff toward their effort to maintain the building in the best of condition. While the library is not fully equipped at this time, we have reason to urge a "Silence" campaign in order to impress those who have flagrantly violated the unwritten law.

We feel this condition should be remedied as soon as possible, since it could assume the proportions of a scene comparable to the loud discourses heard in any public meeting hall. Whether in the Reading Room, the Periodical Room, or other parts of the building, bear in mind that your whispers are as undesirable as the careless driver who bespatters your attire as he surges forward with reckless abandon on a rainy rainy day. As a final reminder, Webster states, 'Silence— a state of keeping or being silent; forbearance from speech or other noise."

Reprimand

Several weeks ago the VILLANOVAN commented upon a letter concerning several characters who by their lack of common sense narrowly averted accidents on the Pike. The letter was received only a short time after a light had been installed so that such action on any pedestrian's part would be without cause. At this time the VILLANOVAN thought that verbum sapiens satis.

In the past week another letter was received. It was a complaint by the Pennsylvania R. R. about the hazardous conditions brought about by students crossing their tracks before on-coming trains. It is beyond our comprehension why any one would put himself in such danger unnecessarily. An underpass provided for the purpose of crossing these tracks is beyond a doubt sufficient. Therefore there remains no excuse for endangering life and limb by crossing on the tracks.

It is difficult to understand why Villanovans continue to ignore safety facilities, risk not only their own lives but the lives of the motorists and railroad passengers.

Don't Kid Yourself!

Last week was Brotherhood Week. Days after Brotherhood Week are we still conscious of the message which was its theme? When you are complacent it is so easy to forget because it is the old story to you. You say, "they mean the fellow sitting beside me, not me", but they do mean you. Can't you get personal with yourself about anything that concerns the part you play in the human society?

Racial prejudice and discrimination—you will hear a lot about these two evils of this modern age when certain men will presume that God made them better than other men because they have physical features which are different. Something like the last sounds ridiculous but such presumptions are prevalent whether we find them illogical or not.

Now, don't say there isn't any particular danger involved. You're only kidding yourself. You also may say that there is racial injustice but not enough to create any real problem in this country. Do you think it is only the less-educated people who are susceptible to racial injustice?

Recently, Congressman Rankin, Representative from Mississippi, addressed the House concerning the Civil Rights program. His remarks, to any thinking person, were the remarks of an ignorant rabble-rouser who not only encourages racial injustice but demands that all persons with names that have a foreign origin be looked upon with susupicion. I am not going to discuss his speech further because it is too clear.

All that is asked is that we recognize the problem and do ourbest to help remedy a situation which rubs against every Christian ideal.

"BEHIND THESE BUSHES."

by
Tom Galloway

This column seems to be drifting further and further from the connotation of the title, but my purpose in keeping it so as to leave the cut and dried preaching to the clergy. I have attempted, though, to keep it on at least a respectable level, and to use only those topics which have some bearing on our inner selves and our morality.

Today's topic may seem even less pertinent to us than the others, but actually it deals directly with you and with me, with our friends and relatives. Every man is desirous of bettering himself and of being able to imitate those who seem to be his superiors.

Other great nation has become nothing less than a large scale Hollywood. Our one hundred and thirty million people have become so many actors. We have our Humphrey Bogarts who constantly swagger around with a chip on their shoulders, Errol Flynns with their loveless romances, Jane Russels who overplay their parts, Clark Gables so artificial in everything they do. If this condition must exist it is a shame that there cannot be more Jolsons and Crosbys with their easy going dispositions and hearts always ready to burst into song.

Even our everyday problems are solved by movie methods. Some of us ignore them completely, waiting for the happy ending we always see in the movies. We often become dissatisfied with ourselves, our stations in life, our wives and loved ones as we compare them with the persons and situations on the movie screen. Often where we could use our brains and personality we resort to the violent and often fatal tactics that Edward G. Robinson puts to use in every picture.

Washington is no longer the capitol of our nation, Hollywood is, that is the place from which our private lives are directed. Many of us are no longer happily married because we are slaves of public opinion. We do things because we believe that others are liked and admired for doing them. We try to be prototypes of our favorite actors and actresses, subconciously our idols. Many of our divorce cases are brought on by the fact that our most prominent people—The Hollywood folks—make a hobby of having a variety of wives.

Sure, the movies are a swell place to spend an evening, but we must remember that actors and actresses are regular folks, just like you and I, and are paid to act the parts they play. And keep this in mind, too, that we have minds of our own, let's use them, let's be ourselves, and we'll be a lot happier.

Movie fiction; made to see.
Its not meant to really be.
People paid to act in plays
Still must live in normal ways.
Try a movie line on girls someday.
Watch them laugh and turn away.
Watch a movie; players act.
Living truly, must be facing fact!

Around The World On A Pogo Stick

by
Bill Breninghouse

The recent feat of an Army bomber in flying around the globe nonstop is actually a very minor event when compared to the tremendous deed accomplished by two Villanova physics majors one cold night night last week. These doughty physicists formulated a plan whereby they could travel around this oblate spheroid on a pogo stick.

Their theory was that the energy gathered from a jump from the top of Mendel Hall would supply enough power to bounce them around the world. With the aid of a few coefficients of restitution and varied polyberratic sine curves they were convinced they could make this momentus journey in record time. In fact, they believed that it would be possible for them to arrive at the end of their globe-girdling three minutes and ten seconds before they would leave. Encouragement came from all sides. Oppenheimer, Compton, and Einstein sent personal messages expressing their best wishes and confidence that the experiment would be successful.

The Start

Thus, on last Wednesday night, while hundreds of students and friends looked on singing "V for Villanova," the young scientists scaled the heights of Mendel Hall carrying their priceless plutonium pogo stick. When they finally reached the spherical peak of the honored edifice a tremendous cheer went up from the lungs of the watchers. With hearts full of courage and pockets full of hoagies the brave researchers took stock of their situation. Far, far below their lofty perch there was a small red spot around which the mob had formed a weaving wheel of curious humanity. The adventurers must hit that spot with their faithful pogo stick, so these bold pioneers of pogo propulsion boarded their sturdy craft, waved to the cheering throng, and took off for the little red spot.

The people below were enthralled, thrilled, that they would be present at this historical event. As the duo on the pogo stick came closer and closer to the ground a hush came over the multitude. The instrument headed directly for the appointed spot and as it hit the mananganized-irididium springs creaked to the straining point and with a 'whooo' and a 'whoooah' it bounced off into interstellar space.

Return Home

As they travelled at superlucent speed, these Newtonians, braced themselves for the bounces to come. First, they were to bounce off the Rock of Gibralter; from there to Mt. Everest and thence to Loa and back again to the majestic grounds of Villanova. Bounce ..... bounce..... bounce and it was just about over.

As the spires of Villanova appeared, the landing gear was lowered but an unfortunate breeze swept the boys through the roof of the Pie Shop. Quickly gathering their wits and teeth they rushed to Mendel where they were sure a royal welcome awaited them. When they arrived at the stately edifice, however, they discovered that they had tampered too much with science. For there on the tower were themselves. They had arrived before they left. As the two on the top of Mendel leaped, the two below realized the horrible results of their experiments and flung themselves on the little red spot knowing that this was the only way out.

Syncopatter

by
Taten & Mayer

Well, here we are, going to press for our third week, and although many of you have undoubtedly considered the idea, we are quite gratified that no one has openly assaulted us on the campus, as yet. These hallowed halls must be loaded with music lovers.

Reading Taten's half of our little journalistic fiasco over the past couple of weeks, I became aware of the fact that he seemed to know a little too much about the mechanics of music to be a layman like myself, so naturally, I investigated. Here's the scoop. Not only does the guy play the drums, but he dabbles with a clarinet on the side.

Dabble:

1. to wet by splashing; nope!
2. to play in water as with the hands; nope!
3. to work in a slight or superficial manner; that's it, slight and superficial, although at times he does sound like he's playing in water—about 10 fathoms.

Out of the Wilderness

Now I ask you, what could be better proof of my contention that you have to understand music to get anything out of Bop. As for me, I'll continue crying in the wilderness for music for the masses. Obligato, pitsicato, ya fadder's mustache, just leave me hear the beat!

Heard a record the other day that I thought was well above the usual instrumental level. Of course, there was only one guy playing, which does cut down on the possibility of glinkers, but let's give credit where it's due, lest we be mistaken for a Philly sports scribe. Claude Thornhill does a nice job on "Coquette." There's no schmaltzy background to distract you, just nice easy piano with a cozy ilft. While we're making with the platter chatter, here's a couple of suggestions for the hardier souls who might want to try some "good ole" knock-down, drag-out, Dixieland jazz. Give a listen to Bob Crosby's old Bobcat crew doing "Sugarfoot Stomp" and Tommy Dorsey's Clambake Seven version of "Royal Garden Blues." They're both oldies, but with all the rewaxing that has been going on lately, they should be obtainable at the better shops.

Here's a suggestion for shut-ins, Chem Engineers, and other unfortunates who spend Sunday afternoons indoors. Some of the best in jazz can be heard by tuning in the "Hot Corner" over WKDN, Camden, at 2:30. They sneak in a bit of Bop now and then but you can't have everything.

"Slender, Sender"

Now let's hear from the ole "slender sender" himself.

If Mr. Mayer will deign to come out of the wilderness he said he was in, and face the facts of modern Dixieland, he'll rapidly lose his Pond's complexion for one much more red. He will find that some of his fair-haired laddies are better known for their excursions into inebriation rather than their honking horns. One noteworthy figure (not musical notes) spends more time over a bar than over his guitar while yet another idol of root-ti-toot music got the name of "Wild Bill" not so much from his musical efforts as from his ability with a bottle.

Ro has called me a musician insofar as I occasionally put a clarinet to these tainted, old lips—this is obviously a slur on my good name which no self-respecting artist should allow. I am merely a columnist (I have been told I'll be journalist when my ghost-writer improves his style.

Mr. Mayer has stated his preference for what he terms "knock down, drag out" music—I agree—it has certainly been dragged out too long, and is rapidly being knocked down—if it can get any lower.

Trivia

by
Bob Carroll

I got up to the new library the other day for the first time. I'r heard about it so much down at the Pie Shop I thought I'd go take a look. I never did get over to the old library as much as I should have, but what I do remember of it seemed all right. It was always warm and comfortable and it looked like there was plenty of room for all the books they had. 'Course the new library is a beautiful thing but I don't know, they are going to need a lot of books to fill it up, and a lot of students.

I went up last Thursday and I could see as soon as I got inside the door it was some place. There's this rubber tile on the floor, and the walls are mostly glass and light wood, something like the Pie Shop but naturally a little better. They've got all new chairs and tables, and a lot of books I've never seen before, but that doesn't mean they're new because I only know a few books from the old library, a novel or two and maybe a couple volumes of the British encyclopedia. I guess the only thing that wasn't new there was the lady at the desk. I recognized her and she remembered me pretty well from the old place. I used to come in every once in awhile and read "Life" and the "Times" and the bridge columns in the "Inquirer" and mayoe use their big dictionary every so often.

I couldn't get over all the different rooms they have. They've got a different room for anything you'd want to do. There's a Reading Room you could play basketball in, and a Reserve Books Room and a Reference Room, and a Music Room on the second floor, and about a hundred other rooms.

After I looked the place over I finally wound up in the Periodical Room I think it was, and a funny thing happened. I was going around paging through the magazines, just reading a paragraph here and there or looking at the cartoons when I noticed that the lady librarian I knew was looking at me kind of funny. I began to feel a little scared because it was my first time there, and I could see something was wrong, but I didn't know what. I figured I'd better stop what I was doing so I put down this magazine and pulled out my wallet and started going through it.

Pretty soon the librarian got up and came over to where I was, still with this funny look like she was embarrassed. I was feeling pretty embarrassed myelf, but I managed to say "hello" and then she said "hello", and then I said it's some library you've got here or something like that. She said, "yes, it was", and then she looked away from me for a minute and then back at me. She hemmed and hawed for awhile and then she said did I find what I was looking for. I said, "well I wasn't really looking for anything." I guess I was just browsing and then she said that's what she thought and that's why she came over. She coughed a little and looked away again and said of course she didn't mind but this was the Periodical Room, and if I really wanted to browse why maybe I wouldn't mind going downstairs to the Browsing Room.

I said no I wouldn't and then I said I guess I'd better be going and I got out quick. I started downstairs but then I figured the heck with it If I went to the Browsing Room I might find something I'd want to read and then I'd probably have to go back upstairs to the Reading Room and maybe I'd run into moretrouble there so I decided to go back to the Pie Shop.

I met this guy on the way out and he asked me what I thought of the library. I said "it was fine, but don't let them catch you browsing in the Periodical Room." He said "What?" and I said never mind, and we walked down to the Pie Shop without saying anything else. I think I'll go back sometime when the weather gets a little nicer. I'd like to get a look at that elevator they're supposed to have there.

Attention Juniors!

The problems and questions with which we are confronted in connection with Junior Week are many and varied—and require solution. Some, of course, are decided by the committee and others are left to a vote of the class. The latter, then, are the affairs that require considerable thought on the part of the Juniors, because your collective opinion results in a specific course of action on the part of the class as a whole.

We wish, in this dissertation, to inform you of all the ramifications of the orchestra question because it is not possible to reach a large number of the men at the meetings, and the Villanovan enables us to contact practically all of you.

There are two schools of thought on the choice of an orchestra for the Junior Prom. One preference is a name band, the other a society band. Disregarding personalities, a society band would seem to be the wiser choice. Immediately, let us emphasize that this suggestion is made for the sole purpose of contributing to the greater success, socially and otherwise, of the Prom. The reasons are as follows:

1. A good name band would cost upwards of double our appropriation for music. With the other Junior Week financial burdens it is inadvisable—in fact, impossible, to increase this allotment. A mediocre name band is slightly cheaper—but still too expensive, and, as mentioned —is just mediocre.

2. People whom we have contacted, namely booking agency executives and union musicians, admit that name bands are usually not worth the price paid. They are independent, and, because they are playing a one-night stand, are inclined to be careless.

3. Opinion on the campus among men who attended the last proms at which name bands were featured is unanimous concerning the poor quality of music offered. This point was brought out at the last class meeting.

4. Due to the size of our class the Prom will be quite large. We wish to accommodate as many as possible, and do so comfortably. A band that plays continuously affords a constant turnover in the use of the dancing space, the chairs and the coke bar. A band that plays sets gets everybody on the floor while playing, leaves practically the entire group looking for chairs during intermission, and makes a trip to the coke bar at such times a major operation. Thus, the Field House seems more crowded because all are doing the same thing at the same time.

It is not expected that everybody will agree with these points; however, we feel that the greater advantage to the group attending the Prom would be a band that plays continuously. We might add that no bands bands that have appeared at the College in the past few years are being considered. If you feel strongly about the issue we urge you to attend the next class meeting when voting for the Prom orchestra takes place.

ROLAND M. MARSHALL,
General Chairman, Junior Week.

Inside Opera

by
Bill Carroll

In keeping with our practice of uncovering the stories in the operas by narrating the plots in the vernacular, we offer you Donizetti's classic folk opera, "The Elixir of Love."

An Old Story

The plot of this tale is one familiar to all of us. It's the old story about boy, girl, and the dollar. The curtain goes up and we find a tenor cleverly disguised as a farmer, standing stage right. All around him are "city people" who in compliance with custom are gathering in the town square to sing. Our plow jockey is in quest of one or the city people;—a girl!

"City Girl" (a soprano) thinks our rut walking hero is, in short, a clod. She conveys her opinion quite well. This discourages our "butter and egg" man very little, in fact, it spurs him on.

In the next scene the town is blessed by the arrival of the troops. They are led by a big "home-for-keeps" baritone. This unmounted Nelson Eddy spends little time in finding "City Girl." It turns out that he is the deliberate, cautious, dependable type. As a matter of fact, it takes him a full nine minutes to propose to "City Girl." "Country Boy" enters his bid but loses out to the baritone. Rather than follow operatic tradition and blast his brains out, he stalls around until a quack medicine man rolls into town.

The Cure All

This "tent show physician" (a basso) sells the spurned suitor some "bottled goods" (94 proof) that supposedly will make him more irresistible than a man in an Adam Hat. Eager to win back the soprano, our boy sneaks out by himself and downs the "chain lightning" in not less than fifteen bars of a flute solo. As a result of his liberal libations our "country flower" is now potted.

"City Girl" (the soprano) happens along and gets a laugh out of our tenor's condition. Because the young lady failed to respond to the results of his liquid charm course our lover reasons that he didn't use enough. (How drunk can you get?) He doesn't have the means to buy more, but at the suggestion of the baritone (the rat) he enlists in the army and spends his enlistment bonus for more of the medico's "devil's dew." He goes off by himself and dispatches his investment in liquid assets.

The Coup

In the interim it has been discovered that our tight tenor has fallen heir to a fabulous fortune. As a result the girls in the town are making quite a play for him (What price glory?). The soprano (city girl) sees the light, buys back his enlistment, and as the curtain falls she leaves the baritone and bounds back to the tenor.

This is the first in a series of articles which will be presented in order to give students an inside view of the more pleasant places to visit in Philly.

The personality of the man himself is reflected in Maurice's Restaurant in downtown Philadelphia. Located on tiny Quince street in back of the Forrest Theatre this eating establishment is truly well hidden. It is really a house, every room of which is a dining room. In all, there are about eight rooms open to the public.

Each room is dimly lit and each table holds a large candle. Pictures, many original, adorn the walls and the furniture is of heavy wood. The total impression given is that of the unusual. The classical music, resounding from room to room, adds more than substracts, from the feeling. Maurice himself, like his inn, is strange and finds music as his expression. The short proprietor may be seen roaming from room to room, pausing here and there to appreciate more completely the Wagnerian overture or Bartop Opus. Stirring passages create in him a feeling such as can only be expressed physical motion, espec-

The appointment of Fr. Tuohy as Frosh Dean is one of the biggest and best moves on the part of the administration to bring about better understanding between student and faculty. In our opinion they couldn't have picked a better man. Two heads are better than one.

The basketball team's weakness which has kept them (thus far) from receiving an NIT bid was further demonstrated this past week when the fact that the 'Cats now hold victories over three of the teams which have beaten our local rival, La Salle. It doesn't appear that the NIT officials will call upon Villanova and for this reason we feel that it is a shame that La Salle is apparently out of running for consideration. Villanova is knocking at the door of the NCAA tournament, and by the time this coumn appears, will probably have broken it down.

Now that Yale's Lavelli has scored close to 90 points in two games it appears that Paul Arizin will have to wait another year for top national scoring honors.

Unfortunately, local scribes don't ask us when they pick the player of the week, but our choice for this week is Joe Hannan, who made a mockery out of the law of averages with his display of sharp-shooting against Seton Hall.

Begorra, there's going to be a "Patty's Day" Dance on March 17th, and that old son of Ireland "John Murphy" and the Villanovan will be on hand to supply music. The price is reasonable, only $1.20. Here's hoping that the inflation is on the decline and tickets to all the year's minor dances stay on this level.

A Cana conference or a day of recollection has been arranged for all married couples of the college for March 27th. It's a wonderful opportunity for you married fellows—something you don't get in every college.

An exemplary life is being led by quite a number of resident students who have started to eat all three meals in the Cafeteria during Lent. All but Joe McNulty, who has switched to vitamin pills because they are milder.

Possibilities have it that the Austin recreation hall will be completed by Easter. With a televsion set installed (thank you, Student Council), there will be no further need to wander down the Main Line. Ping Pong tables will be situated on the upper level with a lounge on the bottom deck along with the television set. The bowling alleys will be opened in the Field House, too.

It was good to see Al Severance at the Georgetown game last night. Jack Applegate claims the Hoyas had planned to steal him. Coun Villan tipped him off, though.

An unofficial record was set in the intermural league last week when Austin defeated Good Counsel 87-20. Bill Lemmer sprinkled the hoop with 52 points, another record.

The fourteenth to the twenty-fourth of April will be set aside for student recouperation. These holidays will come in mighty handy.

If Villanova gets a bid for the NCAA, Frank Gobes is offering floor space in New York for those staying over, five dollars a foot. That makes ten dollars.

Wallace Dietrich and Ed Zerbe still aren't playing bridge together, and after a year. The wrong bid did it. Those C&F men do have their troubles.

Turf and Tinsel is going to have more Sunday stag dances even thought they only made a net profit of four dollars on the first one. In order to keep up their finances, boosters are being sold for fifty cents for their show to be held in May. International Relations Club Sponsors Radio Series

International Topics Subject of Talks on WVIL

On Tuesday evening March 1 the International Relations Club inaugurated the first in a series of semi-monthly radio discussions. Each program will be of thirty minutes duration and carried over the campus radio station, WVIL.

ERP to Be Discussed

The purpose of the series is to enlighten the listeners of WVIL on pending world economic, social, and political problems and issues. Future programs will consist of "An Evaluation of the North Atlantic Defense Pact," "South America's Position in the West's Defense Zone," "The Political Achievements of the ERP," and "The Economic Bases for Understanding the Chinese Situation."

Other clubs in the area will join in presenting the programs. The Rosemont College IRC group was instrumental in the success of the initial program, and the program of March 16 is being prepared with the cooperation of the IRC of Bryn Mawr College.

UN Facts and Achievements

The first program centered around a general discussion of the basic facts and achievements of the United Nations. Madeline Smith, of Rosemont College and Tom Driscoll, of the Villanova club, were the featured speakers. The program was opened with a few introductory remarks by Tom Sullivan who emphasized the current need for understanding world happenings. Donald Smith, the President of the Villanova IRC, introduced the speakers.

Miss Smith told the listeners of WVIL that on June 26, 1945, the delegates of 50 nations met at San Francisco and signed the Charter of the United Nations. She then commented on the basic principles of the Charter.

Driscoll Reviews Veto

Tom Driscoll reviewed some of the political and security accomplishments of the UN. He said the most difficult task of the UN was the adjustment of political disputes. In some cases the Security Council obtained important results but the exercise of the veto made the political more difficult to solve. Instead of reserving this right for questions of supreme importance the Soviet Union vetoed proposals in the Security Council at least 22 times, eleven on membership applications, nine on issues of Pacific settlement, and two on measures to meet a threat of peace. France used the veto twice; the United States, the United Kingdom, and China have never exercised this right.

Miss Smith commented on some of the economic and social accomplishments of the UN. In particular she mentioned the International Children's Emergency Fund (ICEF) in which 230 million children under 15 years of age in Europe and Asia were given succor. The work of some of the 13 specialized agencies was commented on by both participants.

March 16 Next Broadcast

The second in the series of Spring-term discussions will take place on Wednesday evening, March 16, at 8:30 P. M. The discussion will concern an evaluation of the North Atlantic Defense Pact.

On March 21, the Villanova Club will be host to the Regional Executive Committee meeting of the NFCCS. The meeting will be attended by representatives from seven Catholic colleges of the area. The next regular monthly meeting is scheduled for Thursday, March 10, in 215 Mendel.

LOCAL SCHOOL HEARS BAND & GLEE CLUBS

Mater Misericordia Academy, in Merion, was the scene of the latest Band and Glee Club concerts, on February 28, under the direction of Rev. Ralph E. Handran, O. S. A.

The program opened with "V for Villanova," and was followed by selections from Wagner, Denza and Grieg, and medleys from works by Victor Herbert and Jerome Kern.

Peter Gutwald, of the Glee Club, gave a vocal solo of the popular "Cool Water." Miss Marguerite Mc Farland, with the accompaniment of the Band, played Grieg's "Piano Concerto in A Minor," a major work on the program. Martin Binder sang "The Gypsy Love Song," and with Miss McFarland sang a duet, "Just Because You are You." They were greeted with thunderous applause at the conclusion of their performance.

A trumpet duet, with John Bianchi and Edward Anzur, featured the "Helena Polka." When the regular program was exhausted the Band and Glee Club were pleasantly forced to encore with "Belle of the Ball," and were in turn joined in singing by the members of the audience at the behest of Fr. Handran.

After the concert the girls of Mater Misericordia served refreshments to the Villanovans, followed by dancing to recorded music.

The next concert for the combined Band and Glee Clubs is scheduled for March 9 at Immaculata College. Following that, the groups will journey to Chestnut Hill College for a concert on March 18.

CIO Executive To Address Industrial Relations Club

The Industrial Relations Club will hold its next business meeting Monday afternoon, March 14th at 4:30 in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium. At this time all regular business of the group will be discussed and committees will be appointed to make preparations for a trip to Washington, and for a social before the year is over.

At 5:00 P. M. the club will be addressed by James B. Carey, Secretary-Treasurer of the C.I.O. Mr. Carey will be accompanied by John Miller, also of the C.I.O.

Rev. William J. Gordon, O.S.A., Moderator of the IRC, has announced the following schedule of activities for the Industrial Relations Club that are definite dates with an occasional supplemen as the opportunity presents itself.

March 21st—Arnold K. Weber, Personnel Director of R.C.A., will address the club at 7:30 P. M., the place to be announced later. Dean of Engineering, J. Stanley Morehouse recommends that the engineers attend the meeting.

April 27th—George Keller, Personnel Director of Sears and Roebuck will speak, the place and time to be announced later.

Eastern Playoffs To Start On March 21

Blue-White to Represent District Two; Will Face Illinois, Kentucky, and Yale

By HARRY RANGE
Sports Editor

In a statement made yesterday afternoon to the VILLANOVAN, Father McKee announced that Villanova College had received and accepted an invitation to the National Collegiate Athletic Association Basketball Tournament.

The announcement came following a meeting of the Athletic Board which convened to decide on the acceptance of the NCAA's bid for the Wildcats to participate in the tourney which starts in New York on March 21 and 22.

Last Friday a release was made to the effect that the quintet would participate in the dribble derby if they beat the Brown Indians of St. Bonaventure at Buffalo Memorial Arena last Saturday night. This the cagers did to the tune of 43-36, but still no official announcement came from the selection committee. It was not until after the Georgetown game that our selection became official, although the papers had mentioned the Mainliners for the past two weeks as the logical choice.

Starts March 21

The first part of the tournament will take place in New York on March 21 and 22 in which the quintet will represent District Two in the Eastern Regional Playoffs. At this writing it is not definitely known who the Cats will play in the first game, but the representatives of the other three districts have been chosen.

From New England and District One will come the Bulldogs of Yale with Tony Lavelli, the nation's top scorer. Yale, winner of the Eastern Intercollegiate Loop, doesn't have an exceptionally outstanding record, but it's the best in New England and with Lavelli, they're sure to be top competition.

The most powerful team in the country at present, Kentucky, will be the representative of District Three. The Wildcats of the Blue Grass state have not only been invited to the NCAA but also to the National Invitational Tourney which starts in the Big Town this Saturday night. Kentucky's cage crew, which includes All-Americans Alex Groza, Wa-Wa Jones, and Ralph Beard, finished the regular season with a 26-1 record and then went on to win the Southeastern Conference Tourney for the sixth straight time.

District four will send as it's representative, Illinois, winner of the Big Nine title. The boys from Urbana just edged into the tourney by beating out Minnesota from the Big Nine Championship.

So much for the opposition. Now for a look at the Cats record and chances for the tournament.

Wildcats Record 22-3

As a result of last night's win over Georgetown, the quintet finished the season with a 22-3 record, one of the best in the nation. This was by far the best in District Two as compared to Duquesne's 17-5 and CCNY's similar mark. Admittedly, the Cats lost to Duquesne, but they had won twelve straight and were on of the two teams with an unblemished record in the country before playing the Dukes. Besides this, it was the first game of a road trip and with the pressure on the team just had an off night. As a matter of fact, even the Dukes had a bad road trip.

Chances Good

As far as the chances for taking the tournament, there's a very good possibility for the Cats to be high in the running. Yale or Illinois should not prove to be unbeatable, which leaves only Kentucky to contend with in New York. The Blue Grass boys have been riding so high all season long that they are due for a fall. Should the Severancemen be at hot against Kentucky as they were against Seton Hall,

Fox Edges Guida In Casey 600; 1:10.8 Is Season's Best Time

By BILL COONEY

Indoor track made its last appearance in the Garden and its next-to-last Eastern showing last Saturday with the running of the annual New York Knights of Columbus games. The meet was a fitting cunnax to a great season, for it saw records broken, records tied, and some of the best times of the 1949 campaign turned in.

In one of the most famous events on the program, the Casey 600, Frank Fox of Seton Hall, fresh from his triumph in the IC4A 600 last week, staved off a final burst by George Guida to make it two in a row. Guida fought hard to retain possession of the trophy which he won last year, but the flying Setonian summoned just enough to get over the lin a scant 2 yards ahead of the Wildcat star. Behind Guida was Jim Gilhooley of N. Y. U., and fourth was Herb McKenley. The time of 1:10.8 was the fastest of the season, and only sixtenths of a second over Hugh Short's 1:10.2 made in 1940. Short, oddly enough, was fifth in Saturday night's race.

McKenley Sets Pace

On the line, Guida drew the outside position, but quickly jumped into second behind McKenley at the gun. McKenley set the pace for the first 400 yards or so until he was overtaken by Fox. The whole parade then went by Hustling Herb, who is not at his best at 600 yards. Fox went out far ahead of the pack and stayed there until the last lap when Guida showed a magnificent kick which quicklycut down the long gap. There was too much to make up, however, and Fox straining very hard, managed to hold off the strong-finishing Villanovan.

The Bishop McIntyre 1000 was won by Phil Thigpen, also an IC4A winner from Seton Hall. Marcel Hannenne of France, finishing his American tour, was second. Roscoe Browne of the New York Pioneer Club was third while George Thompson of Villanova was fourth, the time was 2:12.0.

Frosh Quartet Third

In the handicap College and Club mile relay, the Villanova freshman team (off 15 yards) took third in an almost blanket finish behind Seton hall (off five yards) and the Pioneer Club (scratch) and just ahead of the New York A. C. Time for the winner was a snappy 3:22.2. Furlinger, Cunjak, Simigan, and Curran ran for the Frosh.

Browning Ross, unfortunately, had to be scratched from the Columbian mile already because of an illness which has kept him out all week. The race, Rossless as it was proved a real thriller. Neil Pratt set a brisk pace at the outset but when he began to run ou of gas after the first quarter, Fred Wilt took over. He held the lead from then till the last lap having successfully beaten off several challenges by Wily Slykhuis. The Hollander put on one of his famous sprint finishes, however, and Wilt wilted. The time was a fair 4:11.4.

'Cats Outclass St. Bonaventure Five, 43-36

By BILL CANINO

Unaware hat a victory would assure them of the National Collegiate Athletic Association District II championship and a chance to participate in the N.C.A.A. championship tourney, the Villanova basketball squad overcame a stubborn St. Bonaventure five, 43-36. The win, brought the 'Cats seasonal record to 21 victories in 24 starts, was secured in the first half of a double header in Memorial Auditorium before more than 7,000 fans.

Again paced by the phenomenal Paul Arizin who had 16 points against the defensive-minded Bonnies, the Mainliners were held to only 19 points in the first half and at the intermission were ahead of the home team by two points.

One Point Shy

Arizin, by virtue of his contribution, needed only two points to break the all-time Philadelphia scoring record of 515 for one season which was held by George Senesky while at St. Joseph's College in the 1942-48 campaign.

Following the pause between halves, the Bonnies knotted the count at 19-all and shortly after the 'Cats led, 25-24. Then Arizin and Joe Hannon went to work. The inside-outside combination enabled the Severencemen to stretch their margin to 40-31.

Coast Out

Leo Wolf also hit from the outside and this forced the Bonnies to change their zone defense to a man-to-man. The homsters tried a late rally but the 'Cats slowed their offense and played a possession-type game and coasted out.

Seton Hall Topped For Second Time In Week

Cagers Come from Behind to Win 80-53; Held Scoreless for First Six Minutes

By NEAL FAHY

Spotting Seton Hall's basketball quintet an early 14-0 lead, Villanova's Wildcats shifted into high gear and roared back to swamp the Hall 80 to 53 last Wednesday night before 3,500 in the Villanova Field House. It was the 20th win in 23 starts for the 'Cats.

As usual, Paul Arizin was the game's scoring leader with 21 points. He left the tilt with 10 minutes of playing time remaining. The game was the clincher for Villanova's District 2 NCAA Tournament bid.

Setonia Clicks at Start

Harry Renner, 6 foot 8 inch Priate pivotman, started the proceedings with a hook from the foul circle to give his team a 2-0 edge. Howie Janotta then dropped a set from far out, Frank Saul made good on a free throw, Renner flipped in his second one-hander and Tom Leverte netted another set to raise the advantage to 9-0.

After the 'Cats missed three shots at the basket and Leo Wolf failed on a foul try, Leverte scored twice and Renner once again on a set to boost the Pirates' edge to thirteen. Seton Hall didn't miss a field goal try until five and a half minutes had elapsed in a phenomenal display of shooting.

The eventual happened as Captain Wolf finally split the meshes with an arcing set shot, to break the ice for the 'Cats. However, Setonia still looked like the superior club after seven more minutes, maintaining the 14 point advantage as the scoreboard showed 26 to 12.

Hannan Turns Tide

At this point, the situation reversed as Villanova got just as hot as the Hall had been in the previous minutes. Renner, with three personals charged against him was removed from the game and Tom Sabol dropped in two double deckers. Arizin tallied for the 'Cats with a neat underhand lay-up from undcrneath the basket and Leo Wolf sank a foul try before Leverte tapped in a rebound to narrow the Pirates lead to 28-19.

Successive field goals by Wolf, Hannan and Ricca, and Arizin's foul conversion cut Setonia margin to 28-26 with three minutes left in the half. Hannan tied the count with a set, but Saul's foul reversed the lead. However, another set by Hannan and one by Ricca put Villanova out front 32 to 29.

Hannan's third set within a minute, and singletons by Arizin and Sabol gave the Wildcats their 36-33 halftime lead.

'Cats Pile It On

After six minutes of the second half, Villanova led 46 to 40 and at that time put on a tremendous scoring exhibition that broke the Pirate back. As the 10 minute mark had passed, the 'Cats lead was 65 to 40 and Coach Al Severence withdrew all of his starters leaving the scrubs to finish the game.

When five minutes remained, Villanova's advantage was 75 to 43. The Main Liners had an excellent shooting average for the game of 48.5% making good on 33 of 68 field goal tries. Saul led the losers with 12 points while Hannan's 17 was second high for the victors.

Before the game, officials of the two schools agreed that Sam Lackaye, star of last year's Villanova freshman team, would be allowed to play against his former school in the two meetings scheduled for next year.

NROTC Rifle And Pistol Team Competes In 30 Meets

Under Direction of Maj. Dayton & Sgt. Huly; 4th Naval District Tourney on Agenda

By Jack Rowe

Although only a little more than a year old, the NROTC Rifle and Pistol team show strong possibilities of becoming one of the top outfits in their league. Results of matches already fired this year show definite improvement as the contests progress. As a matter of fact, the coach of the two squads, Major Francis P. Dayton, USMC, has said that he is more concerned with the steady improvement of the members than with the winning of a certain percentage.

Statistics Show Improvement

After viewing the statistics however, it appears that success is coming from both ends. With the steady improvement of the team members, the averages for the unit have been going up. Under the system followed by the Major and his assistant, Master Sgt. George Huly, the men are free of the tension which accompanies the firing for score, and can spend their time worrying about improving their shooting form.

Considering the fact that the teams are composed of previously inexperienced lads who seldom had a "shootin' iron" in their hands before joining the squad, the records for these men are to be admired. The rifle team has won 14 and lost 16 in a total of 30 matches fired for the percentage rating of .446. Statistics show that this rating has been steadily on the upgrade since the begining of the school year. The pistol team has a very impressive record, having won 5, lost 3 for the overall percentage of .625.

52 Colleges in League

The league is composed of the fifty-two colleges sponsoring the Navy's ROTC scholarship units throughout the nation. In order to schedule matches with so many contending units, it has been necessary to fire "postal" matches with several schools every week, using the results of one firing to compete with all the schools scheduled at that time. The number of pistol teams in the league is cut down to about 24 due to the lack of facilities in many of the colleges and universities for firing pistols. The new range set up in the basement of Commodore John Barry Hall, has all the equipment necessary for any small bore firing. Thus far, only "postal" matches have been fired by the pistol team due mainly to the great distances between schools.

4th Naval District Tourney

A shoulder-t o-shoulder rifle match has been arranged between the Navy units in this area, to take place in he middle of April. It will include the four schools in the Fourth Naval District, Penn State, The University of Pennsylvania, Princeton and Villanova. The winner of this match will receive the Commandant's Cup for a year's possession. Major Dayton has expressed hopes that the contest will be held on Villanova's new range.

Other Matches

Other shoulder-to-shoulder matches are on tap in the very near future. The rifle team will challenge the Valley Forge Military Academy on the 16 of this month at Valley Forge, and Villanova will play host to the Academy on the 6th of April. Other away matches have been scheduled for both the rifle and pistol teams, and these will take place later in the season.

The second-year men of the two teams include the following: Frank Gobes, Gil Hazard, Jim Stillwagon, Don Cameron, and Jack Rowe for rifle; Hazard, Gobes, Joe Friend, and Rowe for pistol. The new members of the squads are: Art O'Keefe, Frank Haskins, Tom Abrahams, Paul Czesak, Phil Brennan, Don Denny, and Earl Richmond.

The prospects for the two squads looks good in the future, for all of the members are Sophs or Freshman with the one exception of Joe Friend, who is a Junior.

Kirschling Named 'Cat End Coach

Last Friday, Bill Connelly, Director of Athletics announced that Lawrence A. Kirschling, a former head coach of St. Francis College, Loretta, had been appointed varsity end coach.

Kirschling will succeed Jerry Neri, who left with former head coach Jordan Olivar for Loyola University in Los Angeles.

In 1940-41 Kirschling served as assistant to Jim Leonard, the Mainliners new head coach, when he was number one man on the coaching staff of St. Francis.

A graduate of Duquesne University in 1938, Kirschling starred at end under Coach Buff Donnelli. Following graduation he spent two seasons as an assistant at Duquesne before joining Leonard at St. Francis.

He coached the Paulsboro High School tams from 1942-45. Incidntally Paulsboro happens to be Kirschling's home town. He later served as a scout for the Pittsburgh Steelers in the 1944 and '45 campaigns, when Leonard was on the Steelers coaching staff.

Seton Hall

victory in the starts to gain revenge for one of their previous setbacks suffered to Seton Hall last Saturday. The final score was 65 to 55 as 6 foot 5 inch Tom Brennan led the locals with 28 points. No only did Brennan display beautiful shooting ability, but his passing was remarkable from the pivot and drew loud plaudits from the crowd on several occasions.

Scotese was next highest for the Kittens with 21 as Gordon Mills took scoring honors for the Setonians with 18. Bob Hurt, the Pirate ace who scored 29 in the first clash between the clubs, was held to 11.

DPE CHALLENGES ALL FRATERNITIES IN BASKETBALL

Ever since V-J Day the sports activities of the various fraternities have been nil. It is generally conceded that an interfraternity sports program would go far towards cementing relationships between the various fraternal groups and thus contribute greatly to a better Villanova.

Two previous efforts have been made on the part of Delta Pi Epsilon to organize such a program. The response was negative or doubtful due to the pressure of work and other activities. It would be appreciated if any fraternity interested in any form of interfraternal sports activities will contact Bruce Taten, who is in charge of sports activities for DPE or any of the officers, M. Santacroce, John Peshina, Joseph Brogan, and Paul Begley.

This challenge is a result of the DPE meeting held Thursday night at which the non-existent sports program of the fraternities was questioned. It was pointed out that previous attempts had been made at formulating such a program and tentative official approval received, but the response of the other fraternities on the campus was far from encouraging. It was further pointed out that sports activities, though omnipresent in the form of intra-mural sports could easily be expanded to establish a similar league constituted by the fraternities. It is to be hoped that the challenge extended by the DPE will not go unheeded.

LEMMER OF AUSTIN; SCORES 52 TO SET NEW LEAGUE RECORD

Austin's 87-20 Win Also Sets I-M Mark

Mondschein Inc. & Klucsarits

Bill Lemmer of Austin Hall made the big news in intramural circles last week as the sharp-shooting sophomore shattered all intramural scoring records with an amazing performance against Good Counsel. The 5'10" forward, Michigan's gift to Villanova, dumped 24 baskets and 4 fouls for one evening's total of 52 points. Emulating Paul Arizin, the modest Austin star often passed up baskets to allow his teammates to score. Despite this attempt to curb the scoring, Austin romped to an 87-20 victory. The team total also set a new mark. Good Counsel dropped behind 24-0 before D'Allisanti sank a foul attempt. They failed to connect from the floor in the half and the intermission score read 42-2.

Three minutes elapsed in the second period before O'Donnel netted a field goal for the hapless losers. Acting on coach Father Kemme's advice Austin refused to play Good Counsel's rebounds to allow the latter more scoring opportunities. Joey Crossin followed up Bill Lemmer's sensational scoring by contributing 14 points to the rout. Joey also did a terrific job of feeding Lemmer, assisting him to produce his incredible total. George Mondschein and Marty Connelly officiated

Alumni Wins

Alumni stayed on Austin's heels in the tight flag-race by handing Mendel its first defeat of the second half, 80-41. The victors led all the way, enjoying a 41-22 halftime lead. Every member of Alumni's ten-man squad broke into the scoring column with Bill Barry's 14 counters leading the assault. Buckley, Oelz and Cullen also scored in double figures with 13, 12, and 10 points respectively. Haggerty lead the loser's attack with 9 points, while Denuel and Boyle each caged 8. Benny Moskel, Mendel's big gun in their previous triumphs was held to two fouls by the tight Alumni defense. Tony Biazina and Jim Gallen refereed the contest.

Roadsters Trip Invaders

In the Day Hop League, Tuesday afternoon's game included a torrid overtime battle betwen Joe Moran's Invaders and McGee's Rolling Roadsters with the latter emerging victrious, 49-42. The contest was deadlocked at 34-all at the end of the regulation game. Both teams put a scoring spree in the overtime, but the Roadsters had it when the chips were down. Leading the winner's attack was Young, who scored 11 points and Murray and Sayjax with 9 apiece. Ward scored 10 for the losing cause. Dick Altman and Gene Koval officiated.

The second matinee tilt saw Glackin's Chem Engineers roll to an easy 36-22 win over Dooner's C&F Marketeers. Glackin was the whole show for the victors as he led his team's scoring with 20 points. J.

they're the boys to knock Kentucky off the bandwagon.

With a victory on the first night, the Cagers will then play the winner of the other game of the 21st on the 22nd. Win or lose on the second night in the Garden, the Cats will go to Seattle for the playoff with the top two clubs in the Western Divisions. A victory on both nights in New York would place the cagers in the game for the National Championship, while a win on the first night and a loss on the second would put them in the playoff for third and fourth positions.

At this writing the only information available on tickets and accommodations is that 500 tickets have been reserved for both sights for Villanova students at $1.50 per.

Villanova's yearlings continued continued their victory march with a rousing 65-55 triumph over the Seton Hall tyros last Wednesday evening at the Field House.

Major McDonnell's charges romped during the first-half scoring on adept side sets, layups, and pivots. Dick Scotese provided the crowd with many thrills as he consistenly sank shots from well-nigh impossible angles. Tom Brennan time and again drove towards the basket and amazed all onlookers with his fine assists to his teammates. Bill Behrens made things hot for the Pirate freshmen with his aggressive hawking in backcourt and grabbing rebounds. The Main Line first-year men retired at half-time with a 45-24 lead.

Seton Hall Surges

After listening to the last-minute instructions of Varsity Coach al Severance, the little 'Cats found themselves in a tight battle with the Seton Hall men. Dick Hurt, Our Lady of The Valley sensation in the Red Clay state, dropped one-handers from all angles, as did Gordon Mills, erstwhile Carteret Prep leader. The closest that the New Jersey rivals could penetrate was to within 8 point of the Kitten total. Towards the conclusion of the tussle, Villanova eased the pressure somewhat, but the game was never in doubt as the Frosh recruits played aggressive and smart basketball.

Avenve Defeat Handily

With the return bout with Seton Hall safely stowed away in the right column, the yearlings possess a 9-2 record, which is very good for any combine. The triumph atoned for an earlier 58-45 setback at the hands of the Jerseyites from Seton Hall.

The little cats closed off the season last Monday night in the preliminary game of the double header in which the Big Cats played Georgetown. The Philadelphia Naval Hospital fell easy prey to the McDonnellmen as they closed the season with a 10-2 record.

Doyle's six was the best effort for the defeated five. Dick Altman and Joe Barrack were the whistlers.

Thursday afternoon, Comerford's Loafers walloped Dwyer's Toads 42-25, in the opener. Wright provided the heavy artillery for the Loafers, notching 18 markers, while Comerford had half that number. O'Brien was high for the Toads matching Comerford's total. Jim Selgarth and L. Leighton officiated.

Chem Majors Massered

In the windup Ganley's Bugs outclassed Griffin's Chem majors in a 63-16 Sassacre. The Bugs had only five men, but even these were too many for the Chem Majors. Grozinski scored 20, Ganley 16, Donata 11, Tourish 9 and Doyle 7 to account for the high total of the winners. Longo, with 5, led the Chem Majors' scoring. Leighton and Mike Michalik judged the contest.

Thursda yevening's games in the Resident loop were postponed until tomorrow night (March 9) because of the Villanova Forum.

Many Rookies Tryout for Berths Vacated by Graduation

By Ted Fernandes

Soon there'll be heard the cracking of the hickory against leather as the Villanova Wildcats move out onto the diamond in preparation for their many tests of the current season. At present, indoor practice is being conducted under the watchful eye of the mentor, Phil Weinert. Many candidates, among whom are several promising freshmen who are aspiring for positions at their respective posts.

Won 11, Lost 7, in '48

Via the well known time machine, the 'Cats fared slightly better than mediocre by taking 11 dropping 7, and being rained out of six in their 1948 season. Taking a few of the more prominent games of the '48 season into consideration, the Main Liners blasted the Terrapins of Maryland by 7 runs, the scoreboard at games end reading, Villanova, 13-6. The 'Cats then met the Philadelphia Phillies in an exhibition, and were edged by the score of 5-2, which was fairly good considering the status of the two teams. In a hot ball game with the Georgetown Hoyas the 'Cats met defeat at the count of 5-2.

The Villanovans also had their share of heartbreakers, one being at the hands of the United States Naval Academy. Leading for eight innings, the Main Liners relinquished their hold in the ninth and lost to the sorrowful ditty of 5-4. Williams College, from the state of the 'Bean and the Cod," made up the deficit at the hands of Navy by losing to Villanova 4-2.

Villanova 3, Bucknell 1

In a terrific ball game, from the spectator standpoint, the Villanova diamond forces beleaguered Bucknell at 3-1. Villanova's ace of the season "Jigger" Donohue and twirler Bobby Green turned in superlative mound services, shackling the Bison batsmen with only two bingles. Following this victorious too much for the Weinertmen, tussle for the 'Cats, Army proved dropping the hapless Main Liners by six runs to four.

Lehigh fell victim to Villanova's top hurlers Stan Chojnacki and Bob Green, who allowed only one run, while the Villanovans collected eight. The Wildcats played Jack the Giant Killer for an afternoon by edging highly touted Penn State 3-1. This was called the best pitching duel of the year in Villanova circles, with Bobby Green on the mound for the Cats.

Many Rookies

Back to modern times and away from ancient history, Coach Weinert declared that he does not expect a terrific ball club, nor a highly sensational one, but rather with a little luck, plenty of spirit and a great amount of new blood, the club will not be pushed around too much. Many competent veterans are returning to their diamond duties with the utmost confidence, and a little backing from the newcomers they're hoping to burn up the infields of the east coast.

Among those returning to active service will be Mickey Frinzi and John Maroni on the mound, Charlie Comerford, lanky first baseman, Norm Kline at the third base hot spot. The sensational Larry Algeldinger will fill the slot between second and third. Pete D'Ambrosio, a consistent hitter, will probably stand over the number two sack, and "Red" Wright will be on the receiving end of the mound.

Among the aspiring freshman mound starlets are a New England schoolboy hurler, Al Pare, plus talented Tom Moran and speedball Marty Ranft.

Future Looks Fairly Bright

From this corner the picture painted by the baseballers doesn't appear too gloomy, in fact, it looks a little bright. Coach Weinert, kets for the "Irish Reel," as it has been named, have been kept to a bare minimum. The admission charge will be $1.20 per couple, including tax and refreshments will be served, and music will be provided by "Patty" Murphy and his "O'Villanovans". Marion Stodder will be featured as vocalist with the orchestra.

Hennessey has also disclosed that a few extra-added attractions are in the wind which will not only add to the evening's entertainment, but make for a more suitable celebration in honor of old Erin's patron saint. The nature of these special features will be revealed as soon as arrangements have been completed.

James Griffin, a Physics Major from Philadelphia, who is a member of the German Club.

"Tex" Houston, C. and F., of Philadelphia.

Bob Quinn, C. and F., from Bayside, Long Island, N. Y., a cheerleader, and member of the Turf and Tinsel Club, the Spanish Club and Beta Gamma.

If the usual course of campus campaigning is followed, three parties will be formed by the candidates, but as yet no such announcement has been made known by any of the nominees.

The time and place of elections will be announced later. Is strongly advised that all members of the Freshman Class cast their ballots. Matriculation cards will be checked as the voters register and obtain ballots.

Since there seems to be some confusion in this point also, the Student Council wishes to make clear that these elections are for representatives to the Student Council only. The regular class elections for the freshmen will be held later in this semester, probably near the end of May.

Easter Vacations

and the recess will begin on April 14 and extend to April 24. Resident students will return on Sunday evening, April 24.

The Convention of the National Catholic Educational Association will be held in Convention Hall, Philadelphia, during the week following Easter. Many members of the faculty and of the student body will participate in these meetings.

Dedication exercises of the new College Library will be held on Friday, April 22. Although the building is for the most part completed, and has been occupied since the beginning of the spring term, formal opening was postponed until warmer weather.

The annual NROTC dance held by the NROTC students of Villanova, originally scheduled for the 23rd of April is expected to be postponed a week or so because many of the Resident students would not be able to return from home in order to attend. New dates are being considered at the present time.

with heart palpitations). Dodo Day comes through with something that makes up for her duets with "Laughing Boy" Buddy Clark. I refer to "Just Imagine," a song best heard under soft lights, in a sentimental mood. Doris really has something here. Another bullseye for Fran Warren!! Her rendition of "Joe" is one of the best. If a record ever gets stuck on a turntable and keeps repeating itself, I hope it's this one.

Collegiate Magazine Offers Student Writers Opportunity

In an attempt to broaden its scope, COMPASS REVIEW, the intercollegiate literary magazine, has announced a call for student-written material from Villanova College.

Published in New York, COMPASS is a student publication devoted to the development of young writers, and to bringing their names before the commercial publishers. Its January 7 issue, which was the first after a year of suspended publication, was in a new format, bigger and better designed than the old one had been. It included winning poetry from the New Writing Foundation Stephen Vincent Benet Memorial Award Contest as judged by Mrs. Stephen Vincent Benet, William Rose Benet, Aaron Kramer, Alfred Kreymborg, Norman Rosten, Pete Seeger, reviews of Mahler and Sartré, and several short stories. The magazine appeared simultaneously at NYU, LIU, Harvard, Radcliffe, Colorado, Drake, USC, and several other campuses—a complete sell-out.

The new program for 1949 includes the publication of six issues during the school year, the institution of payment to authors, a national young writers short story contest, and extension of circulation to new colleges especially in the Mid-west and South.

The next issue is scheduled to appear March 7.

All manuscripts which are submitted should go with a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Editor, Compass Review, 51 West 4th street, N. Y., and should include a short statement about the author his school, experience, previous publications, etc.

Very Rev. F. X. N. McGuire, president of the College, delivered the invocation and extended the official welcome to the lecturer and the capacity audience.

Interview

In an interview with Mrs. Doherty after the lecture, the Baroness made known to a Villanovan reporter that she wished to thank the College through the columns of this paper for giving her the opportunity of speaking here. She extended her gratitude to Villanova for also giving her one of her most zealous workers, Joseph Brady, a member of the Alumni.

There will be two more forums this Spring on the general forum topic "The Catholic Church in the World", announced Br. Bruderie, to be held in April and in May. Definite arrangements have not yet been completed, so he could not at that time discolse the names of the future sneakers.

Summer Theater Courses Offered

Agnes de Mille, George Freedley, Oscar Hammerstein II, Walter Kerr of American University who taught Rev. Wm. J. Krupa, O. S. A., Belle Masque Moderator, and Margaret Webster will be visiting lecturers at the Bryn Mawr College Summer Theatre this year, it was announced today by Frederick Thon, director of the theatre. They are to talk informally regarding aspect of the professional theatre with which they are most familiar, thus supplementing the training given students in regular classes in acting, directing, and production.

The theatre, which had its first season last year, will run this summer from June 27 to August 15, during which period five full productions will be presented. Its aim is primarily educational, designed to bridge the gap between college theatre training and professional work. Unlike most summer theatres, there are no stars; all the acting and production work done by the students themselves.

The theatre is co-educational, with enrollment limited to forty, and a total company of fifty-five, so that attention can be focussed on individual work. Applications are open to all who wish to go on further in theatre work. The students live in the Bryn Mawr College dormitories and have use of all the college facilities. The complete cost of $400 covers tuition, instruction, materials, room and board.

Library Announces Acquisition

ant developments in the history of books and libraries is the beginning of the publication of books, pamphlets and other scholarly materials in microcard form. The microcards are simply standard size (7½x12½ cm.) library catalog cards havinv on them not only a catalog entry in more or less the usual form but also, in greatly reduced microprint, the complete text of the book (or pamphlet, thesis, or other material) described in the catalog entry.

Books on Catalog Cards

In microcard reduction each page of the text may be only a quarter of an inch wide; but, when one has available a proper "reading machine", these tiny pages can be easily read. The machine is a table model finished in gray crackle enamel, which gives 24-power magnification. Finger-tip control assures easy maneuvering of the pages. The library, under the direction of Rev. Daniel P. Falway, O.S.A., Librarian, is in the process of acquiring a collection of books on microcards.

Two beautiful portraits were hung this week on the walls of the stairway leading from the first to the second floor. One of these is an oil painting of St. Jerome by one of the great masters. Restoration work on the portrait was successfully performed recently, and it represents a gem of ecclesiastical painting.

Portrait of Fr. Fedigan

A full-length portrait of Very Rev. John Joseph Fedigan, O.S.A., (1842-1908), adorns the wall opposite the other painting, done in 1902 by the famous Philadelphia painter, Thomas Eavins.

Fr. Fedigan was Provincial of the Villanova Province, and due to his untiring efforts were built such enduring monuments to his memory as the present Chapel, all of Mendel Hall, and the original building of the Monastery.

Eakins, Philadelphia Painter

Eakins, portrait and genre painter, born in 1844, was a pupil of the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, and did most of his work in oil. He is renowned for his "Allegorical Representation of the Schuykill" later carved by William Rush, and Philadelphia scenes, and for his work, "Surgical Clinic of Prof. Gross in Jefferson College".

won't admit this, but if you can read between the lines—If all goes well the Wildcats will be vending their share of baseball laurels, with plenty of the credit going to veteran coach Phil Weinert. With a little help from the stands we can be assured of a good team.

Overpayments

The Veterans Administration estimates that there are about 600,000 veterans getting overpayments. Two main factors have caused this:

1. Delay in getting reports from veterans who should have received lower payments as students or trainees. These reports concern the veteran's earning, e. g., a single veteran can earn no more than $210.00 per month exclusive of his $75.00 government subsistence.

2. Failure of veterans to notify the Veterans' Administration when they stopped school or training, at which time subsistence allowances are supposed to stop. Don't think you are getting something for nothing if you are still receiving a government subsistence check and have stopped going to school, because it is an easy thing for the government to prove an intent to defraud the government.

So Vets, if you believe that you are being overpaid, check up now. It may save you many headaches and a lot of red tape later on!

lally of the hands.

After theatre eating in Maurice's is a treat to the epicure as well as to the dreamer. Sandwiches, the feature attraction at Maurice's, are huge and tasty. In themselves, they wide variety of a selection, and the "club" types are a real delight. Other delicacies are available too, though the writer has found one sandwich enough to satisfy the most ravenous appetites. Incidentally, each sandwich is named after a composer, and constitutes no mean tribute to those whom they immortalize.

However, Maurice's is not for the after theatre set only. Lunch and dinner is served, and at these times the food is equally delicious.

The price range at Maurice's is not excessive. Dinners start at two dollars or thereabouts. The sandwich-eater would probably pay ninety cents on the average, perhaps a little more, or a little less.

St. Patrick's Day Dance Set For Thurs. Evening

Video, P. A. System Planned At Student Council Meeting

The Student Council held its regular bi-weekly meeting last Wednesday evening in Room 215, Mendel Hall, with President Tom Sullivan presiding.

Discussion centered on the purchase of a portable public address system for the use of the student groups on campus. The Council finally voted to appropriate funds for the machine. A television set for the lounge now being constructed was also the object of heated discussion. The maintenance and care of the set were the problems which had to be overcome but the school has offered to pay a student to watch the set. The Council voted to buy a television set but did not appropriate funds at this time. A committee will shop for a reasonably priced but suitable set.

Tournament Plans

The Council unanimously approved a proposal that the administration be approached concerning a holiday on Tuesday, March 22 so that the students may attend the NCAA tournament in New York. Also since it is expected many students will wish to attend the games a committee was appointed to investigate the possibility of organizing a special party bus or train. The sale of tickets was also subject to discussion and it was decided that the Council

Student Council Host at Gay Irish Hop; Dancing 8-12

Plans have been completed for St. Patrick's Day Dance to be held by the Student Council on Thursday evening in the Field House. The hours of the dance have been changed from 9:00 P. M. till 1:00 A. M. to 8:00 P. M. till 12 midnight. The chairman of the Social Affairs Committee of the Student Council, Joe Henhessey, announced that advance sales have been very encouraging and a large crowd is expected to attend.

Tickets which are on sale at $1.20 per couple, tax included, are obtainable from any Student Council member, will also be on sale at the Field House box office. The dance is the answer to the request for a low-priced affair, the cost of tickets to cover the expense of the dance. Last fall, the Council ran a dance in order to raise funds for any possible expenditures which may have been necessary during the school year. It is now possible to conduct a dance at cost.

Music for the affair will be provided by "Patty" Murphy and his "O'Villanovans" with Marion Stoder featured on the vocals. Along with the dancing it is hoped that some extra-added attractions will be available to entertain the crowd. These attractions will be revealed on Thursday evening.

Refreshments will be served during the dance in the Blue Room. This will be the last regular dance until early May, and many are expected to take advantage of this opportunity to celebrate the popular saint's day.

Harrison Dillard Receives Villanova's Inter-Racial Award

At the last bi-weekly meeting of the Interracial Club, Olympic Star Harrison Dillard was chosen by an unanimous vote to be the recipient of the 1949 Interracial Club award for outstanding merit in the field of racial tolerance. The award was a bronze plaque.

Presentation ceremonies took place in the half time interlude of the Georgetown-Villanova basketball game on Monday, March 7. Rev. Wm. Lunney, O.S.A., moderator of the club, introduced George Guida who in turn explained the purpose of the award. He then introduced Herb McKinley, another internationally-known track star who accepted the award for Dillard who was detained by a previous engagement in Montreal.

Harrison Dillard, a graduate of Baldwin-Wallace College in Cleveland, has broken many track records throughout the world and is still the greatest high hurdler in the history of the sport. His life, it was pointed out, has been a constant open fight for racial tolerance. His proxy at the ceremonies, Herb McKinley, expressed the gratitude of Dillard, and his own for the example set by the Interracial club at Villanova for equality.

Herby McKinley, Jamaican track star, receives the Villanova 1949 Interracial Club award from George Guida in behalf of Harris on Dillard who was unable to be present.

NCAA TICKETS SOLD AT SPECIAL STUDENT RATES ON CAMPUS

Tickets were put on sale yesterday at the College Ticket office, for the NCAA tournament. The tickets were being sold to the students at special rates for themselves and at regular prices for others. Villanova will play both Monday and Tuesday evenings at the Garden in New York win or lose the opening game Monday.

It has been announced by the President of the Student Council that the scheduled sale of tickets last Friday was cancelled at the last moment in order that they might inquire into the possibility of a holiday so that more students might attend. Also the Council planned on distributing the tickets according to classes if they had not sufficient tickets so the upper classmen could have the first chance.

An administration board decided against a holiday for the game because of a minimum days requirement that makes it impossible for another holiday to be called. The Student Council requested the holiday on behalf of the student body.

Jr.-Of-Jr. Week To Be Chosen

Dick Ruane, Chairman of the Mother's Day Committee, announced that as part of the day's activities a Junior of Junior Week will be presented to the mothers during the afternoon entertainment scheduled for that day. This will be the second year that a contest for the Junior of Junior Week has been conducted, the idea originating last year with the Class of '49.

All married Juniors are requested to submit pictures of their sons to the Villanovan office. Pictures will be accepted until April 26, but it is urged that the fathers get the photos in as soon as possible so that they may be published. No limit is set on the ages of the contestants. All pictures will be judged by a committee to be appointed.

Winner To Be Presented

During the Mother's day entertainment, which is to be on the afternoon of Monday, May 2, the winner will be presented to the Juniors and their mothers. The Junior class will defray expenses of bringing the child to Villanova.

This contest will afford the proud fathers in the Junior class to show off their pride and joy.

Father Girolami Named Moderator

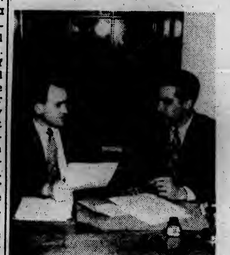
Annöuncement was made last week of the appointment of the Rev. Dante L. Girolami, O.S.A., to the position of moderator of the Class of 1952. In this capacity he will be responsible for the guidance of orientation, dances, and other class activities of the present Freshman Class until their graduation four years hence.

Father Girolami, a member of the Villanova graduating class of 1938, attended Roman Catholic High School, Philadelphia, and the Augustinian Academy, Staten Island, N. Y. A year after his ordination to the priesthood in 1941, he received his Master of Science degree from the Catholic University, Washington, D. C.

At present, Father Girolami is an Instructor of Mathematics here at Villanova, and a Student Counsellor in Austin Hall.

Cana Conference Will Be Held At Villanova

Married Students and Wives Will Attend Day of Recollection, Sunday, March 27th



The college president, Very Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., has announced a Cana Conference to be held at Villanova on Sunday, March 27, for all married students and their wives.

A Cana Conference is a day of recollection for young married couples. It is not a marriage forum, nor a marriage clinic, nor a lecture on marriage, nor any other type of sermon about marriage. The Conference is designed to review the life of a man and his wife from a practical intellectual, and religious viewpoint. It is a "time-out" period in order to gather the knowledge and grace necessary to carry on in the future.

Program

The program of the day will be made up somewhat in the following manner: The day will begin with the couples attending Mass at 9:30. A light breakfast will be served following the Mass, and the remainder of the day will be made up of conference under the guidance of the priest-speaker for the occasion. An opportunity will be given for asking questions and discussion of the answers. Dinner will be served at a convenient time in the college dining room and the day will be brought to a conclusion with Benediction and the renewal of the marriage vows. The schedule is planned so that all will be able to leave shortly after four o'clock.

Bob Filippelli, '49, and Ralph Slayton, '50, have been appointed as co-chairman and are responsible for the planning and coordination of the activities for the day.

The name of the priest-speaker will be announced in the next issue of the VILLANOVAN.

G. E. WILL PRESENT "HOUSE OF MAGIC"

General Electric's "House of Magic," a science show which has been presented before more than 13,000,000 persons during the past fifteen years, and which was one of the hit shows of the New York World's Fair and of every major exposition since Chicago's Century of Progress, is coming to Villanova soon.

The show, which presents in an interesting and entertaining manner the marvels of modern science, will appear at the Field House on March 28 at 8 P. M.

The "House of Magic" secured its name from the late Floyd Bibbons, author, lecturer and foreign correspondent, who so dubbed the General Electric Research Laboratory, in which scientists discovered the phenomena presented in the science show.

Now entering its sixteenth season, the "House of Magic" has attracted capacity crowds at every performance. More than 2,500,000 persons saw it at the New York World's Fair alone. During World War II it was presented before 1,200,000 service men and women at camps throughout the country.

A man shaking hands with his own shadow, visible sound and audible light, a toy electric train which obeys voice commands, paper which explodes, lighting an electric light with a match — these and many other demonstrations will be presented.

Among the most impressive features of the show is that of sending sound across the stage on a light beam. A record is played, and the music is sent across the stage to a loud speaker on a narrow beam of light. The lecturer is able to interrupt the music program merely by breaking the beam of light with his head.

'Insurance Bonus' Due To Veterans In A Short Time

Veterans are going to get special checks from the United States Government within the next few months. The exact time is not known but officials in Washington believe the first payments will go out in the mail in August although others set the time around October or November.

Payments to each veteran will average about $125. The largest checks may run as high as $300 but there will be quite a number as low as $1. It all depends on how long the veterans held on to their insurance policies. The longer a policy was held the larger the amount the veteran will receive.

Payment of this insurance "bonus" or dividened will cover a period of several weeks and will add to the buying power of all veterans. The effect is expected to be inflationary for a time at least. For most of the veterans will take payments in cash.

Refunds on service insurance premiums are made possible by the fact that there have been fewer deaths of policyholders than anticipated. Thus, the insurance risks were less than expected, resulting in overpayments on premiums. Furthermore, this insurance fund, which has been piling up for more than eight years, has been drawing interest at the rate of 3 percent. Payments to families of persons whose deaths resulted from battle or from other extra hazards of service did not come from this fund, but from special appropriations by Congress.

Payments Every Year

There will be future payments in years to come but none will be as large as the payments scheduled for this year. Checks will be mailed to veterans annually but will not go to vets after this year, who let their policies lapse. Future

A Secret

There is a secret I must tell. It is bursting within me for want of telling. I want to grasp men by the lapels and shake them and make them realize the grandeur of my knowledge.

Here at Villanova, the world lies at our feet — potentially. Here lies the means for our securing the Universe. Here, in the area between the Pike and the "Penney", lies a load of dynamite powerful enough to blast the corroded overcrust off the face of the green earth. All that must be done is to carry away some of this explosive, place it in likely crevices, and light the fuse. Layers and layers of choking incrustation will be reduced to piles of rubbish. The sound of breathing will be heard again.

I cannot quote it, but Peter Maurin once composed a bit of verse that suggested this idea: Catholic teaching is like a charge of dynamite that has been placed in a mighty vacuum container by the philosophers and thologians who have screwed the lid on tight, buried the works, and are sitting on top of it. That may or may not be a just statement on the part of Mr. Maurin; however, I will say this: Some one has buried something, someone is hiding something, something is being sat upon. All that most are able to do is to pay dumb respect to the grave.

Our men are not being issued the requisite amounts of 'ammo' to protect themselves. They are in no position to carry on the offensive against the enemy. There's plenty of 'ammo' in the dump but it's not being distributed.

The fact that thousands are being sent into enemy territory un-armed and un-briefed is a scandal. Great numbers are leaving the manning depots with the haziest of notices concerning the nature of the enemy, the nature of their own cause, the consequences of defeat, or the rewards of victory. They have no conception of the power with which they can arm themselves and and what devastation and consternation they can visit on the foe.

All of which would seem to indicate that something is amiss in some quarter. We shall continue, it appears, to turn out a steady flow of regular guys, smart guys, good guys, sensible, practical guys. They will go forth to achieve their objective: the making of a buck-honestly, if possible. They will ulcerate their stomachs, fray their nerves, and come close to losing their immortal souls to obtain lots of "life" insurance, video, autos, and other necessaries. They will never scale the walls of the citadels they should have conquered by their life's end, for they have neither the time, the inclination, nor the equipment to do this.

And millions and millions of starving souls in them, and across the chasm of time, will continue to search with mute, parched eyes for our cavaliers to rescue them from servitude. But they will not be released, for the soldiers are dallying in the nursery.

How sad, how infinitely sad this is. I no longer feel enthusiastic about telling my secret to anyone. I know I should be met by a pair of opaque eyes which would look uncomprehendingly. There would also be a few snide smirks which would cackle, "Thou fool!" But mainly, there will be the dumb eyes stumbling through the grambled by-ways, mesmerized by fox-trots and super-hydro-flow.

Each human being must reach the cross-roads of life. He sees two roads ahead of him. One seems long, narrow, and very straight. It is uphill as far as the eye can see. It is neither pleasant nor inviting. It is shaded by thick thorn bushes on either side. The only light is the great gleam at the top of the hill, and the paving consists of rocks, and is rutted by the thousands of tired feet that have dragged themselves through the unwholesome path. Long, sharp thorns are flowered with bits of cloth and flesh from those who have staggered through the narrow way.

However, the other route presents an entirely different picture. It is wide and winding, and circles constantly downhill into a dark eternity of surprises, for nothing can be seen at the bottom of the road. But that is hardly noticed by the traveler who must make the choice. The entrance is surrounded by beautiful flowers. The highway itself is paved with gold that little wear from the many feet that have skipped lightly down the lovely incline. The only thing that might cause one to even think before choosing is the gigantic turnstile at the opening of the road which prevents any change of mind on the part of those who have entered. But who would want to return from such a place?

. . . Who? Anyone who had turned that great gate and swaggered happily down the broad road to find a soft, easy life. It was a long pleasant dance down. But as he reacher the bottom he groped in the darkness and discovered that the road forked into hundreds of tiny rough paths. Each one spiraled and narrowed at great length into pitfalls and painful traps; where each mile sapped his strength and wore him thin and tired. He then struggled back up the great hill and banged and pounded on the gate that would not bend to his battered fists. Then

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor,

I have just finished the unpleasant task of reading the article "Inside Opera". I must say whoever wrote this did a marvelous job of displaying his ignorance. It was without a doubt the most insipid, ludicrous and just plain stupid piece of junk I have ever had the misfortune to read.

The article is an obvious picture of the impoverished mental state of the editorial staff of the Villanovan. If by chance anyone should stumble across this mute form of protoplasm, try to find his small underdeveloped nucleus and try to feed it the seed of cultural learning which includes opera. Hardly can one expect to understand the intricate moods of modern music (jazz, bop, swing) without the fundamental cornerstone of classical music, one-third of which is opera.

Try to get this printed — I dare you.

Sincerely,
B. Cusmano (female)

Editor's note: Daan Huh?

Dear Sir:

With sentiments of deep gratitude we wish to express our heartfelt thanks and sincere appreciation to President Father Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., his executive staff, the faculty and student body of Villanova, for their many acts of kindness shown us during the illness and death of our son Richard W. Tirrell, and also for the numerous masses for his spiritual benefit, and the beautiful floral tributes.

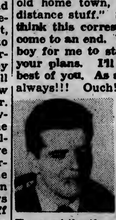
Dear John!

by
Bill Breninghouse



Of all the phenomena of college life, none is more tragic than the receipt of a "Dear John" letter. Many a hardy youth has been severely disillusioned when the one-and-only tells him in sweet and oh-so-smooth terms to go jump in the nearest lake. Before you begin attributing the alleged cynicism of this writer to one of these earth-shattering epistles, let me tell you that he observes only what goes on about him and, besides, the girls he goes out with can not write.

Off to College

Tracing the events leading up to this misfortune, we find that Johnny Wugglesmacker has recently left for college leaving behind that sweet little girl, Mary Boogiestrone. The night before he left, Johnny took Mary to the movies to see the seventh chapter of Superman, and after the show, as they were walking home, he told her all that she meant to him and she vowed that he was everything to her. She would miss him something awful, and would write as often as she could. He would think of her always but he wanted her to have dates with other guys. He'd understand. After all, how can anyone expect a young girl to sit home on Saturday nights. He would always know that he was the only one. Off he went to the gay life at Villanova with hundreds of pictures of his loyal little sweetie to mar the bare blank walls of his room. Three weeks later he got the letter. It was not the first, the others were all that he expected. From the outside it was no different than any preceding, pink envelope, horrid perfume. Our boy opened it, expecting a deluge of affection wrought into words, and found, that all was over.

Dear John

"Dear John". This was his first clue, she usually addressed him as "My Most Passionate Lover Boy." "Do you remember Eddie Squanch?" Remember him? Why, Eddie is Jack's best friend. "Well, he just got a new convertible and he has been taking me out quite often. He's very nice to me." This is just the preliminary. Here comes the payoff. "You know, Johnny, now that you've been away a few weeks I just know that you must see things differently. I know that I do." Notice the technique, this is all Johnny's thinking according to Mary. "No doubt you are sure that our acquaintance was merely an infatuation". Not only has Eddie a new convertible, he is always around the old home town, none of this long distance stuff." So for your sake I think this correspondence ought to come to an end. You are too good a boy for me to stand in the way of your plans. I'll always think the best of you. As always, Mary." As always!!! Ouch!!

Did little Johnny Wugglesmacker recover from this experience? Sure, he did. Time salved his broken heart and soon he realized that this letter was a blessing in disguise. For a while, though, his friends had to steer him clear of bridges and high buildings. Of course his outlook toward the distasteful side of humanity is a little warped, but it is hoped that a new love will straighten him out. It usually does.

Next week, a bill is coming up in Congress forbidding the use of the U. S. Mails to jilt. Anyone not desiring to become a victim of a 'Dear John" should write his Congressman immediately, asking him to support this needed legislation. Remember, it could happen to you.

Syncopatter

From the first drumbeat of "Caravan" to the last lingering note of "No Orchids for My Lady" the "Ecstatic Mr. B." proves that he is the best male vocalist since Crosby yawned into a microphone. The "Ecstatic Mr. B. is a misnomer; it's the fans who are ecstatic over Billy Eckstine. Billy is one singer who doesn't claim to have originated a style. According to Billy he just took a little from Crosby, a lot of the phrasing found in Bop, and the approaches used by Sarah Vaughan. He doesn't mention the effect that his own vibrant tones have on his fans. Words fail to portray the quality and feeling that characterize the former Earl Hines vocalist. The only way to appreciate his talent for presenting the best in music all wrapped up with a velvet bow is to listen to such records as "Bewildered", "I'm Falling for You" (which brings back old memories) which he sang with the old Hines band, and his classic rendition of "Sophisticated Lady." They just don't come any better.

Played Valve Trombone

Billy started out playing a feeble trumpet in the early Hines band but switched to working a valve trombone in the beeps of bop as well as taking a few vocals. It was at this stage that his vocal partner, Sarah Vaughan, exercised her influence on his style. Later he formed a band of his own that he had to break up because it wasn't "commercial". He was to see his musical director, one Dizzy Gillespie, and some members of his outfit such as Bird Parker go on to make it the most commercial band on the present scene.

I now turn you over to a young man who with his Dixieland patter, really makes much ado about nothing.

Thank you, Bruce. While thumbing through my favorite morning periodical in an early class last week I came upon some comments on Bop that completely echo my sentiments so much that I'm led to suspect their author of reading this column.

Be-Bop Different

Anyway, this fellow said something and you're getting it whether you like it or not. Quothe he, "I don't see how it (Bop) can become a popular medium of musical expression. Just because be-bop is different and getting a lot of attention right now doesn't mean that it's good. Be-bop is for a relatively small group. Most people still like the idea that music means melody.

Be-bop has nothing to do with melody. You don't fill a large dance hall with people who have come just to listen to music. They have come to dance, and they can't dance to be-bop."

Now by way of a little record reviewing, here is one for all those who are trying to forget "Sweet Georgia Brown" after hearing that tibia-fibula version of it by Brother Bonehead, or whatever his name is. Try it by Benny Goodman and the Sextet, with Lionel Hampton on the 'vibes.' We know that after hearing it you'll be sure that all is not lost.

Since Fran Warren's fine vocalizing is one of the few things that Bruce and agree on, I'd like to especially recommend one of her latest records as the best in listening. She does a wonderful job on "What's My Name," and don't let the title fool you; it is not the theme song for a quiz show.

Can't write no mo' cause I don't know no mo'. So till next week, Bon swat!

Trivia

by
Bob Carroll

I found out about it from this guy over in Germanown. He runs the football pools during the football season and he usually has an "in" on whatever else is going on.

He called me up Monday and said did I want to join the Pyramid Club. Well, I'd heard about the thing when they wrote it up in Life and Times and how it started out in California and then went to Chicago and Detroit and then came east to Boston and New York. According to this guy Monday, the club was coming down through New Jersey and was going to come into town late Monday night. He said it was up in Willow Grove just a few miles out of town and he was going up to join and even if I didn't want to join I could go up with him and just look in. I figured I didn't have anything to lose so I said okay and he came over in about half an hour and got me and we went up to Willow Grove.

He wasn't much good on the way up because he'd seen a guy collect about two thousand dollars up in Trenton and he was pretty excited and I was just sitting there making wisecracks about it. He tried to explain it but I didn't get it very clear. He said you pay a buck to join and then the next night you have to get two more people to join and pay a buck each and the next night they get two people each to pay a buck and so on. Then twelve nights after you join you're supposed to get a little over two thousand dollars. Well, that's a lot of money.

We went into this house in Willow Grove and you could see something was up . . . There was a crowd of people in the living room and they were all smiling and looking a little embarrassed. There was this one lad yat a card table and she had this list in front of her with eight names on the top of it and a pyramid on the bottom of the sheet. This pyramid's got eight names on the bottom of it and the next layer above it has four names on it and the next layer has two and then there's one name on the top of the pyramid. This lady asked me was I a new member and I said I guessed so and she said then she'd explain it to me. She said I pay my buck and get in on the bottom layer and then the next day I move up to the next layer and so on til after four days I'm on top of the pyramid. Then from the top of the pyramid I go to the bottom of the list of eight names and after eight more days I get to the top of the list and I collect my two thousand dollars.

I don't know but you see something like that and all these people smiling and wishing you luck and telling you how they saw somebody collect and you begin to get a little worked up. I went through the thing again with this guy and then we left. I knew some people I was sure to get that night as backers so I went home and got on the phone.

Everything's still running smooth and if everything works out I get paid next Thursday. I'll have to get the house ready for all these people coming with the money and I ll have to get my mother to bed early Thursday night because she gets too excited in a big crowd. My brother's going to pick up some doughnuts and coffee Wednesday night and then we'll be set. I hope the weather's nice.

Town Talk

Guthrie McClintic's production of "Medea" returns to the Forrest for one week beginning March 14th. This is the sensation of last season returning after a run in New York. There was some discussion as to whether "Medea" was a true representation of the original play by Euripides. While few liberties are taken with the actual story, much of the dialogue is changed. McClintic uses the original idea of the Greek plays with the old chorus to comment upon the action of the play.

As in last year's production Judith Anderson will star. She has been praised for her interpretation of this difficult part, but it has been said that the horror that she depicts is too much for the average playgoer. Miss Anderson will be ably assisted by Henry Brandon.

In spite of the horror and the tragedy of this play it is recommended as one of the great reproductions of our time. It is a step in the right direction in that it is among the first that reveals the old, but great, stories.

A word to the wise, in this case — GET YOUR TICKETS EARLY if you wish to see this splendid play. The tickets are not "out of this world" and a fine evening can be had for the modest investment of about $4.00 to $5.00.

The new play "Detective Story" can be seen at the Locust. This is the Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse production of a book by Sidney Kingsley. Another play with a rather strange title is "The Biggest Thief in Town" with Thomas Mitchell in the lead. Despite the title, the play is a comedy, and was written by Dalton Trumbo and presented by Lee Sabinson.

"Inside U. S. A." is also returning as a success of last season. The same original cast of the hit will be present. Jack Haley and Beatrice Lillie will be there to give the funny-bone a fast twist. Those who have seen this play last year can enjoy it again, since most of the skits change with the times.

The twenty-third program of the Philadelphia Orchestra is to be given at the Academy of Music. Eugene Ormandy will conduct the Franck "Symphony in D Minor," and a modern work by Samuel Barber—the "Adagio for String Orchestra," Opus 11. The pianist Byron Janis will be heard in a performance of the Beethoven "Concerto No. 3 in C minor." Mr. Janis comes to Philadelphia after a very successful start in his career. He played on the Magic Key radio program when he was but ten years old, and was soloist with the NBC Symphony at the age of sixteen.

Where To Go

After a devastating fire several months ago, Don's, in Yeadon, once more is open to the public. This is cheering news to the many friends of this establishment.

Don's is especially suited for those interested in an evening's entertainment at one spot. One may spend his time eating sandwiches, and drinking any of a wide variety of fountain drinks, or coffee, tea, etc. The choice of eatables is such as to please most anyone, and the prices too are reasonable, even for the limited pocketbook. Don's, however, is not limited to those who would eat, a dance is provided, too, but unfortunately, it is on the small side. A charge is made for the dancing privilege, being a nominal fee of fifty-cents per couple, added to the check. This is the minimum financial expenditure for the night for a couple on the dance floor level.

The place itself consists of two floors, the upper having booths, and counters, the lower having the dance floor and more booths. The lower floor is rectangular in shape with large tables ideal for three couples on one side and the box-like dance floor on the other. Towards the rear is another passage with booths on both sides. The furnishings are the old village type. False doorways line the dance floor, while the booths have doors and two tiny windows to simulate tiny cottages. Small shaded lamps light the booths and lantern-like lamps hang in front of some of the booths. Canvas hangs from the low ceiling creating a softness of atmosphere.

Don's is not elaborate, the opposite, in fact, being more true. The booths and tables are unpainted and rough hewn. Nothing fancy appears throughout the place. Sometimes people do not care for Don's, but the large number of couples present on the weekend testify that is possesses a certain charm. Early arrival at night helps insure the immediate possession of a booth.

It's easy to get to Don's. Use the 67th and Elmwood avenue bus from 69th street Terminal, and get off at Don's.

Inside Opera

by
Bill Carroll

In the past three weeks we have investigated the plots of several operas (two). This exhaustive research should enable us to grasp an idea of some of the techniques employed in the writing of opera stories. If we carefully analyze the plots, we can uncover certain hard and fast principles that should be followed in order to produce an effective opera. The first consideration must be purely subjective. Since you want to do a good job, and be ranked with the masters after you have departed this vale of tears, it would be wise to emulate not only the methods the great masters used, but also their mode of life.

The Hard Way

It is now a patent truism that you can never expect to achieve lasting fame unless you have had a miserable, hand-to-mouth, existence in your younger days. This historical fact gives us: Rule No. 1: Get broke, and stay broke. This rule can best be realized by spending your time trying to sell VILLANOVANS outside he UNION LEAGUE at Broad and Sansom streets.

During the hours invested in outside employment you are full of ideas about great opera stories, you get new thoughts constantly and have to scribble them in the margins of the papers you are trying to sell. When you get home at night you go up to your third-floor unheated flat and copy your notes on the wall paper. It is taken for granted that your poverty precludes you from buying writing materials.

Fame

After several months of this you have at last completed your first work. Your problem now is: how to get a buyer up to your flat to read your masterpiece. This problem is usually solved by a beautiful heiress . . . who has been attracted to you because of your courage and stick-to-it-tiveness (?). She buys the house in which you are living and has her footman tear off the wallpaper and . . . The footman takes the work to a publisher.

The publisher acclaims it to be the greatest work since Hoagie Carmichael. The footman, a crafty soul, signs his name to the masterpiece, takes the money, and sends you a rejection slip accompanied by a "keep trying" note. You in the meantime have been shipped to the heiress' summer home on the Dodecanese Islands, where you are recovering from an arrested case of T. B.

Nice Try

While on the island you are struck by a tremendous idea for an opera. You are driven almost out of your mind because there is neither pen,paper, pencil, spirit level, slide rule, adding machine or much of anything else with which to write down these fabulous thoughts. The young lady gave instructions to have such things removed from the house before you arrived so that you might enjoy a complete rest.

On the verge of desperation you dash down to the beach and quickly inscribe your immortal in the hard sand. After several hours of desperate writing you walk up and down the beach admiring the work; it's finished; fame at last. A swell of pride fills your now famous chest. Then a swell of salt water takes your story out to the fish pounds. This leads us to Rule No. 2. Don't write on the beach at low tide.

THE 5TH COLUMN

By JACK METZGER and MIKE NOWLAN

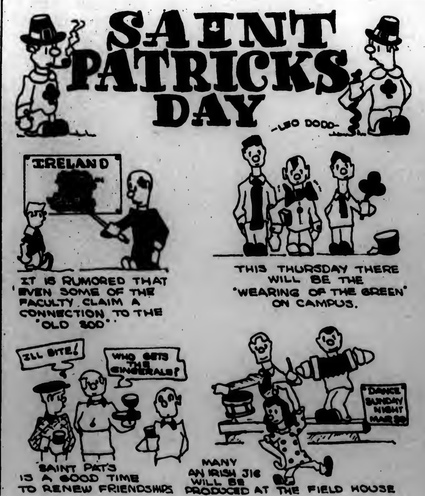
All sorts of activity over the past week included a nice Lenten tale about the kid who heard the familiar—"Dust thou art, and to dust thou shall't return." So, he popped in the other day and asked his mother if it were true that he was made from dust and would turn to dust when he died. When she said, "yes", the kid said that he looked under the bed and someone was either coming or going.

Spaking of coming or going reminds us of the incident on the P&W last week. "Gasolle Boy" Frank Varallo, the Christmas card tycoon, was sitting peacefully opposite a couple of pals on the Expréss, one of those seat facing one another operations, when he was accosted by a female with Phil Grande's proportions and Pasquariello's gentleness who told him that he had better get up and turn the seat the other way. The gay damsel grabbed the handle of the seat, flipped it back, and before Frank Varallo could clear his throat he was up and away, eventually winding up at a thirty-degree angle balancing a slide-rule on the end of his nose. Even with all this entertainment the P&W does not contemplate a fare increase.

We extend our sympathy to Charlie Bodden who found out that Pall Mall's burn brighter and longer, and also through the lining of an overcoat. The moral of the story is: Don't smoke in a class room or else wear an asbestos lining.

Mr. Kelly, of the Denver Register devoted one of his sports columns to the exploits of Villanova's celebrities, George Gulde and Paul Arizin.

Two of our local boys applied to the Philadelphia Catholic Standard and Times for a sport columnist's job but have not received a reply as yet from the paper.



A word to Shane and Mike Cressmer, Pre Meds. You can make a fortune selling vitamin pills to the residents these days. You'll have to deliver them, though. Most of the boys are too weak to pick them up. Joe Staffe was heard to remark that it's a good thing that the forty days of Lent are fast days, because he hates to have to wait the normal length of time between Sundays to get a smoke. Not understanding the theory of relativity, we present the statement at its face value. Speaking of faces, who are those two shmoes whose pictures appear at the head of this column.

Gene Valerio, Junior dance-band chairman and his committee did an excellent job in their selection of Blue Barron, Buddy Williams, Ted Weems, and Sylvin Herman, as possible candidates for the Junior Prom. Blue Barron was finally decided upon by over 75% of the class. His style has the smoothness of Sammy Kaye's reed section with a staccato brass section, nice for dancing. We might add that the committee refused to consider Artie Shaw because they were afraid he would bring his wives, and the Field House would be overcrowded.

Talk has been passed around of Villanova's entrance next season into the battle for the mythical Philadelphia Collegiate District title. The desire to see the Wildcats tangle with the other locals was basd upon the enhusiasm of the coach, of the team, and most of the student body, who have expressed favorable opinions along these lines. The possibility of such a program based on a home-and-home setup (outside of the Convention Hall double-header program) was brought to the attention of the public last Tuesday by Matt Guokas on his nightly sports program.

The boosting of the NIT selections to twelve does not improve the situation at all, and only lessens the prestige of this post-season tourney by the addition of three more New York teams, bringing the total to four. It would be a pleasure to see them all trounced with the possible exception of Manhattan, which has come along towards the end of the season.

From all reports, the New York scribes are thoroughly disgusted with the NIT and their continued determination to keep New York colleges in the tourney regardless of their ability. We agree, and would certainly like to see the tourney dropped in favor of another resembling the NCAA tourney. Our opinion is that there is too much professionalism (money-grabbing) on the part of college sports connected with the Boston—New York—Philly—Baltimore basketball magnates, and the sooner their control over picinky collegiate schedules of teams operating in their circuit and inviting teams of their personal choice to the NIT, the better the national basketball situation will become. We might add that there are cities other than New York in which the NIT might be held—for instance Pittsburgh. Then Duquesne could be invited every year.

DPE Challenges Other Frats; New Moderator Appointed

Fraternity to Award Keys to Seniors

Last Wednesday evening, the members of DPE held their second monthly meeting of the new semester.

President John Peshina announced that the fraternity keys would be distributed to the February graduates soon, and to the Senior II's at the close of the semester. Because of the absence problem, the article concerning attendance of regular monthly meetings was read and discussed. Those present urged that the article be enforced to the utmost. The fraternity again agreed to challenge the other fraternities to meet it in athletics.

After the regular meeting was concluded, the fraternity was introduced to its new moderator, Father William J. Gordon, O.S.A., who is also moderator of the Industrial Relations Club. Father Gordon succeeds Mr. Patrick J. Dougherty, Professor of Business Administration. Previous to his assignment to Villanova, Father Gordon studied and taught at Catholic University, Washington, and is active in the field of Labor Relations both in the Philadelphia area and in Washington.

The new moderator then outlined a possible plan of action for the fraternity and made several advisory remarks.

"The business fraternity is making an effort to restore the organization to a more active and social position on the campus.

Villanovans Play For Orphanage

Last night, the Band and Glee Club gave a successful concert at St. John's Orphanage, in West Philadelphia, bringing much joy to the youngsters.

These were the same children who were the object of a big Christmas party thrown for them by Villanova students before the holiday vacations, and were happy at being remembered by the Villanova Band and Glee Club. They poured applause with their childish glee and contributed to a fine evening for the Villanova men.

The program opened with the Band playing "V for Villanova", followed by "The Skywriter March", "Funiculi, Funicula", and a selection from Wagner. After this the Glee Club sang "The Old Song", "All Through the Night" and "This Is My Country".

Both the Band and Glee Club then combined in a group of Victor Herbert selections. During this medley, Miss Marguerite McFarland, a music major at Immaculata, and Martin Binder sang a duet, "Just Because You're You", after which Miss McFarland soloed with "Falling in Love With Love", followed by Binder's solo, "The Gypsy Sweetheart". Bringing the medley to a finale, the Glee Club sang "While You're Away, Dear", and "Please".

The high spot of the evening was a piano solo by Miss McFarland accompanied by the band, playing Grieg's "Piano Concerto in A Minor". A trumpet duet, the "Helena Polka", with Edward Anzur and John Bianchi was received with much applause.

Halfway through a solo of "Cool Water" by Porter Gutwald, the concert turned into a gay comedy. In the middle of the tune, Thomas Pasha, a clarinetist, shed his coat, and fell on the floor calling for water. He crawled over to Fr. Handran and begged him in a voice full of despair for some "Cool Water". At this point, James Hughes left his place in the Glee Club and came out to the front with a big pitcher of ice water. He proceeded to give Pasha a "big drink" of ice water. This ended the act.

NROTC GROUP VISITS WILLOW GROUP FIELD

Last Tuesday instead of the usual drill period in the afternoon, the Sophomore class of the NROTC unit of Villanova journeyed to Willow Grove. The trip, in line with the aviation training they will receive this summer, included a complete tour of the Air Station plus flights around the Philadelphia area.

Lt. Commander Harold Carlson, USN, instructor of the class for the past two years conducted the trip to the Air Station which is located North West of Philadelphia. The trip was made by bus.

The tours about the base were conducted by the flight officers at Willow Grove. Groups were shown the machine shops, electronic and radio repair rooms, plane maintenence hangers and the parachute loft. At the parachute loft the men were given wonderful demonstrations on how parachutes operate and how they are packed. Many other survival aids were also shown to the groups such as life rafts and their equipment.

The flights were made in SNBs (two-motor Beachcrafts), and an RD4 (Navy counterpart of the D-C3). The planes circled over Villanova campus, then flew over Philadelphia and then returned to the field. While in the air the students were given a few minutes to see how the controls were operated and the procedure to be followed in the air.

Frat, Addressed By Chaplain; New Officers Elected

Delta Pi Mu, the Arts Fraternity, in accordance with its plan to hold more and frequent meetings, assembled twice within the last two weeks, on March 1st, in the Library Seminar, and again on March 8th in 215 Mendel.

At the first meeting, Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O.S.A., College Chaplin, spoke on the topic, "Apologetics in the History of the World", in the first lecture of a forum series sponsored by the Fraternity. This meeting marked the first time that one of the new Library Seminar Room had been put to use by any student organization.

The next speaker, it was announced, will be Asst. Professor John McEnerney of the Villanova Modern Language Department. Mr. McEnerney, who addressed the group at one of their meetings last year, will repeat his performance with a talk on "The Strange Character of Julius Caesar" tonight at 7:30 in the Library Seminar.

At the second, a business meeting, two new officers were elected by the group: the Recording Secretary, Ray McWilliams; and the Correspondink Secretary, Lawrence O'Brien.. Five tickets to "Medes" with Judith Anderson, were then awarded to lucky members of the Frat.

CE's To Meet

The Villanova Chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers will hold a meeting tonight in Room 215, Mendel, at 8:00 P. M.

At that time, Mr. Warrick, Assistant Chief Engineer, and Mr. Bedard, District Engineer, of the Pennsylvania State Highway Department will address the civil engineers. The topic will be "A Career in Highways". Opportunities for summer employment as well as employment after graduation will be discussed.

It is expected that all members will attend as well as any other engineers who may be interested.

Cervantes Fete Committee Picked By Spanish Club

A general arrangements committee for the Cervantes Day celebration was chosen last Thursday afternoon at a Spanish Club meeting in Room 206, C&F.

The members of this committee, representing each of the Spanish class sections are: George Kodis, Thomas Terranova, Peter Dooner, Vincent Reagan, William Creamer, Thomas McMahon, Wallace Quinn, Richard Sigg, John McCourt, Theodore Tiedeker, Frank Dunick, William Chapman, John Roesgen, Robert Snyder, William Coopersmith, George Jones, John Blong and Hugh Beatty. The new secretary of the Club, Joseph Shannon, was appointed chairman of this committee.

It was announced that the celebration will consist of a dinnerdance to be held on April 30th, but no definite arrangements have yet been made concerning where it is to be held. ARIZIN SETS PHILLY SCORING MARK

CATS MEET KENTUCKY IN 1st GAME

Senesky's Mark Topped By 27 In Hoya Game

By Ray Keats

It took less than five minutes of play in the final game of the season for the sensational Paul Arizin to break the all time Philadelphia scoring record of 515 points. The criteria, set during the 1942-48 season by George Senesky of St. Joseph's College, was shattered before 3000 fans who had come primarily to see the lean sharpshooter crush the mark.

The victory of the Severencemen over a surprisingly stubborn Georgetown University five was only incidental. The onlookers were more intent on keeping count of the number of points which the most prolific scorer Villanova has ever seen was tallying.

Misses Foul

Arizin had a chance to tie the standard at 2:15 of the first period and as he stepped up to the foul circle a hush fell over the gathering. However, the ball hit the rim, bounced off the backboard and rolled floorward.

The incomparable candidate for All-American honors was not to be denied for long, though. And at long last a twisting jump . . . of the variety which established him as a star . . . was true and a new record was established. As the ball swished through the net each and every fan rose in honor of the lad who, in his second year of collegiate play, has attracted the attention of basketball fans across the nation. The ear-shattering applause rung on and on as Arizin was congratulated by his teammates.

Given Ball

Shyly he took his place at the foul line and readied himself for the free throw he was to attempt. However, the occasion was made official when Ray Corley, Georgetown team captain, handed the game ball to Paul. Modestly he posed for the cameras then rolled his memento under the players bench and shuffled back to the 15 foot line. Needless to say he calmly set himself and swished the ball through the basket, which gave vent for more frenzied yells from the fans and a broad smile from the Villanova mentor, Al Severence.

Second Ball for Paul

The ball, a token of appreciation from the school to its star, was the second one to be presented to the 6'3" marksman during the regular season which just closed. On that memorable night which he registered 85 points in a single game to set the new national collegiate record, Paul was given the ball with which he rippled the cords on 50 different occasions. (35 field goals and 15 foul conversions) during the game.

Although much was said both in and out of the papers, the National Collegiate Athletic Association gave its recognition and placed the astronomical total on the record books. What caused the disturbance was the fact that the points were scored against a non-collegiate team, Naval Air Material Center of Philadelphia. What the local basketball writers overlooked however, was that the game was officially refereed by the men of ASA Bushnell and thereby constituted a regular seasonal contest. Also, it was passed over lightly that Arizin had tallied on 57 per cent of his shots which touch on the phenomenal.

Although the Mainliners have not as yet had the advantage of playing in such centers of attraction as New York's Madison Square Garden, and the Philadelphia Convention Hall, Trizin was given honorable mention on several All-American teams and with the coming of the N.C.A.A. tourney next week the basketball world will be able to see one of the greatest shots in the game wearing

Paul Arizin receives the ball from Georgetown captain Ray Corley after breaking the district scoring record of 515 held by George Senesky. This is the second ball the modest Paul has received, the first being awarded when he broke all single game scoring records with 85 points.

Guida, McKenna, One, Two, In Baltimore 600

Thompson, Second in Mile to Wilt; Holmes and McCreary Lead Fast Mile Relay

By Bill Cooney

Records fell and outstanding performances galore were seen in old Baltimore last Saturday night as the Wildcat trackmen really went wild in the annual running of the South Atlantic Amateur Track Meet. Olympian George Guida turned in his usual terrific performance by taking the 600 in the brisk clocking of 1:12.3. In doing so he knocked five-tenths of a second off the meet record, but he couldn't claim a new record for his already bulging book. It seems that George also held the old record which he set last year.

McKenna Second

After Guida flashed by the tape it seemed as though the crowd was suddenly struck by a severe case of seeing double. Further investigation proved, however, that this second image was really Villanovan Jim McKenna who trailed his team mate over the line to make the 600 a strictly blue and white Special.

The team of McKenna and Guida then became a quartet with the addition of Jack Holmes and Joe McCreary and entered the mile relay race. This combination also proved to be a success, winning the event in 3:21.9. This was the best time turned in by any Villanova team this season. Considering the fact that it was run without spikes on the flat floor of the 175th Regiment Armory, it compares favorably with any times turned on the banked board ovals during the past season.

Thompson Behind Wilt

The 'Cats went into the lead at first with a foul conversion by John Weglicki, subbing for Sabol who had an injured ankle. However, both defenses were tight and the first break was not made until three minutes had been played when Captain Leo Wolf dropped a set shot to give the 'Cats a 3-2 lead. Thereafter, Georgetown took the lead and held it for most of the way up to halftime.

It was close all the time and only a good layup and successful foul shot by Jack Crossin enabled the Wildcats to leave the floor on the long end of a 39-37 count, at the end o fthe first half.

As usual, Villanova came to life in the second half and proceeded to immediately rack up a ten-point lead which they held most of the way until the end of the game.

BASKETEERS FINISH SEASON BY TRIPPING GEORGETOWN; 65-57

By Neal Fahy

Villanova's nationally famous basketball five completed its regularly scheduled game slate a week ago Monday night by trouncing Georgetown 65 to 57 before 3,000 in the Field House. Sparked by the outstanding playing of Paul Arizin, who accounted for 28 tallies, the Wildcats successfully ended their best season in a decade.

When four minutes, eight seconds of playing time had elapsed, Arizin broke the Philadelphia District all-time scoring record with his 516th point of the season. The game was stopped and he was presented with the ball.

22nd Win

It was Villanova's 22nd triumph in 25 games and their 20th straight at home. Immediately after the game, the Wildcats were tendered an invitation to represent District II in the NCAA annual championships.

The 'Cats went into the lead at first with a foul conversion by John Weglicki, subbing for Sabol who had an injured ankle. However, both defenses were tight and the first break was not made until three minutes had been played when Captain Leo Wolf dropped a set shot to give the 'Cats a 3-2 lead. Thereafter, Georgetown took the lead and held it for most of the way up to halftime.

It was close all the time and only a good layup and successful foul shot by Jack Crossin enabled the Wildcats to leave the floor on the long end of a 39-37 count, at the end o fthe first half.

As usual, Villanova came to life in the second half and proceeded to immediately rack up a ten-point lead which they held most of the way until the end of the game.

George Thompson finished second in the mile to Fred Wilt, and in doing so established himself as a miler to be reckoned with. Thompson stayed on the tail of the ex-Indiana star for most of the race but Wilt's final kick proved just a bit too much for him. The time for the eight lap trek was 4:13. Thompson a few yards back, was clocked in better than 4:15.

Guida's victory came as no surprise, but he still had to come from behind to do it. Rodeo of Morgan State and a member of Jamaica's Olympic team led most of the route. At the start of the gun lap, however, Mr. Inside Guida and Mr. Outside McKenna passed him in those positions respectively. Leaving the field far behind the pair sped on to vic-

Kentucky Looms As Most Powerful Eastern Opponent

By Bill Canino

With the National Collegiate Athletic Association basketball tournament only one week away, the Villanova five prepares to meet some of the finest teams ever assembled in one tourney. The pairings for the first Madison Square Garden tiffs have been made and two of the teams representing the Western N. C. A. A. districts been chosen. But in the Eastern roundrobin, in which the Mainliners will participate, the docket has already been prepared.

Lavelli and Company

From the New England area, District II, comes one Tony Lavelli and his Yale mates with a seasonal log of 22 wins in 28 starts. The Eli five, centered around the phenomenal hook shot which carried Lavelli to a new all-time collegiate four-year scoring record, finished the season in a tie with Princeton for Eastern league honors.

The men from New Haven fell prey to St. Mary's, Stanford, New York U., Penn, Princeton and Columbia during the regular season while they hold wins over such foes as Duquesne, Holy Cross, Rutgers and Army to mention just a few.

Illinois Fourth

The Midwest will be represented by a strong Illinois quintet. The Illini, boasting a record of 19 wins as against four setbacks, received a berth in the playoff by virtue of their Big Nine championship. Ranking fourth nationally, Illinois lost only to DePaul, Purdue and Michigan (twice). They were able to avenge their defeat at the hands of DePaul by swamping their conquerors, 89-51, two weeks after their loss.

Two All-Americans

Paced by two great basketeers, Dwight "Dike" Eddleman and Bill Erickson, the mighty Midwestern squad should prove to be hot in contention for the tournament title.

Eddleman, one of the greatest all-around athletes of our day, is being chosen on numerous All-American teams for both his scoring and playmaking abilities. Last Fall, he was a member of the U. S. track and field team which participated in the Olympics, and a few weeks later he was selected for All-American football honors.

Erickson, comparatively unheard of in Eastern hoop circles, was chosen on the first team of Collier's magazine All-American aggregation. The 6'1" sensation recorded a 35 per cent average on his shots during the past campaign and does most of his shooting on drive-ins. With these two standous providing the fire we can expect some fine court manuevers from the Big Nine contenders.

Kentucky Incomparable

The incomparable Wildcats from Kentucky represent District III, the South. Probably the greatest basketball team ever to be assembled in collegiate ranks the men of Coach Adolph Rupp are the most feared five on the hardwood.

The 'Cats will be seeking their second straight N. C. A. A. championship and are also in the process of capturing the National Invitational Tournament top prize and if last year's performance in the Garden is any indication of things to come, we must see the Kentuckians first in the tournament. After their N. C. A. A. championship they played superbly in the Olympic tryouts only to be defeated by the great Phillips "66" quintet.

Every court fan in these United States has heard of the wonderous works of All-Americans Ralph Beard, Alex Cross, "Wah-Wah" Jones and Cliff Barker. Dale Barnstable is the fifth man and a star in his own right while Jim Line gives periodic reliefs to his mates.

Beard a Standout

Beard, only 5'10", has been picked on every All team in the past two years and is the dribbling, defensive, and shooting star of the club. The tall man is Gross who handles the pivot like a master and is deadly from under the hoop. Jones, a football star in the Fall, shares much of the back board duty with Gross, while Barker, Barnstable

BASEBALL SCHEDULE RELEASED AS SQUAD BEGINS PRACTICE

By TED FERNANDES

Here's the picture of coming events on the Villanova diamond and the diamonds of respective 'Cat foes. The Wildcats have a 20-game schedule which is somewhat of a moderation over last year's 24-game agenda. On April 7 the Main Liners make their debut on the Princeton campus, and play four successive games before their actual homecoming which is to be on April 20 facing mighty Rutgers, at Villanova Stadium.

Beginning with Rutgers, the 'Cats face six opponents at home, which will give the students plenty of opportunity to witness the Villanovans in action. Then, on March 7 the Main Liners travel to New York and give battle to the Fordham Rams, prior to a big celebration to be held at the home of the Ram. This day of "whooping it up" was discontinued during the war days, but will commence again this year.

From New York the 'Cats travel into the heart of New England to meet Boston College, Holy Cross, and Providence College. The Villanovans then return to Pennsylvania for a home game with Seton Hall. Following this game they will hit the road again and face Georgetown in Washington. Two more away games with Navy and Penn, and the 'Cats wind up their schedule with Loyola of Baltimore, at home.

Tentative starters are, Red Wright, catcher, Larry Aigeldinger, shortstop, Charley Comerford at first, Pete D'Ambrosio, and Bill Hardnett at second base, with Norm Kline at the "hot corner." The outfield is as yet doubtful, although it looks that Mickey Frinzi may see action there as well as on the mound. Other moundsmen are Paul Blong, John Weglicki and John Maroni.

The Schedule:

March 30—Open
April 2—Open
April 7—Princeton, away
April 9—N. Y U., away
April 12—Army, away

From The Sidelines

By Harry Bango

Tourney Talk

As the Villanovan went to press the National Collegiate Athletic Association announced the pairings for the Eastern playoffs which will begin next Monday night in New York's Madison Square Garden. Villanova was matched against Kentucky while Illinois will play Yale in the opening round.

Kentucky is a top heavy favorite while Illinois is the second choice. Our Wildcats are the third ranking team with Yale, by virtue of Tony Lavelli's ability, the outsider.

The Wildcats from Kentucky started yesterday in their quest for the National Invitation Tournament honors and is also a favorite for the event. Should the men of Coach Adolph Rupp come through and cop the top honors in both tourneys, it would be the first time such a feat has been accomplished in the same year.

In the Western playoffs, which are scheduled for March 18-19 in Kansas City, there are still two berths open, District Five and District Eight. In the District Five round robin Oklahoma turned back Colorado by a 55-44 count last Saturday night. The victory threw the Big Seven Conference into a tie between Oklahoma and Nebraska. These two teams will meet tonight in Kansas City and the victor will meet Oklahoma and Nebraska. These two teams will meet tonight in Kansas City and the victor will meet Oklahoma A. &M. tomorrow night for the District Five title. The Aggies, the third ranking team in the country, should succeed in clinching the position but there is much rivalry involved.

The winner of the Pacific Coast Conference will represent the far West, District Eight. U. C. I. A. and State are tied at one game apiece in their best out of three series for the title. The Ucians whipped State 46-39 last Saturday night and both squads are ready for their battle tonight

The finals for the tournament will be held at Seattle, Washington on March 26. The winner and the runnerup of the Eastern setto will meet the Western champion and second place club to decide the title. There is a lot of good basketball scheduled in both sections and the eyes of the basketball world will be on that playoff in Seattle 11 days hence

Cats Invited to Five Tournaments

With all the talk about the NCAA Tourney, many may overlook the fact that this is far from being the only tournament to which the Mainliners were invited. First, there was the National Catholic Tournament in Denver which sent an invitation no less than five weeks ago. The second invitation came from the NAIB in Kansas City which was made up mostly of small colleges. The third request for the Blue and White came from the National A. A. U. Committee which held its tournament in Oklahoma City. The final invite was from the Cincinnati Invitational Committee in which Cincinnati won over LaSalle, Xavier and William and Mary.

It might also be of interest to note that the Cats were also rated high on the list for the National (later New York) Invitational Tourney going on this week. Whether the cagers could have done anything in the NIT is a matter of conjecture, however, they certainly would have fared better than Gotham's representatives.

Made It The Hard Way

In the Cat's trip to the National Sportlight, unlike Kentucky, Yale or Illinois, they were forced to play under pressure down to the wire. The three other clubs had received their bids to the tournaments at least a week or two before their seasons closed while the Mainliners had to win over Georgetown and St. Bonaventure's, their last two opponents before they received any tourney invitation. As a result of playing under such terrific pressure and against two clubs who were of top calibre, the Cats suffered two in juries in the persons of Tom Sabol and Joe Hannon. We hope that neither of these injuries are too serious because everyone realizes that Tom and Toad are close to indispensible.

Board Beat

And now to say something about track for a change. It seems that the place has gone so ga-ga over the Cagers' invitation that we've almost overlooked Jumbo Elliott's boys in spikes.

Last Saturday night was a memorable one for the track team since some of the best times of the season were set by Wildcat runners. George Thompson did a tremendous job in the mile, and although he was second to Fred Wilt, his 4:15 clocking was the best in his career. This is the first season that the New Rochelle flash has been specializing in the mile and from what we've seen, next year will see George down to 4:10 or better.

Another best of the season was turned in by the mile relay team which was clocked in 3:21.9. Joe McCreary and Jack Holmes ran the first two legs and put the team in undisputed posession of first. When the baton was passed on to George Guida and anchorman Jim Mc-tory. Lt. Bill Kash of Quantico Marines, ex-Navy star, passed the fading Roden to take third.

Track Story

Joe McCreary ran lead-off in the mile relay and set the pace all the way. Jack Holmes kept it up on the second leg, but it was still a close race. It was close, that is until third man George Guida took off and opened up a fifteen yard swath of daylight between himself and the nearest competitor. This enabled Jim McKenna to bring home the bacon without a doubt and gave the Cat four a well deserved victory. The New York Police Dept. team was second and Morgan State was third.

Mile a Thriller

The mile was the most thrilling event on the card. At the gun Wilt jumped into the lead followed by Thompson. Around and around they went, seven times in all with only inches between them. Going into the eighth and final trip it was still the same story. With about 120 yds. to go, Wilt suddenly put on a terrific sprint, a trick learned from Willie Siykhuis, no doubt. The F. B. I. man was too fast for Thompson then and George was forced to settle for a strong-finishing second.

Next week-end the team splits up, some of the boys going to Cleveland for the Knights of Columbus meet; while the bulk of the squad will remain at home to compete in the Middle Atlantic A. A. U. championships over in the Camden Armory.

The week after that, the 26th, the curtain will fall on the 1949 indoor season as the pick of the squad will journey to Chicago to enter the Daily News Meet.

Outdoor Track Schedule

Apr. 23 and 23—Seton Hall Relays, Newark
Apr. 29 and 30—Penn Relays, Franklin Field
May 4—Seton Hall, Home
May 7—Manhattan, Navy at Annapolis and Line have much scoring and playmaking prowess.

In all, we can readily see that it matters little which of the other three teams our Wildcats draw in the first round of play. However, there is little doubt that at least three of the four teams will be hoping not to draw Kentucky in the first round of play, and who can blame them?

Arizin Story

the Blue-White of Villanova.

Can Arizin Be Stopped?

The big question in the minds of Wildcat partisans is "Will Arizin be stopped?" It seems highly improbable since he has developed so many shots to compliment his jump shot that defenders will be unable to do anything but try to keep him from getting the ball. And if the Villanova set shot man have their eyes in the Garden it will be impossible for the opposition to double team our pride and joy. Only time will tell.

Austin Continues Hold On First By Beating Bks. 1 - 4

Intramurals Have Busy Week as Ten Games Are Played at Alumni Court

Last week was a big week in intramural basketball with 10 games being played in three days—six in the resident loop and four in the day-hop league.

The festivities in the resident loop started Tuesday with Good Counsel taking another trimming for their fourth consecutive setback. Fr. O'Donnell's charges were able to gather only 5 goals as the Dorms. toyed with them to the tune of 37-11. Burly Bill Knecht outscored the entire Good Counsel team by registering 12 markers. The rest of the scoring was evently distributed among the entire Doms Squad. McCarthy with 6 points was high for the losers. Jim Gallen and Joe Barrack refereed.

Alumni Wins

In the second contest, Alumni's juggernaut rolled over Fedigan by a 58-34 count. The smooth working Alumni combine had little trouble in disposing of Fedigan's bid for victory. Frank Buckley led the winners scoring with 18 points on an amazing shooting average of 8 out of 11 from the floor and 2 for 2 at the foul line. Bill Barry and Hal Diot, Alumni's siege guns, contributed 13 and 11 points to the victory. Although scoring only six points, Bobby Oelz was probably the best all-around man on the floor. For the Fedigan five, Ray Pelt had 11 points and Dave Frink and Tom Brennan notched 9 points each to account for most of the losing team's points. Fred Heigl and Ivy Peterson tooted the whistles.

Wednesday night's games had been postponed from the previous Thursday. The fans in the Alumni gym were treated to a double dose of thrills as both games were decided by a lone point. In the opener, the Barracks 1 & 4 "Tom-boys" Falkowski and Flynn led their team to a 52-51 triumph over the Doms. Falkowski, the pivot ace, scored 19 points with Flynn's drive-in goals accounted for 16 of the Barrack's score. Healy of the Doms matched Flynn's offensive effort while Skippy Morrissey's 3 consecutive field goals in the waning seconds gave him a total of 10 for the evening. Becotte scored a like number. Skippy fell short by one goal of pulling the game out of the fire, for the Doms. Ferry DelPurgatorio and Chris Sickler officiated.

Fedigan Edges Bks. 3 & 3

The windup produced anther hair-raiser as Fedigan eked out a 40-39 win over Barracks 2 & 3. From a 20-20 halftime tie, Fedigan pulled away to an 8 point lead only to see the Barracks close the gap to a single point but this one point proved to be the clincher. Dave Frink, Fedigan's rugged forward, ran wild in the first half scoring 16 points to keep his team in the game. He added 7 in a vital stratch drive for a final count of 23. Weber's hook shots produced 10 points for the losers and this was their best effort. The inability of Joe Seaman, Barrack high scorer, to hit consistently hampered the defeated 5 attack. Fred Heigl and Jim Plunkett refereed.

Austin Remains Undefeated

Thursday night's contest featured Mendel's surprising squad who by a 56-45 victory over Barracks 2 & 3 enabled them to remained tied with Alumni for second place. Benny Maskel was again limited in the scoring column but Captain Jack Denuel with 10 and Lenihan with 11 took up the slack in the attack . . . For the Barrack aggregation, Joe Seaman connected for 12 points, all but one in the second canto. Jim Selgarth played a good backboard game and tallied 9 markers. Don Griffin and Tony Russo officiated.

In the evening's finale, Austin Hall conquered a fighting Barracks 1 & 4 crew in a bitterly contested tilt 62-52. It was again a case of too much Lemmer for Austin's hard fighting opponent. Bill bucketed 24 points while little Joey Crossin had 23. The "Tom-boys" Flynn and Falkowski, again led the Barracks offensive but the effort fell short of overcoming Austins Big half time lead. Flynn had 18 and Falkowski 13, and the latter limited Lanky John Farly to 2 field goals throughout the game. Tom Brennan, Freshman ace, and Jack Beardon officiated.

Day Hop League

Tuesday's matinee tilts pitted the C&F Marketeers against Doc Brow'n Bombers with the latter outclassing the Businessmen, 61-27. Jim Rosato led his team's scoring with 15 points and George Kodis, Toddarell and Dorsanereach tabbed 14 in the big victory The losers could never get their attack in gear and Doyle's six points was their best showing.

Glackin's Chem Engineers suffered their first defeat at the hands of the Rolling Roadster's, 51-39. Peppery little Dick Magee's screammer shots led the victor's scoring, accounting for 13 points, while K. Murray had 10. Captain Glackin made a great bid for victory by scoring 16 points and playing an outstanding defensive game. The deciding factor was the seight advantage of the Roadster's. Bill Leighton and Dave Rothman worked both games. On Thursday, Ganley's Bugs swept to their second lopsided victory as Dwyer's Toads fell before the victor's onslaught. Germano, Ganley and Nowicki were the big guns in the victory with 21, 10 and 16 points respectively. O'Brien led the Toads scoring with 9 markers which came after the game had been iced by the winners. Selgarth and Maskel refereed.

The last contestt of the week matched Comerford's Loafers against the Arts Day hops with the win going to the former by a 46-31 score. Playing with only 5 men, the winners outfought the Artsmen under the baske and displayed superior passing to clinch the victory.

Scoring honors for the game went to Deveney and Gallo of the winners who had 18 and 11 respectively. Shane Creamer topped his Arts combine with 14. Jim Selgarth and Bill Klucsarits called the game.

Dan McGrath, NFOCS representative, asked the Council to assist him in the circulation of chance tickets for the raffle the Regional unit is conducting. The members will distribute the books of tickets during religion classes.

The Students Council meetings are still open to all students who may be interested in what their representatives are doing for them.

Program Of Exhibitions Arranged By Librarian

'Neath The Spires

he would half-walk, half-stagger down the road to his self-chosen prison, to his Hell!

The other road, so hard to enter, showed a much different climax. The traveler who had chosen this road had to work to find what lay at the end. But when he reached the top of the hill he found that he had entered a wonderful place. This road turned out to be exactly the opposite of the other. This path has a short stretch of hardship followed by an endless highway of beauty.

There in choosing your path of life look toward the end of the road before you pass the turnstile.

Marking the first use of the show cases in the new Library, Rev. Daniel S. Falvey, O.S.A., Librarian, has arranged for several exhibitions of note.

Ross-Guida Trophies

Beginning yesterday, the Main Lobby show cases were thrown open to display all trophies, medals and awards won by two of Villanova's greatest track athletes, Browning Ross and George Guida. Included in the exhibition are the awards received by them at the Olympic games in London, last summer.

Augustinian School Exhibit

To better acquaint students and the public with the extent of the work of the Order of St. Augustine in the field of education in the U. S. A., a display has been constructed in Seminar Rooms 1, 2, and 3 of the facilities and accomplishments of nine Augustinian-conducted institutions. The exhibit consists of more painted pasteboard models of the buildings and auxiliary structures, set upon a scale model of each campus. Posters, pictures, newspaper clippings, brochures, yearbooks and symbolic scholastic awards serve as a background to the models, illustrating the traditions and activities, and the importance of each unit to the community in which it is located.

Cross-Country Schools

Represented in the Augustinian School exhibit are: Merrimack College, Andover, Mass.; Malvern Prep, Malvern, Pa.; St. Augstine High School, San Diego, Cal.; Villanova Prep, Ojai, Cal.; St. Monica Prep Seminary, Oconomowoc, Wis.; Cascia Hall, Tulsa, Okla., a prep school; St. Thomas High School, Rockford, Ill.; and the Augustinian Academy, Staten Island, N. Y.

The Guida-Ross track trophy exhibit will continue until the Easter recess, while the Augustinian school display will terminate at the end of march.

Senate Library Bill

Significant, stated Fr. Falvey, is a bit of legislation on the Senate floor, Bill S. 130, which will provide for the demonstration of public library service in areas with inadequate library facilities. In effect, the bill will encourage and subsidize county and community libraries. According to a recent editorial in the Gettysburg College newspaper, more future college students will be able to cultivate library study habits while in grade or high school so that when they enter college, students will be better able to use the research facilities of their college libraries.

Vets Insurance Bonus

payments, however, will not be as large as payments this year because they will be based only on one year's accumulation of premiums and interest. The payment this year is based on accumulation and interest covering eight years.

A veteran whose policy has elapsed will receive a check this year but not in future years. The Veterans Administration has announced that it plans to pay dividends to nearly all of those who took policies and held them long enough to qualify for payments. Largest payments, naturally, will go to those who kept policies in force, in converted form, and who carry the maximum of service insurance—$10,000. Holders of elapsed policies, of course, will receive the smallest checks.

Every veteran must apply for his refund. It had been planned to mail checks to all policyholders but so many vets have moved, leaving no new addresses, that it has been decided to have each vet apply through regional offices of VA. A simple application form is planned, providing essential identification, such as name, serial number and a few other facts.

Do Not Apply Now

Due notice will be given to all veterans when to apply. Once payments get under way it will take less than a month to complete the job. In fact, every veteran is expected to get his check within three weeks after the first checks are placed in the mail.

Many veterans have asked how is the amount of dividend figured. All payments will based upon the age of the policyholder, amount of insurance, length of time the policy has been in force, and the type of insurance involved. Also to be considered will be any lapses or reinstatements of a policy. Each account must be checked, which will result in a big amount of work. That is why payments are not really expected to get under way until some time after July 1.

If a veteran wishes, he may let the Veterans' Administration keep the dividend in order to increase the final value of the policy. That dividend, however, will not draw any interest. Dividends also can be used to pay future premiums on policies.

$7,000,000,000 in Fund

Final determination on how much money will be paid out as dividends has not been made. In the National Service Life Insurance fund there is now a total of about $7,000,000,000. Officials of the VA must decide how much of this amount should be kept in the Treasury for future payments to insurance beneficiaries and for other claims. Whatever they decide can safely be spared without weakening the position of the fund will be the amount set aside for dividends on service insurance policies issued during and since World War II.

When to Apply

In the meantime, VA officials ask that no veteran should apply for his dividend at this time. It is emphasized that no applications can be received until the forms are ready for distribution, veterans will be notified through the daily press and through radio news reports.

which had everyone, including the Band and Glee Club, in hysterics.

A special addition to the program was an exhibitio of baton twirling by Richard Boyle, the Band's drum major. The audience was enthralled by the exhibition.

Last Thursday evening, the same program was given at Immaculata College for the Band's third concert of the season. After the concert the president of Immaculata, Monsignor Burns ,thanked the musical units for their performance, and reminded them that they were always welcome at Immaculata. The girls of Immaculata then served refreshments, after which dancing followed.

On March 18th, the musical organizations will travel to Chestnut Hill College for another of their scheduled concerts.

Both concerts were conducted and directed by Rev. Ralph E. Handran, O. S. A., moderator of the Band and Glee Clubs.

Curran & Quinn Win on Split Ticket Vote

Thomas Curran and Robert Quinn, two C & F students, were named as Freshman representatives to the Student Council as a result of the elections held on Monday, March 14. These two men, holding one vote each, will now serve as active members of the Council, in the interest of the Class of 1952.

Tom Curran comes to Villanova from Duquesne High School, Duquesne, Pa. A resident student, he is a regular in the N. R. O. T. C., lives in 205, Barracks, and is a member of the Spanish Club and the Barracks team in the Swimming Club.

Bob Quinn, another resident, whose home is in Bayside, Long Island, N. Y., lives in 318, Barracks. He came to this college as a graduate of Bishop Loughlin High School, New York. Bob is one of the cheerleaders, a member of Turf and Tinsel, Beta Gamma, and also holds membership in the Spanish and Swimming Clubs.

A tally of the results of the election shows that Quinn polled 83 votes, and Curran, 75. Jim Griffin, Quinn's running mate on

Sophs Plan May Hop; Aid Orphans

Last Wednesday the Sophomore class held its second class meeting of the present school year. The meeting, called in order to settle some of the business of the class, was highlighted by plans for a dance and an organization to aid the orphans at St. John's, and refreshments that were "on the house."

An announcement was made by George Schuster, President of the Class, that the Sophomore class had been given approval to go ahead with plans for a dance on May 25. The suggested dance had been discussed earlier by the steering committee and the motion for acceptance of the plan was carried unaminously at the class meeting. May 25 was chosen because it is the eve of Ascension Thursday and will be the final social event of the season.

Bill Creamer told the class of plans by his committee to form an organization in the college to aid St. John's Orphanage. The plan will be handed over to the Student Council, since it is hoped that the organization will be school wide. If the Council does not

Accounting Group To Reorganize; Will Schedule Speakers

Mr. J. J. Linsalata, Accounting instructor, and moderator of the Accounting Honorary Society announced that the society will have a reorganization meeting 2:00 P. M. Wednesday, March 23. Originally initiated in the Fall of 1947 the club had a very active tenure during that school year.

The Accounting Society is a part of the program instituted by the Committee on Education of the Philadelphia Chapter of Certified Accountants, and the objective of the group is to supplement the accounting curricula with talks by men in the field. It hopes to encourage the student in his work, and give an incentive to the student who desires to enter the public accounting field.

An advisory committee was appointed to work directly with the society in presenting various speakers who specialize in topics they feel will be beneficial to the accounting major. The Advisory Committee is made up of prominent men in the Public accounting profession in the Philadelphia area. Partners from the largest accounting firms in the country are serving on this committee at present.

Drama Series Is Initiated By WVIL

The college radio station, WVIL, in an effort to provide programs of interest to the student body as well as provide an outlet for the dramatic talent of Villanova, is sponsoring a series of radio plays. Several plays have been produced to date, and the station plans to have one dramatic presentation weekly.

The first play of this series, the Valiant, was featured a month ago featuring dramatic talents of Belle Masque's Frosh actors and the Jest and Gesture Society of Rosemont. This program was well received and accordingly, the station authorities made plans to run a regular Thursday night drama. Last Thursday was the opening date for this series, and the play presented was entitled, "Erosion."

The station plans to use plays written by its production staff, and several have been prepared for future presentations. Next week's drama will be "The Champ," a tense fight story.

The station is not only broadening its scope to include the dramatic field, but several other programs of interest to the student body are being presented. The station boasts a nightly news program featuring local news and sports, a weekly quiz show, and a variety show every Friday. All shows are geared to please one audience, the students of Villanova, this is the one and only aim of WVIL.

SYMPATHY

The staff of the VILLANOVAN and the student body extend sympathy to Peter Limmani on the death of his mother. Mass was said in the college chapel for the repose of her soul.

NEW YORK TOURNEY ATTRACTS CROWD OF WILDCAT ROOTERS

Last night, over a thousand Villanova rooters were on hand to watch the Villanova team battle Kentucky on the opening night of the NCAA tournament of 1949. The crowd of people backing the Villanova club was composed mostly of students, along with faculty, alumni and friends. It was the first time since 1939, just ten years ago, that Villanova had played in such a tournament.

Tickets for the event had been put on sale one week ago yesterday. By the end of the week all but the dollar seats had been sold There were only a few of those left. The Tuesday evening tickets, for tonight's game, sold very slowly and many of them were still available at the last minute Many of the students could not attend either of the games because of classes which they could not afford to miss.

Student Council Request

The Student Council had requested that Monday and Tuesday of this week be awarded as holidays so that all who wanted could attend the games. The President of the College said in a letter to the students that it would be impossible to grant such a request. The Council had also made plans to charter transportation for the tournament. The plans fell through when it was learned that the holiday would not be granted so that not enough students were interested in using this transportation. Those who attended either shared transportation, or besought various other means.

Fr. Regan Will Conduct 1st CANA Group Sunday

FATHER REGAN, OSA

Rev. Robert E. Regan, O.S.A., M.A., S.T.D., will conduct the first Cana Conference to be held at the College, on next Sunday, March 27th. Father Regan is at present a faculty member of the Augustinian College, Washington, D. C. The Priest-Speaker is well qualified to lead the Cana Conference having had long experience speaking in the field, and being a well-liked and eloquent orator.

The author of several religious articles, Father Regan is credited with the classic works "Professional Secrecy" and "Sex Instruction", the last published in the Catholic Digest. A graduate of Villanova (St. Mary's) in 1930, Father went on to receive his Doctorate in Moral Theology at the Catholic University of America in Washington, D. C.

Students who attended the accelerated course during the summer of '47 will remember Father Regan who lectured on Religion that year.

To Begin at 9:30 A. M.

The Conference will begin at 9:30 with the married students and their wives attending the Holy Sacrifice in the College Chapel. This will be followed by a light breakfast in the college dining room and then the first conference of the day. An opportunity will be given for questioning the priest-speaker, and for general discussion of the answers and other problems. The day will conclude with Benediction and renewal of the marriage vows.

A Cana Conference is not a marriage forum, nor a marriage clinic, but a day of recollection for young

GE 'HOUSE OF MAGIC' SHOW OPEN TO ALL

Paper will be exploded at the Field House here on March 28, when General Electric's "House of Magic" will be presented.

A paper disc is attached to the shaft of a motor and turned faster and faster until, with a startling report, it "explodes" or flies apart. At the instant of the explosion a light flashes, leaving the shawod of the breaking disc on a fluorescent screen.

No Tricks Used

This demonstration, which illustrates the manner in which scientists study such objects as whirling turbine wheels moving at high speeds, is one of many to be presented at the hour-long "House of Magic" show. Rather than a magic show, as its name would indicate, the show resorts to no tricks, presenting merely striking scientific phenomena discovered in General Electric's Research Laboratory at Schenectady, N. Y.

Now in its fourteenth season, the "House of Magic" has been enjoyed by more than 10,000,000 persons, including 2,500,000 at the New York World's Fair alone, and more than 1,200,000 service men and women during the war years. It has been a feature of every major exposition since the Century of Progress in Chicago.

Floyd Gibbons Named Show

The "House of Magic" is the name originally given to the Research Laboratory of the General Electric Company by the late Floyd Gibbons, radio commentator, author, and foreign correspondent. New scientific findings at the Re-

Coats and Ties . . .

Out of the mouths of many Villanovans come growls of dissatisfaction every time an edict concerning coats and ties is sent forth from the powers that be. Arguments that comfort is not served and better work can be done in T-shirts are expounded on all sides. The eternal gripers gleefully add another moan to their growing collections.

A look at the situation from a mature gentleman's point of view can easily dispel any doubt as to worth and necessity of look-like a gentleman. Most of the students at Villanova are not studying to be ditchdiggers whether or not that time honored occupation will ever be come a reality. They hope to become doctors, lawyers, teachers, professional men to whom a good appearance will mean solid profit. Most of the business life of any college graduate centers around connections with other people. Needless to say, it takes little intelligence to realize that a slob has little hope in this world of high-speed competition.

Now is the time to prepare for the heartless world on the outside and every detail that adds to a man's worth to somebody else makes his stock rise proportionately. A tie and a coat may seem to be an overwhelming burden to some, but to a man's employer and colleagues his appearance is an important factor in the man's success.

A coal miner doesn't go to the mine in a tuxedo, neither does he descend into the black in swimming trunks. He has a uniform that is suited to his work. A gentleman has a uniform that suits his work, if he is not dressed for the job he cannot perform his duties to his own best advantage.

W. W. R. B.

Elections . . . . .

The Freshmen elected two councilmen last week after a short campaign by the three parties formed by the six candidates. The men elected are most likely quite fitted for the position of representing their classmates, but nevertheless, classmates who did not have the sense of duty to get out and vote. Some excuses may be given for the Freshmen since they have had little time to act as a unit but their laxity serves as a warning for the other classes who are to hold elections late in April.

Less than 25% of the more than 800 members of the Freshmen class voted in the elections held last week for Student Council representatives. That is an extremely bad showing, but it is expected they will do better for the regular class elections. The point is that no class can have a good election with a low percentage of votes being cast.

Many of the same men who do not trouble themselves to vote for their class officers are the first to begin grumbling that the men in office are not doing their job correctly. These same men should ask themselves if they have done their job correctly.

The only way to get any kind of guarantee of good class government is to vote for the man you think should be capable of leading your class in campus activities. Like the national elections you cannot expect your neighbor to vote for you. He may not agree with you.

The position of class officer is important to the class as a group because in all things the class is represented by the men holding such positions. The future of the class revolves on the quality of the men leading it.

It is important that the members of the various classes realize exactly what their votes mean to them and then possibly we will see the kind of election day turnout which the occasion demands.

The Glory Of War

Countless feet of horse and man
Moving madly, quickly, every way;
Shouts, and screams, and clash of steel,—
And blood! Red blood! Warm blood! I say.

Torn by steel and hoofs men lay;
Others joining them by scores.
More, ripped and crippled, limp away,
And flies feast on dead men's sores.

Noise of battle falls with sun.
Dark'ning field left gray and bare,
Limbs are scattered all around,
Gurgling moans fill the still night air.

Merciful men return to the field.
Lanterns glow on cold gray faces.
Holes are dug and filled with flesh,—
Then crude white crosses, a thousand places.

Dawn comes and swords are crossed.
The red stream flows again!
Each man waiting his turn to be lost

The Nose. . . .

by
Jerry Micallef

We were talking to Clayton Hamilton yesterday. He is the gentleman who wrote the preface for Brian Hooker's English translation of Edmond Rostand's hilarious romantic comedy, "Cyrano de Bergerac." (Nothing like quickly getting to the point.)

Point? That reminds us of a very funny story. While "Foil" Doyle was practicing his fencing yesterday he turned his back on the professor and . . .

As we were saying, we were talking to Mr. Hamilton yesterday; he was giving us some historical background on the show. It seems that "Cyrano" was a big hit when it was first produced, in France (stand back, don't push, there are plenty of tickets yet to be sold!) in 1897. The following year it was produced in New York City with the same success that it had met in France.

Say, is the Editor looking? Since I stuck my "NOSE" in this week I may as well stick my neck out too. I've been told, by an authority who should know, that the price of the tickets will be just one scoot (dollar to C & F students) for public admission and only seventy-five cents for students. I've also been told that "Cyrano de Bergerac" is the funniest dang story that ever hit Broadway (and the Field House). But, of course, I wouldn't know.

To The Ladies

by
Bill Breninghouse

Believe it or not, this humble eight-page gazette has a vast unseen audience. Last week, proof of this fact came to the humble writer of this weekly disquisition in the form of a number of bitter epistles from irate young ladies. It seems that these charming creatures took exception to a recent article called "Career Girls." Some of the comments contained in their letters were very subtle such as: "most egotistical male" from a Sak's salesgirl, "warped mind," "uninformed," "inconsistent" from a couple of college girls, and "old-fashioned" from a budding career girl from out by the Horseshoe Curve. Needless to say, this poor correspondent was cut to the very quick by such uncharitable remarks. They served, however, to strengthen his arguments about women's place being in ye olde homestead.

As far as logic goes these young ladies seemed to have missed the proverbial boat. One of them quoted most learnedly from an essay "An Academy For Women" which is contained in an essay entitled "On Academies," all of which may be found in Daniel Defoe's "Essay on Projects." No one doubts that Defoe could wield a mighty pen in the field of realistic narrative, but his contributions to modern sociology are not too notable. Her colleague in criticism misquoted the author somewhat shamelessly and thinks that men should not be ineligible for dishpan hands.

The young and charming miss from Altoona prefers a career to marriage She doesn't seem to be aware that independence can sometimes be a synonym for loneliness, if it is developed to such a rash extent.

It may be said that this weary scrivener enjoys any comments on his opinions and hopes that the readers may enjoy some comments on these comments. He does not pretend to be the fount from which all knowledge flows (only a little more than half), so he may be wrong (but try to tell him).

To the ladies, shine on in all your beauty. We men would be a sorry lot without you. You inspire every great work, you give men that intangible something that makes them surge upwards into fame and fortune. It has been truly said that behind every great man there is a woman. Yet, be content to stay behind. Don't get out front and pull him up by the nose or leave and take off on your own chariot to fame. You'll find that it's a lot easier to ride in the rumble seat while a man takes the wheel. Most sweet and charming lovelies, it appalls one to think that you would let your femininity waste itself away in a bank or department store. If you want to do something for humanity, find yourself some budding genius (like me) and be his inspiration.

Today, many a man roams about the world, embittered because he has lost his love to some career. You, my lovely ones, can prevent this catastrophe. All you need do is forget careers and keep looking for that genius who needs your inspiration.

Syncopatter

by
Taten & Mayer

It is beginning to look like this boy got on the right team when it came to choosing up sides for our little literary fracas. At first it seemed a little too much to hope for, but it is becoming more apparent every day that jazz is on its way back and bop is headed for a well-deserved place in oblivion.

Just to mention a couple of comeback signs; Danton Walker devoted his entire March 5th column to a story on New Orleans jazz and jazz men, and a few weeks back Time magazine devoted four full pages to the story of Louis Armstrong, which to a large degree is the story of jazz itself. What could be more significant; after all, men like Winston Churchill figure they're red hot when they get four inches in Time and look what old Satchmo' has done.

Tension Easing

Yes, its wonderful to see their names in print again, men like Jack Teagarden, Mugsy Spanier and George Brunis. They lost a little ground during the war and a bit more as a result of the record ban, but the hysteria and tension of those days is easing off now and the boys are on their way back to take over where they left off.

The whole thing started down in New Orleans during the early 1900's and now the cycle is ready to repeat again. They say that this year's Mardi Gras was the greatest wing-ding of them all, and the ever-present jazz music was never better.

All of this indicates that in the near future a lot of good jazz music will be available for public consumption. We most certainly do not advocate your becoming interested for the mere fad of the thing, but at least you will have ample opportunity to hear the stuff and decide whether you like it or not.

Ukuleles And Charleston

Speaking of trends it seems that ukuleles and the Charleston are coming back among the college crowds in California. Where else! Let's hope this sort of thing doesn't get completely out of hand and bring back prohibition and flappers too. I'm still not completely hardened to the "new look."

'Nuff said, so here is Bruce who, I predict, will be the hottest Charleston fan on campus next year, if he can figure a way to keep his beret from jolting loose.

Really, Ro, you must know by now the reason "Deaf" Danton and Time gave mention to Dixieland (somehow that word always reminds me of Dixie cups). They ing anything dead that had a life before its brief candle flickered out.

It remains an insurmountable fact that the only Dixieland that will be remembered has already been written; the rest is repetition. Too bad I don't have space to go into the many write-ups bop has received, but then I suppose that Ro must bring it to our attention when his stuff gets a write-up—it's so seldom.

Tommy Dorsey Not Bad

It has been brought to my attention that one Thomas Dorsey isn't such a bad guy after all. This I admit. When he wants to, 'ol Marse' Tom can produce some mighty sweet music. The only fault lies in that it's all too seldom. If all the wax wasted on some of the dog biscuits that T. D. put out and called music could be salvaged the candle industry would need never worry about raw material. Recently however, Young Tom has come out with another pink platter that should go far. "Where Is The One," which some of you (who read this erudite column to obtain the latest on the price of corn) should have heard by now, is the type of music which Dorsey should produce more often. Smooth, very danceable, soft, balanced—are just a few of the adjectives that can be used in describing this platter in the traditional Dorsey manner.

These next two records may be a bit difficult to obtain but are well worth the effort. "Tiger Rag" by the Benny Goodman trio (Krupa and Wilson) is one of the best Benny has made. A semi-swing type, it is typical of the jazz dominant in the 1930's, and effectively presents the fine musical ability and tastes of the artists. Moving on to the modern era, I should like to note one of Kenton's lesser known but musically superior efforts. "Fugue For Rhythm Section" will prove a bit weird for

Library Additions

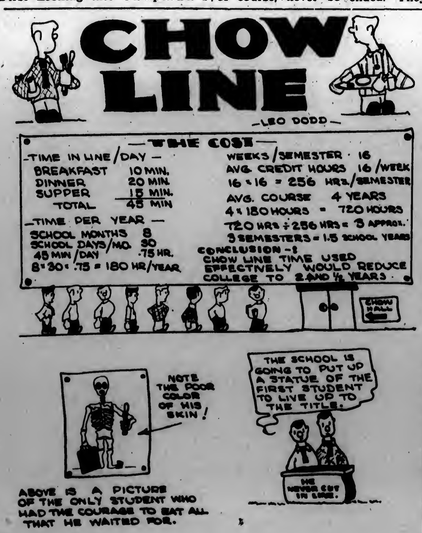
Announcement has been made by the Librarian of the College, Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O.S.A., of the recent acquisition of two very valuable sets of great interest to scholars. These works are the Acta Sanctorum of the Bollandists, and the critical edition of the works of the Fathers of the Church known as the Corpus Scriptorum Ecclesiasticorum Latinorum, or, more familiarly, the C. S. E. L. The Acta Sanctorum is complete to date in sixty-five quarto volumes; the Corpus comprises about sixty-eight volumes, of which the Library has acquired at the present writing forty-eight. Other volumes will be imported as they become available. Both these sets are quite difficult to obtain in this country, and, it is hardly necessary to add, rather costly. It is hoped that the books will be placed at the disposal of scholars as quickly as the mechanics of accessioning have been completed.

Valuable Addition

These priceless books, comprising in all one hundred and thirteen volumes, constitute one of the most valuable additions to the Library in recent years. The College owes this very welcome increment to its fast-growing collection to the interest and generosity of the Father Provincial of the Province of St. Thomas, Very Rev. Mortimer A. Sullivan, O.S.A. It will be recalled that it was Father Sullivan who purchased, a few years ago, the splendid Van Devanter collection. Such evidences of his great devotion to the Library need hardly be mentioned, however, since it is in no small measure due to the vision and courage of this Provincial that the recent vast building program was crowned by the construction of Villanova's beautiful Library.

It is no doubt true that there will be few college men of the scholastic attainments necessary to read these great Latin works. They are primarily for the use of scholars. Yet, even for the average collegian, there is something to be gained by knowing about these erudite works and the men of genius and great faith who have made them. The stories of books and their makers are generally thought to be dull and uninteresting, as heavy and dusty as the tomes themselves. Actually, as any well-informed bookman can testify, the history of books is packed with and spine-tingling thrills. Every-drama, human interest, heroism one who has read seriously knows, of course, the exhilaration of a startling and delightful discovery in reading. The thoughts of all such favored souls are expressed in the familiar lines of Keats' "On First Looking into Chapman's Homer." The emotions of all great is a new planet, or bacillus, a gold mine or a diamond field, are paralleled by the experiences of the great pioneers in the history of books. What must have been the emotions of Cardinal Mai as he held in his hands the palimpsest of a lost oration of Cicero; of Tischendorf when he found among the manuscripts of the eastern monastery the faded sheets of the ancient text of the Holy Scripture; of Champollion when he first solved the mysterious hieroglyphics of the Rosetta Stone; of Colonel Ralph Isham (to mention a very recent example) when he discovered the missing manuscripts of Johnson and Boswell?

Colorful History



The Acta Santorum is one of the world's greatest achievements in book-making. Its history represents a cross-section of the history of the last three centuries. Its makers were ensnared in the tangled lines of political, ecclesiastical and Jesuit history. The patient, self-sacrificing, unworldly scholars who assembled it were engulfed in the angry storms of the world they had forgotten. They were persecuted, disgraced, impoverished, attacked. They were even accused by their enemies before the tribunal of the Inquisition.

The idea of making a collection of original sources concerning the lives of the Saints was first conceived by the Belgian Jesuit, Heribert Rosweyde, in the early years of the seventeenth century. His project limited itself to the documents available in Belgian libraries. His successors, John van Boland (from whom the work takes its name) and the latter's two great disciples, Godfrey Henschen and Daniel Papebroch, greatly expanded the content of the work to include all documents anywhere to be found which would have bearing on the lives of the Saints. Manuscripts were dispatched to them all over the Christian world. Copyists were sent to transcribe the precious treasures of ancient libraries. All this food of material was studied, translated, and collated; critical evaluations were composed, and the whole work was printed, proofread, published and distributed to libraries throughout the world.

The "Acta Sanctorum" has been enthusiastically received by scholars of all faiths. It is regarded as an indispensable adjunct of a library of learning. It can readily be understood that the collection, in addition to its value for the student of hagiography, is also a mine of erudition regarding the times in which the Saints lived. The labors of the Bollandists will, of course, never be ended. They will always be engaged in the task of correcting, revising and reprinting. Also—and this is a wonderful prospect to envisage—there will always be more and more Saints. It will be ever their task and privilege to preserve for future generations the earthly careers of the elect of God.

Texts of Church Fathers

The other collection secured recently by the Library can be described more briefly. Its history is not nearly so long and its purpose is more limited in scope. The Corpus Scriptorum Ecclesiasticorum Latinorum was begun in 1866 by the Imperial Academy of Science of Vienna. It has for its aim the publication of critical texts of the Latin Church Fathers up to the seventh century. By the careful examination of all available texts and manuscripts, the editor hope to achieve a text which will be final and definitive. They have not always succeeded in this and some volumes are inferior to others, but as a whole it is a work of genuine scholarship which must be consulted by every patrologist. At Villanova its principal value will be for those studying the works of St. Augustine. For them it is an indispensable tool of learning.

Inside Opera

by
Bill Carroll

Last week a young lady bitterly complained about the treatment I was administering to Opera. In answering her objections I must admit it will be exceedingly difficult to keep within the limits ordained by Christian charity.

Dear "Culture Gulper":

Your unkind reference to the mentality of the Villanovan staff raises some doubt in our minds about a critic who purportedly enjoys such things as: A dying consumptive singing high C, (last act of Traviata). Or a tenor beaten senseless, yet still managing to sing with much vigor, (Gioconda). What about the last act of Carmen when Don Jose runs through about forty bars with a knife in his groin? Consider if you will the mental balance of a person who sympathizes with such nonsense as Wagner's inimitable Fafner, the singing dragon.

If opera is, as you content, one-third (?) (how did you arrive at that figure?—Binomial Theorem?) "of the fundamental cornerstone of classical music"; (kindly tell me how such a pure art as classical music can have as a substanial part of it's base an element of questionable morality? I refer you to the last two Metropolitan performances at the Academy of Music in Philadephia.

One of the last sentences in your letter (of sorts) provided the boys with quite a chuckle Do you recall this gem of literary art: "Hardly can one expect to understand the intricate moods of modern music (Jazz, bop, swing)) without the fundamental cornerstone of classical music, one third of which is opera." If you think that any sober, rational creature of God could support such an assertion as this I suggest that you band all of your cohorts together (the two of you) and investigate the mental accumen and musical knowledge of the "bop", and "swing" composers and devotees. Your investigation should reveal a literary background acquired by reading the backs of cereal boxes at breakfast and a musical knowledge gained through a searching study of a select number of "song-sheets"

Opera is an alien art that has been grafted onto our society, supported and not comprehended by the upper strata of that society, patronized and understood by a minority of a lower (considerably) economic level of society and completely misunderstood and unpatronized by the vast majority which falls between the extremes.

I suggest that you hock your program reading flashlight (a sine qua non for opera lovers) and your "baby binoculars" and spend the money for another pair of "bobby-sox".

THE 5TH COLUMN

By JACK METZER and MIKE NOWLAN

Bing Crosby isn't the only celebrity on a transcribed radio broadcast. Joe Hannon became a member of that select group last week on the Matt Guokas' program. During the interview, Joe made it known that he's interested in sticking in the basketball field and would enjoy coaching a high school team. Well—if Joe can make as good a coach as player he'd be a worthwhile addition to any school's athletic department. The most amazing part of the interview was Joe's great modesty with regard to his own ability on the court, while spending most of his time praising the court antics of Paul Arizin.

After the two exhibitions at the Garden a large number of the student body was heard to remark that it's almost as cheap to drive to New York to see a double-header than to see a single game at Villanova.

It's been said often that the fellow with the gift of gab will go far and that his popularity will increase proportionally with his colorful yapping Last week, we came across a little verse which we dedicate to all the men who have taken or will take a course in Heat, Power, Economics, or Logic.

His thoughts were slow, his words were few,
And never formed to glisten.
But he was joy to all the profs—
You should have heard him listen.

No sooner do we write that Blue Barron will provide the music for the Junior Prom than someone comes up with the info that Tony Pastor, saxophonist de-luxe and former Artie Shaw warbler back in the old "Begin the Beguine" band, is also being considered. From what we remember of Tony's capers on the bandstand, his "show stuff" is good but there's not enough of it. If the boys on the committee can persuade Mr. Pastor to cut down the noveties and bebop, we think he'd be an improvement over Blue Barron whose imitation of Sammy Kaye's style (or is it the other way 'round) detracts from his popularity, especially among those who like a band with a style of its own.

The Patty's Nite frolic brought out all the good Irishmen like O'Recupito and McRaffa, while we noted a few foreigners like Kenney and Dougherty. Who was the instigator who wore an orange tie?

Phil Sentner, the man who wanted Vlaude Thornhill for the prom has decided not to fillibuster inasmuch as the maestro's lovely chirper, Fran Warren, has left the fold. No one would deny that Miss Warren would add to the decorations.

Looks as if the administrative corns have stopped aching for we note that the snow fences have been takn down.

Yesterday a letter was posted on the bulletin board in Mendel Hall which impressed us very much. It was a letter from the Student Council president of the University of Washington, in Seattle . . . it was a letter of hospitality extended to the students of Villanova who were lucky enough to be able to go to the coast . . . that is provided that our Basketball team won its contest in New York.

Last week, we were a little surprised to see such a poor turnout for the Freshman elections for councilmen. Of a class of over eight hundred men only one hundred and ninety turned out. We thought that the freshmen had a lot more spirit than that. The two winners of this election were Bob Quinn and Tom Curran both C&P men. That school must really turn out the hustlers.

Speaking of the Student Council we hear that only the shopping for a video set remains to be done since it was voted to buy it. The east wing of Austin is being worked on day and night and even Sundays radying it for the warm May days when baseball will be the order of the day for the tele-viewers.

Oh! Oh! Signs of Spring—snow fences coming down. Usually the signal for a two-day blizzard.

Belle Masque will be unveiling some of Villanova's finest fencers when they present Cyrano de Bergerac. Gene Kelly is looking to his laurels.

Fire engines have been buzzing around and through the campus lately. The fellows have been getting a complex; seems they can't strike a match without a siren sounding and four trucks from the Bryn Mawr Company pulling us. Luckily the blaze in the Commerce and Finance building was confined to a waste paper basket. Now we know why there is a rule against smoking in the building.

Editorial staff of the paper got together for a trip up to the big town for the tournament. They forgot all headlines but one they would like to see. You guessed it.

Quarterly exams are looming in the dim dark future. We should worry but with that Eastern vacation following so closely one has to make plans. Time certainly does fly; it seems that only yesterday we were registering for this veil of tears we call the Spring Term.

Town Talk

by Phillip Richard

The Philadelphia Orchestra is of prime interest this week. On Friday, Saturday and Monday evenings at the Academy of Music this world famous orchestra will present a Wagner program, with Helen Traubel as soloist. This is one of the few appearances of Miss Traubel as a soloist and one of her rare appearances in Philadelphia, in other than performances with the Metropolitan Opera.

Wagner's Tristan and Isolde

The Prelude to Tristan and Isolde will serve as the beginning work, followed by Isolde's Aria "Erfurst du meini Schmach," from the same opera. This is the aria in which Isolde calls down a terrible curse of death on Tristan and herself, but which later turns into the love which followed them.

Traubel to Appear With Symphany

Mr. Ormandy will play the popular excerpts from Die Meistersinger von Nurnberg which includes the Prelude to Act III, The "Dance of the Apprentices" and the "Entrance of the Masteringers." This is the best of the orchestral portions of Wagner's great comic opera. In closing, the orchestra and Miss Traubel will perform excerpts from the mighty music drama Die Gotterdammerung. The excerpts will include Siegfried's Rhine Journey, Siegfried's Death and Funeral Music, and with the soloist, the Brunnhilde Immolation and closing scene.

Hedgerow Group Opens 27th season

The Hedgerow theatre at Moylan, Pa., has announced the opening of its 27th consecutive season of repertory on Friday evening, April 1, with a performance of "The Mistress of the Inn." The plan calls for a play every Wednesday and Saturday throughout the spring and summer with a total of 18 three of them new to the Hedgerow Repertory.

And now to something that has been on my mind for some time. It is not the policy of this column to criticize other columns of this newspaper, but it is felt that it is time to speak out against the pseudo-intelligence of the writer of "Inside Opera." The author of this column, as a opera lover and as a lover of fine music in general, finds this column in bad taste and lacking in knowledge of the proper approach to opera. If the writer dislikes opera so much that he has to criticize it, why then does he go. Does he really enjoy opera? Does he do it out of some mistaken idea of Penance? I will offer no logical arguments against him for it would be merely unread material however, if the writer wishes to discuss his differences we shall carry on the "battle" in any way he sees fit.

Bussolari Society Holds Special Feature Program

Last Wednesday the Bussolari International Affairs Society presented the second program in its current affairs series over WVIL. Tom Sullivan was moderator of the discussion and provided a brief history of the developments leading to negotiation of the pact. Alice Mitchell and Julie Boyd, members of the Bryn Mawr International Relations Club, were the guests of the Bussolari Society who participated in the discussion with Bill Nary and Don Smith of Villanova.

The program brought forth a variety of opinions voiced by the speakers. The group considered three aspects of the pact: 1) purpose and structure, 2) effectiveness, and 3) alternatives. Bill Nary stated the probable structure of the pact and cited protective security and economic reconstruction as the two chief purposes. It was brought out by Don Smith that non-signatory nations would read between the lines and interpret the pact in a different light. Much streets was placed upon the disadvantages of the pact during the discussion.

Alice Mitchell favored working directly through the United Nations She felt that the North Atlantic Alliance would inevitably supersede that organization. Julie Boyd mentioned that the World Federalists declined to give full support to the pact.

Swarthmore College will be the setting for the next Model Security Council conference tomorrow night. Villanova, representing Cuba on the Security Council, plans to offer one of two resolutions to be submitted on the topic, "What Action Should Be Taken on the Indonesian Question?" Eighteen colleges are expected to be represented at the meeting. Don Smith, Bill Nary, Roger Hanafin and Joe Tyszkiewicz will constitute the Villanova delegation.

Monday night, March 21st, the Bussolari Society was host to an executive meeting of the International Relations Clubs of the Catholic Colleges in the Philadelphia area. Plans were made for the regional meeting scheduled for the second week in May.

The Bussolari Society, formerly the International Relations Club, derives its name from a medieval historian, John Bussolari. His name should be familiar to all students of history. A brief biography will appear in this newspaper next week.

Industrial Club Hears Union Man

Last Monday, the Industrial Relations Club held its monthly business meeting in the C & F Auditorium, at 4:30 P. M., which was followed by a half-hour speech delivered by Mr. Jack Miller, of the Hotel, Restaurant, Building Service and Maintenance Workers' Union, Local 356, C.I.O.

Mr. Miller spoke on a few of the problems confronting the union in the Philadelphia area. He was introduced by Rev. William J. Gordon, O.S.A., moderator of the club. The union executive spoke on how the Bankers' Security Corp. of Philadelphia controls the major hotels in that city, and how, when a union goes on strike in a hotel while a union in another keeps working, the management just sends its customers to the non-striking hotel.

"Fringe Issues"

He brought out the matter of "fringe issues", an item which he believes does not receive worthwhile consideration in the negotiations of present-day controls. The "fringer issues" are those concerning hospital plans, accident insurance, etc. Mr. Miller said that many negotiations are slow to recognize the importance of "fringe issues", but steps are gradually being taken in their direction, and the ultimate goal to be achieved is the foundation of an institution to take care of the injured and offended worker. Such an institution would be supported jointly by the union and management.

After the talk the floor was thrown open for discussion.

Before the talk, the regular business of the IRC was taken care of, and committees were selected by President Joseph Shannon to make preparations for the trip to Washington on April 26th., and for the IRC Smoker in May.

The Washington trip committee consists of Bill McCann, Art Hilderley and Ed Heiskell. Ed Zerbe, Jack Wooley, and Jim Neylon compose the Smoker committee.

Mr. Arnold H. Weber, Personnel Director of R.C.A., will give a talk on "Job Appointments and Personnel Policies of R.C.A." at the next meeting on March 24th. The time and place of this meeting will be posted on the bulletin boards.

STUDENTS TO MEET SENIOR ENGINEERING SOCIETY MEMBERS

Thirty-five members of Villanova's student branch of the A. S. M. E. have been invited to attend a meeting of the senior branch of the society at the Engineers' Club, at 13th and Spruce streets, Phila., on the evening of March 25.

The annual affair is a tradition of the society, in which a senior member sponsors a student member for the evening. In this way, the oldsters welcome the new blood into the society. The meeting also furnishes the graduating Mechanicals a chance to meet some of the foremost men in the profession.

The usual plan for the evening consists of dinner at 6 P. M., followed by entertainment while the group is still seated. The students then retire with their sponsors for informal chats. Afterwards, the group returns to the main hall where the speeches for the evening are presented.

In the past, many well known engineers have spoken at these occasions. Last year, the main speaker for the affair was the then national president of the society, Mr. E. G. Bailey. Speakers for the affair this year are to be announced at a later date.

Physicists Hold Elections

The Physics Club held its annual election on March 8, installing Joseph Tyszkiewicz as president, John Kane, vice-president, and Harry Doukakis, secretary.

New members were received and plans for future activities were discussed. These will include field trips to industries of interest to physicists, movies and lectures by prominent men in the field of science. The club also plans to undertake some scientific project which will decide upon in future meetings.

In the past, the Physics Club has held field trips to Princeton and Camden, New Jersey, plants of the Radio Corporation of America, and has also played a major role in constructing the Villanova Radio Station. New members are cordially invited to join the Physics Club at the next meeting which will take place on Monday, March 28.

One of the most interesting demonstrations is that featuring the electric eye. With its aid, an electric lamp is turned on by striking a match. And an electric eye attached to a loudspeaker makes it possible to "hear" light, the changes in light being heard as changes in sound.

Sound by Light Beam

In combination with a special lamp, music is sent across the room on a beam of light and heard at the opposite side of the room. This experiment of carrying the human voice or music on a beam of light has been performed in Schenectady for a distance of more than 25 miles. Similar experiments have been conducted to carry sound from an airplane to the earth, and from a moving train to a station platform.

Outlook Bright As Spring Football Practise Begins

By Neal Fahy

Over 70 candidates striving for positions on the 1949 edition of the Villanova football team, turned out last Monday afternoon as Spring practice was begun. A wealth of material, including 23 lettermen of last year's great squad and a host of Freshmen potentials, greeted the Wildcats new grid coach Jim Leonard.

Due to weather conditions, the team was forced to spend most of their time working out in the field house during the latter part of last week Since most of the time was spent doing calisthenics and going over plays, no great handicap was forced on the team which must ready themselves for two practice scrimmage sessions with other schools soon.

Much Expected

While a year or two of exemption is usually readily granted to a new coach of a team, such is not the case with Mr. Leonard as student optimists are already talking about an undefeated eleven for next year. With the material and schedule on hand, such a thing is hardly impossible but, in all fairness to the coach, it must be said that many things point against it.

At any rate, with the main bulk of last year's Harbor Bowl victors still around, Villanovans may look forward to another good team. In every position except quarterback and center, the Wildcats are at least two-deep with good experienced men. Even at the quarter slot there is dependable Steve Romanik, one of the slickest passers in these parts, who is expected to lead the 'Cats.

Sophomores Neil O'Boyle and Dom Pendino, of yet unproven ability under fire, are expected to come through plenty, however, and perhaps steal the starting position from Mr Defense, whose offensive ability has been overshadowed only because he was on the same team with Andy Gordon and Billy Doherty.

Line Will Be Lighter

Although graduation is taking two great centers, Milt Komarnicki and Syl Yanelli, John Witsch and Joe Howanski will still be around. Witsch, who makes up for his size with plenty of drive and hustle, has several times in the past taken the starting assignment away from the bigger Komarnicki. A lot is expected from Howanski who saw some action last season.

Seven of the eight guards on last year's team are returning, with George Pavalko, Ted Oroski, and Ed Lannigan expected to retain their first-string positions. They will be pushed plenty by Jim Smith, Ed Blaso, Bob Wills and Mike Daamko plus five freshmen. It would not surprise anyone if Nick Llotta, of the freshman squad last season, turned out to be the top guard on the varsity next fall. Against the Boston College Frosh, Llotta blocked three punts in 60 minutes. This feat can be fully appreciated when one considers that the varsity did not block one punt in eleven games last year.

Ferry, Riley Gone

While two fine tackles, Bob Riley and Lou Ferry are leaving, John Sandusky, Vince O'Sullivan, and Stan Pandze are still around. Mr. Leonard also has four good ends left in Dan Brown, Jack McConville, John Bogan and Rudy Yeager even though Ed Berrang and Frank Kane have joined the pros. Al Schmid, the punter and defensive halfback, is expected to play a lot of end this coming season, too.

Halfbacks are a dime-a-dozen down at the stadium these days. Some of the better of them that are still around are Micky Frinzi, Joe Rogers, John Geppi, Phil Snyder, John Moran and Jim Caufield.

There are no worries for the coaches about the fullback slot either. Not with Ralph Pasquariello, Pete D'Alonzo and Tom Clavin still rarin' to bust lines wide open.

CAGERS GET AWARDS FOR OUTSTANDING SEASON BY ALUMNI

By Harry Range

Last Wednesday night the Varsity basketball team was the guest of the College and the Alumni Association at a dinner given in the guest's dining hall in Mendel Hall.

The dinner was given as a testimonial for the outstanding performance of the team during the past season and was attended by Rev. Edward B. McKee, O.S.A., Bill Connelly, Coach Al Severance, Manager John Kennedy and the twelve varsity players.

Awards Made

Mainly the purpose of the affair was the awarding of the Alumni trophy to Paul Arizin and the presentation of mementos to the other varsity cagers in recognition of their capture of the NCAA District II championship. Paul's award was a gold plaque and was presented to him for being the most valuable player on the team. He was chosen by a vote of his teammates, and the Alumni Association who were the donors of the prize.

Each member of the team was presented with an ash tray with a figure of a basketball player, and a small plaque with the words "NCAA DISTRIST II" and the school seal with a stone inside of it Those who received the trophies were Paul Arizin, Brooks Ricca, Tom Sabol, Shy Raiken, Joe Hannon, Captain Leo Wolf, Tom Dolan, John Weglicki, Perry Del Purgatorio, Jack Crossin, Sid Gecker, and John Holland.

After the presentation, a few words were spoken by Father McKee, Coach Severance, and Captain Leo Wolf. Both Severance and Wolf thanked the team for their fine work while Father McKee added his wishes for good luck in the "NCAA DISTRICT II" and the sions of the NIT, and expressed the hope that the team would be on its way to Seattle on Wednesday morning.

Team at Hotel Paramount

With the conclusion of the banquet, an itinerary was given to each member of the squad which gave all the details of the trip to New York. The cagers have been staying at the Hotel Paramount on 46th Street and since their arrival last Saturday have been kept to a prearranged schedule Each morning the squad has attended Mass at St. Patrick's Cathedral, at 9 o'clock held practice at the New York Athletic Club on Saturday and Sunday. and attended the finals of the NIT and the Hockey games at the Garden.

With a win last night, the team would play the winner of the Illinois-Yale game, tonight, and then take off for Seattle on the 9 A. M. plane tomorrow.

Paul Arizin receives the plaque naming him the most valuable player of the team awarded by the Villanova Alumni Association from William Connelly, Athletic Director, as Coach Al Severance and Fr. Edward B. McKee look on.

Villanova Trackmen Place First At Camden Meet

Thompson, McKenna, Score Double Wins; Set Three Meet Records. Freshmen Relay Team Beats Varsity

Sparked by the double wins of George Thompson and Jim McKenna, Villanova's track squad grabbed its second consecutive Middle Atlantic AAU championship in the seventh annual indor meet of the Camden Board of Education in Convention Hall on Saturday night.

Sweeping the field in the 50-yard dash and winning four other events, the Wildcats decisively won with 34¼ points as compared with 27 taken by the second place Collegiate Track and Field Club. Only in two events, the 35-pound weight throw and the high hurdles, did Villanova fail to place.

Break Three Records

McKenna was the first Wildcat to break a meet record as he coasted home in 1:17.2 in the 600 to slice 1/10 of a second off the old mark set by Browning Ross in 1947. Two yards behind him in the final was teammate Joe McCreary who had previously won his heat in 1:18.

In the following race, George Thompson easily won the mile in meet record time of 4:26.5 with Dave Williams, former Villanovan, trailing him and placing second. Thompson, who runs only as fast as he has to, had done a 4:15 mile in Baltimore last week. He was, however, saving himself for the two mile grind which he took later on in the evening in ten minutes flat.

Thompson, who like McKenna sometimes runs for the NYAC, waited until the final lap to take the lead, content to let Dick Cornfield set the early pace of a 65 second quarter and a 2:13 half. At the three-quarter mark, Williams led in 3:22, but then George turned on the speed and left the rest of the field far behind. Thompson eclipsed the former record of 4:27.6 which Olympian Herman Goffberg established last year.

McKenna Cops Dash

The speedy McKenna took his second race of the evening in the 50-yard dash coming home in 5.5 seconds. Right behind him were 'Cats Tom Irish and Jack Holmes. The starting gate invented by Ben V. Ogden was used in this event which was so dominated by Villanovans.

Because of the large field entered, four heats had to be run to determine the qualifiers, and four Wildcats came in first: Joe McCreary in 5.4, Tom Irish in 5.5, McKenna in 5.6, and Holmes in 5.9. In the semi-finals, only McCreary was eliminated as Villanova swept the field in the final

Freshmen Upset Varsity

In one of the night's big surprises, Villanova's Freshmen mile relay team beat the Varsity. The Frosh club, composed of John Furlinger, Bob Conjak, Bill Curran, and Pete Simmigan, romped home in 3:36.7 while the varsity was 3 seconds behind This also set a new meet mark. The old one was established last year by Villanova in 3:40.2.

In the high jump, Bob O'Neil tied for fourth place with a 6 foot 1 inch leap. This meet brought to a close a very successful indoor season for Villanova trackmen.

Suffering a reversal in form over the week-end, Olympian George Guida relinquished two titles he won last year in the Cleveland K. of C. Meet and the Chicago Daily News Games.

In the last race he will ever run for Villanova, Galloping George, perhaps the most renown athlete ever to represent this college, started and finished fifth in the Chicago 600 won by his old nemesis Frank Fox of Seton Hall.

Friday night in Cleveland, Guida was edged at the tape by Mal Whitfield, Olympic 800-meter Champion. The time was 1:12.7 which Guida has bettered numerous times Contrary to his usual pattern of starting off the season relatively slower, Guida this year started off with a bang, copping 5 out of 6 victories in early races.

Last year he won the Chicago 600 in the sizzling time of 1:10.8, three-fifths of a second off the world record for this distance. Although he lost his last two races this year, the season can certainly be considered a success for him since he did set a World's Record for the 600-yard distance in the Buermeyer run at the NYAC games earlier in the year.

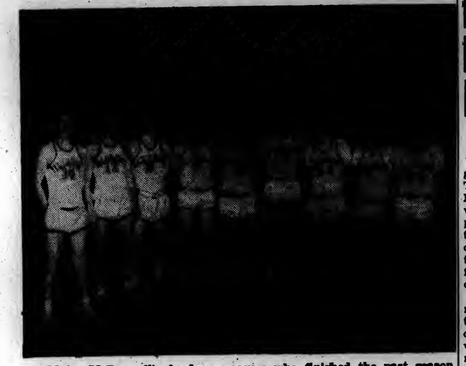
INVITATION TO NCAA; ARIZIN'S 85 POINTS; HIGHLIGHT SEASON

When Coach Al Severance started the 1948-49 season last December, he expected to have a strong unit which, he predicted, would give the opponents plenty of trouble. He had high hopes, but wouldn't go so far as to predict that the Main Liners would win 22 of 25 games and would be picked to represent District II in the NCAA playoffs.

The friendly Wildcat tutor knew he had the foundation for a good team because he had every member of last season's squad returning, which would up as the top scoring club in Villanova history with a 66-point average in 24 games. The Wildcats won 15 of 24 with an all-sophomore squad, and Al said that some of the losses could be charged to lack of experience when the going got tough.

Only Losses on Road

Severance's pupils learned their lessons the hard way, and except for three nights they ranked as honor students. The trio of losses came on a mid-western road swing as Duquesne and then Loyola of Chicago routed Villanova. The Main Liners lagged in the closing minutes to lose to Bowling Green.



Villanova's starting unit most of the season has been Paul Arizin, center; Brooks Ricca, Tom Sabol, forwards; Leo Wolf, Joe Hannan, guards. Sherwin Raiken, John Weglicki, Perry Del Purgatorio and Jack Crossin have been the main reserves. All listed above are juniors.

There's no question but that much of Villanova's success came through Paul Arizin's powerful point-getting. He played brilliantly throughout the year. But when the defense set to halt Arizin, Ricca and Sabol generally found the scoring mark. Hannan and Wolf were dangerous from the outside and riddled zone defenses with their set shots.

Sabol & Hannan Hurt

In the closing stages of the season, Sabol and Hannan ranked with Arizin as Villanova's best scorers. When Tom and Joe sat out the season's finale with Georgetown because of injuries, "Shy" Raiken and John Weglicki stepped in and helped the Wildcats clinch an NCAA tourney berth.

Villanova faces some through competition in the tourney, but Wildcat followers are confident that they will turn in creditable performances in carrying the banner in District II.

Major McDonnell's freshman cagers who finished the past season with a 19-2 record. Standing in the usual order are Griggs, Stewart, J. McGuire, Blezins, Scotese, Brennan, N. McGuire, Behrens, and Gillen.

Austin Five Undefeated Alumni Retains Second

By Mondschein Inc. & Klucsarits

Austin Hal stretched their winning skein to 11 straight last week with an easy 47-31 win over Fedigan. Fr. Kemme's squad has not lost since dropped a decision in the opening game of the first half. Their latest triumph was accomplished without the service of Capt. Joe Doris and Joe Crossin while John Farley played only a few minute of the second half. Austin was hard-pressed in the early stages of the game by Fedigan's tall quintet and at the end of the first five minutes the score stood 5-4 in favor of the losers. After a time out, Jim Gallen of last year's championship team took personal charge of the game with his accurate set-shooting. This combined with the under-the-basket play of Brennan and the usual fine shooting of ace Bill Lemmer shot Austin into a 30-10 halftime lead. At the start of the second half Fedigan played their best ball of the evening to pull within 8 points at the halfway mark. Jim Gallen re-entered the game at this point and broke Fedigan's attack with 3 successive set shots to insure Austin's victory. Jim's set shots gave him a total of 14 points to cop scoring honors, while Bill Lemmer also had 11. Almost everyone else on Austin's team broke into the scoring column. Dave Frink was the only consistent performer of the losers as he notched 17 points, 11 of them coming in the second-half rally. Tony Russo and G. Mondschein officiated.

Alumni stayed within striking distance of the league leading Austin combine walloping an outclassed Brks. 2&3 outfit 67-38. Setting the pace for Alumni in the first-half was Bill Barry, outstanding forward who swished the nets for 17 markers. Most of these came as a result of fast breaks With the Barracks left far upcourt. The winners displayed superior passing in setting up the plays and their constant running and height advantage left no doubt of the outcome from the beginning of the game. In the second half, the Barracks double teamed on Barry to hold him scoreless but Hal Diot and Bobby Oelz took over the scoring chores to win going away. Barry's 17 points were high followed by Oelz and Buckley with 12 each and Diot, Cullen and Jamison all scored 8. Wills and Weber of the Barracks led their team with 8 points apiece while Roache and Neiyes tabbed 7 each Jim Selgrath did his best work under the basket for the losing side. Jack Denuel and Perry Del PUurgatorio refereed. No games were played Thurs. because of the St. Patrick's Day dance.

Day Hop League

The Arts Day Hops forced Moran's Invaders into overtime but dropped their third straight contest in the day—hop loop by a 29-25 score. Both teams dispayed a cautious offense and as a result the scoring was limited throughout the game. Losing by a halftime count of 13-11, the Invaders rallied in the third quarter for a 19-19 tie. This deadlocked was repeated at the end of the regulation contest at 25 all. In overtime, two quick goals by Coyle and O'Brien gave the Invaders the win. High honor for the game went to Surich of the Invaders who garnered 13 markers while Shane Creamer again led his losing outfit with 8 points while brother Mike contributed 7. Bob McGee and Bill Young officiated.

In the second matinee feature the Rolling Roadsters proved too strong for Doc Brown's Bombers dumping the latter by a 63-40 count. With Zajek leading the way, the Roadsters hel da 24-13 halftime advantage which they quickly expanded after the intermission. Zajek had 9 field goals which was scored from every and all angles plus 5 out of 7 foul attempts for a commendable afternoon's total of 23 points. McGee's set shots produced 11 points while Mullen matched this outfit put to insure the victory Dorsaneo was the only bright spot in the oss as the tall splendid center canned 18 points on 8 goals and 2 out of three foul tries. Jim Selgrath and Jake Moran officiated.

Only one contest was played Thurs. afternoon in which the Marketeers beat the Chem Majors 35-20. The battle for cellar was won by the Chem Majors who have now absorbed their third straight trimming. The winners were led in the scoring column by Parsons who collected 13 points and Curley who made 10. DiOrthario and Longo had 9 and 8 respectively for the losers while Capt Griffin had 3 to account for all their points. Both teams played erratic ball and the victors control of the backboards was the major factor in their win.

Tonight's games, goth the resident league and day hop league have been shifted to Wednesday because of the N. C. A. A. tournament. The Day Hop schedule follows:

DAY HOPS BLANK MENDEL IN WATER POLO GAME 1-0

By TED FERNANDEZ

The Day Hop water polo squad gained its second victory last Thursday at the expense of the Mendel Hallmen. The Mendeleers were an inexperienced group who put up a dynamic fight, holding the Day-Hops to one point throughout the entire fracas. From start to finish the action was fast and furious, with passes galore, topped off by many dazzling interceptions.

In the first quarter there were no points scored by either side, but the battle was interesting and exciting from the defensive point of view. Dick Lenahan sparked the residents in the protection field by snaring many passes intended for the Day Hop front wall. Time and again the wiry defensemen recovered fumbles after rugged contact. Joe Deister, the Mendel forward, was awarded a heart-breaking decision as he sped down the pool and layed up a 4-point which was called illegal.

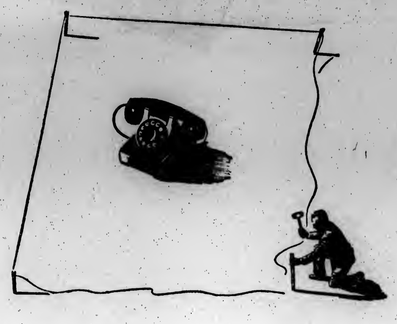
Reek Sole Scorer

Edmond Reek of the Day Hops proved to be the game's only scorer as he whipped down through an entanglement of flesh and racked up one point, after three and one-half minutes of the second quarter. This was probably the most active period of the game as the Day Hops showed plenty of teamwork and aquatic ability. Following this tally by Reek, the Mendelmen put on their own show, passing snappily, diving, battling to make up their deficit. They managed to have control of the ball almost to the very end of the first half. Joe Gallen turned in an amazing preformance in the ball-handling and trickery departments for the Mendel team, along with fast moving Bill McKnight who proved his ability to hang onto the ball.

The third quarter was a battle for complete mastery by the Day Hops, but the Mendel defense tightened again and would not budge. Coming into their own on the offense, the Mendelmen turned on a powerful barrage, but the Day Hops displayed equal defensive capabilities to hold the residents in check for the remainder of the tussle.

Cella Outstanding

Vince Cella played an outstanding ball game in both the defensive and offensive fields, doing much of the passing for the Day Hops. The skirmish was hot aplenty in this frame with a great deal of mass pile-ups, and, the Day Hop squad, being the heavier of the teams, came out fairly successful in these scrimmages and none the worse for wear after most of them.



The final canto was crammed with action and excitement as both teams scored illegally. The first illegal score came when Dick Ferry of the Day Hops passed to Jake Moran. Jake slid under the surface and came up at the goal. The ball slid out of his grasp at the final lunge and the referee called it null and void. To the very end the fight gained momentum, and at the very end came the sensational offensive work of the Mendeleers. Down in scoring corner Dick Lenahan grabbed a fumble and lunged for the edge of the pool. Tom Daly, of the Hops, threw a strangle-hold on Lenahan, which definitely prevented the campusmen from scoring. Howie Eisler stole the ball and was forced to drop it out of bounds. Lenahan received the inbounds pass from Joe Deister and leaped up to the rim in a final attempt to score. This terrific try failed when the time ran out and the Day Hops were victorious by the tune of 1-0.

Arts Men Have Forum Lecture

The second in a series of forum lectures currently being sponsored by Delta Pi Mu, the Arts Fraternity, was delivered last Tuesday evening in the Library Seminar by Mr. John McEnerney, Assistant Professor of Modern Languages.

Using the play of Shakespeare as his source of information, Mr. McEnerney spoke on "The Strange Character of Julius Caesar." His conclusions were that the great Roman Emperor was motivated not only by ambition, as is prevalently believed, but also by his iron will and determination.

The next lecture of the forum, as announced Bill Fleming, President of the Fraternity, will be given by Dr. Edward McGrath, also of the Modern Language Department. It is scheduled for Wednesday, April 6, at 7:30 in the Library Seminar. Dr. McGrath's topic has not as yet been announced.

Survey Shows Your Chances After Graduation Day

A feature writer for the "Daily Texan" summarizes a recent survey made by a national magazine among college graduates. 9,065 degree-holders considered representative were questioned. If you get a degree and go to work, according to the survey, here is what you can expect:

You will become a professional man or an executive with a salary of about $4,500 a year.

You will own your own home which will have six rooms and a monthly rental value of $84. You will marry only once and will not become divorced. You will plan to have three children but will probably have only two.

You will read most of the best sellers, both fiction and non-fiction. You will also read from one to four magazines, concentrating on the "Reader's Digest," "Life," "Time" and the "Saturday Evening Post."

You will attend church fairly regularly and belong to about three other organizations. But the other organizations will have to do without you at about half of their meetings.

You will engage in about five political activities which includes reading about politics in newspapers and magazines and discussing it with your friends. You will keep up with local civic activities and take an active part in the civic affairs of your community. You will also keep up with national and international developments, but your active status in politics will probably be confined to voting.

Interestingly enough, you will not arbitrarily identify yourself with any political party but will vote according to the issue in any given election.

You will have only slightly less than four hours a day to spend in spare time activities. Most of that time will be taken up by reading or visiting friends. You will rarely ever go to a night club for entertainment.

In the matter of attitudes, you will believe that personal integrity of conduct and continuous searching for truth are the most important goals in life, and you will believe less and less that the greatest satisfaction in life comes from financial success, influence, or prestige.

the Collegiate Party received 61 votes, and Bud Conklin, Curran's G. O. P. partner, drew 54. The Campus Party candidates, Jim Gallagher and "Tex" Houston, polled 59 and 57 votes respectively.

An examination of these results will show that a total of 390 votes were cast between the polling booths in Mendel and C & F. Since each member of the Class was entitled to two votes, it is evident that only 190 Freshman exercised their right and duty to vote in these elections. There are approximately 335 members in the Class of 1952, and a simple computations shows that less than one-quarter of the men eligible used their franchise.

It is generally conceded by all concerned that this election was a weak display of school spirit, and that the general attitude of the Class members in this regard must improve if the present Freshman Class is to accomplish anything during their ensuing years at Villanova.

Elk's Club Site For Celebration

Anthony J. Guiotta, President of the Spanish Club, has requested that all the members of the committee for Cervantes Day meet on Thursday at 2:00 in Room 206 C & F.

The Cervantes Day celebration, it has been announced, will be held in the Elk's Club in Norristown on April 30. Since attendance to this affair is limited to members of the Club, Fr. Lozano, moderator, has requested that any who wish to join do so immediately, and that all old members retain their active status by keeping their dues paid up to date.

The Cervantes Day affair is the biggest social affair of the year for the club and is held to honor the great Spanish writer. An essay contest is also conducted in conjunction with the fete.

Stepping out of my field a bit—it seems that the pre-war Villanova conducted music seminars for further appreciation of the classics. A suggestion or two could help bring them back and I'm sure the students would appreciate it. How's about it?

Junior Week Preparations Proceed; Prom Plans Made

Name Bands Contacted; Continuous Music

Mike Marshall, Chairman of Junior Week, has disclosed that the latest plans for the annual festivities of the Junior Class are progressing rapidly.

Ted Doyle, Chairman of the Junior Prom, announced that Tony Pastor, chosen by popular demand over Blue Barron, Buddy Williams, Ted Weems, and others, is the final choice for the dance. A confirmation of the contract is expected within a few days, and the committee is making arrangements to provide for continuous dancing all evening.

The theme of the Prom has not as yet been announced by the Decorations Committee, and, according to all indications, will remain secret until May 6th, the night of the Prom. However, the committee has intimated that the planned decorations will change the ordinarily prosaic Field House into a veritable wonderland to greet the Class of '50.

Due to the expected demand for tickets, they will be available to Juniors only for several days before the general sale begins.

Other chairmen who are expected to make final reports soon on the remaining festivities of Junior Week are: Dick Ruane of the Mothers' Day Committee, W. Dietrich and Bill Leighton of the Dinner - Dance Committee, Jack

Cana Conference Held Sunday For Married Couples

A day of recollection was held at Villanova last Sunday, March 27, for all married students and their wives. The conferences were conducted by Rev. Robert E. Regan, O.S.A., M.A., S.T.D., member of the faculty of Augustinian College, Washington, D C.

Approximately 110 couples registered at the Information Booth in Mendel Hall, between 9 o'clock and 9:30 A. M. They then proceeded to St. Thomas Monastery to hear Mass, after which a light breakfast was served in the College cafeteria. Following the breakfast, the couples gathered in the Amphitheatre, 215 Mendel, for the first of two conferences. The talks reviewed the life of a man and his wife from a practical, intellectual and religious viewpoint.

President Gives Talk

At 2:30 P. M., the couples returned to 215 Mendel for the third conference of the day where they heard an address by the College President, Very. Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A. After the President's talk, the couples received literature on "Catholic Principles on Sex Instruction" and various pamphlets illuminating the phases of family life.

After this conference, the couples

FACULTY DISCUSSES FAMOUS WORKS AT QUARTERLY MEETING

On Monday evening, March 21st., the Faculty Colloquy for the discussion of great books held its third meeting of the academic year. The meeting, which was held in the Faculty Room in Mendel Hall, was attended by a mixed group of the Faculty, lay and clerical, representing the various departments of the college. Thespians of Villanova's Belle Masque and Rosemont's Jest and Gesture Society will take to the footlights in the Field House next Sunday opening at their first public performance of Edmond Rostand's "Cyrano De Bergerac". Previous to Sunday there will be several dress rehearsals and one complete performance given for the seminary students of St. Mary's Hall.

Many old faces and a host of new one will be seen on the Belle Masque stage. The female lead will be filled by Miss Nancy Glacken, a newcomer to Villanova footlights. Ted Doyle will play the title role of Cyrano supported by Jeanne Goode, Katherine Tennis, Kathleen Rowan, Virginia Sullivan, Caroline Enloe, Myria Ramierez Dorothy Kelley, R. Resnick, R. Zande, J. Malaie, J. Gray, W. Breninghouse, R. Hanafin, R. Quinn, C. Fleming, A. Scarcelli, J. Applegate, W. Rademacher, W. Fleming, J. Kelly, J. Murphy, J. Micallef, H. Reckner, R. Lauman, N. Wolfe, W. Many Scene Changes

The set for this production was designed with versatility and utility in mind. Many of the props used in the various scenes appear again under different guise. With the number of scene changes that the show requires it was necessary to take such measures as having entire sets flown from the rafters, and

NFCCS Pushes Student Relief Drive

The Student Relief is now in its third week and the NFCCS urges all to push the sale of the tickets distributed to all students. The cause is more than worthy of the effort and expenditure made. Also the prizes are worth winning. Leading the parade of prizes is a 1949 Plymouth or $1700 in cash. Second prize is the latest in television sets, the Philco 16. $500 cash is the third prize with ten awards of $100 each making up the fourth through 14th prizes. The last five prizes are of $50 each. Sellers of the winning prizes will receive cash also. Two hundred dollars will go to the seller of the tickets which is drawn for the Plymouth, while $50 dollars will go to the sellers of the next two winning tickets. Cash also will be awarded to sellers of the tickets drawn for the remaining fifteen prizes.

Poll Shows Reading Habits Of Campus

Recently a poll was taken amongst the resident students of the college to determine the nature of the reading habits of the men. More specifically, the pollsters were interested in the reading habits of the student in the field of periodical literature. The students were cooperative; the information received was interesting and perhaps significant.

Twenty-one periodicals—an arbitrary number—were listed on the poll sheet and the polled were asked to indicate which of these he read. He was then asked to indicate which was his favorite periodical, and which was his favorite Catholic periodical. (The periodicals were mixed—at random—Catholic and popular.) These are some of the results:

LIFE took first place. 81% claimed they read it and 27.9% said it was their favorite. The READER'S DIGEST was second with 61% reading it and 14.4% claiming it as their favorite. From this point it is a little more difficult to assay the exact position of the periodicals. For example, 55% read COLLIER'S but only 3.9% say it is their favorite, whereas 48.2% read TIME but 13.5% have it listed as favorite. Even more extreme is the case of the POST. 38.1% chose it as a favorite but 24% proclaimed it their favorite. 52.5% read LOOK but a mere 1.5% say that it is their favorite.

Concerning Catholic periodicals,

Council Convenes In Busy Meeting

Last Wednesday evening, the Student Council held its regular bi-weekly in Room 215 Mendel with President Tom Sullivan presiding.

Reports were made by the chairmen of the various standing committees and accepted as read. Ed Krieg distributed copies of he new constitution to the members present. The constitution is to be studied before action will be taken on it at the next meeting.

Joe Hennessey, Chairman of the Social Affairs Committee, made his report on the St. Patrick's Day dance held March 17. A slight loss was incurred because of the small attendance which was attributed to the proximity of the date to the NCAA basketball games in New York.

It was voted that a letter should be addressed to the proprietor of the drug store at the corner of Spring Mill road and Lancaster Pike concerning the selling of literature considered to be obscene. A suggestion was made that a list be made by which the proprietor could set his buying policy.

The council was asked to investigate the possibility of having the

ACCOUNTANTS ELECT; HEAR C.P.A. TRAINER

Last Wednesday afternoon the Accounting Honorary Society held its first regular meeting of the school year. Incumbent Treasurer Charles Whitaker presided at the meeting and conducted the elections held for new officers. At that time Mr. Joseph J. Linsalata, Moderator announced that Mr. Ralph E. Ondes would address the group tomorrow in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium at 2:00 P. M.

Elected president of the society was the former secretary, Edward Situla, a Senior 11 who helped to organize the group when it originated in the fall of 1947. Mr. Situla was honored in the "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities" earlier this year and has been actively engaged in many campus organizations.

Other officers elected were Peter Mangini, Vice President, Joseph Dugan, Secretary, Harry Postupack, Treasurer, and Joseph Shannon, Librarian. More than 75 men attended the meeting for the elections.

Passion Sunday

My dear Men of Villanova:

April the third is Passion Sunday. It is also the fiftieth anniversary of the ordination to the priesthood of Pope Pius XII.

On the thirteenth of July 1917 Our Lady made her third Apparation at Fatima. On that occasion the Blessed Mother said: " . . . Many will be martyred, the Holy Father will have to suffer much; several nations will be wiped out . . . "

When we consider the persecution of the Church in Yugoslavia, Poland, Hungary, Russia, the Far East and elsewhere it is very apparent that Our Lady's prediction is being fulfilled in the person of the present Holy Father. Pius, you will recall, was consecrated a bishop on the day of the first Apparation at Fatima in 1917.

The Vicar of Christ has indeed suffered much in the ten years that he has been pope. In this transition period in which a new epoch is being born Pius XII directs the hearts and the minds of the Faithful to the Crucified Christ. To that end the Pope grants to all priests the privilege of saying two Masses on Passion Sunday, April the third. The second Mass will be offered "to expiate the crimes of the enemies of God." Turning to the laity the Pope continues: "let them pray and beseech God with greater fervor, and let them all receive Holy Communion."

You the men of Villanova are strongly urged to heed this apostolic exhortation. Only men of deep religious faith can accept the papal challenge. Be prepared to offer up with the priest on Passion Sunday the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass and to participate with him in the reception of the Holy Eucharist in expiation for "the criminal impiety that contaminates our times."

Asking God to bless you now and always, I am Sincerely yours in Christ,

REV. EDWIN THOMAS GRIMES, O.S.A. College Chaplain

Note: The 8:20 Mass on Passion Sunday will be said in College Chapel for the Intention of the Pope.

Spring Has Sprung

Spring officially arrived at Villanova as it did all over the East at 5:49 P. M. Sunday. The arrival of Spring doesn't usually rate a spot in the editorial column but we find it hard to ignore.

Without a doubt, Spring is the most beautiful season of the year at Villanova, the campus being peculiarly suited to show off the wares of the gentle season. The flowers, trees, and lawns are at their best during the transition from bitter cold to torrid heat, and best of all we are here to appreciate the spectacle.

Two Springs here bring to mind the quiet, warm evenings with the long shadows . . . the sound of bat on ball in those after-dinner softball games . . . the soft breezes which tantalize you from the open window . . . the pastel green of the panorama which surrounds us . . . the taunting call of the automobiles on the pike . . . "By" Saam's voice sonorously calling out the balls and strikes from the radio up the corridor . . . Dayhops spending the hour between classes stretched out under a lazy sun . . . The far-away look in the eyes of half a class while a professor completes vainly with the cajoling whispers from the outside . . . the stern stone of the Monastery being charmed by the ballerina-like tulips which bow at its feet . . . and the Angelus rung at the quiet hour so full of meaning and so much a part of the atmosphere which entrances everyone.

All of those things mentioned, and more, are the reasons we couldn't ignore the arrival of Spring. It would be the same as turning your back on a gracious lady who has just smiled hello.

Well, Lent is about half over and Easter is getting close. Easter is, it is true, a time for fun and rejoicing, but it was not originated to be an excuse for action that is otherwise illegal. Just as we can't infringe upon any of the restrictive laws of the state on a national holiday, neither should our conduct become sinful on a church holiday.

A holiday from the ordinary humdrum routine of everyday life is not a holiday from the magnificent eye of the Almighty. The only Church laws are suspended on Easter are those of the Lenten fast. The common belief that any Holyday or holiday is nothing but an excuse for reckless conduct is one of the major causes for the long lines of accidents listed in the newspaper, and for the long lines of penitents outside the confessional the following days.

Perhaps even some of the voluntary Lenten Fasts might be retained after this anniversary of the Resurrection. For instance we know an individual who gave up liquor for Lent, and has gained health, weight, thereby, a better job, family unity, and has, therefore, decided to continue the sacrifice even after the Lenten season is over (sounds like an Alcoholics Anonymous pamphlet, doesn't it?).

If your personal Lenten Fast, has done you other good than spiritual satisfaction, you might, for your own benefit, make it a part of your daily life. The main thing to keep in mind, though, when Easter comes, is that we may give up our Lenten sacrifice, but we may not lapse into new vices, and that Easter is not a license to renew our old ones which were never really licit even while we have gained grace by denying ourselves of them.

Let us, then, when Easter comes remember our Christian upbringing and follow closely the dictates of morality, as we have during the Lenten season.

Oscar Twomp was a slave to the jackpot quiz shows. Every night he would sit by his radio and telephone, munching peanut brittle, as the parade of quiz shows took to the air. He had every mystery melody, mystery quotation, and mystery voice down pat, not to mention mesdames Hush, Blush, and Gush. All he needed was a ring on the phone to become rich and famous. With one ear glued to the radio and another to the phone in the next room, he was ready for anything.

"Jingle Bells" was being played by the band, unseasonably perhaps, but well. Then, it happened! The phone rang lustily and Oscar jumped with excitement, swallowing about a square foot of peanut brittle as he did so. With trembling hands he picked up the phone. Before he had a chance to utter a sound, a big, boisterous voice, accented with an assinine chuckle, greeted him and told him to identify the song being played. As soon as our hero did that the laughing boy on the end of the line had the mystery tune played. This piece of music sounded like the Star Spangled Banner played backwards on a one-stringed ukelele. Oscar correctly identified the song as "Egg Foo Yung and Fried Salami," an Ethiopian folk melody. The bubbling master of ceremonies almost collapsed with pseudo-excitement. He gaily asked all about Oscar's private life and after reading the list of prizes lost his voice, leaving Oscar free.

The "beginning had begun," more was yet to come. After clearing out relatives and friends who wanted to horn in on his prizes, Oscar had to have his phone taken out so he could sleep nights. Reporters had to be dealt with; this being accomplished with a twelve-gauge shotgun. Then, then the prizes begin to arrive.

A genuine African elephant and a tribe of Ubangis was the first gift. After these came a set of ivory crotchet needles and fifty cases of chicken gumbo soup. Oscar gave the elephant to the kid next door and fed the soup to the Ubangis, and was just starting to crotchet a nifty little doily when a truck pulled up to the door with a load of fertilizer. This made a nice pile for the children to play in on rainy days. And so it continued; there were tons of eggshells, four dozen bottles of water from the Pacific Ocean (a sentimental touch) four million one-and-a-half cent stamps, all cancelled.

Oscar Twomp had reached his zenith. Telegrams, cards and letters came from bill collectors all over the world. His name was a household word. Children's mouths were washed out with Carbollo acid for repeating it. Jealous contestants burned his house down and he made the headlines again. Never had he expected such success in life and as he sat in his straight-jacket while the nurse fed him peanut brittle he wondered why he was so lucky.

Returning to the era of swords, cloaks and noses (big ones, that is) with the Belle Masque production of Cyrano.

April 3rd, 4th and 5th

Belle Masque's annual spring production will be placed before the audience at the Field House April 3rd., 4th., and 5th. In this production the Brian Hooker translation will be used, which is probably the best of the current ones.

Ted (The Nose) Doyle will play the part of Cyrano, and is having trouble keeping his sword out of the way of his nose. This nose will be the center of all attraction. The big question is what holds it up? Some say he pulled his own nose until it reached its present size, others have said it is held in place by a wire from his plumed hat.

Ragueneau, the splendid handler of poetry and pastry, will be dramatically portrayed by John Paul Kelly, Esq. Between his too, too dominant wife, his attempts at writing poetry (?), and his imbibing friends, he has a difficult time keeping his mental balance.

Balcony Scene

In true style, Rostund uses the balcony scene. But instead of just two protaganists, he uses three. Roxanne, played by Nancy Glacken is the girl on the balcony with Cyrano and Christian De Neuvillette, Bill Fleming, playing this part. Roxanne is being courted by Christian in boldly form but by Cyrano in spirit.

From this point things move over battle fields and cloister gardens to the ending which will be your pleasure to witness. Sorry, that's all we can tell you at this time. Come and see for yourself.

Letters To The Editor

An Open Letter to the Class of '52

Gentlemen:

Recently I was honored by being elected one of the two freshmen representatives to the Student Council. I would like to take this opportunity to thank Emil Mika and all those upper-classmen who donated their time and energies in the guarding and counting of the election ballots. I would also like to extend my gratitude to Bill Shilling, Tom Pasha, and Dick Keating, who worked unceasingly for my election, and finally, as well as most important, to all those who voted, whether for me or not. The important thing is to vote.

If you have any complaints or corrections, as I'm sure many of you have, I would appreciate your contacting me at the Barracks, Room 318, or in care of P. O. Box 861. Only by knowing what you want done will I be able to attempt to correct it.

Sincerely yours,
BOB QUINN

Dear Sir:

I got my Villanovan the first thing Tuesday I could, after class, because I like a column which I think is very good but I am probably prejudiced towards it and only think it is good because I like it, but maybe that is the same thing, anyhow. But this column which I think is good is called TRIVIA, but it wasn't in the VILLANOVAN and I was wondering why it wasn't? and I figure he might have been dethroned and by that term I mean figuratively or perhaps he quit due to pressure from above and by that I don't mean atmospheric.

Is there any chance of this column coming back or did the writer die, because I think this column is one of the best I ever read and it is concise, which makes it very much appreciated by guys like me, whom don't read a real lot? If this column is not soon recovened, or something, I will have to ask you to cancel my subscription which as you know has some time to run, out. My doctor told me I should read more because reading is less glare than television where I lost my 20-20 vision and TRIVIA is the only reading I know that is on as high an intellectual plane as television anyway.

I hope this letter will do some good, but inconsequently.

Sincerely,
NOM DAY

Dear Sirs:

As a Villanova student's wife I had occasion to read your paper. I must say unfortunately! For I read for a second time the ravings of a child trying to appear as though he had the mentality of a College student. I refer to Master Carroll's column "Inside Opera!" Surely, there are enough intelligent students on the staff to whom this column could be given who would even if they did not like Opera, report the assignment intelligently.

I have done some newspaper and magazine writing myself and have yet to see anyone insult even a ghost written letter such as Master Carroll has done in his last column.

TRIVIA

by

I never thought Leo'd ever pull anything like that. I don't think he told anybody he was going to do it before he told us down at the Fle Shop today, because you could see everybody was pretty surprised about it.

We've got a pretty good pinochle crowd down there, Leo, Eddie, myself, and once in a while Al and a couple of others. I guess it really started a couple terms back when Leo and myself used to play two-handed pinochle and sometimes a little honeymoon bridge between classes. He brought Eddie in one day and then a little later on I brought in Mike and Al and after a while we had Lou and Monk in to make it seven. We got away from bridge and now it's strictly pinochle. Usually three of us are free at the same time and once in a while a couple others of us cut and have a five-handed game. We coudn't do that much lately though because things are getting a little tighter generally. You can see hat all around.

Well, Leo and I just about started the thing and that's why I can't figure him out and why he said that today. He's really something with a deck of cards. He was having a good day today, bidding everything and making everything. Mike and Lou and Eddie and I were just about sitting in although I did have one good hand, thirty seven diamonds. I had a cold thirty-three spades too, 'til I led my ace and found Leo sitting with six against me and I went down one.

Leo couldn't do anything wrong today, two card catches, trump breaks, and I was feeling good just watching him enjoy himself. And you could see he was enjoying himself, up 'til that last hand.

Eddie dealt and Mike and Leo and I played the hand. Mike opened and I raised to thirty-three which I had cold, the run, queens, pinochle, seven pieces of trump and three way. I could see Leo counting and frowning and pretty soon he came out with a forty. I couldn't see a raise, naturally, so I passed and Leo laid the hand down. The kitty gave him aces and the roundhouse in spades. I picked up the cards and started to shuffle for another hand because we all had another hour and then Leo got up and started to put his coat on. I asked him was he in another hand and he said he didn't think so, and then I asked him did he have a class. He said no but he had a free hour and he thought he'd go up to the library and do a little studying and he walked away.

I don't know, I never thought he'd pull a stunt like that. Eddie said he heard he just got engaged and maybe that had something to do with it. Well, it doesn't make any difference to me because we still have six of us left and I guess we can get along. But I never thought Leo'd ever do any thing like that and I don't think he should have. You don't go around pulling something like that right off the bat.

Extra Curricula??

The whole affair started as the result of an innocent bit of advice given him by one of his teachers. Horatio Lumpy was a better-than-average highschool student and an avid participant in extracurricular affairs. When the time came for him for him to leave for college, the words of his old prof rang sharply through his mind, "Get into some activities, lad; don't spend all your time on studies."

Lumpy made quite an impression his first day at college. From a new slouch hat to green suede shoes he was every inch the ideal freshman. Well fortified with a new pipe, which tasted a bit like old varnish, our hero waded through registration and began to settle himself in his new environment.

After the first week, Lump decided it was time to start joining some activities. First he picked the dramatic society; they grabbed him up as they needed a body for the opening act of a murder mystery. Then in rapid order came the glee club, the newspaper, the radio station, the yearbook staff, the poetry club, the rifle team, a fraternity or two, plus a few more. This, thought Lumpy, should give ole Horatio a well rounded education. In the meantime, he was attending classes.

It didn't take the school long to realize that here was a talented genius whose capabilities were as yet unfathomed. In fact, there was hardly an organization on the campus that was not graced by Lumpy's presence. Our boy began to fall behind a bit in his studies, but as he said, what good is an education without some well integrated social life. Now there was another thing which bothered him; the girls he met at various dances kept inviting him out to other functions. "How can I refuse?" smiled Lump, "They can't help themselves."

Before long his engagements began to conflict; the rifle team needed him to clean up shells on the same night he was to hand out programs for the glee club concert. He took cuts in order to keep his job, and exams were coming up. Why worry, good marks came easy to Lump; didn't he have the second highest honors in highschool.

The weeks went by, and now with his college education behind him, Lump has lots of time for his extra activities.

Jazz has a new medium—television. I discovered this new medium for the propagation of culture last Saturday night, and the cause —pink shirts. Our laundry, foul denizen of evil, was a bit late returning my only white shirt, leaving me no choice but to wear a lovely pink creation. I tried and tried to get a date, I even called Rosemont, but it seems that all the women had read Breninghouse's article on pink shirts and looked on me with abhorence. Even my mother refused to go out with me unless I took a bath. I decided to end it all and watch television. I tuned in just in time to see a pack of Old Golds do a sprightly dance to show how fresh they are; as I am not a lover of ballet I tuned to another station and was rewarded with some of the most miserable music played since my drums broke. Wanting to see how the other half lived, I continued to listen and finally found that I was watching Eddie Condon's Jazz Show which could have been good if they didn't play Dixieland. There was a redeeming feature in the performance of one musician. I shall now go way out on a limb and predict that this lad will go far—he's rhythm personified, but calls himself Buddy Rich.

Buddy Rich—Tops

When one thinks of the drummers of recent years, immediately such names as Krupa, Manne, Tough, and Catlett come to mind, and deservedly so. Gene for his big-band performance and showmanship, Shelly for his unique style and work with Kenton, Dave for his versatility, and Sid for his steady beat. But for just pure talent, Buddy Rich walks off with my box tops. There's hardly anything in the line of rhythm and percussion that he can't do, in addition to playing terrific drums he also sings and dances. He's practically a floor show by himself.

When it comes to solo work it's pretty hard to beat this tall lad. If any of you remember a record he made wih Tommy Dorsey a few years ago by the name of "Not So Quiet Please," you'll remember a really torrid drum takeoff. At a dance in town last year I saw Buddy do it in person—but with one arm in a cast and double pedals on the bass drum. Speaking of bass drums, which too often are used only to produce a steady thud, Buddy does a routine on them that would make even Gene Kelly envious. It's a solo in which he uses only two bass drums, working them with the foot pedals. Anything that comes after this is strictly an anticlimax!

If you too have nothing but pink shirts and feel that you can sit through some dixieland, tune in to Eddie Condon's Show some Saturday night and watch this boy do his stuff. And now for Ro Mayer who collects all of Wild Bill Davidson's clinkers.

Jazz Comeback

Now that Jazz music seems to be on its way back, perhaps the day is just around the corner when

Inside Opera

by
Bill Carroll

In the past few weeks this column has been responsible for providing an unconscienable source of pain for opera lovers. Members of the Deems Taylor chapter of the Verdi Fan Club have made several nocturnal visitations to my quarters in hopes of being witness to a delightful scene that would feature my head spilling its' contents out of a little hole that the members intend to provide.

Protecting my bodily weal from these nefarious people is a newly acquired friend who runs about answering to the name Drumgold Lewis. I had the good fortune of meeting Mr. Lewis at the Academy of Music. The two of us were doing public penance by exposing ourselves to one of Wagner's "Ring" operas. The opera was cleverly entitled "Gotterdamerring". Literally translated it means (?). Then again you might callit (?).

It seems Drumgold had been forced to attend this performance by his wife. She won the tickets and a cut glass coat hanger at the last meting of her bridge club.

When the curtain went up for the first act Drumgold started—I could tell that this was his first opera. His interest was at a high pitch, his eyes quickly and somewhat excitedly swept across the magnificent pagentry indigenous to opera staging. Having encompassed all there was to see, he directed his attention to the music. Unfortunately, he was disappointed. The singing dealt the death blow to friend Drumgold. He almost fept when he realized it was not being sung in English.

The story was a mystery and the activities of the participants proved to be anything but enlightening. The music failed to arouse brother Lewis and it wasn't long before the singing began to annoy him. After the first act he was a picture of boredom and disappointment.

In hopes of discovering the story behind the action on stage he imprudently invested one half of an inflated American dollar in a libretto. Delighted with his new gain he hastened back to his seat to uncover the plot. The poor soul almost slipped off the seat when he discovered that the libretto was written in German. His face surely could have won for him the dubious distinction of being "Mr. Frustration" of 1949.

The performance ran about four painful hours. Mr. Lewis was experiencing a minimum amount of strain since he was asleep for the best part of the time. He would awaken periodically and make inquiry as to how much longer the opera had to run. I kept him posted on the time. During the last act he was shoken out of his stupor by a loud play on the precuasion instruments and much clamour on stage. Mr. Lewis correctly surmized that the opera was breathing it's last. To verify his contention he asked if it was about to end. Just for laughs I replied that we had another hour to go. Unknown to me, Mr. Lewis had long since reached the end of his rope. The thought of having to spend another hour in that seat was intolerable. His remarkable restraint broke down and as he stalked out of the theatre, he conveyed in rather colorful language his tragic impression of opera.

Bolt the windows Drumgold! they're on the fire escape!

The FIFTH COLUMN

By JACK METZGER and MIKE NOWLAN

What a week!!! — After that trip to New York we are led to believe that the Indians were overpaid for Manhattan Island. Just to keep in the spirit of things we persuaded Pete Gallagher to park his car in front of the "Villanova Restaurant" on 46th St. Everything would have been O.K. if we had won the first game, but the proprietor changed the name to Kentucky and we spent an hour looking for the jallopy. We were amazed to see Joe Smercak on Broadway admiring the local architecture but we can't be sure that he ever got to the game.

After the game we dropped into the H. & H. for a snack, and what an ordeal! All we wanted was a glass of mik. We put a nickel in the slot, and all we ever got was a big black look from a big black man who poked his head out of a hole in the wall and asked us what we wanted. By this time we were so tired pushing all the buttons in the vicinity that we finally settled for an old cup cake with somebody's thumbprint on it.

Over at the table next to ours we admired the two lovely ladies and their dashing escorts—one a man with three days' growth of beard. It was bad enough when he put on his coonskin cap to leave, but when he picked up his sword and walked out we went into hysterics and didn't stop until Leo Wolf came over and asked Nowlan to souber up.

Rudy Swanson spent Monday night in a phone booth and managed to see Tuesday's game without having to climb the twenty flights of stairs to the peanut gallery where the rest of the nuts from Villanova were watching the game. Tom Montani, Bon Nardic, Jack McConville, and Jack White had some of the more choice seats—only a half mile up.

Everybody has been switching to Columbia lately. Too bad the Bulletin Forum did. It's hard to figure uot why any one would prefer three hours of discussion to a good basketball game. But, that's life. The local Louisville, Ky., radio station carried both double-headers from the Garden. Only in Philadelphia can you see all sports event from the outlying parts of the country, excepting for the home teams. No other metropolis can make that statement.

Despite Monday's defeat most of the fellows were cutting up on Tuesday—in fact, some were overcut. We checked the cut list on Wednesday and even Pinochle 120 had its cutties.

Question of the Week? Who drove the editorial staff of the Villanovan up to the game Monday? It was hard to keep on the road with Villanova students passing on both sides. The "Villanovan" sticker on the back window informed many drivers as to who had just weaved in front of them, following the path of a stray electron.

John B. McHugh has been spending his leisure hours coaching West Catholic "fours" down on the Schuylkill.

ohn Bauman is delighted over having a real soap dispenser in the C&F washroom these days. He wants to know "wot hoppened" to get it.

It only took a couple of spring days for the baseball aspirants to break out the old wood. Now is the time to let you dayhops in on the biggest scoop of the season. A softball intramural dayhop league will be formed shortly if enough teams can be gotten together. Give Fr. Dunne your team lists.

Any resemblance to Frank Buckley as an intramural referee is purely because there wasn't nyone else to ref.

Talk is going on that we'll play Kentucky in a regular season basketball game next year. Remember you heard it here first.

If any of you read the Sports Page (no, not this column, one a few pages down) and you're wondering what "NFBS" records are we have the inside info on what it is—Nails Fahy Bureau of Statistics.

The Villanovan's dinner-dance is coming up May 14th. Now is the last chance to join the staff.

Unless we're mistaken—and that could never happen—it will be Tony Faster for the Junior Prom.

Due to quarterly exams there won't be an issue of the Villanovan next week, and we had planned one of the best columns of the year. It was going to be all about Phil Piro and that dashing number of his. You'd be dashing too if Piro was after you!)

We went down to see Tom Donnelly, X Villanovan, at Maryknoll Junior College last week and what a racket! He can sleep till four in the morning, mind you, and then all he has to do is study latin all day. Really though, it's quite the life—beautiful surroundings and plenty of sports to help balance the program. He's even running the book store down there, already. Tom played varsity football for Villanova in forty-five.

If you're wondering what's in room 222 on the second floor of Mendel Hall, it's the Villanova Engineer office. The boys are working on the May 15th issue. Joe Roarty and staff did an excellent job on their first issue.

Roarty Chosen To Attend Engineering Conference

"Villanova Engineer" Editor Represents Mechanical Engineers in Washington

Mr. J. Stanley Morehouse, Dean of Engineering, announced that Joseph D. Roarty has been cosen to represent the college branch of the A.S.M.E. in a competitive presentation of technical papers with representatives of other engineering institutions before the Annual Regional Conference of the A.S.M.E., in Washington, D. C., on April 1st. and 2nd.

Roarty, a Senior I, and editor of the Villanova Engineer, will compete with 17 other aspirants for the cash awards. The representative's expenses for the session will be borne by the college chapter. His topic for presentation at the conference will be titled "The Professional Status of Engineers." Roarty will be accompanied by Dean Morehouse, and Villanova's A.S.M.E. Student Chairman, Mike Sabol.

The Annual Regional Conference will be under the auspices of the student group of George Washington University in the Capitol city. Besides hearing the student papers, the conference group will make field trips to the U. S. Bureau of Standards, the Naval Gun Factory, and the Naval Ordnance Laboratory. Sightseeing trips have been arranged for the engineers to cover points of interest in the Nation's Capitol including the annual Cherry Blossom Festival which takes place about the same time as the Conference.

Cervantes Day Plans Announced

Tickets for the Spanish Club Cervantes Day celebration will be priced at $2.50 each, or $4.75 a couple, it was decided at a meeting of the arrangements committee last Thursday in the C & F Auditorium. It was also arranged for the Villanovans to provide the music for this affair which is to be held on April 30 in the Elks' Club at Norristown.

Cervantes Day is the celebration which marks the completion of the year's activity of the Club. In conjunction with it is held a literary contest for which the prizes, a diploma and a medal, have been donated by the Spanish Club of Columbia University.

The next meeting of the committee to make further arrangements will be held on Thursday at 3 o'clock in the C & F Auditorium.

ASCE To Present Lecture Tonight

The Villanova Chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineering will hold a special educational meeting tonight at 7:30 P. M. in Commodore John Barry (Naval Science) Hall.

At this meeting Mr. Lewis Cecesse, the Chief of Management and Inspection for the Philadelphia division of the United States Army Corps of Engineers, will speak on the technicalities of bridge building. He will also show slides of the Chesapeake City Highway Bridges now under construction in that city.

A paper on Verniculite prepared for the student convention on April 25, will be read by Frank Casey after the talk by Mr. Cacesse.

All Civil Engineers are invited to attend this most interesting meeting of ASCE.

Call For Pix In Jr. Baby Contest

The call is out to all Junior class members who are fathers to get pictures of their sons into the VILLANOVAN so they may be judged in the Junior of Junior Week contest. The deadline for the pictures is April 26 but the VILLANOVAN would like to have the photos for publication.

Something new has been added by Mother's Day committee. A prize is to be awarded to the winning baby when the child is presented to the Juniors and their mothers during the Mother's Day entertainment.

No limit is set on the ages of the contestants and all pictures will be judged by a committee to be chosen.

This may be the last contest of its kind, since the average age of the Villanova student is expected be 25 years.

RADIO STAFF MEETS TO DISCUSS PLANS FOR FUTURE SHOWS

The campus radio station had a meeting of its staff this week. The memers discussed the accomplishments of the station and formulated plans for the future. Tom Sullivan presided at the meeting, and covered some of the minor items before proceeding into the main part of the discussion.

Tom stressed the fact that the station is an organization which can always use talent. He said that WVIL was particularly interested in underclassmen who are willing to spend some time working for the station, so that there will be a competent staff to take over when the "pioneers" leave.

As a preview of things to come, Tom indicated that more shows will be added to the already swelling schedule of WVIL. To be featured in the near future, will be an interview show with important members of the faculty and individuals connected with Villanova. Probably one of the most important items to be revealed at the meeting was the possibility of Villanova's station joining the proposed WFIL college hookup. Under the system, WFIL would feature a weekly show which would originate at one of the member college's stations.

In concluding the meeting, the announcers were advised to visit some commercial station in their neighborhood for the purpose of studying technique.

National Collegiate Group Convenes At Swarthmore

Swarthmore College was host to the second Model Security Council Conference last Wednesday night. The Villanova delegation appeared under the spotlight during the major part of the discussion. The local group, representing the Republic of Cuba, submitted a resolution to solve the 'Indonesian Question.' The Netherlands, represented by Penn and Temple Universities, started proceedings by requesting permission to seat the delegates from Borneo and East Indonesia. The request was refused and the chair recognized the delegate from Cuba. Joe Tyszkiewics presented a brief historical background immediately followed with a spirited prologue offered by Roger Hanafin. Don Smith submitted the resolution to the Council. There followed three hours of debate and amending of the proposal. The Chinese delegate called for a recess in order that a compromise might be reached on a few minor issues. It may be said that the proposal was favorably received by members of the Security Council. The resolution survived the final vote on the long end of a 9 to 2 count. However, the night's work was brought to nought when the United Kingdom exercised its veto power (a perogative usually reserved for the Russian delegation).

Many Colleges Attend

Among the colleges attending were: Lehigh, Beaver, Franklin and Marshall, Princeton, Chestnut Hill, St. Joseph's, Temple, Pennsylvania, Muhlenberg, Ursinus, Swarthmore, LaSalle, Bryn Mawr, Rosemont, Haverford, and Lincoln.

Haverford College was the site of a Model Review Conference last February 18-20. A representative body of many of our eastern colleges attended. The convention was faced with the task of revising the United Nations Charter in order to set up a workable World Federal Government.

James P. Warburg, erstwhile banker, poet, and foreign affairs analyst, delivered the opening address. Mr. Warburg cited two roadblocks to World Government. "We find that quite a number of national governments now in power have placed themselves on record as favoring the establishment of World Government. The British Government and the governments of all the British Dominions are so recorded. The French and Italian Constitutions, adopted since the War, actually contain provisions to enable these two countries to join a World Government. So far as I know, there are only two major nations of the world whose leadership is on record against World Government; these are the United States and the Soviet Union. The real obstacles to the establishment of World Government may, therefore, be more closely defined as the unwillingness of the world's two most powerful nations to permit such a government to be created."

Conference Success

Considering the job to be accomplished during the brief period of a week-end, the conference was quite a success. However, a minor dispute arose over the purpose of the conference. The convention broke up into two factions whom we will designate as the 'purists' and the 'extremeists.' The purists advocated working solely within the United Nations Charter while seeking to maintain world peace, while the extremeists wished to overstep the bounds of the Charter and establish World Federal Government. (Note; the majority of the Villanova composed of Joe Friend, Roger Hanafin, Bill Nary and Don Smith, was of the former group.

On the night of March 21, the members of the Villanova Bussolari Society were hosts to a regional executive committee of the Catholic Colleges. The meeting adjourned in time for the members of the society to view the Villanova-Kentucky fray via television.

Tonight St. Joseph's College has planned an interesting program for the regional conference of Catholic Colleges.

'49 Season Was Successful For Villanova's Boardmen

Medley Relay Team Takes National Honors Guida Sets Mark, Ross, Thompson Stand Out

By BILL COONEY

Once again another indoor track season has come to a close, and the outdoor semester is still off on the horizon three weeks away. It's fitting then about here to take one last all inclusive look at the campaign before closing the books on it.

For Villanova it was a very good year on the whole. New records were set, new high points were reached, although there were a few rough spots such as Browning Ross' illness just as he was hitting his stride.

The undisputed high mark was, of course, when George Guida set a new world's record for the 500-yard run in racing that distance in 56.9 seconds at the New York A. C. games on Feb. 12. This time eclipsed the old 57.1 clocking of Al Diebolt of Colgate set in 1942. The speedy Villanovan led Jack Hammack, Army's great star, all the way but still had to pour it on at the end to fight off Hammack's last minute kick which carried him over in 57.1 to equal the old standard.

Sprinters Win National Title

Speaking of high points, who could forget the performance of the sprint medley relay at the National A. A. U., Championships? This quartet was on fire in the afternoon heats that day, and became even hotter in the evening session. What a combination it was with Jim McKenna running the lead off quarter, Tom Irish on the 100-yard leg, Jack Holmes holding forth at 220 yards while Joe McCreary finished up on the 300-yard anchor leg. They won the right to win the crown by not only unseating the New York Pioneer Club, the defending champs, but also by coming within a second of establishing a new record.

As the season came to a close, the Wildcats journeyed to Baltimore to participate in the South Atlantic A. A. U. Meet. They journeyed back to the Main Line loaded with trophies and records too. George Guida and Jim McKenna took first and second in the 600. In doing so Guida broke his own meet record. This pair then joined leadoff men Joe McCreary and Jack Holmes in the mile relay. This club really pitched in and came up with a 3:21.9 clocking, the year's best for a Villanova foursome.

Thompson, Ross in Fast Miles

Also in the year's best category was George Thompson's mile at Baltimore. The lanky Junior was forced to trail Fred Wilt but in doing so turned in a terrific, better than 4:15 time. The best time for the mile by a Wildcat was done by Browning Ross, earlier in the season. He hit 4:13.2 but was defeated by Willy Slykhuis of Holland.

The season came to a brilliant climax last week as the team won for the second year in a row the Middle Atlantic A. A. U. crown with 34½ points. McKenna broke the 600-yard meet record while McCreary clinched that race by taking second. McKenna doubled by winning the 50 also. The Cats made it a sweep as Tom Irish and Jack Holmes took second and third. George Thompson won the wile and he, too, set a meet record. The other victory for the Blue and White came when the frosh mile relay beat the Varsity to make that another one, two event.

Villanova's National Sprint Medley Relay Championship team of Joe McCreary, Jack Holmes, Tom Irish, and Jim McKenna. The club won in 1:25.5 in the National A. A. U. Games in Madison Square Garden as they beat the New York Pioneer Club, the defending champions.

All-Opponent Team Chosen by Cagers

Groza and Saul Are Unanimous Choices

By Tom Degan

Ignoring what they read in the newspapers and rating the players they traded shots with on the basis of the ability they displayed against Villanova, the 12 members of the Wildcat basketball squad individually selected their All-Opponent team. Alex Groza of Kentucky and Frank Saul of Seton Hall were the only unanimous selections as 23 of the 229 different players they faced were deemed worthy enough to receive a vote.

Conspicuous by thir absense are All-Americans Tony Lavelli of Yale, Ralph Beard and Wah Wah Jones of Kentucky, and Dick Dickey of North Carolina State.

Round out the first team are Jack Kerris of Loyola (Chi.), Cliff Barker of Kentucky, and Charley Cooper of Duquesne. Saul was the only repeater from last season's five, as Muhlenberg's Harry Donovan who made Villanova's All-Opponent squad for the last three years received only enough votes to rate him a position on the second team. Donovan and Saul were the only members of the two teams below to appear in the Villanova field house this season.

It is interesting to note that the average height of the first and second opponent teams is 6'4½", an inch and a half taller than the Wildcats biggest man.

The men were picked on a basis of 2 points for a first team vote and 1 point for a second team vote. The votes appear in parentheses.

Race for 5th

There was a race for fifth position on the first team between Cliff Barker and Jim Line of Kentucky. In the second game of the Semi-Finals in the NCAA playoffs at Madison Square Garden Barker hit for 18 markers while Line tallied for 23. With both playing such outstanding games, it was difficult to make a choice, however, by virtue of Barker's sensational floor game as well as his scoring, he was given the end.

Number two man on the second team was Charley Share of Bowling Green. Share's 6'11" make him the tallest man on the mythical team, towering four inches over Alex Groza of Kentucky.

Gale "Dark Horse"

Gale of the New York Athletic Club was a more or less "dark horse" of the second team. A big star in his collegiate days, he has not received too much publicity while playing for the AC. However, it was another case of the Severancemen picking those who had played good against them and not those whom the scribes had picked.

In voting for the All-Opponent teams, the Villanova cagers all had a tendency to vote for the man whom they covered in the different games. For instance, Captain Leo Wolf placed Ralph Beard of Kentucky on his first team while everyone else failed to even mention Beard. Undoubtedly, Wolf recognized Beard's ability before anyone else and the only reason the rest of the team disregarded him was due to Leo's terrific job of guarding the Blue Grass star.

First Team

Groza (24)	6'7"	Kentucky
Saul (24)	6'1"	Seton Hall
Cooper (22)	6'5"	Duquesne
Kerris (21)	6'6"	Loyola, Chi.
Barker (14)	6'2"	Kentucky

Second Team

Line (13)	6'1"	Kentucky
Share (1)	6'11"	Bowl. Green
B. Gale (9)	6'4"	N.Y.A.C.
H. Donovan (6)	6'1"	Muhlenberg
Goodwin 6)	6'5"	R.I. State

Lose To Kentucky But Score More Than Any Team Has Done In Two Seasons

Mainliners Down Yale, 78-67, in Consolation Game as Hannan, Arizin and Raiken Star; Lavelli Held to One Field Goal

By RAY KEATS

In one of the greatest exhibitions over seen in the famed Madison Square Garden, Paul Arizin tallied 30 points in a losing cause as the Wildcats of Kentucky turned back a stubborn five, 78-67. The 6' 3" Junior sensation completely outshone every man on the court including All-American Alex Groza who also equalled Arizin's total for the night.

Although Villanova supporters, over a thousand strong, made the trip, none came away disappointed. The Main Liners had given a good account of themselves and Arizin had proven that he was of all-American calibre.

Get Early Lead

Although the Kentuckians held an eleven-point half-time advantage, it was in these first 20 minutes of play that the Villanova five looked the best. A field goal by Joe Hannon opened festivities and the Severencemen quickly jumped to a 9-5 advantage. Stock in the Mainliners kept on the upgrade as the margin went to five points with the score 13-8.

But then things made a drastic turn for the worse. Jim Line, a late starter, all but ruined the Pennsylvania Blue-White chances. This 22-year old Junior who has one of the finest one-handed shots in the hoop game, connected on seven consecutive shots. With the help of Alex Groza and his 220-pound, 6' 7" frame, the men of Adolph Rupp pulled away. Their lead varied from between four and ten points and at the intermission they led, 38-27.

Close Officiating

When the two squads returned Kentucky still held the upper hand. This was, in part, caused by some close officiating which left Arizin and Brooks Ricca with four personals each.

At one time, the Southerners held a seventeen-point advantage, but the die-hard Villanova aggregation was not to be counted out. When they made their bid, with four minutes remaining, the crowd of almost capacity proportions immediately rose to cheer the smaller Villanovans on. But Kentucky, which had been disappointed in the National Invitation Tournament a week before, was not destined to be beaten twice in succession.

By NEAL FAHY

Led by the eagle-eyed setting of Joe Hannan and the superb all-around playing of Paul Arizin, Villanova's Wildcats marched to a 78-67 triumph over the Yale Bulldogs in the NCAA Tournament's Eastern Consolation final before 18,000 at Madison Square Garden last Tuesday evening.

For the second night in a row, Arizin decisively outplayed an unanimous All-American selection, this time the fabulous Tony Lavelli of Yale. Besides holding the accordion player to one field goal form the the floor, Arizin scored 22 points and controlled both backboards. Bringing his season total to 594 tallies, Arizin ended up second highest in the nation with a 22-point per game average, 3/10 of a point behind Lavelli.

'Cats Keep Early Edge

Villanova, sparked by Hannan's accurate set shots, led throughout the first half. For the first time this season, Brooks Ricca worked from the pivot in order to lessen the pressure on the closely guarded Arizin. Al Severence's strategy paid off with Ricca doing an excellent job of handing off to Arizin and Yale's defense completely fouled up as their pre-game scouting plans were of little use.

At one point in the half, the 'Cats led 28 to 16 but Coach Howard Hobsen of Yale ordered an all court press, and Villanova's fast break was halted. However, careful ball handling gave the Wildcats a 33-31 halftime advantage.

Soon after the second half tapoff Yale jumped into their first brief lead but the 'Cats came back to knot the count at 38-all. The issue wasn't even in too much in doubt at this point as the smoother Main Liners appeared to be much the superior squad. Hannan the Cannon (a new nickname pinned on Toad by N. Y. sportswriters) split the meshes with another long set and from there on in Villanova's lead increased geometrically.

Awards Made

For their efforts, all members of the Villanova squad were presented with watches by the NCAA. Captain Leo Wolf was given the third place trophy while the crowd applauded vigorously.

RIC DEUCES

Brooks Ricca taps one in against Kentucky. Jim Line and Walter Hirsh of Kentucky are also up for the tap with unidentified Villanovan jumping behind Ricca.

SPORTS CHATTER

By BILL CANINO

Although there have been many lines written dealing with the National Collegiate Athletic Association tournament many incidents occured which never got into the tabloids. Below are some of the sidelights which added much to the feature attraction.

Thank You, Mr. Lapchik

This colyum and a few of our cohorts were in a cab after the Kentucky game waiting for a red light when Joe Lapchik, coach of the New York Knickerbockers and ex-Original Celtic luminary, drove up next to us. Tom Brennen, of the Villanova Frosh team, recognized the eminent mentor, rolled down the window and carried on the following conversation:

"Hey Joe, whattaya think of Arizin?"

"Great!" was the spontaneous answer.

"Well, who do you think is better, Arizin or Lavelli?"

"Oh, Arizin is the much better all around ball player".

This ended the tete-a-tete and we drove away, assured that Paul Arizin had proved himself not only to the fans but had left a big impression on the minds of the men who know basketball best.

Add Famous Last Words . . . Carl Braun, Knick hoopster, "Arizin is the player we (the Knicks) would like to have on our team most." . . . Stan Lomax, video play-by-play announcer, "Now we see how this boy (Arizin) scored 85 points in one game." And in reefrence to the Ricca to Hannon scoring play Lomax stated, "One of the finest pieces of playmaking I've seen." . . . Adolph Rupp, Kentucky coach, "He (Arizin) lived up to everything they've written about him." . . . One Big Town scribe had this to say, "They came to see Lavelli and went away talking about Arizin." . . . Brooklynite bookies' outlook, "Chee, dat guy almost cost me a fortune."

Added Tidbits for the same Price . . . The three minute ovation accorded to Arizin as he left the Kentucky game . . . The sportswriters applause in appreciation for the fine show Paul staged against the "you-all" boys . . . Al Severence and Clair Bee arm in arm before the game . . . The "Judge's" proud introduction of "His Kids" to the televiewers . . . Leo Wolf's GREAT defensive job on Ralph Beard . . . Brooks Ricca's outstanding floor play in booth games . . . The 12 field goals of Joe Hannon in the Yale game . . . The absence of "Jake" at the presentations . . . And on and on and on.

Bks. 1 & 4 Set New Scoring Record In 97-53 Victory

Flynn, Falkowski, and Madonia Set Pace as Barracks Team Whips Mendel

By MONDSCHEIN INC. & KLUCSARITS

A limited schedule was again presented in the Intramural League last week because of the NCAA playoffs. The games from last Tuesday, March 22, have been rescheduled for tonight. Thursday night's games were played and in the opener, Barracks 1&4 set a new team scoring record. The Bks. five romped to a 97-53 triumph over Mendel, and dashed the latter's hopes for a second place tie with Alumni. Everybody from the Bks. got into the act because a five-man squad constituted their entire strength. Leading the attack for the winners was that terrific trio of "Tom-boys", Flynn, Falkowski, and Madonia. Flynn ran wild, as the slim, perpetual-motion forward snagged 16 field goals and two fouls for a total of 34 points. Falkowski, the Barracks lanky center, tapped in most of his goals and accounted for 22.

One point more was manufactured by Madonia, the drive-in specialist, who caged 23. Aiding and abetting in the slaughter, were Lou Maiero with 11 and even Jim Plunkett had 9. Dick Lenahan did his best to stem the scoring tide by contributing 16 points to the losing cause. Benny Moskel scored 12 and Capt. Jack Denuel had 10. George Mondschein and Bill Klucsarits refereed.

In the nightcap, Alumni continued heir winning ways by trouncing Father Dunne's Doms, 71-42. Father McLaughlin's high scoring crew ran up a 34-19 half-time lead after trailing 11-8 in the early minutes. Every man who participated in the contest hit the scoring column, with Bill Barry again leading Alumni's parade with 21 markers. Hal Diot scored 13 and was invaluable under the boards. Another big factor was Alumni's baffling passing attack, led by Bobby Oelz and Tom Cullen, which kept the Doms continually off balance. Dick Altman had one of his better night for the Doms when he tabbed 11 points while Capt. Rob Healey checked in with 9. John Kost and Ray Booth officiated.

Day-Hops

The Day Hop league bogged down as two teams failed to place a full team on the floor and forfieted to their opponents. On Tuesday, Moran's Invaders forfieted to Griffin's Chem Majors, while on Thursday, Dwyer's Toads failed to put in an appearance and lost by default to the EE Day Hops.

In the game that was staged Tuesday afternoon, Ganley's Bugs remained unbeaten by dropping the Chem Engineers, 53-32. An upset was in the making for the first three-quarters as the winners had only a four point lead going into the final eight minutes. But at this point, the Bugs put on a terrific scoring surge and outscored their opponents 23 to 6 to accoint for the final margin. Ganley and Germano each had 16 markers in the game, followed by Nowicki's 1. Loughrey had 11 for the losers and Capt. Glacken had 9 in addition to a fine floor game. Jake Moran and Joe Bogner refereed.

Creamer's Arts Day Hops captured their first decision of the season in Thursday's matinee feature by downing the Marketeers, 52-31. Fittingly enough the Creamer brothers, Shane and Mike, led the attack by whipping in 17 and 15 points respectively. The winners' smooth-functioning attack left little doubt of the outcome from the outset. A bright spot in the loss was the sensational shooting displayed by Hunt of the Marketeers. He hit for 15 points on some shots that were beautiful to observe. Galyo and Burns wor the striped shirts.

DAYHOPS WIN OVER ALUMNI-AUSTIN IN SWIM MEET

TED FERNANDES

The Dayhops still show an unbeaten swimming team, adding to their list of woeful foes the Alumni squad of Mermen. Last Thursday in the Villanova pool the unfortunate Alumnites met disaster, in a lobsided swimming meet, by the score of 45½-13½. The Dayhops have come into their own as their opponents will readily admit, and are the swimming club to beat at Villanova.

In the 200 yard contest the Dayhops placed Ed Zerbe in first, while the Alumni squads Jack Laughlin showed second. Jake Moran of the non-residents came in third. Laughlin paced the trio down to the finish, but Zerbe, with a burst of speed clinched the win. Zerbe's time showed 2:35:5. Ed Reek, the Dayhop sensation won the 50 yard free style, netting 5 points, defeating Tom Cullen of Alumni who placed second and his teammate Dick Spence who arrived at the finish in third place. Reek's time was 25:5.

O'Brien Wins Backstroke

The gruelling 50 yard backstroke entry was taken by Joe O'Brien of the Dayhops in 34:5 seconds. Following the winner was Dick Ferry also of the Dayhops. Third in this event was Bill Ellrich of the Alumnians. Another endurance test followed, the 50 yard breast stroke won by Joe Mullen. Runnerup to Mullen, who did 38 flat was Jim Mullen of Alumni. Jake Moran came in last to capture third place.

The sweltering 75 yard free style proved exciting Haskins of the Dayhops took an immediate lead. Holding his lead until within 10 yards of the finish, Haskins slid back to second place to make way for Ed Zerbe another speed demon Dayhop who just wouldn't be beaten. Zerbe won the event in 1 minute and 9 seconds, with Haskins and Dick Spence close behind. There was much dispute as to who came in second and the laurels were split between Haskins and Spence.

The 75 yard medley presented plenty of action as the Dayhops lead-off man Joe O'Brien, and Bill Ellrich of Alumni matched each other stroke for stroke. The two Mullens, Joe of the Hops and Jim of Alumni also came down to the marker with a hair-bredth differance. "Ttx" Houston of the Day Hops clinched a win by outstroking Tom Smith of Alumni by inches. Time for the Dayhops was 43 seconds in this event.

In the final event of the afternoon, the 100 yard free relay, the Dayhops triumphed again. Howie Eisler turned on the steam as the lead oc man, for the Hops, and erged out Jack Loughlin the initial swimmer for Alumni. Bob Haskin increased the lead against Jim Mullen, and Dick Ferry cinched the deficit with a terrific burst of speed against Bob Smith. Hitting the water with a resounding splat Ed Reek won he event formally, with another win for the Dayhops.

Dayhops Win All Events

The Dayhops did not lose one event, gaining first honors in every affair and thoroughly trouncing Alumni. Much credit must go to the valuable assistance of Father Burke whose deep interest in the acquatic affairs at Villanova have made them a real success. Also, in more immedite circumstances, the aid of the Austineers must be recognized as a successful factor in last Thursday's events.

FROM THE SIDELINES

By HARRY RANGE
Sports Editor

With this issue of the VILLANOVAN, we give our last look-see at the basketball tournaments until next year. With that last statement, we justifiably assume that Judge Severance's boys will appear in the Garden again next year and then without so much debate over their selection as there was this year.

Prior to the Mainliners' selection to represent District II of the NCAA it seemed that just about everyone who could, had something to say regarding our choice. The local papers still plugged for La-Salle even after a selection of the Explorers was completely out of the question. From New York came the cries for C. C. N. Y. until New Irish decided to put the min the newly-formed "NYIT," and finally from the junction of the Alleghany and the Monongehila came wailings of the worst kind from loyal followers and writers of Duquesne.

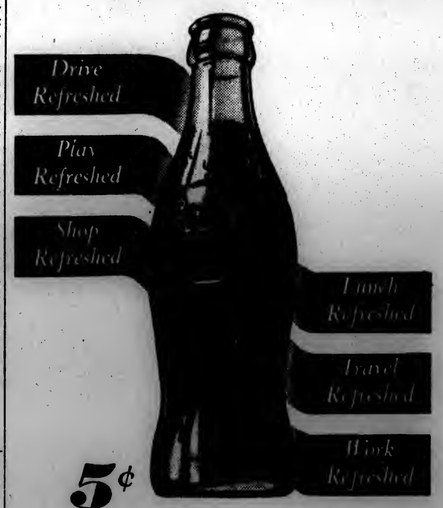
To the supporters of these three clubs all we can give is a loud sigh and a wish for good luck next season. The only gripe that is in any way justifiable comes from Duquesne, where they are still doing just that. We explained, a few weeks ago, the reasons for the Wildcats' selection so we won't bother to go into that again. But with the moans still flowing from Pittsburgh, we would like to point out a few interesting facts.

A team is chosen to play in a tournament only if it expected to produce, that is, to represent its district in the best possible way, to put on a good show, and to play a brand of basketball that people will remember. Two big reasons uphold the fact that Villanova produced, namely, scoring 72 points against Kentucky, more points than have been scored against the Wildcats from the Blue Grass state in the last 26 years, and secondly, beating Yale 78-67 which was, incidentally, the team that beat Duquesne 71-56.

Many other noteworthy recollections of the tournament come to mind that will also prove that Villanova was "THE" choice to represent District II. How about Arizin holding Tony Lavelli to one basket . . . or the 3 minute-long ovation given Paul as he left the game after scoring 30 against Kaintuk . . . or Ricca's working from the pivot against Yale . . . or Captain Leo Wolf's covering of Ralph Beard . . . or Toad Hannan's 25 against the Bulldogs . . . or the acclaim of the New York sportswriters . . . or the great play of Shy Raiken on both nights???

Neglected By Lady Luck

It was a great tournament and we all have only one regret and that is that the Cats didn't make it to Seattle for the finals. And the reason for this was entirely due to a spurning of the Wildcats by old Lady Luck. It was just in the cards for the Mainliners to draw Kaintuk in the opener and even with the 72 it wasn't enough to stop the world-famous Kentuckians. However, had it been Illinois or Yale in the first game it would have meant a trip to Seattle for the team. Yale easily fell prey to the Cats while the Illinois would certainly have met a like fate had they tangled with the Judges boys. The Cats just got a bad deal in drawing the Blue Grass boys but lets wait till next year when there will no Groza, Beard, Barker and Jones.



All-American Arizin

In looking over the All-American teams as picked by the experts we happened to notice a few omissions worthy of comment. Naturally, the first big omission was the absence of Paul Arizin, the second highest scorer in the country from any of the teams. However, in the AP poll, Paul got the nod for seventeenth position but in "Look" magazine no one even heard of Paul. One of the best centers in the country hits for 594 points during the season and no one even puts him in the District II top five.

"Look's" selection committee was way off when it put Temple's Nelson Bobb on its first string without

Labor Priest To Address Second Forum April 8th

The Villanova Forum will present its second speaker on Friday, April 8th., at 8:30 P. M., in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium. Rev. John Cronin, S.S., S.T.D., Ph. D., will deliver an address entitled, "A Bond of Unity Between Capital and Labor".

The eminent priest is well qualified to speak on this subject as he has made it his life work. He is Professor of Economics at Saint Mary's Seminary, Baltimore, Director of the Institute of Catholic Social Studies at Catholic University of America, and Assistant Director of the National Catholic Welfare Conference.

Father Cronin is a widely recognized author in the field of economics and sociology, and has contributed to various periodicals, including "The Sign" and "America". Perhaps his best known book is the one called Economics and Society which has made a great impression among students of the subject.

In the eyes of many, the most important work that Father Cronin has done is in the field of labor relations. He is the permanent arbitrator of the clothing industry and the cotton industry in Baltimore, and recently won the Pabst Award for his distinguished service in capital-labor relations.

Villanova students, who will be admitted to the lecture free of charge, are urged to attend this forum for their own benefit. Mr. Charles P. Bruderle, Assistant Professor of History and head of the Villanova Forum, will preside.

Coed Poll Reveals What Is Wrong With Men; Vice Versa

A List of what girls dislike most in men has been compiled from a wide assortment of University coeds by Miami Hurricane feature writers:

Heading the list, and running neck and neck, are dirty fingernails and conceit. "God's gift to women," and he who "constantly tries to prove he's a college yo-yo," are definitely taboo. Dirty and bitten-down fingernails are not only taboo—"They are strictly repulsive," according to the long-nailed coeds.

"Men who can't stop talking about how much money they spend who can only talk about cars and how fast they can make them go, who boast, generally, about every phase of their lives, and who always try to be the life of the party," are heartily condemned.

Vulgar language, sloppy dressers, and men needing a shave, come high on the list of dislikes. Cigars, beards, suspenders, and mustaches are generally condemned. Bad manners, table and otherwise, are unappreciated by the gals. The "overbearingly tempermental male is very hard to endure," said one of those interviewed.

Sarcastic men, loud men, lazy men, and those with shallow, insensitive natures are among the banned. "I like a fellow who has ambition—who can talk about something besides the race track and cars," is the way one coed put it.

Male superiority complexes come at the head of the list. "The kind of boy who thinks he's superior in intellectual ability to the female—tells you what to wear, criticizes every little thing about you, insists in choosing the evenings entertainment.

Men Reply With Coed Deficiencies

Men at Ohio Wesleyan were quick to reply to the Florida poll with their tabulation of what's wrong with women:

The consensus was that painted fingernails in run down condition compares quite favorably with the men's dirty finger nails condemned by the coeds. One chap inferred that some women paint their nails to cover up the dirt.

One male complained about women being late for dates saying that many coeds take the stand if they are on time for a date, they are showing too much interest. Accordingly, they show up anywhere from 10 to 40 minutes late. They also "tend to put too much emphasis on the amount of money possessed by their date," he continued.

Another interviewee begged that women at least "try to act natural without affecting the mannerisms of a sickening teen-ager attempting to play house."

participated in an hour of meditation, during which each couple pledged to recite a rosary and solemnly discussed any family problems between the two persons.

At 3:45 the couples again convened in the chapel for the Holy Hour, followed by Benediction and the renewal of marriage vows. The first Cana Conference then adjourned after a busy and serious day.

Rosemonters Baby-Sit

Middleton Hall, the College Infirmary, was turned into a nursery for the day, under the supervision of girls from Rosemont College who acted as baby-sitters for the occasion.

"The Apostolate of the Family" was the title of one of the pamphlets issued last Sunday. It is a publication of the Family Life Bureau of the National Catholic Welfare Conference. Its purpose is fourfold: 1) disseminating correct ideas on marriage and the family; 2) encouraging religious family practices; 3) promoting inspirational activities in the family field; 4) urging the correction of economic and social evils harmful to family life.

Arrangements for the Conference were under the supervision of co-chairman Bob Filippelli, '49, and Ralph Slayton, '50.

even a kind word about the player that made Lavelli look like just another Bulldog. It is also noteworthy that Bobb didn't receive a vote on the AP team. Since the local scribes picked the District II All-Stars we can easily see why Paul was never even mentioned. "Look," the AP, and the other expert-filled staffs sure missed the boat when they overlooked the best player in the East. It took a tournament for Paul to come into his own before the public.

the interested, yet uninitiated, fan will be able to go to any one of a number of spots to hear the real McCoy. Unfortunately, such is not the case today. The relatively few good Jazz musicians who are still forsaking the magnetic attraction of the buck to play old style jazz instead of the more commercial bop have had to spread themselves out rather thinly these past few years, and as a result the public has been forced to depend on records and an occasional concert to keep in touch.

With the current increase in good publicity and the corresponding increase of public interest we are quite sure that this situation is about to be remedied. There are many fine jazz musicians who would gladly return to their first love if it again became popular enough to enable them to support their wives, kiddies and bookmakers, as the case may be, and this possibility seems more likely every day.

It doesn't take a calibrated eyeball to see the handwriting on the wall as far as bop is concerned. The goatee devotees can click their crockery till the cows come home but the facts bear me out. Only a couple of weeks ago the "Clique," one of New York's more famous, or shall we say notorious, bopers houses brought in a new show completely lacking any traces of the aforementioned musical chaos.

Faculty Discusses

The Faculty Colloquy for the study and discussion of great books was inaugurated in December of last year, at which time a group of representatives of the Faculty met to formulate plans for the regular monthly meetings which have since followed. Among the works which constituted the subjects for previous meetings were Shakespeare's Hamlet and The Education of Henry Adams, the autobiography of the noted American hostorian and journalist.

Students are urged to attend the meetings of the Council as attendance will serve as encouragement to the representatives as well as a way informing the student as to what is being done by the Council. If there are problems or questions which the student feels should be brought to the attention of the council, he should contact his representative. This is the only way the Council can know what the student body feels should be done.

disguising bits of scenery from one scene to another.

With a technique typically Rostand, the author takes the hackneyed "boy meets girl" theme, gives it that period touch and then enlivens the plot with comedy and intrigue.

Cyrano, romantic in heart but repulsive in appearance, reveals his love for the fair Roxanne in the first act. He thinks his awkward nose stands in the way, so this stout-hearted fellow shrinks from the situation.

Much to his surprise and consternation, Roxanne arranges a secret rendezvous with him. He is elated, for he never gave it a thought that she was conscious of his existence. He carefully plans his strategy of love only to find that she arranged this meeting to ask him to protect her true lover from the rough and ready troop of cadets that Cyrano commands.

First Meeting

His first meeting with Roxanne's lover, Baron Christian De Neuvillette, almost ends in disaster for his new charge makes unflattering inferences about his truncated nostrils. Cyrano explains his arrangement with Roxanne, and of her love for Christian, but instead of joy, Cyrano's ward almost breaks into tears because he loves Roxanne but is unable to express his love in words.

Cyrano sees a chance to be Roxanne's unseen admirer, so he and Christian strike up a bargain. The agreement reached presents Christian as the lover uttering the "sweet nothings" of Cyrano. Rostand called it a pack involving Christian's body and Cyrano's heart. Baron De Neuvillette pursues Roxanne and in time she falls in love with the "heart".

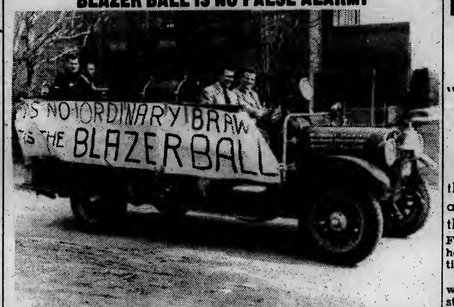
JUNIOR PROM TO FEATURE TONY PASTOR; MOTHER'S DAY WILL OPEN JUNIOR WEEK

Mothers Guests Of Class; Day Opens With 11:00 Mass

Monday, May 1, the mothers of many Juniors will be guests of the Junior class. Mother's Day is a traditional part of Junior Week activities and has become known as one of the most impressive days of the Week. The Committee in charge of the Mother's Day program, under Chairman Dick Ruane has arranged a busy card for the mothers.

Mass at 11:00 in the College Chapel will open the Day. At that time the mothers will receive corsages from their sons. Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, President, will address the group and the sons will be expected to receive Holy Communion.



Luncheons at 11:00 P. M.

Ed Krieg, Class President, will dedicate a tree at the traditional tree-planting ceremonies, the location to be announced later. A tour of the campus will follow the ceremony. Luncheon will be served the Juniors and their Mothers in the College Dining Room at 1:00 P. M., and it is expected that two servings will be necessary because of the anticipated large attendance. Arrangements are being made to provide waiters for the luncheon.

The party then moves to the Field House at 2:15 P. M. for an entertainment program with Ed Krieg, Class President, acting as Master of Ceremonies. Leading off the afternoon's entertainment will be a group of selections rendered by the College Band and Glee Club under the direction of Rev. Ralph E. Handran, O.S.A.

"Cleo" Cast Present Scene

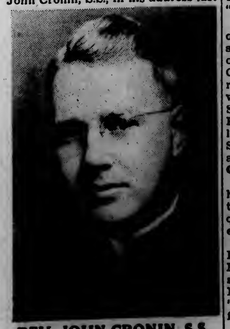
Excerpts from the 1949 Turf and Tinsel production of "Cleo Was a Lady" will be presented by that group. This is the same outfit which came up with the smash hit "John Smith, Esq." last year and is preparing to carry out another sucCONTINUED_ON_PAGE_8

BLAZER BALL IS NO FALSE ALARM!

A Fire truck leads the way in the Blazer Ball parade which took place last Thursday. Stunt publicized the informal dance to be held May 4th as part of the Junior Week festivities. The fire engine was loaned for the occasion by W. Foxal MacElree of Wayne, Pa.

Week's Gala Informal Blazer Ball Plans Set

Wednesday night of Junior Week will be the time for the gala informal dance, the Blazer Ball. The Villanovans are to provide the music for the dancing which will continue from 9:00 P. M. till 1:00 A. M. This affair which is but one of the many highlights which dots the Junior Week festivities will be held in the Field House. Tickets will sell for $2.40 per couple, tax included, and may be obtained in either Mendel Hall or the Pie Shop.



The Blazer Ball is one of those traditional dances which dates way back in the college's history and is firmly entrenched as a part of Junior Week. Plans being made by Chairman Jack White call for the biggest and best dance yet. The theme for decorations will go undisclosed but like all others is expected to be beyond comparison.

Musically, the Villanovans need no introduction to the small-dance devotees who will vouch for the smooth danceable arrangements the band provides under the baton of "Red" Murphy. Marion Stodder, charming vocalist with the orchestra, will render her versions of the popular ballads of the day.

Juniors are reminded that it will not be necessary to wear blazers to the dance, and the dance is open to the entire student body. The Blazer Ball Committee consists of Henry Burke, Tony Russo, Jerry Selinger, and Bryan McLaron.

Noted Priest-Author Points Out Need For Capital-Labor Unity

That there is now justification for optimism in the labor relations field as a result of the modern advancements toward the solution of its problems, was the thesis of Rev. John Cronin, S.S., in his address last Friday evening in the C. & F. Auditorium. His talk, on the topic, "A Bond of Unity Between Capital and Labor", was sponsored by the Villanova Forum as the second in the current series on the general theme "The Church in the Modern World".

REV. JOHN CRONIN, S.S.

Father Cronin, a recognized authority in the fields of economics and sociology, is the Assistant Director of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, and the author of many related works including his most well-known book, Economics and Society. A recent winner of the Pabst Award for service in capital-labor relations, this priest of the Sulpician Society is now working on another book, to be entitled, The Catholic Social Principles.

His most important work ,though, has been in the field of labor relations, a fact which makes him a qualified speaker on the topic chosen for this assembly.

After the invocation delivered by Rev. George J. McLaughlin, O.S.A., Mr. Charles Bruderle, Asst. Professor of History, and Chairman of the Forum, introduced the speaker as, "one who is guided by the blueprint for modern living which was borne

Seminary Guild To Hold Card Party

The Augustinian Seminary Guild will hold its sixteenth annual card and bingo party Tuesday, April 26, at 8:30 in the Field House. This fun affair will have a real carnival atmosphere exemplified with all the games that are enjoyed by all at such affairs.

Plenty of prizes will be on hand so that almost everyone attending will go home with a valuable prize tucked under his coat. There will be one prize for each card table; any card game can be played that four people agree upon.

Included in this magnificent aray of fun and hilarity will be a dance, music by the VILLANOVANS, from 10:30 to 1:00 A. M. Students can either bring their own dates or take their choice of the many girls that attend the affair each year.

This rollicking night of fun will be for the benefit of the four houses of the Augustinian order! Prep. Seminary, Novitate, St. Mary's Hall and Theology Seminary.

In addition to the prizes there will be chances on cash orders at any store of your liking, a television set, washing machine, refrigerator and a radio, all of any size or make you select. This great

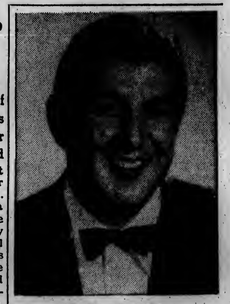
"Blue Notes" Combo to Play in Intermissions

Ted Doyle, the Chairman of the Junior Prom committee has announced that all plans for the dance which is to be held Friday are complete. He added that he anticipated a greated demand for tickets than for any previous formal.



Tony Pastor and his orchestra will be the feature attraction. He stars the Clooney Sisters, Rosemary and Betty, an outstanding vocal pair. This Pastor aggregation is one of the top name bands in the country. He offers a well-roundtd selection of ballads, standard numbers, Latin and instrumental music. Not only does the band's style provide for easy dancing, but offers entertainment in the form of Tony's comedy and novelty numbers, and the antics of the band members.

Blue Notes

Further attraction will be the music furnished by the Blue Notes, a snappy little combination that will provide music while Tony Pastor is off stage. The continuous dancing thus afforded will round out the dancing pleasure.

Dan Frin, Chairman of the Decorations Committee, promises to astonish everybody with a novelty theme. He refuses to say more than that it will be a little short of as-

Adelphia Hotel's Roof Garden Site For Dinner-Dance

The Adelphia Hotel's Roof Garden is to be the site of the Junior Class Dinner-Dance to be held Saturday, May 7, at 8 P.M. Music for the affair will be provided by the "Four Blue Notes" combo which will also provide the dance music during the intermissions of the Junior Prom. Invitations for the Saturday Junior finale were available beginning yesterday at $7.50 per couple.

Philadelphia's Adelphia Hotel has established an excellent reputation among Villanova men through the fine dinners enjoyed by previous classes and other school organizations. It is expected that the majority of the class will be accommodated by the Roof Garden.

The Blue Notes, comparatively unknown in college dance circles, have earned an excellent name for themselves in club work. They have won much in the way of acclaim for their sweet, commercial styling of tunes new and old. At present, the 103rd Cavalry Club in West Chester features the Blue Notes every Friday night.

This most worthy cause should be backed by everyone in the school. Please don't forget to sell those tickets and make your returns on or before April 28 (and collect your half dollar for selling the book.)

Last week, thirty-five students from the advanced classes of Government and Political Science travelled by bus on a field trip to official Washington, under the direction of Dr. Harold F. During the three-day visit to the Capitol, April 6-9, the group took a close look at the actual workings of the U. S. Government.

Easter Message

Bunnies and hats and flowers will herald the arrival of a day called Easter. To many humans of our modern age, the meaning of this restive day will be just that. Relatively few souls—considering the vast number that populate the earth—will be able to penetrate the heavy curtain of materialism which enshrouds our modern thinking and understand in its full historical and spiritual perspective the event which Easter commemorates. And of those who comprehend its meaning, there are too many on whose lives it has little impact.

"If Christ be not risen, Your faith is in vain . . . " Saint Paul, in these words, drives home one of the most vital truths on which Christian civilization rests. Expressed in them is the summation of all the arguments n favor of the divinity of Him who toiled, and preached, and suffered, and died to fulfill the eternal plan for the redemption of the human race.

The fact of Christ's Resurrection is historically indisputable. In the field of Christian Apologetics, it is the final word on the divine origin of Christianity. This is the great truth that Easter commemorates: that Christ rose in triumph and gave proof that verily He was the Son of God.

No Christian worthy of his calling can be pardoned for falling prey to the dark ignorance of modern paganism. No Christian is without guilt who contributes to the prostitution of the true meaning of Easter. No Christian is without blemish of hypocrisy who does not reflect on a darkened world the beaming image of the Son of God risen from the dead.

The key to peace in the world of our day will never be found in the things symbolized by either a bunny, a hat, or a flower. If searched for, it can be found in the things symbolized by a Lamb, a thorny Crown, and a Cross made radiant by the fact of the Resurrection.

May this Easter, in an abundant way, bring the peace of Christ to the hearts of all Villanovans and through them permeate the world in which we live. On some Easter Day we may awaken to find the peace of Christ in a world truly the Kingdom of Christ.

Catholic Education A Must

In a recent issue of Life magazine there appeared an article called "Intercollegiate Bull Session." The remarks quoted in the article were those of contemporary college men in the secular colleges. These remarks concerned everything from politics to sex, supposedly reflecting the attitude of the average college man today.

Pray God, who was so blindly ignored by the writers, that such a hopeless, faithless, cowardly, despairing, ignorant attitude is not prevalent in the American college to the extent that the article would lead one to believe. There is reason to be alarmed when the educated (not intelligent) men of this country can recognize an evil, and yet, rather than fight it, or find ways to remedy it, would succumb without protest. I refer to the off-hand attitude of several of the interviewees concerning communism. Communism is directly opposed to all Christianity, but not one of the "psuedo intelligentsia" mentioned the consequences of an atheistic world. Most likely the "un-intelligent educated" had been lost in their own completely materialistic little world so long that they could not recognize the fact that their only hope in a future as black as they painted was the mercy and grace of God.

By Tom Galloway

It seems that Good Friday has grown to be a light matter. It has become merely a period of commeration like Christmas, or Easter; in some cases like a birthday or the Fourth of July. This attitude is almost sacreligious but cannot actually be called sinful because there is no place where the blame can be definitely placed. Perhaps it is merely the mental laxity so predominant in this modern period.

Any of you who have ever been whipped by a cat-'n-ninetails, on bare flesh, with the power of hatred and fear in every stroke, will know that it will tear the flesh, and is extremely painful. After that punishment, would it annoy you to be pushed and heckled by a crowd that hated and feared you worse than Hell or Death as you carried the large heavy wooden cross upon which you were to die? Would you have courage enough to rise after having fallen three times under the great weight on your raw, bleeding back? If the purple cloak which aggravated your cuits were then torn brutally from your back, pulling with it handfuls of flesh, would you not scream with pain, kick apoplectictly, then probably faint? Would you not die of sheer pain, fatigue, nervousness, and exposure before you were laid back down on your rough cross, or would you live to feel the nails, large square nails, — like railroad spikes— driven through your hands by a heavy hammer which would miss occasionally to crush a bone or two; and to writhe with indescribable suffering as the same treatment was administered to the extremely tender flesh and bones of the feet It is very doubtful you could realize your cross was being raised, and your very weight is tearing your arms from their sockets, and forcing the nails to inch their way through your flesh. It is doubtful, too, that you would remain like that for three hours in silence. The with gentleness in your heart, pray for the well being of your murderers, and in your last moment of sensibility, feel a long sharp spear cut through your flesh, and pierce your dying heart.

Of course it does not hurt you at all when it happens to someone else —unless it is some one you love!

Inside Opera

by
Bill Carroll

Recently I had the misfortune of interviewing Gilda McClodzanza, an aspiring young soprano who sings for one of the local opera companies. Following the precedent established by reporters I spent the first five minutes of the interview lauding the accomplishments of this promising artist. After winning her confidence I tossed my pencil and pad into the nearest waste can. This careless gesture indicated that I had no intention of taking her story for publication purposes—ostensibly. I very boldly asked Miss McClodzanza if she would be kind enough to tell me just what the REAL story was on opera. After assuring her that I would hold her revelations in strictest confidence, she begrudgingly assented to tell all.

The best way for her to explain the seamy side of opera was to recount her experiences from the time she first began to entertain ideas concerning an operatic career.

First Push

Gilda's vocation received it's first push under a rather comic circumstance. It seems that her father was a wrestler by profession. A man who won great renown for his ring exploits. He grappled under the name of "Mad Meathook McClodzanza". Gilda was a devoted daughter, both to her father and to his profession. She often regretted that she had been born a girl, because she secretly desired to become a wrestler.

In Detroit, Mrs. Yugotto Lemon, wife of a multi-billionaire automobile magnet, invited "Meathook" and his daughter to the Lemon home for an evening of wrestling talk. It seems the Lemons were avid devotees of the sport. During the course of the evening the fabulously wealthy Mrs. Lemon asked Gilda what she wanted to be when she grew up. Gilda shamelessly replied that she intended to enter the ring as her father had done. An impediment in Gilda's speech made her pronunciation of "ring" sound like "sing", and Mrs. Lemon incorrectly assumed that young Gilda had her heart set on an operatic career. This bit of misinformation was carried to Mr. Lemon, who out of generosity of his benevolent heart set up a trust fund for the purpose of training Gilda for the opera.

No Difference

Meathook and Gilda failed to perceive much difference between opera and professional wrestling, (!) and besides, at that time women wrestlers had not attained any national recognition. So Gilda assented to juncket to New York and study opera. Unfortunately space limitations will preclude a relation of the balance of Gilda's story. I assure you however, that bar war, riot, fire, flood, domestic revolution, earthquake, volcanic eruption, or an act of the Metropolitan Opera Association I shall continue the rather singular tale of Glamorous Gilda the frustrated woman wrestler who made the best of it and became an operatic success.

Town Talk

by
Callahan and Richard

The ancient muses of Greece are smiling today, even the ones with the long faces. They are happy, as are all those who saw the Belle Masque production of Cyrano de Bergerac. To those who have seen it nothing can be said, but to those who missed it our sincere sympathy. Those people really missed the boat.

College Material

It was said that this production was ambitious work for any theatrical company, and would be out of the question for a college group. However, this proved to be otherwise for the Belle Masque Society, assisted by the Jest and Gesture Society of Rosemont, who presented a finished product of this famous Rostand romantic play.

Very low-brows go to Ted Doyle, who played the difficult part of Cyrano, and to Nancy Glackin who portrayed Roxanne with understanding and presence of mind. Doyle's interpretation of the role will long be remembered and will take its place among the cherished memories of those who saw it. His grace of action and fluent tongue were of the finest. Nancy Glackin showed herself to be a true performer also. She was assigned the none-too-easy part of Roxanne and handled it with understanding and conviction. The part of Roxanne presents a great many problems in that the actress must present a character of many emotions. Bill Fleming as the "Johnny-one-note" of the show produced a fine picture of a young man, quite in love, but unable to put his love into words. The poet-baker and what ever else one may wish to call him was in the hands of a newcomer to Villanova's campus. John Kelly is a freshman to the school, but no freshman to the stage. His Ragueneau was something that will draw chuckles every time it is remembered in future.

"Whole Cast Good"

To single out every one of the principals would be impossible, suffice to say that they all gave their best and it looked it from the other side of the footlights. All the cast were there with their minds and hearts and all played their roles with true artistic ability.

To those who are never seen but whose work is always seen, the stage crew, some more bows and flowers. John T. Callahan and William Confoy were the ones responsible for the sets with the assistance of the rest of the well trained stage crew.

To the designers of the sets goes the applause they richly deserve. To Rev. William J. Krupa, O.S.A., to Anthony J. Mullen, who is one of the ex-Villanovans now studying for the priesthood and to Miss Loretta Moore go the praise they justly deserve.

Finally, to the one whose courage and understanding has made this play the success and outstanding event of the year at Villanova goes the highest praise of all. To Rev. William J. Krupa, O.S.A., the director and producer, all the congratulations and "bravos" for the unstinting work in placing before the audience of Villanova the great play Cyrano de Bergerac.

Telephone Technique

Wire-tapping has recently become quite the little hobby. Gangsters, politicians and other characters find eavesdropping on the wires an interesting pastime. At Villanova wire-tapping is not too widely practiced but every hall has at least one listener-iner. They find the character and technique of some callers quite fascinating. A few hours of tuning in on the boys in a certain hall can be very educational.

Take the "yes man," for instance. He calls up his girl and says nothing but "yes" for a half an hour. Once they realize his type, the girls he goes with wrap him around their little fingers and give him an awful beating on the phone. His technique is non-existent. In the future he will be the typical henpecked husband.

Then there is the "Oh, you lucky girl" type. Technique is his business. He lifts the phone from the hook, dials his number and begins to operate. To repeat what he says would cause him too much embarrasment so it will have to suffice to say that he gets fan letters from telephone operators all over the world.

One out of twenty telephoners are the gushy type. These boys call up a girl just to tell her that she's "my cute little, sweet little, lovable little, wonderful little, pretty little petunia." Strange to say, the girlies love it. Oh well, maybe they're a lot better looking over the phone.

Jokers plague the telephoning public. It seems that no wire-tapping session is complete without hearing some humorous lad ordering a case of Schenley's to be sent to the monastery. A real original funster carries on this conversation with the local drugstore.

"Hello. Have you got Prince Albert in the can?"

"Yes."

"Well you better let him out before he suffocates. Yuk, yuk, yuk!!" This youngster is the one who carries on long battles of words with the operator.

With the advent of the radio quiz show, phony phone calls from Stop The Music, Tello-Test etc. choke the lines. The other night a fellow in Austin Hall called his girl in New York and told her that she had just won four hundred thousand dollars. Then minutes later he got a call from her. She was through. After all, a girl with her money couldn't be seen with the common herd.

Yes, good old Alexander Grahac Bell must be spinning in his grave today. The instrument he worked so hard to perfect has become a monster. The proper use of the telephone has meant the difference between success and failure when some trusting youngster asks a girl for a date. It is a natural for the guy who used to throw firecrackers into the ladies powder rooms. It must be remembered, however, that without this great invention, you would have to listen to a woman for hours on end. Now you can always hang up.

Hey Junior!!

With the coming of Junior Week there will be many gala affairs but the one that will arouse the most ohs and ahs will be the annual Baby contest. The winner of the contest this year will be announced at the meeting of the Juniors on Mother's Day in the Field House. Along with being the "guest of honor," the Junior's junior will be given a ten-dollar ssving deposit at the Bryn Mawr Trust Company.

All Junior class members are asked to get the pictures of their sons into the Villanovan office, where they will be judged by a group of three judges. This contest will close on the twenty-sixth of April. There is no limit on the ages of the contestants, and more than one child in any family may be entered. All the pictures will be returned to their owners as soon as the judges have made their selection.

This may be the last contest of the sort for normal conditions will find fewer and fewer college students married. For this reason the Junior Week Committee urges the Junior Class to come through with a good response.

Pictured below is one of the many contestants who have been entered to date. He is six-year old Edmund Ciammaichelli, the son of Vincent Ciammaichelli, a Junior dayhop, who is majoring in Economics.

TRIVIA

by
Bob Carroll

I got a letter yesterday from this friend of mine who's going to one of the upstate colleges. We keep in pretty close touch with each other about what's going on here and there and the last thing I wrote him about was the clothing drive on the campus. I mean the letter that came out a little while back about wearing ties and coats. I didn't think much of it at the time because personally I don't like to wear a tie or anything heavy during the spring or summer and there are other reasons too. But his letter made me change my mind.

I expected him to feel pretty much the same way about rules like this clothes thing. We were in the Army together and neither of us liked it very much. But according to his letter he's changed.

He told me about the system they use up at his place and how it works out and how much he thought of it. They have to wear coats and ties and generally have to look pretty good for class just like we have to down here. But they sort of perfected the thing. The Engineers have to wear certain clothes and the Education students have to wear certain clothes and the Business men and every other group.

The Chemistry students and the Physics majors and the Pre-Meds and all the others who have to work in the labs have to wear dark clothes like serges and navy blues and deep browns and grays. The idea is that as long as they're going to get their suits spotted they better wear the colors that don't show the dirt. He said the Accountants and the Finance majors and the Business men generally are told to wear pin-stripes and worsteds to get the feel of good cloth and the feel of uniformity that businessmen have. In their senior year he said the Business students get a little money for each of them to carry around til they graduate so they're used to it when they get their jobs. This friend of mine's in the Education school and they're told to wear their oldest suits or their new ones which they're supposed to get pressed no more than maybe once very eight weeks.

He said it works out pretty well when they have assembly or anything like that. They all get together by their colors and it clears up a lot of trouble around registration and graduation.

Well, I'm not so keen about the idea as he is but I can see where it would do a lot of good. They probably had some kind of idea like that in mind when they started this clothes thing around here. I'd like to go all the way with them on it, but about the only suits I've got worthwhile are an old green one from high school and a seersucker thing I wear down to Wildwood week-ends.

The Fifth Column

by Mike Nolan
and
Jack Metzger

Little did we imagine just how large a following those two-merry makers Joe Grady and Ed Hurst had. But we do know that the following numbers two less than it did a few weeks ago. It seems that the "On The Air" lights are on the inside of the studio down at WPEN and you don't know that you've interrupted a program until you're inside and notice the announcer's eyes blinking alternately red and green. (Perhaps this is only true in the case of Joe Grady.) But our two heroes Joe Doyle and Joe McKeever barged into the 950 Club with reckless abandon, tripped over Ed Hurst, who was standing behind a microphone and couldn't be seen. In general, our two Joes gave one of the best performances in the history of the local radio station. Evidently, little Ed and the "fat boy from Roxborough" didn't see too much humor in it, so after bashing both their heads together and giving two points to Villanova, McKeever and Doyle were dismissed because THEY DIDN'T HAVE A MEMBERSHIP CARD.

Ralph Green refuses to give us Maggie McFarland's nickname— but persistent as we are—nothing escapes the eyes of the FIFTH COLUMN. Be sure to read this column next week to see if McNulty and Green fight a duel for the hand of this fair maiden. We suggest that she keep her hand—she'll find piano playing much easier that way.

The ultra-violet audience participation portion of G. E.'s "House of Magic" show brought out an interesting fact inasmuch as it revealed a person who bleaches (his or her) hair. Being alert we make this statement—Bob Pigeon bleaches his bald spot.

Pappy Bowers "the walking man" need look no longer for a means to send his daughter Queenie off to slumberland. To you, William we dedicate this sentimental ditty which we suggest you sing to your daughter nightly.

Sing a song of sixpuns
A belly full of slugs;
Four and twenty gangsters
Four and twenty gangsters
Fist upon their mugs.
When the story ended
Queenie went to sleep
Now wasn't that a quicker way
Than counting wooly sheep.

Members of the Villanovans, including Tom Paska and Red Murphy were so impressed by the musical rendition of "How Dry I Am" at the "House of Magic" show that they have decided to drop the brass section and include five acrobotacs instead. Maybe they could eliminate the drummer and just grab a handful of radium and put it in front of a Geiger counter—but that would mean musicians eventually would have to join both the musicians and electricians unions and then if secondary boycotts are permitted you'd find Spike Jones picketing in front of Phila. Electric and Joe Shaboonza and his five unemployed electricians picketing the Academy of Music because a non-union musician pulled a light chain over his music stand.

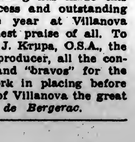
We understand that the Belle Masque has sent a card of appreciation Frank Ryan for the use of his nose in Cyrano.

John McHugh who doubles as an oar for the A. C.—reminds us that the Penn A. C. Dinner is scheduled for April 27 at Kenney's Restaurant in Camden. Among the water-logged Villanovans working part time dredging the Schuylkill for the Penn A. C. are Hugh McGuire, John Erin, Bob Penrose, John Kane, and Bernie Boyce.

Smokey Guizikowski has been smoking Chesterleds for nigh on to 25 years and still puts the lit end in his mouth first. He's done a great job distributing cigarettes and selling second-hand butts around the campus.

For the benefit of all the La Salle High Alumni at Villanova we mention the fact that the annual Alumni Breakfast will be held at the Adelphia Hotel preceded by Mass at St. John's—13th and Market.

An unusual oddity—Al Scarcelli is secretary of the Phi Kappa Pi. Al Scarcilli is an actor (?) in Cyrano. Al Scarcelli put an ad in the play program for the frat. What a politician this boy will be. Despite Scarcelli's presence the show was a tremendous success due especially to Ted Doyle's portrayal of Cyrano.



Bill McFartland, Jack Murakori, Frank Masciola, Bob O'Neill, and Dave McDermott are still bragging about the meal they had at the Chancellor Hall Hotel. They claim the steak was super, or words to that effect.

We understand that Al Abreu, editor of the Villanovan, Jack Bresnan, editor of La Salle's Collegian, and Ben Britt, editor of St. Joe's Hawk judged a hat contest at Rosemont recently. The hats must have been pretty nice, boys. Ah, the life of an editor!

Syncopatter

by
Mayer & Taten

Lacking any particular literary style of our own, we're sure you won't mind looking the other way while we lift a much-used gimmick to help out this week's effort. No doubt you're familiar with the "something old, something new, something borrowed, something blue" routine. Everyone seems to get it into the act sooner or later, and who are we to be different.

For something old (here's where we shine) you might try "High Society" by Louis Armstrong with Jack Teagarden on trombone and big Sid Catlett on drums. As an old dixieland standby it has been recorded by practically all the better groups, but we especially like this version. After hearing it you might be surprised to know that it was originally played on the way home from funerals in New Orleans.

At the risk of encroaching on Taten's domain with the "something new" we'll try to be broad-minded and suggest "Lullabye in Rythym" by "Charlie the Turncoat" Ventura. The first part is rather good, but around the middle someone steps in and makes "bop noises" at which time, for me, everything goes black.

In the "borrowed" category we'd gladly pilfer the whole story of George Brunis' life from last month's True magazine, but that would be plagiarism, and besides we don't have the room. Let it suffice for me to right perhaps the greatest wrong ever done my favorite trombone player, by informing one and all that he made "ugly Chile" famous long before Johnny Mercer ever thought of singing it. Furthermore, Mercer did not write the thing; it's a parody on an old jazz tune.

Finally for the "Blues" we'd like to give a glug to a new name in that category. There are very few gals who can really sing the blues, but after hearing Linda Keane's records via our own WVIL record programs, we feel that she has something that has been absent since Bessy Smith was in her prime. We'll even go out on a limb and say that she is the greatest white blues-singer around today.

Take it Bruce!

As long as we are digressing from the usual this time, there is a certain piece of music which I have been wanting to write about for quite some time. It is, in my opinion, representative of the best in serious modern interpretative music—and what good music isn't interpretative in some form? Those of you who saw "Words and Music" and who heard this gem and saw it enacted at the same time, will agree it was a memorable experience. By now you know—it's "Slaughter on Tenth Avenue" by Richard Hart. This composition was originally written in 1936 for the play "On Your Toes." It was not the immediate hit that it is now but was well received as a contribution to American music, and should be in your collection—you can probably pick it up at Ryall's in 69th street.

Football And Basketball Highlight Convocation

Bright prospects for the future based on successes of the past keynoted this year's second general convocation of the student body held in the Field House last Thursday afternoon during a one-hour suspension of classes. The features of this assembly were the congratulations extended to Coach Alex Severance and his victorious basketball team, and the presentation of the new football coach, Jim Leonard to the student body.

Rev. George J. McLaughlin, O.S.A., Director of Student Activities, delivered the invocation and presented the first speaker, Coach Severance. Addressing the students as "my Critics," the coach thanked them for their support during the past season, which, he declared, "... contributed greatly to the success of the team." The basketball mentor then cited the whole team, and Tom Sabol in particular, for the outstanding work this season, and promised the students that "Just as good a job, if not a better one, will be done next year."

The President of the College, Very Rev. F. X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., the next speaker, put forth "the more somber side of the convocation" as he outlined the spiritual, academic and physical aims of a Villanova education. He also commended the students for their support of all school activities in what he termed "the Villanova spirit," and expressed the wish that this spirit be carried over to the field of studies to facilitate the successful completion of the remaining quarter of the academic year.

In concluding, Fr. McGuire presented Jim Leonard, the new football coach whose talk was the final feature of the convocation. His initial appearance before the student body was marked by his promise that "the material on hand, plus the spirit of the student support will make a winning combination for next year."

Fr. McGuire then concluded the assembly with a prayer of thanksgiving.

Introducing . . .

Mr. Jim Leonard, new football coach, receives the welcome of the student body at the convocation held last Thursday afternoon.

ACCOUNTING SOCIETY HEARS NOTED C.P.A.

Mr. Ralph E. Cades, noted C. P. A. and educator, addressed the Accounting Honor Society last Wednesday in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium. The topic of his talk was "Aspects of Public Accounting and the College Graduate's Future in Public Accounting." This subject was particularly pertinent to the Seniors who must make a decision concerning the field of accounting they intend to work in.

The well-known C. P. A. trainer pointed out that the current trend is to make a college degree a requisite for entry into the profession, explaining that laws are being proposed to accomplish this particular end. Necessity for a proper attitude towards accounting training was stressed and a reminder that a broad, flexible course was needed by the Accounting major but that common sense and imagination were objectives of the good accountant. Common sense and imagination combined with a good basic accounting course will assure the college man success in accounting practice.

A question period was held after the talk was completed, Mr. Cades answering many queries from students concerning opportunities in the Public Accounting field and the C. P. A. exams. The talk, informally given, was easily one of the most interesting and instructive talks that the Society has heard.

President Edward Sutula introduced the speaker, and afterwards thanked Mr. Cades on behalf of the group. Plans are being made to present another speaker in line with the Society's objective of providing practical advice to the Accounting major by men in the field.

GLEE CLUB ATTENTION

Glee Club members who are to sing in "Cleo Was A Lady" are to meet in the Field House tonight at 8 P. M. for a rehearsal. You are urged to be prompt.

CATS BATTLE NAVY IN SPRING TILT

RIFLEMEN TOPPED BY VALLEY FORGE MILITARY ACADEMY

Villanova's NROTC Rifle Team suffered defeat at the hands of the cadets of Valley Forge Military Academy last Wednesday. The contest was held on the range in the Commodore John Barry building. Although our own Reserve Middies made a good showing, the superior marksmanship of the visitors was evident from the very outset.

This defeat came as no large surprise to the squad of Navy students since Valley Forge was well fortified with an impressive record from its previous matches. As a matter of fact, their victory over Villanova added to their string of victories to total a list of 21 positives for 23 tries. A good percentage of these matches were scheduled against local college teams. In a previous match the cadets out shot the first-termers from the Naval Academy at Annapolis. Sergeant Shields, the Valley Forge coach informed M/Sgt. George Huly of the Villanova staff that four of the five men who shot had been under his training for three years. Their experience was evidence by their performance.

Cadet Richter was high scorer of the day with 269, while Frank Gobes captured high scoring honors for the Villanova squad, with a total of 264. The totals for the two teams were 1294 for the victors and 1213 for Villanova.

Major Francis P. Dayton, USMC, has announced that an inter-squad match would be held today between the First and Second teams.

Princeton And N.Y.U. Top Cat Nine In Openers

By Ted Fernandes

The Villanova Wildcats lost their first two games of the season last week on the diamonds of the Princeton Tigers and N. Y. U. respectively. The New Jerseyites threw the first loss at the Cats by the score of 2-0, while the second defeat came at the hands of N. Y. U. with an 8-3 count.

With pitcher Bob Wolcott turning in a masterful performance the Tigers allowed only four hits to the Cats. Wolcott has pitched 17 consecutive innings without giving up a run. Shy Raiken, Cat right fielder gave the righthander a little trouble in the eighth when he hit a grounder down the middle with two men on, but nifty infield work prevented any score. The first three innings were scoreless but in the fourth the Tiger settled down and tallied its two runs on a walk, a single by Sammy Baird, and a long triple to right center by Larry Becker, a whirlwind sophomore first baseman. The Princeton runs were scored by Joe Prior and Baird. Raiken, Comerford, Allgeldinger and Morrin were the only Villanovans to hit safely. This was Princeton's third Victory in four starts as they dropped one to Fordham. Villanova moundsmen Stan Chojnacki turned in a very good performance for the Cats allowing only five hits, which speaks for itself.

Following the Princeton mishap the Mainliners traveled to the big city to face the New York University diamond men where they again were defeated. This second loss was due to five very costly errors made by the Cats. The Violets got only five hits to Villanova's six. NYU scored two runs in the third when Angelastro was safe on Larry Aigeldinger's error. Romano doubled and Marino singled. Villanove scored one in the fifth on Mike Donohues Triple and Charley Comerford's double. The Violets sewed up the game in the sixth with three runs on two errors, two walks and another hit by Marino.

The Wildcats gained single runs i nthe seventh and eighth innings because of the wild uncontrollable pitching of Mastuzzi. But the rally was short lived as the Violets came tearing back in their half of the eighth to net three more runs as

Track Season To Open At Seton Hall Relays

Squad Will Enter Penn Relays; 2 Home Meets Listed; Army Is Added to Schedule

By Bill Cooney

The track and field fraternity of Villanova have packed away their big board oval till next year and are now in the midst of preparations for an amitious campaign in the great outdoors.

The cinder season gets underway the weekend of April 22-23 with the running of the Seton Hall Relays in Newark's municipal stadium. The week after will find the Cats at Franklin Field for the historic Penn Relays. There will then be a meet here at Villanova with Seton Hall on May 4, and a triangular meet with Navy and Manhattan at Annapolis on the 7th. A home tilt with Maryland is on tap for the 14th while on the 21st another three way get-together with Army and Fordham at West Point. The IC4A Championships are slated for the 27th and 28th at New York Randall's Island. The New York A. C. games are on the fourth of June. Individual standouts will participate in the NCAA and AAU championships in the weeks following, but the A. C. games mark the end of the team's official season.

The schedule is basically the same as last year's except for the addition of Army. The Villanovans can except stiff competitio from the powerful Cadet squad, which is one of the best balanced in the East. Fordham, which the Wildcats suppressed in a dual contest last season may also be counted on to provide a lot of trouble for the Mainliners.

Strong in Sprints

This year the Blue and White seem to have plenty of power in the sprints and will probably make a strong bid for domination in that field at the relay carnivals. There is also a good chance that the Wildcats will go in for medley-relay supremacy. Last year at the Seton Hall carnival, Villanova set a new meet record in the distance medley (440, 880, 1320, mile) and may seek to repeat their victory. Then too, the smooth working quartet of McKenna, Irish, Holmes and McCreary, winners of the National Indoor Sprint Medley Crown, will no doubt seek to add a few outdoor laurels to their collection. This four could easily turn in better-than-average performances in the 440 and 880 relays also.

On the Wednesday following the Penn Relays, local track fans will get a chance to see the Cats do their stuff when they meet the powerful Seton Hall squad. There will be two races that shape up as naturels, the quarter and the half. In the quarter Jim McKenna will meet the Pirates' great Frank Fox, the IC4A 600 champ. McKenna, you remember wa sthird in that race, but Fox's victory was not decisive enough to make an outdoor victory a sure thing.

The half will probably see George Thompson against Phil Thigpen. Thigpen's record for the past indoor season seems to give hi ma slight edge over George but here again it's still not a sure thing.

Seek Win Over Terrapins

The other home meet will be against the University of Maryland. Last year the Baltimore lads gave Villanova its worst shallacking of the season. The cats did well in the distance thanks to Ross and Thompson, but with George Guida out because of an injury, Ed Matthews ran wild in the quarter and the sprints. This, plus having a weak field team sealed the fate of the Mainliners.

This year McKenna will challenge Matthews in the quarter and perhaps the sprints; while O'Neal in the high and broad jumps and Semple in the weights should use some very valuable points from the Terps.

Off To Early Start But Are Outlasted By Middies

Rogers Sets Pace as Team Nets 429 Yards; Line Play Hard; Cat Forward Wall Stars

By Bill Canino

With the sun shining brightly above and a brisk wind blowing off the Severn, Villanova's Wildcat football team swaped blood and guts with a do-or-die Naval Academy eleven last Saturday afternoon. The Mainliners, in this, their first Spring test, outshone the Middies during the first hour of the non-stop, three hour soiree but superior conditioning gave the somesters the advantage as the "T" party progressed

Since the adverseries limited their play to within the two 20 yard lines no score was kept but an unofficial count had the Blue-White amassing 6 touchdown to 5 win. Neither squad ran back punt returns and their were no kickoffs or tries for extra points but all other game conditions were fulfilled as Villanova became the second Navy guest in the same number of weeks. Seven days earlier the Naval outfit literally ran Georgetown into the ground.

Win on Statistics

In the statistics department, which is the only basis of comparison, the minions of Coach Jim Leonard held the edge. The 'Cats, who were without the services of injured fullback Pete D'Alonza, George Pavalko, first string guard and Halfback Mickey Frinzi, who is diverting his talents to baseball, gained a total of 429 yards while the Middies ran and passed their way for 370 yards. The 'Cats chalked up 18 first downs, 5 more than the Sailors and were the victims of five fumbles, one less than the Tars.

It was in the passing department that Navy was most devestating. Fourteen completed aerials in twenty-five attempts netted 161 yds. for the Blue and Gold. On the other hand the combined efforts of Steve Romanick, Neal O'Boyle, Dom Pendino and Jack Monaghan aided the Blue-White with 146 yards by virtue of 8 completions in 21 heaves. Three 'cat passes were intercepted.

Little Monaghan gained most of the yardage, 91, with his tosses while "Mechanical Knees Steve" completed 2 of his 5 chucks for 41 yards.

Rogers Leads the Way

In the running department oJe Rogers, showing signs of returning brilliancy, led the way. Rogers, who shuffled his wa yto be the top ground gainer in the East during the '46 season, picked up 49 yards in only 6 thrusts for an 8.1 average. With the second best running average was Freshman star, Reds Coletta. The former Southern High luminary carried the ball four times and gained 34 yards. Hard running Johnny Geppi mauled his way for a net of 42 yards while Freshman Franny Dunne picked up 30 yards in 6 attempts. Joe Till, an-

GOLFERS TIE 4½-4½ WITH HAVERFORD; LOSE TO LOYOLA

By Neal Fahy

Last Wednesday afternoon at St. David's Golf Course in Wayne, Villanova's golf team tied Haverford 4½-4½ in the first match of the season for both squads. On Friday, the lynx linksmen lost to Loyola 8½-½ at the Mt. Pleasant Municipal course in Baltimore.

A strong wind and lack of practice told on both teams Wednesday as the scores were all high. John Trayer took low medal for the day with an 85. In the first matches, Don Weiland shot an 86, high for him, and lost 3 down and 2 to play. His partner, Joe Hohenlightner, fell down on the last hole after being even at the end of 17. This pair dropped best ball 2 and 1.

In the second round John Trayer took his match 1 up as his partner Bill Huber was trounced 4 and 3. However, these two managed to win best ball 1 up. At this point in the match ,the scorecard showed the Fords out front 4 to 2.

In the last foursome to go out, Bob Fowers, manager-coach of the team, won his match 2 and 1 while Joe Crossin ended on top 2 up. The best ball in this match came out all even thus accounting for the tie.

In avenging last season's defeat suffered at the hands of Haverford, the Villanovans performed well considering the difficulties and handicaps they had to undergo with a student coach and hardly any practice rounds.

Lose to Mason-Dixon Champs

John Trayer saved the Wildcats from being shut out on Friday at Baltimore ending the eighteen holes even with his partner. The match would have been played off, but had to be called on account of darkness. Trayer carded an 83 for the day. Don Weiland lost his match 5 and 4 and shot an 88.

Hohenlightner was beaten on the thirteenth hole 6 and 5. Huber lost 4 and 3 as all three foursomes lost best ball in sizable figures.

The last group of 'Cat linksmen to go out came close to their opponents while still losing. Bob Powers and Joe Crossin both fell 2 and 1. Crossin shot an 86, second low medal for the Wildcats. Last year, Villanova beat Loyola 9to 2. Loyola wonthe Mason Dixon Conference championship in golf that season.

Austin Takes Second Half; To Meet Alumni

Mondschein Inc. & Klucsarits

Austin and Alumni copped the honors in the Resident Loop for the 48-49 season with the former taking second-half honors compiling a 7-0 record. Alumni took the first half crown, sporting a similar record. A playoff between the two teams, for the seasonal diadem is now being arranged. The regular league schedule will be concluded this evening, but the games will have no effect on the final standings.

Since the VILLANOVAN last went to press, six contests were staged in the league.

On Tuesday, March 29, the high-powered Eks. 1 4 outfit piled up a 38-17 half-time lead over winless Good Counsel, and then outscored their opponents by 20 points in the last stanza to score an overwhelming 80-39 triumph. Tom Flynn and Tom Falkowski once more were the big guns for the winners. Flynn was unstoppable, pouring in 35 markers, while Falkwski had 26 points to show for the evening. For Good Counsel, O'Donnell had 15 and Brick caged 10. Mondschein, Inc. officiated.

Doms Win 57-42

Eks. 2 &3 dropped their fifth consecutive game, in the windup, bowing to the Doms by a 57-42 count. The Doms victory came largely as a result of better teamwork and passing . Bill Knecht led the Doms' attack scoring 18 points and Dick Altman contributed 12. Jim Selgrath had 14 for the losers and Jerry Weber chipped in with 12 to salvage scoring honors out of the loosely coordinated attack displayed by the Barracks. Harry Range and Bill Canino refereed.

Austin rolled over Mendel to the tune of 65-29 in a contest played a week ago. Mendel put up a great fight inthe initial canto by battling Austin's vaunted attack to a standstill. The winners held a slim 19-17 advantage at the intermission but the boom was lowered in the last half. Limiting Mendel's scoring to three field goals, Austin won going away. Lemmer and Brennan with 12 and Joe Doris with 10 led the well-distributed scoring for Austin. Benny Moskel's 9 points was Mendel's best effort. Joe Griggs and Don Scott called the game.

Good Counsel came back gamely from a 32-3 disadvantage, but never got close to Alumni's high-flying squad as the latter garnered a 64-29 victory. Everyone got into the act and O'Donnell of the losers had 13 points to cop game honors. Buckley and Doyle scored 11 apiece to pace Alumni's scoring parade. Perry Del Purgatorio and George Twin officiated.

Austin Romps

On Thursday, April 7, Austin massacred the Doms 76 to 40, thereby clinching the second half title. By virtue of this victory, Austin gained the right to meet Alumni, winners of the first half, in a best two out of three series commencing Monday, April 11. However, the decision won't be settled until after the holidays.

The second half champs got off to a slow start, playing on even terms the first five minutes. They finally hit their stride and by half-time there was little doubt of the outcome, the score being 37-20. Once again Bill Lemmer proved his basketball abilities by his amazing shooting and topped the game's scoring with twenty-eight points. Everyone of Austin's ten-man squad hit the scoring column. Bob Healey and J. Heigel led the Doms scoring each with nine points. Tom Madonia and Tom Falkowski tooted the whistles.

The nightcap saw Barracks One and Four trounce Fedigan's five, 70-30. Tom Flynn led Jim Plunkett's crew with 34 points for the losers only scoring punch. Bill Klucsarits and R. Mondschein refereed.

Dog Hop League

The Rolling Roadsters took over undisputed possession of first place in the afternoon league with a decisive 53-39 win over the previously unbeaten Bugs. By jumping off to an 18-1 lead in the first quarter the Roadsters assured themselves of victory. The Bugs scored in spurts but failed to produce a consistent drive. Mallon's scoring in the late stages made him the high point-gatherer with 17 markers, while the aggressive K. Murray hit for 13. For the Bugs, Mandarano and Germano shared scoring honors with 15 points each. Tiedeken and Selgrath handled the Whistles.

Invaders Win

Brown's Bombers fell before the onslaught of the Invaders in the windup, 53-35. The speed and passing of the latter overcame the height advantage enjoyed by the losers in the roughly-played battle. O'Brein, mainly on a fast break accounted for 13 of the winners' points, while the deadly set shots of Susich were good for 12. Rosata, of the Bombers took game honors with 15 markers. Selgrath and Batter refereed.

The Chem Engineers took the departmental championship with a close 26-23 win over the Chem Majors. The contest was deadlocked almost throughout before the Engineers managed to eke out the victory. Gerry Connell was the outstanding player on the floor, pacing his team's scoring with 10 points. Ream and Brodnyan scored 7 each in the losing cause. Joe Griggs and Grodovich wore the striped shirts.

In the only other game played last week the Rolling Roadsters outclassed the Arts Dayhops, 50-32. Displaying a marked superiority in all departments ,the league leaders had little trouble in disposing of the Arts' bid. The husky center of the Roadsters, Zajak, took scoring laurels with 8 baskets for 16 points. Mallon followed in the point column with 12. Joe Letty matched this output to lead the losers. Vince Pica and Gorman officiated the contest.

AUSTIN-ALUMNI SQUAD TOPS MENDEL IN POLO

It's a long way between goals and often more than a mere interval to the surface again when you are playing water polo. Members of the Austin & Alumni water polo were elated to see their attempts at scoring prove successful five times while the principals of the Mendel squad seemed glad enough just to see the surface of the greenish waters.

Austin and Alumni under the adept leadership of Gene Eagen roared to a 5-1 triumph over the Mendel natators who were led by Joe Gallen.

Hank Burke of Austin was the first to draw a point in one of the speediest frays ever staged in the Field House pool. Hank took a pass from Dick Spence about four yards from pay territory and began gliding towards it. Hank took a shot at the goal and missed. Joe Gallen in the role of defensemen snatched the apple on the rebound but Hank took the pellet just as quickly from Joe. The two opponents fought down into the murky green and various glimpses of limbs and torsos were seen by the spectators to rustle the rippling surface in this contest for possession of the ball. Finally, both of them emerged in the fresh air and Hank passed to Gene Eagen who was hugging the ledge in front of the goal. Gallen lunged for Eagen Gene passed to Hank and Hank dropped it through the nets for a counter.

The lone score for Mendel came as a result of a pass from Bill Day to Joe Gallen who did an excellent job of dropping it into the makeshift nets for a tally.

The game itself was speeded up by using benches for goal posts and permitted passing through for a goal at any point from which a player thought he had the ability to score.

The Mendel combine failed to appear for the scheduled Thursday meet against the Alumni - Austin team.

Tribute to Greatness

What words of praise can I bestow
On athletes such as they,
Whose sportsmanship and marksmanship
So dominate each fray?
What gratitude can I express
For the thrills I shan't forget?
What homage can a young girl pay
To boys she's never met?
A tribute to them I can pay,
Though a tribute small it be,
A tribute to courageous hearts
And renowned ability,
To the very way they play the sport.
These masters of the game,
With disregard for personal laurels
Their formula for fame.
They've learned to forget the petty things
With basketball always fore,
And give and give till they give their all
And, yet, then give some more.
I could not choose among them
To single out a star,
For each one's so important,
No player could I bar.
Paul Arizin with his jump shots,
Joe Hannan with his sets,
Brooks Ricca driving under,
Tom Sabol slashing the nets,
Weglicki, Raiken, Perry too
Are worthy of hard-earned applause,
And Crossin, Gecker, Holland and Dolan
Have aided the Wildcats' cause.
And every team must have someone
To keep them as a team,
To use his brains while others use brawn,
Captain Leo Wolf, I mean.
I shall not recount the golden deeds
On the court each one has done,
I'll acknowledge their greatness as a team,
As a team—a terrific one.
For these boys are basketball players
From the day the season starts,
No wonder they play a champions' game,
They all have champions' hearts.

SHAWN VARYAN

From The Sidelines . . . .

By Harry Range, Sports Editor

With the past season now a part of court history, we turn the sportlight to next December when the Mainliners will again make their bid for the NCAA championship.

The 1949-50 season will be a departure from previous years with more games, fewer road contests, and at least six games at the Pallestra. Beside these features, the Cats have also been invited to participate in the Sugar Bowl tournament at New Orleans.

Now for an explanaton of the items mentioned. First, instead of the usual 25 games, next season will find the cagers participating in 28 or 30 contests, the majority of which will be played at home or at the Palestra. It is certain that there will be ten games at the Field House with six or more at the Palestra. For the games played at the Field House the admission will be the same as usual, your matric card. However, for the double headers with Penn at the Palestra no final verdict has been reached as yet so we'll just have to sit and wait until the Athletic Boards of both schools come through with a release.

Regarding the Sugar Bowl Classic, Villanova will participate with Tulane, Bradley, and Kentucky, on the 30th and 31st of December. The basketball playoff will be part of the sports extravaganza which closes with the Sugar Bowl football game on January 2.

With the outlook definitely bright on the football scene we feel that a Sugar Bowl bid for the eleven is not too far out of the realm of possibility. How about the cagers playing in the dribble derby and two days later Leonard's Lads showing up on the gridiron??? Stranger things have happened.

With more than the usual amount of home (here we'll consider the Palestra as home) games being played next season, it was therefore necessary to cancel a number of away contests. It is hoped that the Athletic Board will be able to have these games transferred to the Field House or the Palestra. If all arrangements can be made next seasons' schedule will be the best in the history of the school and with the same team and the same coach it should also be the greatest season.

Marino hit a safety with the bases loaded. John Morony twirled a good game for the Villanovans but the defeat was the result of poor backing from his fellow teammates. Morony allowed only five hits to the New Yorkers and showed plenty of the well known stuff. Shy Raiken, Donahue and Morris scored for the Cats. Although the Cats have not come into their own as yet we have great expectancies of what they will do in the future for the material is certainly present.

It is felt that this will prove to be valuable practice for the shoulder-to-shoulder matches in the future.

other hard runner, caused the Navy added grief.

Hard Line Play

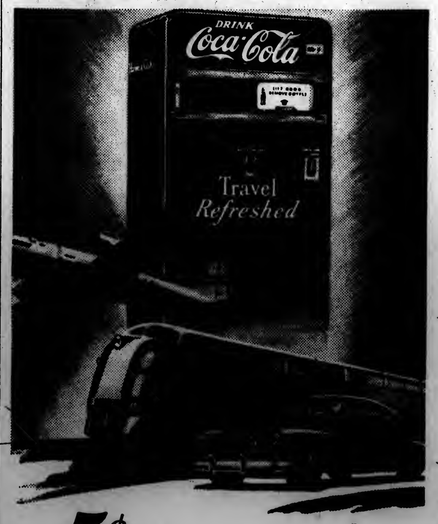
The line play, which was brutal and oft-times bloody, provided a real test for the Villanova forward wall. Most of the men played heads-up ball while many were superb. Center John Witch, guards Ed Lannigan, Jim Smith and Pete Limnni, tackles John Sandusky, Nick Leotta, and Ray Mantone and ends Dan Brown, Al Schmidt, John Gatusso, Jack Patrick and Ed Coughlin all displayed moments of brilliancy.

Coughlin turned in one of the finest exhibitions of running as he side stepped his way through the Navy secondary after snaring a Monaghan pass. Schmidt provided his share of the thrills with some great punting. One of his high, spirling boots traveled over 70 yards in the air and bounced its way for 15 more yards.

As is the case in such fiery scrimmages neither team escapes unscathed. The diminutive Geppi ran into big Bill Wilson, 6' 2" 200 pound Navy end and was put to rest for over 20 minutes. Halfback Jack Moran suffered pains from a previously bruised hip while Brown was also forced out early in the battle.

Inadequet Pass Defense

Although the coaches seemed pleased with the results of the scrimmage, there is much concern over the condition of the squad and the lack of an adequate pass defense. But before the opening whistle next Fall Coach Leonard and his assistants should have these shortcomings overcome.



The Middies, who have another tough schedule facing them, are a spirited club and their will to win may well be a deciding factor in many of their games. They were constantly being crushed in the early minutes of Saturday's scrimmage but they carried on the fight until they finally wore down the opposition. We can't count a team like this out until the final gun.

Three more intercollegiate matches remain for the only team representing Villanova in a minor sport. These are with Drexel, Rider and LaSalle with a possible match with Fordham if a mutually acceptable date can be arranged.

ly, Vandenberg, Langer, and Pepper. The House was in recess due to the death of Rep. Andrew L. Sommers (N. Y.), father of Villanova alumnus Arthur Sommers, '40.

Rep. William T. Granahan (2nd District, Phila.) started the Villanova men on their second day with a short talk, after which the group scattered to attend various Congressional Committee meetings. Some attended the House ways and Means Committee session, hearing testimony of Secretary of Labor Maurice Tobin onextension of Social Security, while others attended a meeting of the Senate Judiciary Committee. The rest of the day was spent hearing Paul M. Herzog, Chairman of the NLRB, Dr. Matsui, of Doshisha University (Japan), and being received by Lowell B. Mason, Acting-Chairman of the Federal Trade Commission and by James Mitchell of the Civil Service Commission.

An outstanding feature of the third day was the granting of an exclusive interview by Justice Harold Burton, of the Supreme Court, in his chambers, in which he discussed the Court and its methods of operation. Later, the men heard Senators Fullbright and Maybank before the Senate Finance Committee urging the repeal of th oleomargarine tax. Sen. Francis Myers (Pa.) then conferred with the student group. A tour of the fabulous Pentagon Building was conducted under the direction of Mr. Stohl, Director of Administrative Offices for the Secretary of Defense. A finale included a visit to the Anti-Trust Division of the Justice Department, where Asst. Attorney General Herbert Bergson and his special assistant, Mr. Rudolfo Correa, outlined their duties.

The excursion was a great success, and the various divisions of officials contacted were enthusiastic in their praise of the field trip.

After proclaiming as, "the damning feature of modern industrial life", the strife between capital and labor Father Cronin praised the alleviation of the fact by the general recognition and practice of three factors toward industrial peace.

The first of these, as stated, is the willing acceptance of unionism by the large corporations with the realization that unions actually simplify labor - management relations. The second was defined as the progress toward friendliness between capital and labor resulting in better cooperation and the meeting of the two groups on more amicable terms. The last was the movement toward management-labor partnership stimulated by the application of human relations, participation, teamwork, and communication of ideas between the factions.

In conclusion, Father Cronin warned that Catholics must become aware of the laws of modern econtian solution as expounded in Papal encyclicals to this problem so long neglected by them.

The next and final lecture of this series, announced Mr. Bruderle, will be given on May 12th by Dr. Hugh Scott Taylor of the Chemistry Dept. of Princeton University. His topic will be "Man and Science".

Synocopatter

The basic story is simple. Boy meets girl; boy takes girl dancing where she is shot by jealous swain; fight ensues and boy is also killed. Thus reduced it isn't very stirring but the dancing of lovely Vera Ellen and Gene Kelly put it over in dynamic form. The music is hauntingly beautiful, and the type that stays with one for a long time. It may roughly be divided into two themes, the street and dancing theme which is built around a simple melody and the sounds of the street, and the highly gripping struggle which is expressed by emotional variations on a powerful theme of contrasts. This is music to be remembered!

In the current field we find Peggy Lee with another good platter to her credit. This time she has ventured into the field of Afro-Cuban music to produce a really different effect that is most welcome in this day of revivals. "Simlio" has that infectious African beat coupled with Peg's artistry and some good vocal background work. It's catchy and should prove to be a good seller for Mr. and Mrs. Lee (hubby Dave Barbour does the guitar accompaniment). Till after the holidays—good listening and put away all the food in sight.

Last Thursday evening the Industrial Relations Club was addressed by Mr. George Keller, merchandising executive for Sears and Roebuck. More than 200 students were on hand to hear his remarks concerning the vast Sears and Roebuck merchandising system.

Mr. Keller was introduced to the group by Rev. William Gordon, O. S.A., moderator of the Industrial relations students. He proceeded to explain in detail the general set-up of the store's network and how it functioned. Also explained were the personnel benefits and policies, which are some of the most modern and generous found today. Opportunities for the college graduate were outlined for those men interested in the merchandising fields.

After the talk a regular business meeting was held to discuss plans for a Washington trip. It was decided to take the B & O train to Washington on April 27. Full details are to be announced later and the members will be asked to register for the trip.

tounding. He has purchased huge quantities of lumber, light and heavy, and a varied assortment of other materials. He is receiving some technical assistance from the Engineering Department, but the nature of the aid has not been ascertained.

Tremendous Demand

Due to tht tremendous demand for tickets that is expected, the number to be sold might of necessity be limited. Al Huelsenbeck, the Ticket Chairman, therefore urges that those desiring to attend buy their tickets early. The sales will be restricted to Juniors only this week, and wil be available to the other classes after the Easter holidays.

Joe Quill, Program Chairman, promises to provide pretty, leather-bound souvenir programs for the ladies. He is currently soliciting for patrons, and requests that Juniors and others who desire to be listed get in touch with him.

Rev. Henry J. Egan, O.S.A., Class Moderator, will then address the group. Following Fr. Egan's talk the Winner of the Junior of Junior Week Contest will be presented to the Juniors and their Mothers. At that time the winner will be awarded a prize consisting of a $10 deposit in the Bryn Mawr Trust Co. Photos are now being accepted for entry in the contest.

The day's activities will end with the singing of the Villanova Alma Mater.

All Juniors who expect to have their mothers here for the day are asked to pay an assessment of one dollar which will be used to cover cost of corsage and other incidental expenses. It is hoped that all payments will be made before the Easter vacation.

Alumni Dance

The Annual Alumni Spring Dance will be held April 29 at the Bala Golf Club. This dance is sponsored by the Villanova Club of Philadelphia each year and is one of the top Alumni functions of the year. Tickets will sell for $3.50 per couple, tax included.

Concert Planned For Junior Week

Edward Anzur, Chairman of the Junior Week Concert, has announced that Rev. Ralph Handran, O.S.A. has prepared an excellent program for the entertainment of all music lovers. The concert, sponsored annually by the Junior Class, will be held on Tuesday, May 3, in the Field House. All students and their friends are invited to attend. Invitations will be distributed after the Easter recess. Admission will be free.

VILLANOVAN

Vol. 24 — No. 20 VILLANOVA COLLEGE, VILLANOVA, PA. Tuesday, May 3, 1949

Rt. Rev. Monsignor Francis Fluery speaking to gathering at dedication of the new college library.

Weather Refuses To Smile At Dedication Of Library

Exercises Televised; Msgr. Fluery Presides

Friday of Easter Week was marked by the dedication of the Villanova College Library. The day was also marked by a steady down pour at Villanova so that the exercises were re-scheduled to take place in the beautiful new reading room.

Because His Eminence Dennis Cardinal Dougherty, Archbishop of Philadelphia, was ill and unable to attend, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Francis Fluery presided in his place.

Also unable to attend was the principle speaker of the afternoon, Dr. Carlos E. Castaneda, PhD, Professor of History, University of Texas, Rev. Edward McCarthy, O.S.A., Dean of Arts School, read Dr. Castaneda address however during the exercises.

Televised

The proceedings were carried over WFIL-TV, a Philadelphia television station for broadcast that evening. Very Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, O.S.A., Prior of the Monastery gave the Invocation while Very Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., President of Villanova College offered greetings to the guests. Chairman of the Board of Trustees, Very Rev. Mortimer A. Sullivan, O. S. A., presented the building and Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O.S.A., Librarian, accepted it.

JUNIORS HOST TO MOTHERS OF CLASS

More than 275 mothers were guests of their sons at the traditional Mother's Day exercises held yesterday by the Junior Class. This was the largest number of mothers ever to attend the popular function since its institution. Although the size of the group necessitated a few changes in regular schedule, the committee arranged the program so that all exercises were conducted smoothly. Fine weather helped to make the entire day a great success.

Before the 11:00 o'clock Mass, corsages were distributed to the mothers and then all attended the Mass during which Very Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., President, delivered a short sermon and greeted the guests. The sons received Holy Communion in a body.

After the tree planting ceremonies and a tour of the campus lunch was served in the cafeteria. Because of the large group it was necessary to serve the luncheon in sections. A number of freshmen volunteered to wait on tables, a new practice expected to be made traditional.

At the Field House the group was treated to a two-hour entertainment which included a talk by Rev. Henry J. Egan, O.S.A., Class Moderator, a few selected features from the coming Turf and Tinsel production of "Cleo was a Lady", presentation of little George Sabo, as Junior of Junior Week, and a short concert by the Band and Glee Club under the direction of Rev. Ralph E. Han-

The Informal concert has become a traditional affair and each year attracts many students and their guests. Admission is free and everyone is welcome. Students are urged to bring friends and relatives for an evening of pleasant music.

Both the Band and Glee Club have been very busy during the past few months with an ambitious concert schedule, playing at various colleges in the area and at many parishes locally. Some of the specialties which have been featured in the popular concerts and which will be features of tonight's program are a trumpet duet by Ed Anzur and John Bianchi, and vocal solos by Martin Binder and Peter Gutwald.

The program under the direction of Rev. Ralph E. Handran, O.S.A., will include:

NOMINATIONS TODAY AS STUDENTS BEGIN CHOOSING OFFICERS

Now is the time for all Freshmen, Sophomores, and Juniors to come to form their parties! Student politics are again coming into the spotlight with the announcement by Rev. George McLaughlin, O.S.A., Dean of Student Activities, plans for this year's campus-wide elections.

The rules governing extra-curricular activity as contained in the Student Handbook provide that "Nominations of Officials for all Organizations and Classes be held not later than the second week in May, elections to be held the following week," and "Junior Class elections are to be held the week after Junior Week."

In accord with this, Fr. McLaughlin has directed that nominations for the Freshman Class will take place on Tuesday, May 3rd., at 12 noon in the C & F Auditorium. Sophomores are scheduled to nominate on Thursday, May 5th., at 8 P. M. in the C & F Auditorium, and Juniors will name the candidates for their class officers some time next week. Final notices and possible changes in plans will be posted on the bulletin boards.

All elections will be held on May

New Lounge Open For Junior Week

This past weekend the new Lounge was opened. Located in Austin Hall on the site of the old Library, renovations and refurnishings have been completed. Opening at this time gave the mothers who were here to celebrate Mother's day yesterday, an opportunity to view the recent addition.

The furnishings now include tables and chairs that fill the two rooms of the lounge. The Student Council will add a television set next September. This will be available to the entire student body.

Rules for the use and maintenance of the lounge have been published by the Moderator of Student Activities, Rev. George J. McLaughlin, O.S.A., and approved by the office of the Vice-President. It will be open from 9 in the morning until 11 in the evening and all stu-

Prom And Blazer Ball Highlight The Social Events Of The Week

Dinner Dance Invitations Completely Sold Out in Day; Pastor Orchestra Set for Prom

With Tony Pastor and his orchestra as the feature attraction the Junior Prom, only four days away, is a near sell-out, according to Ted Doyle, Committee Chairman, in a recent announcement. The formal dance is the outstanding affair of a week filled with gala dances of all kinds. Wednesday night, the Field House will be the site of the popular informal Blazer Ball, with the Villanovans under the baton of Red Murphy providing the music. The Adelphia Hotel's Roof Garden on Saturday night will see more than 200 Junior class members escorting their ladies to the Junior Dinner Dance to be held there.

Tony Pastor needs no introduction to listeners of recorded music via the radio or juke box.

His vocal stylings of popular

ballads along with those of the Clooney sisters have made recording business history. Tony's dance offerings are selections of ballads, standard numbers, Latin and instrumental music.

"Blue Notes"

The Blue Notes, a snappy combo, will provide the intermission music, a feature which should meet the approval of all who attend.

As usual, the decoration theme will be secret to the end but of course they promise to be the most startling yet.

Even the Blazer Ball Committee is looking forward to the most successful dance of its kind in years. Ticket sales have been very brisk and the door sales are expected to be high also. Dancing on Wednesday to the music of the Villanovans will begin at 9:00 P. M. and end at 1:00 A. M. Jack White and his committee have been busy preparing the Field House for the gala affair.

Dinner Dance

As for the Dinner Dance, to be held in town on Saturday evening, it is the one exclusively Junior affair of the week besides Mother's Day. All invitations were distributed on the first day that they were made available to the class. The "Blue Notes" again will be playing the dance music for the Juniors. This combo features Frank Teti on the piano, and he will play all during the dinner, the combo then playing from the end of the dinner till midnight.

The complexities of the entire week are the problems of Mike Marshall, General Chairman, who was aided greatly by Committee Chairmen Dick Ruane, Ed Anzur, Wally Dietrich, Bill Leighton, Ted Doyle and Jack White.

Little George Success At Early Age; Jr. of Jr. Week

"Little G", whose birth certificate is supercilliious, officious, and formal enough to describe him as George Sabo, III, has been selected as "Junior" of Junior Week from the many baby pictures submitted to the VILLANOVAN which, in turn, were given to Miss Bette Leonardo, a commercial artist, (who also makes quite a picture; due to legal technicalities the phone number cannot be released). In judging, Miss Leonardo (let's call her Bette) said that all the babies were beautiful and the decision was a difficult one to make.

"Minute Gamma", "Little G" to the less literate, deserves his victory on another count, too. Bare (?) with me this is a little hard to say . . . He is not only a Junior of Junior Week, because of the three regal I's on the end his title which make him a Junior Junior's Junior of Junior Week. If it doesn't click right away don't worry about it. It simply means that his grandfather-on-his-father's side's name was George Sabo, and his father's name is George Sabo Jr.

His dad is a Junior in Mechanical Engineering, and hails from North Tarrytown, New York, but lives in Bryn Mawr during his stay at Villanova. Mom is Carolyn Jean Sabo from Sulphur, Oklahoma whom dad met while in the service. If this explanation doesn't suffice

All About Elections

Class elections are to be held soon, and so, now is the time that we point out the responsibilities for both the candidate and the voter to take into consideration before either takes any further steps.

We believe that there are several positions in a class organization which require more than the winner of a popularity contest to fill. These positions should be filled only by men who are willing to sacrifice a little time and effort to their jobs and have a realization of the confidence others have in them. Probably the most important of the positions to be filled in this sense in the coming elections is the position of Student Council Representative.

The nominees should realize that if they are elected to the office for which they have been nominated there are certain sacrifices of time and effort which will be demanded of them. Many times nominees find an election a wonderful opportunity to measure their popularity or think "what a great thing it will be to write home about if I am elected." The size of classes at Villanova has increased and so his the responsibility of class officers. If a man who has been nominated to run for a certain office does not believe he will be able to devote the proper attention to it, for any reason, he has the duty to his classmates to decline the nomination.

Voters, too, play an important part in deciding the success of the post-election class administration. Of course we have to remind every one of the importance of his one vote. How can anyone elected, truly represent his class if only 50% of its members turn out for the election? Also, it is up to the voter to carefully consider each and every candidate by his merits. Often the lament, "How did he ever get in?" has been heard and the answer nearly always lies with the lamenting one.

Some of the serious considerations of the class elections may be forgotten in the heat of campaigning, so think now of whom you want representing you for an entire year, and maybe you won't be moaning for an entire year.

New Lounge

Now with the new Library completed and the renovations finished on the old quarters of the former reading room in Austin we have a place beside the busy Pie Shop and some poor bloke's room to relax. That place is the new lounge.

When word was first put forth about the planned facility everybody's reception went something like this: "That will be fine; if . . ." The ifs were long and varied but they all boiled down to common sense. At least it showed that the majority of students realized that to make it work the men who used it would have to be considerate and in a way responsible.

Eating, of course, has been forbidden, but the care of the place will have to go beyond that. Proper extinguishing of cigarettes, and disposal of ashes, using chairs for seats and not beds, and gentlemanly conduct are some of the musts that also must be followed.

Sunday is Mothers' Day; your mother's, my mother's, and all mothers'. It is just one day of each year set aside for, and dedicated to our female parent. Every mother, whether living or dead, is a saint—a martyr to the cause of humanity. They are self-sacrificing beings who dedicate their very lives to their off-spring.

A mother is the home, the food, the mind, the conscience, even the soul of her child until it is born. After birth the Mother's part in the life of the child becomes less. After the child is born the mother is no longer its home and shelter. She is then only his food, his mind, his conscience. But she takes on additional jobs as she loses each old one. As the child is born she becomes the gentle playmate and ferocious protectress. She is the only living being who can translate his screams and thus supply his needs. Hers is the only voice that can soothe him to slumber. Her hand is the only one that he will clutch when he is afraid, the one he will cling to tenaciously as sleep overtakes him.

As he reaches the age of reason the mother has built within him a conscience of his own, and she then falls heir to the job of tutor. At adolescence she is placed in the position of an advisory board and must exert all of her mental energy to guide her child's moral life. During his High School years she must mold his character. After marriage her duties are doubled for she has two charges. She is then a patient listener to marital troubles. And, no matter how that son or daughter grows, it is always her child—her "Baby", her responsibility.

The only thanks for her love a Mother can be given is a deep understanding love in return.

I saw a star
In the great dark sky
It brought to mind
The gleam in your eye.

I saw the snow
On the field out there,
It brought to mind
Your silvery hair.

I heard a lark
At the blue sweet air.
It brought to mind
Your voice, and your prayer.

I heard a groan
At a death-bed scene.
It brought to mind
The sorrows you've seen.

Yes, You are there
In everything I see, or hear, or touch,
For your presence there
I thank you and God very, very much.

TOWN TALK

By PHILIP A. RICHARD

In recent months there has been a great deal of talk about the new systems of record making. Two competing companies have announced two radically different methods of reproducing sound on records. In order to clarify the situation to some degree, here are the advertised advantages of both systems.

RCA Records

A few months ago RCA Victor placed on sale the new 45-r.p.m. records which are seven inches in diameter, and made of vinyl plastic. They are recorded with a maximum of 274 lines to the inch and each record plays for the same length of time as an ordinary 12-inch 78 r.p.m. record. In other words they play for between four and slightly over five minutes.

Good Fidelity

The principle advantage of these new records is the extreme high fidelity with which they reproduce the sound. It is true that the fidelity is much higher than the regular shellac type records, but it is thought that they compare with the 33⅓ r.p.m. records of Columbia very well.

Another advantage of the new records of RCA Victor is the placing of a shoulder in the center of the record to prevent the scraping of the recording surface against one another on the changer or in storage. This is a definite advantage over the completely flat records, since some record wear is found to occur in sliding the records.

New Design

Special equipment is required to play the new records of both RCA and Columbia since of the radical design. In the case of RCA, a complete new machine is needed since the hole is 1½ in diameter, and in the case of Columbia the turntable speed is 33⅓. In either case new equipment can be purchased, but it is possible, if you are handy with a soldering iron to convert your present Webster. (If you have one) into a long-player (33⅓).

The new type changer developed to play the RCA records has peeled the changing time to 3 to 4½ seconds. In answer to this, the very newest type Webster automatic changers will change the records in something more than 5 seconds, that is, the standard type records.

Columbia Records

The Columbia long-playing records present a similar picture in the field of high fidelity reproduction, but with the very definite advantage of practically 45 minutes of uninterrupted music. In this way a complete symphony can be placed on one side of a record, for the shorter works, and complete movements of the larger works.

Cetra Records

Now, as to what type of record is the best, nothing can be said, since both are still in the process of development, and the "War" between the companies is still raging. A number of companies have announced that they intend to follow the Columbia system of long-playing. Most notable of these is Cetra. This is of particular interest to the opera lovers since complete operas are available on Cetra records that are not available on any other make of records. A point was the prohibitive cost of the original shellac records. The original Cetra long-playing records retail at about $5.25. So for $10.00 one can buy a complete opera that would cost $37.00 or more on the standard records.

Mercury

Mercury also announced that they would produce records under the Columbia system as did the recently revived German Telefiunken Company. Capitol stated that they would use the RCA system.

Just one word—wait and see what the British Victor (HMV) and British Columbia companies decide to use as a long playing system. HMV has a mind of its own and it may bolt away from the home company. After this make your own decisions on what type to buy.

THE ROOT OF ALL

By Bill Breninghouse

To quote an oft-abused saying, "In spring a young man's fancy turns to thoughts of what young women have been thinking of all year round." And thus it was with our hero, Oscar Twomp. The time had come for him to take some lucky lady out for one terrific fling in the social whirl, ah, the places he would go, the town's classiest eat-outery, the swankiest night-spots, perhaps the theater. All he needed now was girl and a little money. The girl was easy. He just called up pert and pretty Polly Popplehomer over at Immacumont Hill College. She was only too glad to wave aside her myriad other appointments to go out with our brave and handsome Oscar.

As for the money, Mr. Twomp could arrange that easily. Why just last week, he went down to the post office and found that his folks had sent him a package containing three hot pastrami sandwiches and a brand new ten-dollar bill. He paid his roommate the three dollars and sixty-seven cents that he owed him since Christmas and bought a three cent stamp so he could thank his folks for their kindness and urge them to keep up the good work.

Unfortunately for poor Oscar, that mail also brought a notice from his country club to the effect that if he wanted to have his beagle room in one of the kennels facing the sun he would have to shell out five bucks in addition to board and room. He didn't know what they would do with the five bucks, but he also knew that "His not to question why; his but to pay and to pay and to pay." Undoubtedly, the officers of the club are in need of new golf balls or something. Oh well, it they can get it, good luck to them.

The Dimes Dwindle Down

Of the one dollar and thirty cents left, six cents went for a nickel coke at a local establishment. He gave the four pennies to a little kid who, after looking at the copper offering, kicked Oscar rather violently in the shins and commented, "Whatsamatta, you a wise guy or sumthin?" Disconsolate and despaired, Oscar began to wonder how he would finance his big date. Then he thought of all his friends, his buddies. Why they were always in his room, eating his candy, reading his magazines, borrowing his soap. They were swell pals, they'd lend him all the money he wanted. Sad to say, it seems that ninety guys were waiting for checks from the V. A. or the Navy or home. "Anytime, Osc, old pal but right now I'm waiting for my check, maybe next week."

Financial Panic

Things were looking darker every minute. What humiliation, what a catastrophe, here he was with a date with pretty Polly Popplehomer and all he had was one dollar and twenty cents. Excuse us; that's only ninety-five cents, he was pressed into buying a chance on a ukelele. Mr. Twomp thought that a trip down to the post office might bring some glad tidings in the form of cash from some long lost relative. There was a letter for him but he couldn't get it until he paid his box rent. The letter turned out to be a dentist's bill.

As he was contemplating life in the French Foreign Legion, a rasping voice called out, "Twomp . . . on the hook." It was pretty Polly Popplehomer. She wanted to know if Oscar would mind if they just spent the evening at her house, dinner and television and so forth. She'd pick him up at seven in her new convertible. Mind- Not our Oscar, it was just fine for him. He just had time for seven games of the new pinball machine.

TRIVIA

I'm going to make it a point to get to all the Junior Week dances this year. I missed a couple of them last year when I was a Junior and there's a good chance that I'll be a senior this time next year so this'll be my last crack at them. I've got an old tux at home and I can borrow a car and then I expect to pick up a little extra money from the baseball pools, I've got the Giants and the Indians this week and they're both a good bet, the way they've been hitting this spring.

Mother's Day

I was going to bring my mother out for that thing Monday but I don't know. It's always been a hard job getting her to go anyplace and right now she is having a little trouble with her back. Course I'm not too keen on her coming out anyway. She probably get talking to some of my professors about marks and she'd say why I've never seen any of Robert's marks and the professors would say don't you get the letters and she say what letters and then there would be the dickens to pay.

I always beat the mail home when the grades are bad or else I get my brother to look out for me and it's a big comfort believe me.

Even if she didn't find out about the marks, I wouldn't have much to show her on the campus I have most of my classes down at the Barracks and C & F and there isn't much there. And I don't think I'd take a chance and take her up to the labs. I was up there maybe six or seven weeks ago with this guy I know and I'd be a little afraid to go back. I might be able to take her up to those new buildings at the other end of the campus but I hear that you have to be in the Navy to get in there. I could show her the library from the outside but I wouldn't want to go in and if I took her to the Pie Shop I'd probably get in a card game and she'd have to sit around for an hour, hour and a half.

If I don't bring her out this Monday though, I'll probably bring her out some other time. Maybe during the summer when things die down a little bit. She's never seen the place.

If anything is going to happen, it will happen in New York. The case of Arthur Shaw is a case in point. Artie must have really been in the Easter mood, at any rate he certainly laid a pretty egg!

A few lads who have a bit of talent for parlaying a fast buck into financial statements open a place called "Bop City," admission ninety cents, and the rest when the waiter catches you; (no Ro, you can't bring your own). They invite one Arthur Shaw to conduct a few oboes at the opening. Arthur, having no marriages scheduled for that month and needing some wherewithal to support his harem, acquieses. All present are wearing clean berets and have their glasses shined. The gals are drinking Scotch (sophistication) and the guys, malteds (broke), while waiting for the opening strains of the Bop program. A hush falls over the multitude, Arthur mounts the podium, brushes a few fans off his back and commences to conduct a forty-three piece symphony orchestra thru a concert of Shostakovich, Ravel, Milhaud and De Falla. The audience remains silent to the end they have to; few if any of them have the faintest idea of what is going on. Artie Shaw going long-hair at Bop City!

The New Show

I'm a firm believer in not killing the goose that lays the golden egg. If memory serves correctly Artie made a killing playing the kind of music the kids spent their weekly allowance on; "Frenesi"—"Temptation"—"Lady Be Good"—"Stardust" "Back-Bay Shuffle"—"Traffic Jam" and many others. He was a hero to the lines outside the theaters where his band played on personal appearance tours and from which he garnered considerable loot. He was popular, sought-after and imitated. He played music the people liked and the kind that earned him his reputation. Then came the new Shaw! Now he was intellectual, he was "tired" of playing the old stuff, he was going classical. From all current reports he "didn't know when he had it good". The audiences at "Bop City" demanded encore after encore from the intermission band, the Kai Winding Boptet. Now Kai, formerly with Kenton, is among the best of them but it seems that the audience wanted his combo to keep playing in order to forestall the return of the "maestro" to the stand. Here's hoping Artie comes out of it and returns to playing the music the people want to hear him play.

Now here's Ro with some high talk about that low-down music.

Mayers Meanderings

OK Ms, you can unlock the refrigerator now, I won't be in again till June. Man! What a (burp) wonderful holiday we had!

Incidentally, lest we forget, we caught the Christy gal's show at the Click just before we left for the vacation and would like to say that June was never better. Of course, something was noticeably lacking without Kenton's musical gymnastics in the background, but where Maestro Sherock fell short of her old boss with the instrumenmany eccentricities there is no cash customers that she could have been backed up by Borah Minevitch's Harmonica Rascals and no one would have been the wiser. La Christy may not have the best voice in the business, but when it comes to style and delivery she bows to none.

Just as a passing thought, while doing a stint at one of the local bistros a while back, Thelonious Monk was booked as the man who taught Dizzy Gillespie, Bop, so in case you are a music lover, he's the guy to blame. I'm rather sorry that I couldn't catch his show, now I'll never know whether they let him out of his cage to play or just wire the thing for sound. Flatted fifth and diminished fourth, Ha! Flatted heads and diminished talents is more like it.

Speaking of talents in another sense, let's consider Mr. Artie Shaw who has many and varied ones. If not the greatest of our contemporary clarinetists, he most certainly excels as a band builder-upper and tearer-downer. That Shaw boy has had more bands than the fabulous Mr. Carter has "you know what."

Added Class

Aside from "Forever" Artie's many accentricities there is no overlooking the fact that modern music owes him a great deal; he took swing from its brawling beginning and gave it class, "Begin the Beguine" and "Frenesi," for instance, or his truly classical jazz piece, "Concerto for Clarinet."

Being the first of the big bandsmen to feature strings as a part of his background music, he started a trend that saved literally thousands of fiddle players from starvation. His name is still spoken with reverence in calloused chin circles as a result.

Inside Opera

by
Bill Carroll

Continuing the tragic tale of Gilda McClodsanza, the woman wrestler who turned opera singer, we find that Gilda hs completed her six-weeks course of study at the Conservatory of Music. At last she is ready to strain her tonsils at the Metropolitan. While talking to Gilda I remarked that it was a considerable accomplishment for her to have mastered the several languages in which operas are sung-all in six weeks.

Gilda's unlovely face flushed at this remark, and quietly she explained that all the language ability necessary for opera purposes is a superior capacity for double-talk. Actually, she knew little French, German or Italian. What she did know was how to cloak her words with such accents that made them sound as if they were being sung in the aforementioned languages. This talent, coupled with an art for improvising, is the secret of success in singing grand (or otherwise) opera.

Discovered

Gilda's initial success was the upshot of a rather singular circumstance. One evening, during the performance of Verdi's Rigoletto, Gilda was standing in the wings helping to raise the curtain. This was a part of her apprenticeship. As the opera proceeded the distraught voice of the stage director was heard crying out in suppressed anguish—"Where is Gilda?" (He meant the character in the story who was due on stage) Before she realized the gravity of her mistake our heroine (of the same name); replied—"Here I am!" "Well get out there and sing", replied the director. Quickly disentangling herself from the ropes; the wrong Gilda dashed out on the stage. In her flight onto a darkened stage misfortune struck. Unbeknownst to Gilda there was a night scene underway and in the darkness she tripped over a body lying stage left. She screamed out in fright as she fell and through some stroke of fate she hit a note a full octave above high C.

This achievement, of dubious merit, caused a few music critics in the audience to leap out into the aisles and cry out their praise for Gilda's tremendous feat. The audience responded in kind and in a few minutes the sanctity that is usually ascribed to the Metropolitan Opera House was violated in the extreme. In its stead, confusion reigned in a most alarming fashion.

Glory

After four hundred and thirty-four curtain calls and as many encores Gilda lapsed into unconsciousness from the repeated falls that accompanied her "one-note." She later recorded the note for a tremendous radio network which broadcast it several times throughout the day. Most people recognize it by the name "time-signal". I am sure you have heard that high pitched note that indicates when a certain time is being given. Well friends that is, in fact the glorious (?) voice of Gilda McClodzanza. When I left, Gilda, an honest girl, agreed with me that she should never have left the wrestling profession.

The Fifth Column

by Mike Nowlan
and
Jack Metzger

Junior Week brings its share of interesting bits of information. In connection with the Prom we might mention that Tony Pastor is still underselling the 1949 Ford by three hundred dollars. Marie Albanese and Paul McMenamin helped dedicate the library two weeks ago. McMenamin kept passing himself off as part of the Irish collection. Albanese did all his passing off in a bridge game down in the Browsing Room since he couldn't make anyone believe that he was the delayed Senator from Texas. Don Best is running for the office of Sergeant-at-Arms for the Phi Kap. In our opinion, if Don is elected, he should be given the title of Master-at-Arms because of his experience gained at Bombay.

The duel between Green and McNulty has been temporarily postponed because of the joyous nature of the Easter season. Both have joined forces in an attempt to break down and eliminate two Villanovan columnists.

Move over, Drew Pearson!—the weight brought to bear on the 950 Club by this column in the last issue was made known last week as Mr. Joe Grady, its dynamic "emcee", (who carries a lot of weight at WPEN), assured his Villanova following that the on-the-air lights are in the corridor outside the studio. There's a certain atmosphere at the Club that resembles Fritzi's Gym.

The NFCCS drawing for the new Plymouth is to be made Thursday night. John Kearns is so confident of winning that he has turned down all transportation offers from his friends and promised to bring his wife to the Prom in the new car. He had better do something in a hurry — it seems he promised to take his wife to a red hot show at Villanova last Friday—he did—they both came out to the ASME steam movie, needless to say, the romance of Tyrone Superheat and Ingrid Boiler Scale did not interest the little woman.

Seems as though the Junior Dinner Dance is running competition with quite a few other activities this week end. There's the Immaculata Prom, and the International Festival at Town Hall. Rosemont's Prom was last week end.

Belle Masque was recently initiated into Alpha Psi Omega, National Fraternity. Quite a step boys.

During Spanish night last Saturday, Jim Gallagher, Tom Fucigna, and Hugh Beatty spent the evening trying to sneak down stairs at the ELKS club. All that Pete Donner and Will Cooper Smith could say was "Muy simpatica noche".

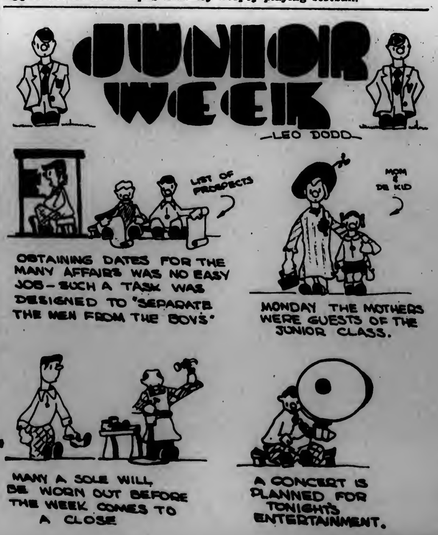
George (Tex) Winters was one of the first in line outside the Vice President's Office last week for room accommodations. In fact, Tex brought his blankets and pitched camp in the wee hours of the morning right outside the door.

Jack Applegate came to the conclusion the girls are like final examinations—they keep you up all night worrying about them—and then they ask the most foolish questions!

THE AUSTIN ECHO
Ir there's one thing that I detest,
Perhaps you, too, have known
The sound of voice that shatters rest,
"GEORGE SZYMANSKI ON THE PHONE!"



Into my life there has come hate
That chills my every bone,
When I hear each night at eight,
"GEORGE SZYMANSKI ON THE PHONE!"

Not that I'm jealous, no, that's wrong!
Such thoughts I would disown—
But must they yell the whole day long:
"GEORGE SZYMANSKI ON THE PHONE!"

Do they have phones in Kingdom Come?
Are such things there unkown?
Or will they yell at half past one,
"GEORGE SZYMANSKI ON THE PHONE!"

Do they have phones in life hereafter?
Indeed it's quite a riddle.
Or will they yell at twenty after:
"GEORGE SZYMANSKI ON THE GRIDDLE!"

This Pete Gallagher is quite the Prestidigitator. We hear that he put on a magicians act for the Holy Name show at St. Matthias Parish last week and almost made the audience disappear. Talking about acts the biggest act on the campus is Mikey Torpey playing softball.

Senior C. E. Wins Technical Essay Competition Honors

On Monday, April 25th, the Annual A. S. C. E. Student Convention was held at the University of Pennsylvania. First prize in the technical paper competition was won by Frank Casey a Senior Civil Engineering student of Villanova.

Frank Casey receiving award from Fr. McKee.

The paper presented was entitled; "Verniculite, A New Lightweight Aggregate". The contents of the paper was the result of research and experimentation performed by five Villanova students. These students are members of the Senior Civil Engineering class, namely, Francis J. Casey, James J. Boyle, Joseph E. Boyd, Philip J. Logan, and Harold A. Humbert.

The experiments were conducted during the past year in the Civil and Chemical Engineering Laboratories. These tests investigated the weight saving and fireproofing qualities of the new aggregate. Vermiculite is used as a substitute for sand in the preparation of concrete and plaster. The contents of this paper will be published in the fall issue of the Villanova Engineer.

Spontaneous applause greeted Frank Casey upon the conclusion of his speech, leaving little doubt as to the probable winner of the competition. Later this probability became a fact when the judges announced the winner and presented Frank with a cash award of twenty dollars and a years membership in the A. S. C. E.

Bussolari Society Hears State Department Chief

Mr. John Drier, chief of the Pan-American Affairs division of the State Department, spoke to members of the Bussolari Society at their meeting April 6th. The speaker has represented the United States at recent Pan-American Conferences and has participated in an advisory capacity on Pan-American affairs, at the United Nations

Social aspects of the Rio Pact were emphasized by the speaker. He cited an exemplary case in which the combined efforts of the signatory nations speedily alleviated a yellow-fever epidemic in Venezuela.

In tracing the history of the Pan-American Conferences from 1826 to the present, Mr. Drier stressed the role played by the U. S. in Pan-American affairs. "Now," he said, "the U. S. follows a strict policy of non-intervention in the internal affairs of the Latin American countries."

Tomorrow night, the Bussolari Society will present another in its series of radio programs. Leroy Kendall and Roger Hanafin, along with two guests from Rosemont College, will discuss the Chinese Crisis over WVIL at 8:30 P. M.

Dramatic Society Joins Nat. Frat

Villanova's Belle Masque Society was inducted into the national dramatic fraternity, Alpha Psi Omega, last Saturday at 1:30 P. M., during an impressive ceremony held in the Seminar Room in the new Library. The group was recommended for this honor because of its work on the stage and radio for the past two years.

Requirements for admission in the fraternity, which brings to five the number of fraternities on this campus, include recommendation by a member-society of another college. Belle Masque was recommended by the Immaculata chapter.

Alpha Psi Omega gives Belle Masque national recognition on the College University level in dramatic work. It also makes Belle Masque eligible for articles and pictures on its productions in "Playbill", the annual publication of the national fraternity.

Individual membership is open only to those who have done work in any field of dramatic endeavor while a member of the Villanova chapter. This includes stage and radio productions, publicity, set design and construction, and the like.

Lambda Pi, the Villanova chapter of Alpha Psi Omega, under the direction of Rev. William J. Krupa, O.S.A., was initiated by the Immaculata chapter, Iota Nu, under the direction of Sr. Mary Donatus, I. H. M., who was present at the ceremonies.

Students who were initiated into the national fraternity were: Jack Applegate, John Bauman, John Callahan, William Confoy, Edward Doyle, George Fico, Daniel Robinson, Richard Rande, Richard Lauman, Joseph Hennessy, and Frank Hughes.

Alumni members, also initiated, are: Edward Fanelli, Richard Harris, Joseph Leary, and Edward Wilbur.

Frinzi Scores Lone Run As Moroney Pitches 7 Hitter

By JULES KURTZ

Amid the colorful atmosphere of Villanova's baseball diamond, the Wildcats decisively defeated a heavily favored Penn combine to the tune of 1-0. The Ivy Leaguers were seldom in the game as John Moroney mowed them down one by one. The Main Liners supported this sterling mound performance with a tight defense.

The observer would never hazard a guess that Villanova's bat and ball brigade was earning its second triumph in seven starts during the current campaign. Our opponents came into the fray with a five and two record. Army and Franklin & Marshall were the only victors over the Quakermen preceding the Villanovans' stunning triumph.

Penn Threatens

When John Cooney doubled in the first frame things looked bad for the Wildcat cause, but Mickey Frinzi gathered in a high fly ball from the bat of Reds Dooney, vaunted Penn football star, to end the treat. Fred Mangan, who garnered three hits in four attempts during the tilt, doubled to the stadium walls in the second for Penn, but Tom Jefferies failed to come through in the pinch. Villanova threatened in the second when Shy Raiken singled. However, the Dobbins Vocational alumnus was thrown out in a vain attempt to steal second base. Our rivals put together two single in the fourth stanza but were unable to cash the opportunity.

Villanova scored the winning tally in the fifth on consecutive singles by Frinzi, Moroney, and Aedelfinger with Mickey taking third on an infield hit which normally advances a player one base. The tally came home when Aedelfinger hit a hard one through the hot corner.

Moroney Hot

After this score, Moroney was well night impregnable against belated Penn attempts to even the score. The climax occurred in the ninth when Fred Mangan, the Quaker's star third sacker, whiffed on four pitches. Villanova slashed twelve hits in the tussle picking up where they left off against Providence in last weekend's 5-2 victory.

Ralph Jiorle, the Penn hurler, lost a heartbreaker to the men of Phil Weinert and deserves a great deal of credit even while losing. He managed to scrape out of some very anxious moments in the late innings when Villanova threatened to blast the entire encounter wide open.

In closing it is hoped that the fine efforts bade by "Our Boys" against Providence and Penn will push them forward to a great season, notwithstanding their earlier setbacks.

Baseball Bits

Tom Clavin was very helpful to a Penn man in picking up his cap for him when the latter was forced to crouch on the plate following one of Moroney's few poor heaves . . . The Villanova club was very spirited giving loud verbal assistance to the hurler all through the game . . . A fine turnout was made by our student and clerical baseball lovers. They were standing on every shelf on the left field line during the siff shouting madly for a win.

Golf Team Scores First Win Over Drexel Tech, 5-4

By NEAL FAHY

The Villanova golf team, led by Don Weiland, gained its first victory of the season two weeks ago Wednesday by defeating Drexel Tech 5 to 4 at St. David's in Wayne. Last Friday the 'Cat linksmen were downed by Rider in Trenton for the second year in a row, this time by an 8 to 1 score, as only Bob Powers was able to win for Villanova.

The success against Drexel was Chiefly due to the efforts of Weiland who carded a three over par 75 for the day on a very wet course. Because only five men on the Wildcat team showed up for the match, he was forced to play his best ball against the best ball of two Drexel men. Not only did he take his match 4 and 3, but won the best ball against both, 2 and 1.

Drexel got 1 point on the forfeit and three more as Bill Huber lost 4 and 3, Joe Moran was downed 3 and 2, and this pair was defeated in the best ball match 1 down. However, Joe Hohenlighner and his partner came through with the needed points to give the 'Cats a much deserved victory.

FRESHMEN SECOND TO SETON HALL AT PENN RELAYS

'Cats Thinclads To Play Host To Pirates Frosh Relay To Highlite Meet

The Villanova Freshman Mile Relay Team turned in their best time of the year last Saturday at the Penn Relays, but in spite of it, they were again forced to take a second to Seton Hall in the final ratings. In the two-section race in which the winner was picked on a time basis, the Wildkittens did an impressive 3:22.6 to win their section easily. The Setonian juniors also won their division easily, but registered a 3:20.2 in doing so and thus took top honors.

Both races were strictly no contest, although the Villanova four won by a wider margin. Jim Reardon led off and ran out in front all the way to bring the stick home about eight yards ahead. Furlinger ran next and opened up the gap to about twenty-five yards; while Fordham and Cornell battled for second. Pete Simigan added about ten or twelve more yards to the gap before he passed off to Bob Cunjac who got into the act and added a few yards of his own to finish a good fifty yards in front of Fordham.

Seton Hall had a little more competition especially on the first two legs when a scrappy St. John's four gave them a push. Incidentally the third, fourth, and even fifth place teams came from the second heat, which shows the sad competition Villanova faced.

Villanova also took a fourth in the exceptionally fast two-mile relay. The highlight of this event was George Thompson's lead-off half which put the Mainliners out in front temporarily and gave the crowd something to cheer about. They would have cheered George even louder if they knew that he ran about 800 of these 880 yards with a bad spike wound. This will keep the New Rochelle speedster out of action for a week. His services will be sorely missed tomorrow against Seton Hall.

Joe Semple took fifth in the javelin throw with a toss of 188'8". This event was remarkable for there was less than two feet difference between the third place toss and the fifth place effort. Usually the spear throwers space them wider than that.

Tomorrow afternoon the 'Cats meet Seton Hall here at our stadium. The best event on the card seems to be the Frosh relay. In the only "honest" meeting between the two clubs at the Seton Hall Relays, the South Orange lads outdistanced the Villanovans, by about five yards. This match race will give Villanova a chance to get even not only for that, but for the unfortunate outcome last Saturday.

McKenna will meet Fox for the first time since the IC4A 600. Ross should not be troubled in the mile, but without Thompson, Thigpen of the Hall will not doubt run wild in the half.

There will be yet another meet this weekend as the 'Cats journey to Annapolis for a triangular meet with Navy and Manhattan. Little is expected of Navy, but on paper the Jasper powerhouse looks stronger than the Blue and White.

Chajnacki Goes Route As Marines Suffer Fifth Loss

By TED FERNANDES

The Villanova diamond crew opened up in fine style last Saturday afternoon to bombard the Quantico Marine forces with 12 runs against five. The Mainliners have now a victory string of three straight, losing the first five games of the season. This game was the Marines fifth loss in 18 starts.

Three Stranded in First

The initial inning presented Stan Chojnacki, Villanova hurler, with a very rough situation, as the Marines blasted away with three consecutive hits to load the bases. Thanks to the marvelous pitching of Chojnacki all three Marines died on the bag. Larry Aigeldinger led off for the 'Cats and hit away for a single. Jones did likewise and Cline's hit scored Aigeldinger. Shy Raiken took two pitches and then caught a piece of the ball and sent it out of the park. Shy's homer scored two men on base and the score at the end of the opening inning was much in the favor of the Wildcats with four runs to zero.

The second inning showed little action with no runs and two hits. In the third chapter the Marines scored one when Jed Donovan the sensational first sacker tee-ed off on a ground rule double with one man on. Donovan upheld the tradition of the Marine corp by netting three doubles for four times at bat. The Cats' came to bat and regained their initial lead by netting one run also. In the four inning the Marines were held scoreless and the Villanovans tacked on three more tallies, the board showing 8-1 in favor of the 'Cats.

Big Seventh

A big blow in the seventh set the Mainliners up with the game. Four hits, a sacrifice and a walk added up to four more Villanova tallies. Tom Clavin singled with the bases loaded to drive in two and Charlie Comerford backed him up with another safety to send two more teammates home.

'Cats Get 16 Hits

The Gyrenes sent three twirlers to the hill and the 'Cats sent three hurlers to the showers for a total of 16 hits and four walks. Stan Chojnacki went the distance for Villanova striking out two, walking two and giving up eight hits.

Stan, who is in his fourth season as a Wildcat moundsman, was impressive in securing this, his second win of the campaign. He was constantly ahead of the opposing batsmen and his fine control proved the difference between victory and defeat.

Tomorrow afternoon the Wienermen will oppose Bucknell on the campus diamond. The 'Cats will be seeking their fourth win of the season and they have not been defeated since they lost to Rutgers during the Easter holidays.

Alumni Places Three On Intramural All-Stars

Balloting for the Intramural Basketball All-Star team was conducted early last month. From the final results, it was evident that Alumni was considered the class of the league. Three of their starting five—Buckley, Barry, and Oelz—made the first team, along with Lemmer of Austin and Flynn of Barracks 1 & 4.

Buckley Most Valuable Player

At the same time, the Most Valuable Player was selected. For the second consecutive season, Frank Buckley of Alumni, copped this honor. The incomparable "Buckets" polled 8 out of a possible 12 votes. As one of the selectors commented, "Buckley can do everything better than anyone else." This sentiment seemed to be the consensus of opinion of all the coaches and players of the league.

In the post season win over Austin, Frank Buckley led Alumni's scoring parade with 18 points followed by Bobby Oelz with 16. Hal Diot notched 10 counters and his Herculean efforts on rebounds assured Alumni control of the ball in the late, crucial stages of the game. Bill Barry had eight for the winners, and it was his last-second goal that put the game on ice. Joe Maguire and Benny Stewart officiated.

The unassuming Chester athlete, Alumni's top scorer for the past two seasons was the only unanimous selection for a first team berth. Beside his scoring abilities, the tall, slender forward was also a brilliant playmaker and was outstanding on defense. Others receiving Most Valuable Players votes were Oelz and Barry of Alumni and Lemmer of Austin.

Lemmer's 52 a Record

Bill Lemmer, Austin's prolific scoring ace, was runner-up to Buckley in the All-Star balloting. His feat of scoring 52 points in one game will probably stand as an all-time record. His biggest asset to Austin's attack was his consistency on the offensive, and his smooth ball handling.

The center slot is ably filled by Tom Flynn of Barracks 1 & 4, the league's leading scorer. His driving play and his ability to toss them in from any angle, transformed an otherwise mediocre team into a constant threat to the rest of the league.

Bobby Oelz and Bill Barry of Alumni complete the first team. Bobby, the smallest man on the Five, was a ball hawk extraordinary and provided the spark for many winning rallies. Bill Barry's aggressiveness, rebound control, and ability to score in the clutch, made him the only other repeater on this year's first five. Acclaimed by most as the finest "pick" man in the league, Bill set up many scores for his teammates.

Six Others Receive Votes

These were the first five. But many other players turned in great performances throughout the season. Six others received votes for the first team and any one of them is capable of filling a first-team berth. These men included: Joe Doris, Joey Crossin, and John Farley, of Austin; Hal Diot, of Alumni; Dave Frink, of Fedigan; and Bob Healey, of the Doms.

Austin and Alumni Split First Two Playoff Games

Austin Edged 65-62 In First Contest, Comes Back to Win, 49-34

By MONDSCHEIN INC., AND KLUCSARITS

About 250 highly-vocal spectators packed Alumni gym on April 11, and were treated to a great exhibition of basketball. The game was probably the best individual contest in the history of Intramural sports at Villanova. Alumni emerged the winner, with a well earned 65-62 triumph over Austin.

Austin Leads

Austin mainly on the fine shooting of John Farley and Bill Lemmer, jumped off to a 19-7 lead in the first ten minutes. At this point, Tom Cullen, a surprise starter for Alumni dropped three straight set shots and Alumni was on the way. At the intermission, Austin's lead had been cut to 28-26. Both teams got hot after the rest period and the lead changed hands with almost every shot. At one stage nine consecutive shots were made; Alumni making five and Austin four. Buckley and Crossin were now leading the attacks for their respective teams. Bobby Oelz, of Alumni a great playmaker all season finally came into his own as a scorer at this point and was the spark in the final drive for victory. Bob's outstanding performance on defense and his clutch scoring won him the accolade for the best player of the evening. For Austin, Bill Lemmer was a consistent performer throughout and copped scoring honors with 23 markers. Joey Crossin dropped 16 points through the hoops while John Farley, in addition to his fine work under the baskets, also poured in 15 points.

After the Easter vacation, the second game of the Intramural Basketball playoffs were resumed with Austin again meeting Alumni. The game featured somewhat of a surprise, as the highly favored Alumni Five was drubbed by Austin 49-34, to even the series at one all. The final game of the series will probably be played Thursday night.

32-19 at Half

As was the case in the first game, Austin jumped into the lead at the outset of the contest and gradually pulled away, with the score reading at half-time 32-19. It was a hard fought contest and the tenseness of play was evident by the many fouls that were called. The main reason for Father Kemme's Squad's decisive victory was their ability to stem any organized offensive attack of the losers. The inability to use their fast break and failing to hit from the outside, further enhanced the scoring tactics of Fr. McLaughlin's team. Although this game was not played with the thrills and smoothness of the first contest it proved nevertheless the deserving victory for Austin.

Lemmer and Roegen Set Pace

Little Bill Lemmer was the big siege of the Austin first half attack netting 11 points, some of them being shots showing his ability to score from anywhere and everywhere. The scoring chores for the winners in the second half were masterfully taken over by Jack Roegen as he pumped in five successive long screamer shots to help Austin maintain its margin of victory throughout the game.

Frank Buckley, Bill Barry, and Hal Diot with 8, 8, and 6 points respectively, were the main scoring threats for Alumni. The remerees for the contest were Tom Madonia and Jack Denuel.

BKS. 1 & 4 COP FIRST I. M. SOFTBALL TILT

Ah 'tis Spring!' And with Spring softball returns to the Villanova campus. Eight teams, representing the resident halls, staged their inaugural games last week.

The opening games on Wednesday, pitted Bks. 1 & 4 against Bks. 2 & 3 while Fedigan tangled with the Doms. Bks. 1 & 4, defending champions, started Lefty Mondschein, erstwhile Mendel ace, with Nugent, another southpaw, on the hill for Bks. 2 & 3. Mondschein won his own game by driving in the tie-breaking run with one out in the last inning. All the hits-11 by 1 & 4 and 6 by the losers—were singles, with the exception of Kelly's fourth inning triple. Beside limiting his opponents to six hits, Mondschein struck out six batters, while walking five. He also led the hitters with four hits in as many attempts. Nugent turned in a commendable job and was effective with men on base. He struck out five, including the side in the second inning.

Doms Win

The Doms handed Fedigan a 13-4 trouncing behind the seven hit pitching of J. J. Thompson. Fedigan was scoreless until the sixth inning, when they scored all their runs. The big hit of the inning was a home run by Ware. Homers by Jennings and Becotte gave the Doms an early lead and subsequent round-trippers by Mullin and Spaeth insured the win. Fillipelli was the victim of the winner's assault.

On Thursday, Alumni opened their season with a close 9-8 triumph over Good Counsel. Alumni tallied early and enjoyed a six run lead in the fifth inning behind the no-hit hurling of Bill Scharle. But in that frame Good Counsel staged a six run rally of their own, featured by a tremendous homer off the bat of Les Obst. Good Counsel took the lead but Alumni came back in the last inning and scored three runs on heads-up baserunning to cop the verdict. Scharle was the winner, fanning five in the process, and Fitzpatrick suffered the defeat.

Austin Edges Mendel

Mendel and Austin waged a tight pitching duel in the other game, with the latter eking out a 17-16 win. The contest was called at the end of five innings because of darkness. Kost went all the way for Mendel and was tagged with the loss. Schreiber was the last of a long succession of Austin pitchers and received credit for the win. Denuel hit a home run for the losers in the first inning, while Landis, Bogner and Dalago hit for the circuit for Austin. Dalago's blow came with two out and two on in the last inning and provided the winning margin.

From The Sidelines . . .

When the men of Villanova returned from a long and well deserved summer vacation many long months ago, they were jubilent. They had read the sports pages of their favorite tabloid with much satisfaction and pride for two of the finest athletes who ever wore the Blue-White had been selected to represent the greatest nation on the face of the earth as members of the United States Track and Field squad. A great distinction was thereby awarded to each and every Villanovan. Of all the thousands of colleges across the nation, only Villanova and the University of California sent two men to London on the T. & F. team.

With the coming of the Fall Villanovans were also privledged in as much as the Wildcats fielded one of the finest football aggregations in the nation and the best in the history of the school. When the news came that Villanova was to oppose the University of Nevada in the third annual Harbor Bowl classic broad smiles were present on the Main Line campus. And on New Year's Day Villanova started the year 1949 with a spectacular win over the men from the sage brush country. Villanova was on its merry and successful way in becoming the Notre Dame of the East!!

Then came the greatest of all pleasures!! The unheard of Villanova basketball team brought greater laurels to the Main Line. Overlooked by the pre-season prognosticators, the men of Al Severence distinguished themselves as the finest court squad from Maine to Florida. Every true Villanova fan made the trek to the Big Town to watch their hoopsters gain national recognition. The smiles grew broader!!

But where to and to what is all this leading?? Don't we all remember those big sendoffs?? . . . Well that's just the point. Spring is here and with it our college has fielded a baseball team which is made up of some of the finest fellows on the campus. Hampered by lack of practice and reserve strength, Coach Phil Wienert filled each slot with capable and experienced veterans and several new men, and opened the season.

Poor fielding, inadequate hitting and some unsteady pitching were responsible for five consecutive defeats and the outlook was glum to say the least. Under the discouraging circumstances most clubs would have coasted and become lackadaisical, but not the Blue-White. First came a die-hard Providence nine then our arch rivals, the University of Pennsylvania team, followed by the Marines of Quantico.

There are only two more home games remaining on the tough schedule and that gives us but two more times to show our mettle. Are we going to let the team down?? Shall we continue saying "Oh baseball team, don't know how there doing, not much I guess."

ASME Group View Technical Movie

Under the sponsorship of the college branch of the A. S. M. E., the technical color motion picture "Steam For Power" was presented in Auditorium at 8 P. M., last night.

The showing of the film was preceded with an address by Mr. W. H. Jackson, of the Babcock and Wilcox Company, in which the speaker explained the film. Mr. Jackson is well known as an engineer, particularly for his experience in furnace design work.

"Steam For Power" is an educational film telling the dramatic story of man's efforts to obtain ever more plentiful, and ever more economical power by using steam to harness the energy released by the combustion of fuels. Making extensive use of both animation and photography, this colorful motion picture traces the important steps in the history of steam power. From Hero's engine of 150 B. C. to the modern turbine, from Haycock's boiler to the giant million-pound per hour Radiant Boilers "Steam for Power" shows in simple, concise form the evolution of boilers for modern industrial and central station Power Plants.

The film was produced by the Babcock and Wilcox Company.

Spanish Club Pays Homage To Cervantes During Fiesta

Cervantes lives again—at least in spirit, showed the members of the Spanish Club last Saturday night when they brought glimpses of old Spain to the Elks Club in Norristown during their celebration of Cervantes Day. This affair, which marked the peak of the social activity of the group, was held to give the annual homage of the Club to that famous Spanish author.

Hola, senor, may I check your sombrero? greeted the celebrants, in keeping with the tone of the affair. The waiter became mozo as he brought on the dinner of pollo (chicken to those who do not speak the language) which began the program of the evening.

Following the meal an entertainment was given which featured the reading of the prize-winning prose work and poem on the life of Cervantes written by James Harte and John Roesgen respectively. The Spanish chorus then sang "Noche de Luna", a composite of musical selections from the various provinces of Spain, with soloes by Edward Anzur and Thomas Terranova. The latter than repeated his performance, this time joined by Wm. Houston in the duet "Preguntale a las Estrellas". All singing was done to the piano accompaniment of Theodore Garcias.

Master of Ceremonies, Anthony Guiotta, then presented Don Luis Villaba, Spanish Consul in Philadelphia, who extended his greetings to the group in his native language. He concluded his appearance by presenting the awards for the literary contest, a diploma and medal from the Spanish Institute of Columbia Univ. to Harte for his prose work; and a copy of "Don Quixote" with a Spanish dictionary to Roesgen as a prize for his poem.

The final address was delivered by Rev. F. X. McGuire, O.S.A., President of the College. A short intermission preceded the dancing which continued until one o'clock to the music of the Villanovans.

dents will be permitted to use its facilities.

All eating has been absolutely forbidden inside the lounge. This is directed for the most part to the day-hops most of whom bring their own lunches. Such practice would not only defeat the purpose of the lounge by making it an addition to the Pie Shop, but also tend to leave the rooms in a messy condition.

The responsibility of keeping up the cleanliness of the lounge is to be left up to each student who uses it and Fr. McLaughlin expresses the wish that the administration not be sorry.

Industrial Club Makes Field Trip To Capitol

Last Tuesday, the Industrial Relations Club made its first field trip to Washington, D. C. Under the direction of Rev. William J. Gordon, O.S.A., the initial trip of the Labor Group was fortunate to attend the opening debate on the repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act on the House floor.

The discussion evolved around the acceptance of the Thomas-Lesinski Bill or the newly-proposed Wood Bill. The Thomas-Lesinski Bill is the administration's substitute for the Taft-Hartley Act (The old Wagner Act plus amendments), whereas the Wood Bill is practically the same as the Taft-Hartley Act itself and is receiving the support of many Republicans and a few Dixiecrats.

From the House the group went to the Senate and sat in on a floor session concerning the E. C. A.

Interviews Arranged

Interviews were arranged by Fr. Gordon with many prominent Senators and Representatives, among whom were Congressmen Richard M. Nixon, California; W. S. Green, Penna.; Clarke Fisher, Texas; J. F. Kennedy, Mass.; Claude Pepper, Florida and Francis J. Myers, Penna.

Senators Myers altered the administration program and told the group he believed most of the Party Platform would be fulfilled before the next elections. He added that although legislation was starting slow it could be accounted for as resulting from the reorganization necessitated by the last election.

Hear AFL Prexy

In concluding the one-day tour the club was fortunate to secure interviews with William Green, President of the A. F. of L. and Jones B. Carey, Secretary-Treasurer of the C. I. O. Each interview was held at the national office building of the respective union. Mr. Green commented on the Taft-Hartley revision in answer to a question as to whether or not the reactionary policy of the 80th Congress would draw labor and the United States into Socialism such as existing in England.

Mr. Carey, of the C. I. O., talked with the group for over an hour in his office concerning labor's place in society and of the use of labor unions as a means of combating Communism. He clarified this statement by pointing out the fact tha unions with better conditions lessen the desire of labor seeking relief through Communism. Mr. Carey also pointed out that criticism of unions in the press is a healthy sign because it shows that the unions are making progress. "If there was no such criticism" he said, "then it would be the duty of the unions to find out where they were slipping."

Four officers for each class will be chosen who will serve for the '49-'50 academic year. It is urged in the handbook that "students exercise their franchise by electing men who are fit for the respective offices." Qualifications include approval by the Vice-President Chaplain, and the Dean of Men and achievement of a satisfactory scholastic standing.

Fr. McLaughlin also requested that all student organizations observe the Handbook rules and complete the election of their officers by the date of the scheduled Class Elections.

Card Party Aids Seminary Guild

For the 16th year, the annual card party and social, sponsored by the Augustinian Seminary Guild, was held last Tuesday in the Field House. Rev. John J. Coffey, O.S.A., moderator of the Guild, told a reporter from the VILLANOVAN that this year's party was the biggest success since the inauguration of the Socials. He stated that he extends his thanks to all of the Villanova students who aided the effort this year.

The day, dedicated to the Mother of Good Counsel, on whose Feast it was held, may have helped in drawing the record crowd, and the hall was completely filled with card players while the Blue Room and Billiard Room were filled to standing room only with bingo players.

Several hundred dollars in prizes were given to lucky ticket holders. Most of the prizes were cash or exchangeable for cash. Many also won prizes on the punchboards and wheels that were well patronized.

Jr. 2's, Sr. 1's Pose For Belle Air Pix

The editor of the 1949-50 edition of the Belle Air Yearbook said today that all Junior 2 and Senior 1 students who have yet made arrangements for their portraits are requested to do so within the next few days. This can be done in Room 111, Library, during the weeks of May 9th., 13th., 16th. and 23rd. Appointment cards will be given to each student when he registers.

Sittings for portraits will be made during the above weeks, also in Room 111, Library, and all portraits must be completed this semester, as no provisions will be made to photograph the graduating class after the above dates. There will be a fee of one dollar charged for the portraits.

The students in those classes are requested to register as soon as possible for the time as is convenient since only three students are scheduled to be photographed every twenty minutes.

If there be a doubt about graduation next year, the men are urged to have their portraits made regardless, because there will be no portraits made next year.

Turf and Tinsel's "Cleo Was a Lady" To Open May 18 For 4-Day Run

Ted Doyle (Muckleheim) shown in one of the many moments he yearns for in the current Turf & Tinsel production, "Cleo Was a Lady". Muckleheim is in the process of mummifying George Pequinot (Tutiniutin) the Prime Minister as a result of the latter's delinquency.

Clever Parody Written by Bill Brenninghouse

Villanova's Turf and Tinsel Club has been in rehearsal for this year's Spring production since before the Christmas vacation. The dates for presentation have been set for the 18th., 19th., 20th., and 21st. of this month. There will be a special presentation on May 14th., exclusively for the Nuns of the Diocese, and another for the College staff and Philadelphia critics sometime the following week.

A capacity crowd is expected judging by the already booming ticket sales in Philadelphia and the suburbs. Students will not be able to procure tickets at special rates after May 13th. Until that date student tickets will be available to Day-Hops in the Pie Shop. Student tickets are priced at $1.00 apiece, regular admission at one dollar and fifty cents. There are a limited number of tickets due to the great demand this year.

Last Year's Stars

Last year's stars will appear again in feature roles this year, namely Martin Binder as Julius Caesar, and Richard Lauman as Cleopatra of Egypt. Co-starring will be a new member of the organization, Robert Sable, as Mark Anthony. Each of these displays great talent and a natural knack for team work.

Above the dim of falling hammers, snoring saws, and the booming voice of George Noake, stage director, the voices of a sweating, but ever striving cast can be heard ringing out the lines of Bill Brenninghouse, playwright and feature writer for the VILLANOVAN. This year's play calls for more than just a golden voice and sense enough to get off of the stage on cue—it requires great agility and practice to perform the dances and natural gestures of a long dead race of people.

Though the production thus far has not reached a state of complete perfection, Rev. Michael J. O,Donnell, moderator of the club,

Prom, Dinner, Dance Climax Jr. Week Festivities

Last Saturday night closed this year's gala Junior Week with the Dinner-Dance, held in the Adelphia Hotel's Roof Garden, filled to capacity with Juniors and their dates who had a full evening of enjoyment to the music of the Blue Notes, and just "going back a few years".

Highlight of the Week was the Prom, in the Field House, Friday night. Tony Pastor proved to be the right band to have this year since everyone had such a good time. Again, there was a capacity crowd.

The decorations for the Prom were arranged to feature a Windmill that was set up as a centerpiece. This year's class, the largest in Villanova history, spent considerable time and effort on the plans and decorations for the Prom and deserve the praise they received.

Another feature of the Week was Wednesday night's Blazer Ball. The Villanovans played to a joy-filled crowd in the Field House for this informal dance. Many students expressed the fact that it really is possible to have a lot of fun at a simple Informal without a lot of "to do."

More About Elections

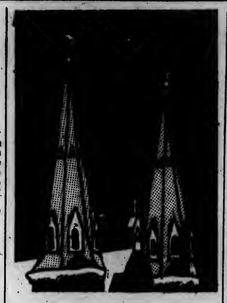
From the turnout in recent class nominations one would think that the students of Villanova have been set adrift on the sea of apathy. Surely, their interest in the elections of their class officers seems to indicate that the conduct of the class affairs is of little or no concern to them. The election of class officers requires the backing of the whole class body before it can be a true democratic process. Just as in municipal, state, and national elections, voting is both a privilege and a duty. To shirk this duty is to do a grave injustice to the man and to the candidates and to the other voters.

Today, one may find a large number of students griping against student council or class policies. Of this large number there would probably be a great many who never cast a vote to elect the men they felt to be equipped for the jobs.

Others complain that no great pomp and display accompany the elections. They feel that torchlight parades, fireworks, and ridiculous antics must accompany a real election. Those who have been on this campus can recall the spirited campaigns of last year. The candidates set forth their platforms and the students voted. This is all that is needed. If one candidate feels that entertainment will help his cause let him by all means use it.

In the next few days elections for the various class offices will be held. Any man who has the stuff which makes Villanovans will make sure that he goes to the polls. It would be sad indeed, if the indifference, which has accompanied the elections thus far this academic year, were to continue much longer. The only way to insure a voice in student government, to bring about the best possible class administration is to take an active part in placing the men one feels competent office. A vote is a powerful instrument of government. The intelligent man will vote and vote wisely.

MAY



May! The time of the year when we think of getting outdoors and enjoying the wonders of nature. Our minds are filled with thoughts of love and beauty. It is the month in which we shake off the gloom and dreariness brought by the winter, we are once more living.

But let us not forget that May, being one of the fairest months of the year, is dedicated to the fairest in heaven. The Blessed Virgin. We should pray to her all through the year, but we should show extra devotion to her during her Month.

There are many ways by which we can show our love to Our Heavenly Mother, but the one most recommended is the saying of the Rosary. This is Mary's special prayer, for it is her life, her joys, her sorrows, and her glorious triumphs. When saying the Rosary we are reminded that she felt all the emotions experienced by our own mothers. Since she is the mother of God, any favors asked in her name will be answered by her Almighty Son.

It was only a few short months ago that our country was engaged in devastating warfare, and now once more in May 1949, political unrest is spreading throughout Europe and the Far East, and threatening clouds of warfare gathering.

Let each and everyone of us, therefore, say a Rosary every day to the Blessed Virgin, so that through her intercession the minds of men will be filled with love of God rather than with a love for the material things of the world.

By TOM GALLOWAY

Wherever you may go on the campus, you will either hear or take part in an argument of some type or other, usually concerning another College, its courses, its systems of teaching, its system of marking, its liberties, its glorious features, the value of its diploma. It is quite natural for a student of one college to be interested in the outstanding qualities of another. But, does trying to let off steam by an attempt to blame one's failures on his surroundings, thus creating a hate for his superiors and his institution, help a student in any way to better himself?

Each and every one of us knew when we were deciding just what college to attend, that we were looking for an education in an institution where we would have learned and experienced professors to teach us the entire field of the career which we have chosen. We also expected of the college of our choice an opportunity to keep ourselves morally fit to study and strengthen our characters. We looked for a place where we would learn the various courses with an outlook toward entrance into our professional lives not only as well-educated men, but as good christian gentlemen. We chose Villanova.

Now some seem to wonder why. Why?—Because it filled all our requirements, and still does. It is a funny thing (really not funny, but pathetic) that men should chain their minds that they be the more strong to avoid the use of mental energy. Can we blame ourself-encouraged laziness on the men who work so hard to drive a little knowledge into our stubborn heads? Can we blame it on our parents, many of whom are making a great sacrifice to send us to a college? Can we blame our friends because it is always a temptation to leave the books for an evening of pleasure? Can we blame the bartender of the corner saloon because he keeps setting them up when we should be poring over the books? Can we blame the scientists of the middle ages because they allow us only twenty-four hours in each day? None of these solutions seem logical because none of the suspects seem to have a good motive to wish our misfortune in school work. Who then is the guilty party? I don't think any of us has the courage to fix the blame where it belongs. It is so much easier to think up excuses than to admit that we are lazy; contemptibly lazy, because we are not only drugging ourselves with the sweet dope of inactivity, but we are also torturing those who are praying and working for our welfare, and we are betraying the nation which is looking to us with tired, empty, expectant eyes as its future leaders, its strength, its hope, its future.

Can we, with free conscience and light heart, continue to do these things? Will we sit back and relax and watch a thousand evils crawl into, infest, and decay that which our fathers, and grandfathers, and great grandfathers have fought and died to build and protect? Are we a part of the Seven-headed Dragon which will be the ruination of the world?

. . . Let's get to work—before its too late!

Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O.S.A., wishes to extend his thanks to all those students who acted as ushers during the Library dedication exercises. They helped immeasurably to make it successful.

ON THE TRAIL OF THE GOOBAH

by
Bill Breninghouse

One dark and dreary December day, a dozen dizzy dayhops discussed with an equal number of snake-pit dwellers the possibilities of joining forces in a hunt for the fabled goobah. Within an hour, plans were drawn, and the boys were off on a safari to Africa. Roscoe Rumbledome was elected president of the goobah hunters, because he knew a guy who knew a guy who had once seen a native who knew a native who saw the tracks of the remarkable goobah.

If there be these among the readers who have never heard of the goobah, now is the time to erase their ignorance. The goobah is an odd animal or semi-animal that haunts the vast Sahara desert. Very few have seen it, but eyewitnesses have described it as being possessed of a huge gorilla-like head connected to the body of an emu with elephant legs. It sings with a voice which is a cross between Nellie Lutcher and Billy Eckstine. The goobah can fly, walk, and burrow through the sand. It is said to be a harmless beast but will scare the oh-my-goodness out of the bravest heart.

Thus did twenty-four young Americans find themselves in the middle of the dry Sahara. They were soon to learn that their quarry was no cinch. Having had little experience in this sport of thing they brought only beer and pretzels for provisions and soon found that the beer became a little warm in the tropical sun. Somehow, the beer gave out before the pretzels and the boys got a little thirsty. Roscoe Rumbledome took charge with an iron hand. Three men had to be excepted when they removed their shirts, coats and ties in the 187 degree heat. He hated to do it but you gotta enforce the rules. Heat frustration set in and the men starting dying like gnats.

Only Roscoe Rumbledome and two associates were left when the great expedition finally came onto the trail of the goobah. None had had food or drink in a month. Their clothes were in tatters, but they still had their coats and ties, their skin was burned to the likeness of veal cutlets. Yet they were determined to go on and on until the goobah was in their possession. These were no ordinary men; they were nuts.

As they followed the trail, they suddenly saw before them what they believed was a mirage, a woman, an exotic beauty, stood before them with a platter of food and drink. It was no mirage, it was the charming Schizophrenia, keeper of the goobah. She brought them to her little oasis, fed them fried dates, and started them on the road to recovery and it is along this road that you will find their graves, thus closing the adventure on the trail of the goobah.

A WORD OF GRATITUDE

by Roland M. Marshall

With Junior Week now behind us, it is possible to catch a quick breath and take cognizance of the splendid work performed by all concerned to make the activities the huge successes we think they were. It is difficult to mention names without forgetting a number worthy of note, so we shall dispense with that and express our gratitude to all of you collectively. If you contributed in any way to the Mother's Day celebration, the Concert, the Blazer Ball, the Junior Prom, or the Dinner-Dance, then it is you to whom we are speaking.

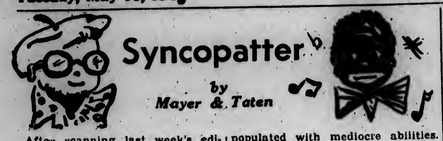
In many cases it was impossible to thank you personally, but that is no indication that we feel less enthusiastic about the help which you rendered.

In particular, we wish to commend the members of the Class of 1952 who, through their voluntary work in the dining hall, helped to establish what we hope will be a long-standing tradition at Villanova.

I Think That I Shall Never . . .

I'm not much on that poetry stuff, myself. I don't belong to the poetry group here though I hear those sessions when they read their odes and ballads to the neighboring collegiettes are quite the delightful affairs. No, I'm for the Joyce Kilmer stuff; you know, "Poems are made by fools, etc., but only God can make a tree." Yes, that's it—the tree is my poem, and for that kind of versification there's hardly a more complete anthology around that that on our favorite campus.

I guess you must have pointed out with pride to your mothers last week those beautiful dogwood trees that dot the campus. They were in their full glory last week. They talk about the Valley Forge dogwoods, but if you sell our own short, you are surely barking up the wrong dogwood. Did you notice those pink and white combination jobs over by Fedigan and Austin. They are the result of a neat graft job that makes you wonder why they use the same word to describe what goes on at City Hall (local city hails excepted, of course).



The dogwoods are receding into the background right now, but they'll be back in the fall to splash the campus with their lovely but quiet reds and maroons. The attention now swings to the copper beeches. You know those, they're the ones with the perfect oval shapes down towards the pike in front of the Monastery and Mendel, and those graceful giants standing guard over by the cemetery. I don't know when I like the beeches best. When they first come out they're a snappy tan job. Right now they're passing through the deep auburn stage. In a little while they'll be a dark copper-green which gives them their name. Each week they're different, but they always remain the reason for which the Villanova campus is so well remembered.

You probably won't be around to drink in the beauty of the horse chestnut trees that separate the small dorms from the rest of the campus. They'll be coming out in June with showy white flowers that will make a wonderful combination with the peonies lined up just beneath them. And while you are down in that end of the campus don't miss the Japanese maple that's hiding on the other side of Simpson Hall. And I guess you did miss the magnolia that's down there. It has come and gone and has taken its place in the green background.

Talking about Chestnut trees, that row which lines the road going down past the barracks to the Field House is an interesting group. They are a new brand which has been brought in to replace the famous old American brand beneath which the equally famous village smithy stood. Later on if you're fast on the pick up (no, no, Dick, I don't mean that kind of pick up!) you'll be able to enjoy some roasted chestnuts which they tell me are delicious.

Not in the least bit famous or conspicuous on the campus is a pair of Japanese ginkgo trees in front of Austin. They are the ones that have the fan shaped leaves. You probably never even noticed them, but a couple of the specialists from up at the Morris Arboretum look at them jealously every time they pass by. It seems they are a type they'd like to see developed for city street planting.

Well you see what I mean. There are still hawthornes, and the whole slew of evergreens. My gosh, I didn't even mention the maples and the lordly oaks! But that's my style of poetry.

After scanning last week's edition, I find that Bruce seems to have acquired a few misconceptions concerning the show at New York's newest Music Mausoleum. Since I actually caught the show at "Bop City" while at home over the holiday I'll do my best to straighten him out on a few points.

The name of the place in itself is enough to drive any music lover underground, but with Artie Shaw in the show we figured that anything could happen and it did. He arrived with forty strings and proceeded to play the classics. Here I must disagree with Bruce, or at least his source of information, the Shaw aggregation did get some applause—nothing to wake the dead—but considering the location and type of audience it was more than one might expect.

While Artie and his forty ferocious fiddlers relaxed between sets the audience was subjected to a grueling ordeal by Kai Winding and his Boptet, followed by Ella Fitzgerald who, with her terrific vocalizing, at least partially soothed my "po' ole" nerves set to jangling by Winding and his fellow sadists. She really had the place rocking when she did "How High the Moon".

As for Mr. Shaw, he was obviously playing in the wrong league knew it, and didn't give a hoot. But after later mulling it over, I've even decided that I rather enjoyed Mr. Matrimony's bargain basement symphony. He still plays terrific clarinet and no one can deny that.

Mr. Winding was grossly misnamed; it should have been winded. He played trombone as though he were constantly searching for the right note. To my knowledge he never did find it. When I think of him making the All Star band, I want to demand a saliva test. Fortunately, Mr. Winding was not the sensation that someone would have Bruce believe, in fact, he hardly received any more applause than Artie and his fiddlers, and he supposedly was in his own element. What Bruce seems to have overlooked was the fact that Ella Fitzgerald stole the show singing old fashioned jazz, of all things.

Fresh talent is always welcome, especially in a field that is overpopulated with mediocre abilities. Evelyn Tyner is the new entrant in the field of piano artistry who concerns us this week. The possessor of a style all her own, she abounds in vitality at the keyboard and has a really infectious beat. She appears most often with a small combo of her own composed of bass and drums, a common combination that produces unusual music. Unfortunately, she has not made any records, however, when she does I doubt if she will have to worry about sales.

Latin-American music with a clear beat is her specialty. The piano work is remarkable not only for its drive and great technical ability, but especially for the originality and sparkling improvisation that shine through all of her performances. We should be hearing more of Evelyn Tyner. She has the stuff of which stars are made.

Turning now to the ever-present and ever productive theater, a current musical on Broadway contains some truly fine music. The cast of "Lend An Ear" contains no great stars, but rather the whole cast is composed of new faces well-endowed with talent. One number in particular caught my attention, not only due to the beautiful music, but also because it is an excellent example of how good ballet, properly combined with a musical story, can produce an impressive effect.

The lights grow dim, the audience is hushed. A small blue spotlight singles out a sultry blonde languidly leaning against a prop near the side of the stage. To the accompaniment of a solitary piano she sings a soulful tune —"What Hit Me?". The song has a haunting melody and the piano work is inspiring. The stage lights then dim, and an apache type character oozes out of the wings, flips a cigarette out of the blonde's mouth, blows the smoke in her face and proceeds to do an interpretive ballet as she sings her sad story. He then slinks off the stage in the same manner as he entered, leaving the blonde fighting for her breath amid the smoke hanging in the same manner as he entered, all for this week—Saturday is our dinner-dance, if you need a date see Frank; he does too!

JUNIORS JOYFUL AS PASTOR PLAYS

Last Friday night more than five hundred couples danced to the music of Tony Pastor at the spring formal sponsored by the Junior Class.

The Prom was a huge success due mainly to the wonderful arrangements of Pastor. He had enough fast and slow numbers to please everyone, and the crowd was thrilled by his velvet voiced vocalist, AdeleCastle.

One of the most outstanding features of the Prom was the fact that there was no interruption in the music. During the intermissions of Pastor, a combo, called the Blue Notes took over and supplied more danceable numbers with a smooth easy beat. This combo featured the stimulating piano playing of Frank Teti, an ex-Villanovan.

Inside Opera

by
BILL CARROLL

I was watching a baseball game on the television set in a small tavern off Market Street when much to my surprise a HORSE quietly nosed his way through the swinging doors. I was about to laugh loudly at this phenomenon but I was forced to arrest my guffaw because the poor animal was obviously troubled. His eyes were shot with red, his mane was unkempt, his horse-blanket needed pressing very badly.

Troubles

I watched him very closely as he stood at the bar drinking brandy after brandy. Finally I mustered enough courage to address him. "What are YOU doing in a bar?" I asked. Calmly the animal turned and in a soft and deep voice began to relate his woes. This, of course, is a common practice in bars. I think most people have listened to some unburden their minds and consciences in such places. Coming from a horse, however, I must admit is somewhat unique, in my experience at least.

His Story

It seems that in 1942 this particular horse whose name was Jerome made application for a job at a dairy. He got the position and was assigned a driver that entertained aspirations of becoming an opera star. As the two of them plodded along the street in the early morning they would sing aria after aria. The air was filled with glorious tones of the milkman's strong baritone voice accompanied by the resonant bass notes supplied by the horse. Jerome, incidentally, was also the name of the MILKMAN in this horse-opera.

Success

In June of 1942, the milkman won a contract with the Metropolitan by virtue of taking first place in a radio contest. Rather than leave his beloved horse (our raconteur-Jerome) he managed to have the horse signed up for those operatic productions that demanded a horse on the stage (Wagner's Gotterdamerung, Donizetti's Elixir of Love, etc.,).

The horse and his master were a tremendous success. Misfortune struck, however, when the company went on the road. It is a policy of the Metropolitan not to carry their regular horses with them. They pick up animals in the towns they are playing. This broke the hearts of the two Jeromes. When the horse reached this point in his tale his eyes welled up with tears, his head dropped and in a quaking voice he ordered a double-shot from the barkeep. I thought he was going to tell me that his master, the baritone, had taken up with another horse in his travels. Such, unfortunately, was not the case.

Death!

It seems that Jerome the Baritone was playing in Baltimore one night when he met with an accident. As he was leaving the stage he fell and broke his leg and lay groaning in great distress in one of the darkened wings off stage. The news quickly spread back stage that Jerome had fallen and as a result sustained a broken lower limb. A slow witted stage hand forgot that Jerome the Horse had been left behind in New York and dashed over and shot the baritone under the mistaken impression that he was putting Jerome the Horse out of his misery. When the lights went on the tragedy was revealed.

After telling me this, the poor horse was unable to continue, so he quickly turned and left the bar. As I was standing their feeling sorry for the poor old horse, the bartender leaned across the bar and said in a disrepectful voice, "You didn't believe that story did you?" "Yes, of course", I replied indignantly. "Why, don't you know", said the barkeep, "that horse is a phoney. Why, he's never seen an opera in his life—and what is more—he can't sing a note". How could I have been so gullible; oh well—live and learn.

After

The baseball season is well under way, and has given us a good story—though not connected directly with the sport. Charlie Feissner's girl took him out to see the Phillies last Tuesday night, and it just so happened that their seats were next to a Scotsman's, who continually took nips from a bottle. Charlie tried to pass over the incident, but finally was unable to restrain himself, and said to the old boy, "Sir, I am 21 years old, and never in my life have I touched alcohol." "Well, dinna worry yourself," said the Scotsman, as his Scotch breath wilted Charlie's eyelashes, "you're nae ginna start now."

Remember the story we told of Frank Varallo on the P. & W.—well, some people got the wrong impression—he's really a polite guy. The other day he was running for the 9:45 express and knocked down an old lady—but, remembering he was from Villanova, and that his actions were looked upon as being those common to all Villanovans, Frank stepped over her while climbing aboard the train, instead of on her.

Who was the student that wanted to hang a sign on the Pie Shop door, reading "Nothing on credit; Darn little for cash."

Fritzi's gym resents having its name connected with the 950 Club. Fritzi's is more exclusive.

George Sabo, whose son, George III, was voted Junior of Junior Week, claims he runs things around the house. Not being too sure, we asked his wife, Matti. "Yes," she said, "he runs things." Later, she said she was referring to the lawn mower, washing machine, vacuum cleaner and errands.

Friday's prom was a great success. The night found many of the local yokels standing shoulder pad to shoulder pad, guzzling cokes in the Blue Room. "Waltz Me Around" Raffa was on hand looking as sure-footed as a centipede. The big three—Carl Kramer, Johnnie Ippolito, and Carl Wummer—showed up with girls, for a change. That is a sure sign that America is still a land of opportunity.

Next Saturday is the Villanovan's dinner-dance. If this column does not appear next week, either we will have been poisoned or else we didn't like the food and quit.

Frank Ryan, one of the more optimistic students, announced his engagement to Rita T. Malloy—a student at the Pennsylvania R. R. office at 32nd. and Lancaster.

Joe Brogan felt out of place without his Blazer, so for the Ball on Wednesday he dipped it in turpentine and Paul Begley lit it for him at 10 P. M. It was the best Blazer at the Ball. Gene Valerio was exceptionally good at the piano—called 50% of his notes right and managed to finish with the rest of the band at least ten times.

SCOOP!! Joe McNulty brought Ralph Green to the concert on Tuesday.

(P. S.—Which of the two has Miss McFarland's shoes?)

Herman "Internal-Combustion" Diesel has switched to Otto's, because Otto has a nice sister. Bill O'Brien came formal to both the Blazer and Junior Ball. He wore shoes both nights. The Villanovans put in a busy week, and are to be congratulated for their fine work.

The tennis courts are being pounded these days by the experts and learners alike. Al Ghazdel has been pushing for an intra-mural tennis league. Sounds like a good idea.

Members of the Alpha Psi Omega don't know whether the girls of the Immaculata College chapter of the same fraternity are their fraternity brothers or whether we're their sorority sisters. We'll leave this problem to John Bauman, of Bauman's Crossing, Pa.

Sophs Plan "Last Fling"; Nominate Class Officers

Dance and Elections Subject of Meeting

Last Thursday evening the Sophomore class held its final meeting of the year. Under discussion was the informal dance on May 25th, which will be sponsored by the class, and nominations for class officers. The hero of the evening was Richard Spence who brought on the refreshments following the business of the meeting.

"The Last Fling" will be an informal dance in the Field House, Wednesday, May 25th, (the eve of Ascension Thursday, a school holiday). The dance is being held for the benefit of St. John's Orphange in Philadelphia. Tickets will go on sale at $1.20 per couple.

In connection with this, Tom Grady announced that a contest will be held among the boys at the orphange for the best poster advertising the dance. The selection of the winner will be made by members of the class.

George Schuster, Class President with the help of the class moderator, Rev. Thomas Purcell, O.S.A., conducted the nominations. At least four names were put up for each office and the for the four positions that are open to the class next year in the Student Council. Elections for the Sophomore class will be held May 17th, in the gym of Alumni Hall.

Hoagies and "coke" were then wheeled in and served by Dick Spence and a few assistants. This, of course, put an end to any semblance of a formal meeting and so the meeting was concluded.

Physicists Hear Prof. Amelotti

The Physics Club held its monthly meeting of the semester last Tuesday, May 3rd., in a seminar room in the Library. Joseph Tyszkiewicz, the president of the club conducted the meeting.

After calling the meeting to order, the president immediately introduced Professor Emil Amelotti, the guest speaker of the evening, who gave an interesting lecture on "Mathematical Aspects of Science."

Prof. Amelotti stressed the importance of mathematics as a link between all branches of science, and as the basis of all modern research. He illustrated his lecture with equations and graphs and explained their significance and applications. He also recommended several reference books on mathematics.

The good attendance of the meeting was indicative of the interest that many students have in science mathematics in particular.

It was announced, further, that the original plan to visit the cyclotron at the University of Pennsylvania had to be postponed until the Fall due to the lack of time before the end of the present semester.

Sanctuary Group To Hold Elections

The Sanctuary Society will hold its monthly meeting tonight in the amphitheatre, Room 215, Mendel for the purpose of electing officers for the next scholastic year. This will probably be the last meeting of this semester. Refreshments will be served.

For years the Society has served the College by donating its time to assist at Holy Mass. It is a group that strives for perfection in the performance of the Augustinian and Papal Rubrics.

INTERNATIONAL QUIZ WON BY VILLANOVA

Sunday evening, May 1, a team from the College participated in the well-known International Quiz program broadcast over radio station WPEN and sponsored jointly by WPEN and the British Broadcasting Company. Villanova won the quiz for the second time in the current series, their latest win being over a team representing the University of Exeter, of Plymouth, England.

The Quiz series matches teams from the schools in the Philadelphia area against teams from colleges in England. The program is aired every Sunday night at 10:30 P. M. and has gained the interest of many listeners in Philadelphia.

Frank Mirante, Robert Gabriel and John Murphy comprised the team which brought home the second win in as many attempts.

Accounting Forum Held At U. of Penn; Society To Meet

Friday afternoon, April 29, the Philadelphia Chapter of the Pennsylvania Institute of Certified Public Accountants held its annual Accounting Forum at the University of Pennsylvania's Wharton School. The program began at 2:00 P. M. with greetings from the Dean of the Wharton School of Commerce and Finance, and climaxed with a buffet dinner at the University Museum.

Proffesor Leo H. Schaefer, of the Villanova faculty, presided at the meeting concerned with a discussion of the topic "Tax Matters of Special Interest" and officially represented the college at the forum. Some other topics discussed were "Installation of Accounting Systems", "What is the Future in Accounting", and many others of pertinent interest to both practicing accountants and students.

Many Accounting students from the college attended the beneficial sessions held in the well-known business school. The CPA Institute has taken an active part in the training of students for work in the field by its program under the direction of many well-known accounting educators and practitioners.

The Accounting Honor Society will hold an important business meeting tomorrow afternoon at 2:00 in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium. President Ed Situia will preside at the meeting which has been called so that plans may be laid for a dinner to be held later in May and for an important speaker to address the group next week. All those accounting students interested are urged to attend these meetings.

Trackmen Edged By Seton Hall, 65-61

Semple Takes Shot, Javelin, Discus; Ross wins Mile & 2-Mile

By BILL COONEY

In a meet which saw two triple winners and a pair of double victors, Seton Hall's cindermen shaded Villanova's trackstars 65-61 at the Mainliners' Stadium last Wednesday.

Big Joe Semple scored 15 points for the Wildcats by taking all three weight events. The Palmyra strong man was supreme in the javelin with a heave of 178'1½", in the discus with 129'3½", and in the shot put with a 43 foot effort.

Ross Doubles

Browning Ross ran true to form taking both the mile and the two mile runs. He strode easily through a slow 4:33.3 mile and still beat the Pirates' Phil Stillwell by 40 yards. The two mile was a repeat performance as the little Olympian breezed to victory in a slow 10:8.3. In this race Stillwell also took second.

The other three-timer was Andy Stanfield of the Hall. The long striding IC4A 60 yard champ scored with a 9.9 century, a 21.5 two-twenty and a leap of 21'4" in the running broad jump.

The Pirates also had a ten pointer in Frank Vigeant who took both the 120 high and 160 low hurdles, Vigeant went over the high timbers in 16.2; while he skipped the lower bars in 18.3. Tom Flynn was second in the highs for the Cats, and Larry O'Brien was just edged out by Gates and took third in the lows.

Score In High Jump

The Wildcats other victory came when Marty Panczner just missed at 6 even to win the high jump at 5'11½". Villanovan Bob O'Neil took second to make it an 8 to 1 event for the Blue and White. O'Neil took another second later in the broad jump.

IC4A 600 champion Frank Fox beat out Jim McKenna by about two feet to win the quarter in 50 seconds flat. Fox laid back most of the way and had to put on a terrific kick in the last hundred yards which nabbed McKenna in a close homestretch battle. McKenna also picked up points with a second place in the 220 and a third in the 100.

Phil Thigpen, who is also an IC4A champion (1000) won the half handily in 1:59.1. A real battle for second developed on the last turn when Joe McCreary outsprinted Ed McCardle to get three points for the home team.

South Orange also took the pole vault by virtue of Harasty's 12 foot effort; while in a mile relay which did not count in the scoring, Muscelli, O'Brien, Irish, and Holmes ran 3:29.8 to win over the Seton Hall four.

Sweep Shot

There was only one sweep by Villanova and that was in the shot. Behind Semple were footballers Pete D'Alonzo and Rudy Yeager. D'Alonzo was also second in the discus.

The Villanova frosh suffered a 78 to 30 trouncing at the hands of the Seton Hall juniors. Outstanding for the Cats was Jimmy Reardon's 50.7 quarter. The Irish Flash ran effortlessly to leave all competition at yards behind.

Harrisburg's pride and joy, Bob Kunjak ran a snappy 22.2 to win the 220. John W. Furrlinger II lived up to his name and was second as he was also in the hundred. All three of the above mentoned men were members of that sensational mile relay which unfortunately didn't run as planned.

Third to Navy and Manhattan

Villanova finished last behind Navy and Manhattan last Saturday in a triangular meet held at Annapolis. Manhattan was first with 70½ points, Navy second with 51, while the Cats came in third with 46½.

Browning Ross repeated his Wednesday performance against Seton Hall by winning both the mile and the two mile. Pushed by Tommy Somerford, Ross ran a blistering 4:30 mile, far faster than the usual dual or triangular meet time. Later on Ross came back to turn in a good 9:49 take in the two mile.

Football Team Ends Six Week Practice Session

23 Returning Veterans and Frosh Make Good Showing In Spring Workouts

By HARRY RANGE
Sports Editor

With the scrimmage against Lehigh a week ago Saturday, the football team brought down the curtain on its first practice session under new head Coach Jim Leonard. And if the pigskin carriers continue with the same stuff they showed during Spring practice the 1949 Wildcat grid season should be a very successful one.

The former Fighting Irish star and his assistants Art Raimo, Larry Kirshline and John McKenna had the squad working from the T and winged-T formations with the stress placed on offense, speed, and ball-handling. Rugged body contact and precission drills were held with the result that at the end of the six weeks' workout the team was in September form. Proof of this was in the Lehigh tussle where the Cats "outscored" a hard-fighting crew from upstate, twelve touchdowns to none.

23 Holdovers

To fill the gap vacated by thirteen graduating gridders which included such stars as Andy Gordon, Billy Doherty, Ed Berrange, and Lou Perry, Leonard has 23 holdovers from last year's Harbor Bowl Champions as well as a number of good men who will move up from the Freshman squad.

Backbone of the top-flight backs is the double-barreled powerhouse of Pete D'Alonzo and Ralph Pasquariello. "Little Dynamite" D'Alonzo weighs in at 210 while "Big Dynamite" Pasquariello tips the scale at 230 and both have the speed of a runaway locomotive. In fact, the boys were breaking so fast that they actually breathing down the necks of their interference.

Fleet-footed Halfbacks

Flanking Pete and Ralph at the halfbacks are a score of fleet-footed backs foremost of whom are John Geppi, Joe Rogers, and Phil Snyder. Geppi, the diminutive jet from Baltimore consistently slashed off tackle and swept the ends for big gains ever ytime he carried. At times it looked that he was literally flying over the opposition.

Joe Rogers side-stepped and dodged in his incomparable manner for plenty of yardage and again baffled defensive halfbacks with his sensational pass receiving and elusive running.

Just as in the '48 season, Phil Snyder was a dependable groundgainer, combining his speed and strength to batter down the defense.

Deep In Quarterbacks

The first-string quarterback slot is ably handled by the veteran Steve Romanik. Steve, who put in most of his playing time last year on the defense, came into his own as a field general, ball-handler, and passer. Romanik's understudy under center comes in the person of Neil O'Boyle who showed great form in both passing and ball-handling. Rounding out the staff of capable quarterbacks is the Freshman flash, Jack Monaghan who was outstanding during spring practice.

Mainstays on the line were the veterans John Sandusky, Dan Brown, and George Pavalko. Sandusky, a veritable moving mountain at 260 pounds is the bulwark of the line, a vicious tackler, and really able to move. Dan Brown had everyone gasping with his sensational catches and running and should be one of the East's leading ends this season. At guard, the ever-dependable George Pavalko shone both on the offense and defense with his savage tackling and blocking.

Leonard Pleased

All in all, Coach Leonard was extremely pleased with the team's showing in Spring practice but there is one fact regarding the interest of the student body in which he was particularly etified. This was the fine spirit and enthusiasm of the non-football playing Villanovans. According to Coach Leonard, "I was sincerely pleased with the interest of all of the loyal followers of the football team and I would like to publicly thank each and every one of these fine fans. When a boy is out there playing for the school it will do him good to have a loyal crowd of followers cheering for him. This fine manifestation of student interest made me and my assistants extremely happy and I hope that this is only the beginning of an increasingly closer relationship among the players, students, and coaches.

Nine Edged 5-3, 1-0 By Bucknell, Fordham In Close Diamond Tilts

Bisons' Two Runs in Eleventh Ends 3-3 Deadlock

Villanova's hard-fighting baseball squad, did its best to keep a three-game winning skein intact, but the big bats of three Bucknell batsmen . . . Andy Shirk, Sherm Doebler and Jim Danforth . . . proved fatal as the 'Cats bowed to the Bisons from Lewisburg, 5-3, in a nip and tuck 11-inning battle at Villanova last Wednesday.

With the count knotted at 3-all, Shirk doubled and Doebler duplicated to send his mate across with the tie-breaking marker. Rightfielder Dick Rauch skied to center and sent Doebler to third. Bucknell then put on the perfect "squeeze" as Danforth bunted no more than two feet away from the plate and as Doebler scored the final tally.

Weglicki Triples

Villanova also had its moments. After the visitors had jumped to a one-run lead in the opening frame, the 'Cats evened the count in the second. Shy Raiken opened the inning with a single to left and promptly moved to second on a balk by Bison hurler, Art Raynor. John Weglicki, the batting star of the day with two extra base knocks to his credit, slammed a long triple to score Raiken.

After five long stanzas of scoreless play, prosperity returned to the Weinertmen. In the eighth, second baseman Tom Jones singled stole second, and tallied on a boot by Doebler.

Bisons Retaliate

The Bisons, however, were not to be denied. Lead by Shirk's triple, Doebler's single, a sacrifice by Rauch and a wild pitch by starter "Red" Wright, the Bucknell nine scored two runs to again take the lead.

Weglicki opened the Villanova half of the ninth with a double under the right-field stands. Bill Doherty put the machine in motion with a ringing two-bagger along the left field foul line scoring Weglicki. Mickey Frinzi, 'Cat centerfielder, was safe on an infield single, but both he and Doherty died on the sacks.

'Cats Denied

In the first extra canto, Stan Chojnacki took over the pitching reigns for the homesters and set down the opposition in order. The Bison's Raynor, who limited the Main Liners to 10 hits during the regulation game, survived the 10th unscathed.

Then came the fatal blows by the visitors. The Villanova nine was unable to touch Raynor for another hit and thereby fell to their sixth loss in nine starts.

Moroney's 4 - Hitter Dampened As Rams Score In Ninth

By TED FERNANDEZ

Last Saturday afternoon, at the home of the Fordham Ram, the Villanova Wildcats were edged out by the not to healthy score of 1-0. The first 8 innings held not a point and it was in the final chapter when Fordham's ace captain and first-sacker, Jim Quinn, tee-ed off for a single on Jack Morony and sparked Tony Camera home from third with the winning and only run of the day.

Pitching Duel

From start to finish the ballgame was definitely a pitchers duel with Jim Daly twirling for the Rams and "Old Faithful" Jack Moroney on the mound for the Cats. Daly, who is a sophomore turned in a fine performance for the New Yorkers as he allowed a mere two hits and one walk against the Mainliners. Credit should also go to the Masterful exhibition put on by Villanova's own Jack Moroney. Moroney allowed the Rams only four hits and held them down to one run.

Mickey Frinzi and Jack Moroney were the only hitters for the Cats. Don Butler, Jim Quinn and Bob Hargraves hit for the Rams with Butler netting two. While Moroney struck out 6 Fordhamites to Daly's 1. Moroney gave up five bases on balls to Daly's one.

This victory was Fordham's eighth, giving them a season total of eight wins and seven losses. Villanova now has a record of seven defeats in ten starts. The Mainliners will travel to Penn State next week to meet a strong Nittanv squad.

Tennis Pros Play Here Tomorrow

Tomorrow afternoon, at three o'clock Villanova students will have the opportunity of seeing two top-seeded tennis pros, Welby Van Horn and Jack March, play an exhibition set and conduct instructions for all those interested.

In the announcement, made by Rev. George McLaughlin, O.S.A., Dean of Student activities, all tennis-minded Villanovans are invited to witness the exhibition and to take part in the instructions. The only requirements for the netmen will be to bring racket of their own and tennis shoes.

Both Van Horn and March are well-known in amateur and professional tennis circles, having played both at the NLTA Matches and professional championships, at Forest Hills' West Side Tennis Club, at Wimbledon, and at numerous pro contests held throughout the country.

Put It There, John!

A youthful admirer goes out to congratulate John Moroney as he crosses home plate. Moroney beat Penn 1-0 but lost a heartbreaker by the same score last Saturday to Fordham.

A Last Look At Our Graduating Athletes

By BILL CANINO

As another year draws to its close another fine group of athletes who have written their names into the Villanova Hall of Fame will take their leave of this fair campus. These men have served the school well and have made every Wildcat follower proud of them.

In the final three editions of the Villanovan, this department will attempt to pay a final tribute to the men who have donned the Blue and White for the last time. Along with this brief resume of the more brilliant moments of each man, this department sends along its thanks and best wishes.

Ed Berrang, football, end . . . From New Philadelphia, Pa., via New York Military Academy, came Big Ed Berrang. Joining the ranks in the Fall of '46, Ed immediately snatched a varsity end spot. During the past two seasons he has been a starter, and in the wake of his playing days Ed leaves Villanova in June with a great playing background. After a spectacular season Berrang was chosen on many All East teams and received honorable mention on several All-Americans elevens. Immediately after the Harbor Bowl game with the University of Nevada, it was announced that the Green Bay Packers of the National Football League had signed Berrang to play next season.

Frank "Bud" Kane, end . . . A product of West Catholic High, Bud came to Villanova following a season at Penn and another at Jacksonville NAS. His wide experience served him a good stead as he clinched a varsity berth in '46 and held it through the next two years. Kane, a 6:00, 205-pounder, established himself as one of the finest defensive ends in the area. On offensive his blocking was oft-times vicious.

Bud also has the proud distinction to be the only athlete in the district to be the recipient of varsity letters from the three top colleges in the area . . . Penn, Temple and Villanova. After graduation from C & F where he is majoring in Marketing, Bud will travel to St. Louis where he will wear the uniform of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Bob Riley, Football tackle . . . One of the most consistent players on the squad, Bob came to Villanova in the Summer of '45 after a bright career at Millville, (N.J.) High School. After a year of collegiate experience he withstood the bid of returning servicemen and held his varsity tackle slot for three more years.

In his final campaign, Bob, who also won a reputation as the best weight-lifter in the school, played his best ball. For his die-hard spirit he was nominated captain for the San Francisco game and was a standout in the triumph over the Dons. Bob completed his education course in February and will begin teaching in the Fall.

Andy Gordon football quarterback . . . A masterful ball handler and T-formation quarterback, Andy came to the Main line campus from Germantown by way of St. Joe's Prep and Penn. He was always a fine passer and did a great job alternating with Billy Doherty in the first string quarterback slot. In 1946 he hit for 28 out of 55 passes while in '47, where more of his time was spent running the ground attack, he completed on 11 of 29 attempts. Last season found Andy doing a great job leading the team through the regular schedule and in the Harbor Bowl defeat of Nevada.

Having graduated last January, Andy has now signed a contract with the Ottowa Rough Riders in the Big Four League where he will get a chance to show Canada some of the talent he displayed at Villanova for the past three years.

Joe Scarcelli, Football guard . . . Out in Johnsville, Pa., there's a Villanova graduate who was one of the most underrated guards on the Main Line campus during the past four years. A graduate of Southern High School, Joe Scarcelli was quiet and studious. But, on the gridiron it was a different story. His business-like procedure, and his will to win, stamped him as a competitor from the word "GO".

After four years of varsity competition, Joe left Villanova and an enviable record. An Electrical engineer, he now uses some of the savvy that he learned while wearing helmet and pads to help the Navy in the development of guided missiles.

MENDEL TRIUMPHS IN ONLY SOFTBALL TILT PLAYED LAST WEEK

Rubin - Jacobs Star in Win Over Good Counsel

MONDSCHEIN INC., & KLUCSARITS

Ol' Jupe Pluvius and Junior Week combined to curtail activities in the softball league last week and as a result, only one game was played. On Tuesday evening, the scheduled game between Austin and Alumni was postponed because of wet grounds. In the game that was played, Mendel broke into the win column with a decisive 12-3 triumph over Good Counsel. The latter suffered their second loss in as many games.

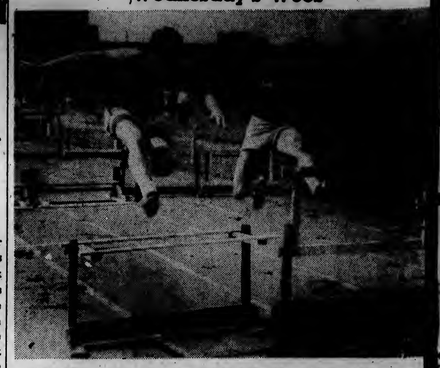
Mendel scored in every inning, except the third, as they slammed the offerings of Fitzpatrick for 18 hits. Meanwhile, Good Counsel was held to eight singles by Rubin of the winners. They bunched six of them in the first two innings for all their runs. Rubin was the complete master after that, limiting Good Counsel to two singles the rest of the way. His control was perfect as he struck out one and walked none. During most of the game he was ahead of the opposing batters, forcing them to hit bad pitches. He also received sparkling support from his teammates and a double-play with the sacks loaded in the second frame killed off a promising rally by the losers.

Jacobs Batting Star

Jacobs was the big gun in the Mendel attack with a triple, two singles and a walk in four trips to the plate. He also scored three times and stole a base. Grodovich had two doubles and Griffin and Mc Knight had a two-bagger apiece.

On the defensive side, Lavoti and Kozuch were outstanding in the outfield, while Grodovich turned in some fine plays at shortstop. The only man on Good Counsel's team who was able to get more than one hit off Rubin was lead-off man Murray who had two for four. Les Obst, their big batting threat went hitless in three attempts. Fitzpatrick contributed to his own downfall by issuing four walks to the slugging Mendeleers.

Rain On Thursday



Despite threatening weather, Fedigan and Bks. 1 & 4 started their game, on Thursday as did Bks. 2 & 3 and the Doms. The former game was called at the end of three with Fedigan holding an 8-5 advantage. Both teams scored five runs in the initial frame and Fedigan added three more in their half of the second. Lefty Mondschein was on the hill for the Bks. while Brennan was hurling for Fedigan. The game will be replayed at a later date.

Umpire John Morris called a halt to proceedings in the Bks. 2 & 3 and Doms game in the second inning. When the rains came, the Doms were enjoying a 4-0 lead. They rapped the slants of southpaw Nugent for five hits and all their runs in the opening inning. Meanwhile, J. J. Thompson was effectively holding the Bks. team in check. This contest will also be rescheduled.

Full Schedule This Week

The Intramural Softball League goes into action this week with games booked for each night. A game on each of the two fields—Austin and Mendel—will be played four nights a week until May 24th., weather permitting.

Wednesday's Woes

Tom Flynn seen going over the high hurdles with Joe Kelly of Seton Hall. Tom was second as the Cats dropped a close one to the Pirates 65-61.

Sky Ralken beats out a single against Bucknell. He later scored Weglicki's triple but to no avail as Cats lost 5-3 in the eleventh.

Boy Leadership Sessions To Be Held July 29-31

Villanova College, in cooperation with the Knights of Columbus Supreme Council Boy Life Bureau will hold a Summer School of Boy Leadership this Summer. The three day session, to be held on the College campus, will be from July 29th. to the 31st.

This will be the first year that Villanova College has been host to the movement. However, this is not the first year that the Knights of Columbus have sponsored this non-profit Summer School for men.

During the past twenty-five years more than 12,000 Catholic men have received the training in youth leadership offered each year in the Summer Schools. This has been one of the proud contributions of the Order to the field of Catholic Youth Work, initiated in 1924.

Nowadays it is not difficult to sell the average person on the thought that there is a youth problem. Even the most stubborn of us are finally becoming convinced that our young people today are faced with problems far more complex and numerous than those that confronted the older generations.

A sympathetic interest in youth and an enthusiastic zeal for the work are essential qualities in the youth leader. Blending these characteristics with a working knowledge of the nature of the boys, of program planning, of the principles of committee work, etc., is the primary objective of the Summer School.

Any Catholic man, eighteen years of age or older may enroll in the School.

The financing of the training course is on an actual cost basis. Fees are made directly to the co-sponsoring College or University and not to the Knight of Columbus. Total cost of the training, including tuition, registration, lodging, meals, etc., will be fourteen dollars. The fee is divided into a four dollar advance registration fee and a ten dollar balance that is paid at the time of registration.

Advance registration may be made directly to Rev. Edward B. McKee, O.S.A., Vice President, Villanova College, Villanova, Pennsylvania, or to Mr. John J. Conway, Executive Director Knights of Columbus Boy Life Bureau, New Haven, Conn. Further information may also be obtained from either of the above.

Bussolari Group To Attend Last Model Security Council

Beaver College, Jenkintown, will be the scene of the final Model Security Council meeting, Tomorrow night, members of the International Relations of the regional colleges will convene to discuss the "German Crisis". The series of Model Security Council meetings was inaugurated last February under the joint sponsorship of the Foreign Policy Association and the United Nations Council of Philadelphia.

More than eighteen colleges within a sixty-mile area have participated in each of these conferences. They have served to acquaint students with current world problems and the workings of the United Nations Security Council. The current series has stimulated such an interest among college groups that a similar monthly series of programs is contemplated for 1949-50.

Next fall, the Bussolari Society, in conjunction with the Foreign Policy Association of Philadelphia, will sponsor four programs concerning Pan-American affairs. Prominent statesmen associated with Latin-American relations will address students of regional colleges.

There will be an important meeting of the Bussolari Society tonight in room 210 Mendel, at 7:30. All those interested in participating in activities next year are invited to attend.

All Nominations Completed Today

Nominations for the class officers of the Freshman, Sophomore, and Junior Classes will be completed today with a meeting of the latter group this afternoon at 4:00 P. M. in the C & F Auditorium. Elections for all three classes will be held on Tuesday, May 17th., in the Alumni gym.

The twice-postponed meeting of the Freshman Class was held yesterday at 12 noon in the C & F Auditorium. It had been previously called for Tuesday and then Thursday of last week, but since poor attendance prevented the formation of a quorum at either meeting, no business could be conducted.

Members of the Sophomore Class called their meeting for 7:30 P. M. last Thursday in C & F. Besides nomination of officers, the main purpose of the meeting, preliminary plans were made for a dance, to be held May 25th., the eve of Ascension Thursday.

Each class will elect four officers to serve in the executive positions for the '49-'50 academic year. Nominations are usually limited to four names for each post. At present the names of the nominees are not available as they must receive the approval of the administration before being placed of the ballot.

Birth of Don Quixote—Poem

The following is the poem of John Roesgen which won the annual Spanish Club award for an English poem on the life of Cervantes. It was read by Roesgen at the dinner-dance of the Club held on April 30th. in honor of Cervantes Day. After the reading, Hon. Luis Villaba, the Spanish consul in Philadelphia described it as, ". . . sincere in its simplicity; worthy of the Spanish author himself".

The sun leaps up, the dawn breaks through,
The fresh green grass is wet with dew,
And the rooster crows in his merry way,
For lo and behold, it's another day;
It must have been sent by Divine decree.
The village quickly shakes its gloom,
And life bursts forth like buds that bloom
The children bravely start for school
To study their books and the golden rule;
Laughing and shouting, carefree and gay;
For such effects a beautiful day.
But wait! All is not so bright
On this gorgeous sunshiny child of night.
The village prison stands out quite bold
With walls so somber and gray and cold
Unnoticed by most, but nevertheless
Home for many an unwelcome guest.
And as he stands gazing moodily
Out of the window of cell number three,
Cervantes, for that be the gentleman's name,
A little-known writer with no claim to fame,
Cervantes recalls, with perhaps a tear,
The day before when they put him here.
For he had been on an errand bent
To this little town to collect the rent,
But it seems the good folk resented this
And so doomed him to his present bliss,
To which state he now dwells upon
With indignation swelling on.
"The flowers, the trees, nature so gay,
And here I must sit and pass the day.
What a fool I was when this trip I took!
Forsooth, I think I'll write a book
With a character in it as foolish as me
And I'll call him . . . let's see . . . why, Don Quixote!"
So forthwith Cervantes sits him down
To recreate the perfect down.
And now with a grin at his comical state
He writes on and on until quite late;
Little dreaming that this same
Would live forever and spread his fame.
Thus night returns to this tiny city,
A blanket of black covers day so pretty;
And as the hours creep on apace
We must in spirit leave this place,
With Cervantes there on his prison cot
Sad but still chuckling o'er his lot.

Weekly Awarded 1st Class Rating ByCollegiatePress

The VILLANOVAN recently received rating First Class from the Associated Collegiate Press Association for the Fall Semester publication period. This rating is the second highest which can be earned, the highest being rated as All-American. It was under the direction of Francis J. Guzikowski, editor during the Fall semester, that the weekly gained a full rank over the rank previously held.

The Associated Collegiate Press analyzes and evaluates the work done by member college and university papers and scores them in relation to standards set by the national convention. Competition is made as fair as possible in classifying each paper according to method of publication, type of school, enrollment of school and frequency of issue. Some of the points considered in the valuation include News writing, Editing, Headlines, Features and others.

With a minimum score of 750 necessary to earn the First Class rating, The VILLANOVAN compiled a score of 790, and was one of only 30 in its class to receive the rating.

A senior Frank Guzikowski gained experience last year as managing editor and was appointed editor-in-chief upon the graduation of John McDermott.

SOPHOMORES PRESENT BENEFIT DANCE FOR ST. JOHN'S BOYS

Last Wednesday, May 11th., little John Bonikowski, who wears a big smile under short blonde hair, and lives at St John's Orphanage, in Philadelphia, was the proud winner of a beautiful bat and ball. John's poster, advertising the Sophomore-sponsored "Last Fling," was chosen as the best from among some thirty entries.

The dance, which will be held on the 25th. of May, the eve of Ascension Thursday, will be a benefit, and all proceeds will go to the Orphans. The Villanovans will be on hand to play from 8 to midnight. Tickets have already been put on sale. The price, a record low for informal dances at Villanova, is a new idea of the part of the Sophomore Class, and the consensus of opinion among the members is that many of the dances are too expensive, and that a lower price would still admit an overall profit.

Tom Grady, chairman of the dance, with George Schuster, class president, Rev. Thomas P. Purcell, O.S.A., class moderator and several other members of the class were on hand Wednesday to judge the posters, and award the prize to the winner.

The poster, along with the others that were entered in the contest, will be used in the campaign for the dance. They will be posted in various buildings about the campus announcing that the proceeds will benefit the little boys at the orphanage.

PRESIDENT TO MAKE MERIT AWARDS AT MAY 23 CONVOCATION

Next Monday, May 23rd., at 2 P. M., students will convene in the Field House for the final convocation of the school. At that time the President of the college will present the Merit Awards for extra-curricular activities to three hundred students. It is the first time since the beginning of the war that the awards have been passed out.

Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O. S.A., will present the awards to students who have participated in campus activities and who have been recommended by their Moderators. Candidates for this award must also be approved by the Dean of the College, the Dean of Men, and the Chaplain. In other words their records must be excellent in scholarship and conduct as well as in extra-curricular activities.

The Student who is awarded the most Merit Awards through the four years of his attendance at the college will receive the Martin McLaughlin Memorial Medal upon Graduation. This medal is presented each year by the Alumni Association.

NROTC Tenders Honors to Captain and Chief Yoeman

This afternoon at the conclusion of their drill period, the NROTC Unit of Villanova College will pass in review before Chief Yeoman J. J. Stretch. Next week they will be inspected by the Captain T. C. Thomas U. S. N., Commander of the Unit.

Chief Yeoman Stretch has served in the Navy for twenty-five years. At the end of this month he will retire from active duty and become a member of the Fleet Reserve. Chief Stretch has been stationed at Villanova for the past year and has become well known to members of the Unit who approach him the first of every month in quest of their checks.

Capt. Thomas will be transferred from his duty as Commander of the Villanova NROTC Unit at the end of this semester will conduct the inspection ceremonies on the 24th of May. Capt. Thomas was assigned to Villanova in January of 1946 succeeding Comdr. Edward Hannah, USNR, the last of the V-12 commanders, has served as head of the NROTC for three and a half years.

The Midshipmen of the Unit will frill only twice more this semester before they leave for their summer training periods.

This spring will mark the end of the first year that the Navy has used the expanded facilities of the new building. In its rooms and through its equipment they have trained the largest group of NROTC midshipmen that has been at Villanova.

Sympathy

The staff of the VILLANOVAN extends its sympathy to Paul Altenpohl, Peter Kampe, and John Applegate whose fathers died last week. Masses will be said in the College Chapel for the happy repose of their souls.

Lynx, Engineer Out With Spring Editions

Last Week the two campus magazines hit the stands for the last time this school year. The literary, periodical, LYNX, and the engineering organ, the VILLANOVAN ENGINEER both were revived during the year and their spring editions marked the completion of their first successful year.

Short stories, poems and essays are some of the features to be found in the LYNX for very entertaining reading for all. The VILLANOVAN ENGINEER features articles on the latest developments in the engineering fields and school.

Princeton Professor Discusses "Man and Science" In Final Forum

Dr. Hugh Scott Taylor, Dean of the Princeton University Graduate School, delivered a refutation of the theory that science and religion are opposed, last Thursday evening, in the C & F Auditorium. His lecture, the third in the current series sponsored by the Villanova Forum, marked the close of the Forum's activities for this year.

His topic, "Man and Science", was described in the welcoming speech by Mr. Charles Bruderle, Chairman of the Forum, as " . . . leading completion to the treatment given the general Forum subject The Catholic Church in the World."

Comparing the developments in experimental science to chain reaction, he briefly sketched its advancements from the sixteenth century. Using as his sources both French and English writings of the period, Dr. Taylor showed that concomitant with this development was a scientific specialization and secularization. This led, he pointed out, to the thesis prevalent in the late nineteenth century that science, opposed to religion, was on the side of what was termed "Light and Reason".

"Advances in the twentieth century have exposed the fallacy in those doctrines," stated Dr. Taylor, "and have shown to science that it requires a complementary science . . . which can be found in theology."

In concluding his lecture, Dr. Taylor addressed a plea to the new generation of Catholic students for ". . . greater participation of students in the development of scientific careers. Between the life of a professing Catholic and the pursuit of science there is no disparity, but rather a complementary relationship," declared Dean Taylor. He advised, "America needs the Catholic students in the colleges and universities today."

Dr. Taylor, a well known figure in the field of chemistry is also

What Are You Selling?

Every year as graduation time draws near many of us begin to think of the day when we, like the Seniors, will have to go out and compete with perhaps a million other graduates for jobs which have become more scarce as the post-war era grows older.

Some may consider this condition to be quite frightening, but let us stop and think. The era that is upon us is not unusual—it is normal. Remember that. We may be used to living in an America bulging with job opportunities, yet, any fool knows that such a situation was only temporary. Money will not be plentiful. Pay for the jobs available will not be the huge pay we knew when employers had to attract help.

As for the competition provided by the many other college graduates, we will find a personal problem confronting us. Who is to decide how we stand in relation to all these job-hunting highly-trained men? You may say the personnel managers. Those hiring will immediately put us into categories. Our problem is to see that we get into the right category.

Stories keep coming back to the campus from men who have graduated recently. Some of the stories tell of wonderful breaks for the graduates, but many more tell of old-fashioned pavement pounding. Don't discount these stories as just passing conversation. They can mean something to anyone who is really interested in a decent future.

There are no guarantees for a successful future after college. There is only the need for working now for the day when your talents and abilities and training will become commodities which you will endeavor to sell. Just like any other selling you will have to prove your product better than any other available. If what you offer is promising, there will be an employer willing to pay a good price with possible promotion if you earn it.

What we are driving at is that from now on it will be necessary to go out and compete with men who are in the same boat as any of us. Now is the time to devise your sales talk and acquire material for your personal portfolio.

News In View

Last week, the Russians lifted their road blocks, and after months of inactivity ground traffic began to move again to supply the people of Berlin. The Russians' price for this was a foreign ministers' meeting. After a cold war, that had lasted through a cold and long winter, it was a virtual admission that they had lost, or rather American millions, American air power, and American ingenuity had saved Berlin from the Red tide.

But other than that, what were the results of this event? What did millions increase in the budget mean to the taxpayer? And what did the greater chances for peace mean to the investor and broker who make Wall Street known throughout the world?

An average student of some fifteen years ago would be prone to ignore such off-campus topics. But today in a country as news-conscious as the U. S. the student has an obligation to study news.

By Tom Galloway

If the end of the world were to come tomorrow what would you do, what would you think, what would you say when you stared into the searching eye of almighty God and tried to explain and excuse some of your supposedly hidden deeds? Would you be glad or sorry to see it come? Is the end of the world a thing to look forward to or is it a horrid and fearful thought? The end could come at any time.

Death a Blessing

If we were prepared for such an event, we would have nothing to fear from Death. It would be a blessing and a relief. If we were to live clean, pure lives, always doing the thing that is most proper we could rest assured that we would be rewarded for our forethought and fulfillment of the laws of the Church. A good life is the price for a good death and hereafter. Anyone who has heard a person say at the death of a relative, "It's a blessing", will understand the sublime truth of life after death. The person who spoke those words realized the glory of leading a good life, patterned after that of our Lord, and regulated by his precepts.

Examinations in Life

Death is the purpose of our lives. Our lives are merely an examination such as we take in school to see if we are fitted for the career which we have chosen in life; to see if we are fitted for heaven. We must work for the examination. Cramming doesn't always work because this is often a surprise exam. This examination should be carefully approached. Each day is a question in the test and our answer to that question should be checked by another exam—the examination of conscience. If this is done every day, our finals will be sure to come out with a fine mark. There is no repeat course, and it is impossible to avoid the test altogether.

Later Rewards

It will only be with a supreme act of human strength that we will give yesterday's vices today, and today's tomorrow. But, the reward for our self-discipline will be greater than any glory that can be gained through vice on earth. Everyone knows his own weaknesses and sources of temptation better than any textbook ever written on the subject. Only you can earn your rewards and first honors from the examination of life for you are the only one who knows you perfectly, your faults, your vices, your weaknesses. You can either punish yourself or do yourself a great favor, an everlasting favor.

Tomorrow's Another Day

We cannot undo all the evil things we have done. We can, though, reform ourselves, and work and sacrifice to earn ever-lasting peace. The great glories and fruits of Heaven belong to him who has the ambition to fulfill his desires for the future. Heaven is yours for the asking.

EXPERIMENT PERILOUS

by Bill Breninghouse

No one need doubt the truth of the statement that "Hope springs eternal in the human breast" when he considers that blind dates are still an important function of the social life of those who have the time, money, and inclination to indulge in social life. It is very seldom that Oscar Twomp has all three requisites at the same time, but when he does he usually gets one of the boys to fix him up. By now, he has been hardened to the experience and has found that if he always expects the worst he is never disappointed. In fact, he is making a study of the situation. Mr. Twomp hopes to write a learned treatise on Blinddatesology, that is after he passes arithmetic 001. It is from this coming master work that the material in this article is taken.

Frame-Up

First is the faculty fix-up or more likely, the faculty frame-up. In this case one is approached by his advanced Gustobology professor and is asked if he would like to go to a prom tomorrow night with a girl from a local school. Since he is teetering on the brink of failure in Advanced Gustobology he must decide to give it a thought. Before the victim realizes it, he is dancing at the prom with a vision of something or other. He is penniless but miserable, and he still isn't sure of passing Advanced Gustobology.

Buddy's Friend

Type 6XQ Blind Date is known in the layman's language as the buddy's girl friend's girl friend. In this instance, it would be well for the beginner to take notice of a few rules. Number one is that your best buddy is not above giving you the short end of a dirty deal. Secondly, if your buddy's girl is a terrific knockout, her girl friend will undoubtedly be somewhat on the unterrific side. There are two reasons for this. A beautiful girl likes to have one of the other kind around to enhance her own charms, while the less beautiful girls hang onto the skirts of a dazzling companion in order to garner dates from her girl friend's boy friend's buddies.

Others

There are many other types of blind dates. Some boys will remember with much pain the girl that sounded wonderful over the phone. Little Mary Lou, who sat behind you in the third grade just before she moved away, was as pretty as a picture then. You were glad to go out with her when she came back to the old home town. Now, sad to relate, little Mary Lou has quite a frame. Then there is the girl pen pal who sent you a picture of Lana Turner before she came to see relatives who lived in the same town as you.

Take A Chance

Yes, for anyone who wants to live dangerously, there is nothing like the blind date. It's just like Christmas, with surprises all over the place. The cardinal rule to observe is to refuse to realise that the girl may be getting no bargain. So, if you want to take chances, if you are a born gambler, if you can't get a date any other way, by all means don't be afraid of a blind date. For, as that great philosopher once said, "Blind date may have beautiful sister."

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor,

It is a pleasure to announce at this time that the Student Relief Drive for this year has been a huge success. The credit for this accomplishment belongs to the students of Villanova. I find it impossible to thank each and every one of you, but I should like to mention those who assisted me during the drive.

First, I would like to take the opportunity to thank Father McLaughlin, Moderator of the N. F. C. C. S., for his advice and encouragement throughout the campaign. Second, the Editor of the VILLANOVAN and his staff were of great assistance in publicizing the drive. Finally, I wish to express my appreciation to all the Religion professors who gave their time in class for the distribution and collection of books, and the class chairmen of the drive who so ably assisted me.

Sincerely,
DAN MCGRATH

INSIDE OPERA

by Bill Carroll

Any number of people, (three) have written to me and asked how the opera began. To be honest with you, at a loss for a ready answer to that question. To find the answer, I went to a local culture-gulper, a self-styled opera expert who answers to the name of Dr. Wallace D. (last name withheld by request). Incidentally, the doctor will only answer to that name providing you shout it. The old gentleman is getting a little hard of hearing. This is a consequence of being exposed to much "party noise" in his college days. Nine years of them.

When I entered the home of Doctor D., I was led to his study where he was engaged in a serious game of whist (bridge) with his eminent associates and fellow opera scholars, Doctors Dillon, Zerbe and McMonigle. As I introduced myself, Doctor Dillon was bidding six hearts. I glanced at his hand and singularly enough he had no hearts. His partner, the highly regarded Dr. Deems McMonigle, had only a single heart in his hand, a two-spot at that. I knew there was going to be trouble, so I quickly pardoned myself for interrupting, asked my question got an answer and left.

According to the scholars, (all Villanova graduates (?)), Opera got its start in 1111 A. D. in a small baronial province in Thrace. It seems that the head of the province, a Baron Altenpohl, was an exceedingly difficult ruler. He collected more taxes than the City of Philadelphia. To avenge themselves the peasants, led by a trouble maker, whose name was Charles Welsh, would present ridiculous plays in which the actors would sing their lines rather than speak them.

It seems that what was sung in the plays were unkind and somewhat humorous observations about the Baron. Since it was almost impossible to understand what was being sung by the actors, booklets, containing a translation of the script, would be passed out to the audience. In this way it was much easier for them to follow the action on stage. This custom is still perpetuated in our times. At all of the operas you can obtain one of these enlightening booklets that explain just what is happening.

The reason the words in the play were sung was to make it impossible for either the Baron or his friends to understand what the peasantry was saying about them. The booklets passed out to the peasant audiences were "restricted" information and as such were closely guarded. After many years of this furtive entertainment the Baron suspected the peasants were "cracking-up". He failed to com-

Syncopatter

by Mayer & Taten

It's all over for a while now. Looking back, it would seem that the past year has been an exceptionally good one for music in general, and the advancement of good jazz in particular. This year has seen Billy Eckstine surge forward to the top, Woody Herman stage a remarkable and most welcome comeback, Charlie Ventura establish himself as one of the best men in modern jazz, and Doris Day achieve a well deserved success. This was the year that saw a bright new talent vanish in the death of Stan Hasselgard, it saw Fran Warren's anguished renditions make her the most talked-of-young-singer. "On A Turquoise Cloud"—"Lemon Drop"—"Bird's Nest"—"Blue Moon"—"Euphoria", and many others too numerous to mention were to clean up the shekels in this year.

Turn Over

People finally began to realize that Dixieland was really dead and turned to Bop and the other idioms of jazz, for music that hadn't been played, until it could go no farther. Bop was over-and under-arranged and mixed with Afro-Cuban stuff until the experimenting was mostly over and a new music was here to stay. Theatres gave up hiring large name bands, and as a result many of them either broke up or reorganized. Stan Kenton broke up as per usual but after a few months in Mexico the bug got hip and he returned to give us still more of his musical greatness. Television provided a new means of furthering the effective presentation of good jazz and night clubs that gave the customers any kind of decent musical entertainment had to hire armored trucks to carry the receipts away. Boppers and die-hard Dixielanders clashed while Guy Lombardo and Blue Barron kept right on cruising down that good old dollar-lined river.

Yes, it's all over for a while now, but soon I'll be back on the same old merry-go-round trying to pick out the best and worst in the music world and explaining why I think so. During the course of the oncoming summer I expect to see some new ballads climb to the top of the juke-box parade and some newcomers in the entertainment field to appear on the scene. Lou'll hear all about it in September, and so until then we leave you with one concluding admonition. Listen to music, all of it. Don't criticize any form of it until you've heard enough to understand it a bit, though, by that time you'll probably find that you like some of it after all.

Bo's Parting Shot

Well, here I am up to my eyeballs in material and now they tell me this is our last column of the season. Wouldn't you just know it.

As my parting shot for the season I'd like to give a mention to the Billy Eckstine-Duke Ellington show that played the New York Paramount a while back. I tried to make the morning matinee on the day they opened, but it was early afternoon before I finally finagled a seat. Looking at the crowd, for a while, I thought I was back in the pre-war Goodman-Dorsey-Shaw era. If all the bobby-soxers present were laid end to end, besides looking silly as the devil, they could undoubtedly have reached around the world and back in time for the last show.

Billy Bensidrine

In my estimation, the show was well worth waiting for, provided you knew enough to bring your lunch. I didn't, having lost my know-how over the years. Billy seems to be the greatest thing since bensidrine, if one can judge from the chaos that reigned every time he let go with a schmaltzy hunk of phrasing. The Duke didn't play as many numbers as I would have liked, but what he did was terrific.

From Plugs

Now last but not least, something about Junior Week. It seems to be the concensus of opinion among those who attended the Prom, as well as my own, that Tony Pastor was by far the best name band to perform amid these hallowed halls in many a moon. Both his vocals and instrumentals were smooth and danceable while the violent jump stuff was held to a minimum. I'd especially like to commend his new thrush, Addie Castle, who although with the band only a little over a week, moved into the slot formerly held by the Clooney Sisters without the slightest hitch. She should be recording with Tony very soon, so keep her in mind. Believe me that gal is on her way up.

Also, the Blue Notes, that sensational combo heard at both the prom and dinner-dance, should be back for a lot more of our affairs. They contributed immeasurably to the success of both shindigs, and should be remembered when the need again arises.

So till next year, "It's Been Nice," and thank you, mother, for your devotion to our column; it has been an ever present source of inspiration.

The Fifth Column

by Mike Nowlan and Jack Metzger

Before

After

This column is the last in a series to be written by these two famous columnists, and so we wish to take this opportunity to thank all those who helped make it the masterpiece of journalism which it is. First, to our sponsor—Fritzi's Gym—a fond thank you. To our esteemed moderator, whose words of encouragement (if "drop dead" can be called such) enabled us to soar to these literary heights, we say "thank you." And, remember, your loss is the world's gain.

To our three readers—McNulty, Green, and Maggie McFarland—have fun—your life is now your own. To the rest of you, a reminder of the power of this column. We were the first to expose the escapades of the famous racketeers, "Ruthless" Rafts and "Two Gun" Torpey; the first to acclaim Villanova as the NCAA contender—and look what happened. This column has been an example of form to the young and inexperienced writers such as Bill Carroll, Bill Breninghouse, and Bob Carroll. Keep at it, boys, and maybe some day you'll be in our class.

At times we have been provoked by the capitalistic press and their type, as exemplified by Al Abreu—but inasmuch as the world is not yet ripe for revolution, his type must be reckoned with. A few individuals, such as "Peephole" Adams and "Twinkle-Toes" Grande, managed to keep a clean slate, but should not be denied the privilege of having the privilege of having their names appear in our column—Grande is a Chem. E. 102 casualty. He tripped over another student on his way out the back door of the lecture room. When the revolution comes, these two will go far, probably to Siberia, to meditate on the hardships that they caused their kind instructors during their college days.

We might mention here that Tony Pastor has posted a reward for anyone that can locate the missing Clooney Sister. It's been rumored that she's here a Villanova, disguised as Earl Hunsan.

Boy, what some guys won't do for a chicken dinner! Take this Vince Pedano. He brings his girl friend around once a week to lick stamps for the Villanovans to be sent through the mail, and then tries to pass her off as a staff member to get her into the dinner-dance free, Bob Pope, of the Photo Staff, has shown such improvements since coming to work for the Villanovan that the Picture Editor has decided to let him use film in the camera next year. Bob and his colleague, Frank Wegener, have been engaged in drying soggy cigarette butts for Villanovan staff smokers—which shows that no one's ability is overlooked on this paper. In fact, Messrs. Burke and Buckley are known to drive cars no-handed in Mt. Ephraim. The Chief of Police of Mt. Ephraim didn't appreciate our boys' versatility, but, we still think these boys are up and coming.

At the end of each school year, various awards are made, and so we make ours.

To the man who has most successfully slept through the largest number of classes—Donald T. Best—we award a calculus book from Fr. Komme, Pick it up at your convenience.

To the student who has achieved the highest scholastic average without doing any homework himself—Ivar Peterson—your choice of any instructor on the campus as a souvenir.

To the student most frequently sneaking into chow line—Vince "Whispering" Smith—a free hamburger at Louie's Pie Shop. Charge it to Feissner's breakage fee.

To the student most congenial and satisfied with conditions, never uttering a gripe—Phil Piro—a free tour of the Chaplain's office.

To the student most likely to collect unemployment compensation for the longest period of time—Frank Ryan—a leather foot-rest presented to him by Mr. Slavin for use in future classes.

To the C&F student most likely to be a bookie—Wharton Tiers—we award an autographed copy of the book "How I Make a Million the Easy Way" by Joe Torchiani.

Well, there goes the bell, and here come the men with the white coats—so, we'll have to rush along. So long, and to all our readers in Central and South America, adios.

TRIVIA

by BOB CARROLL

Eddie and I are going out this coming weekend with a couple of girls, from the college up around Wayne. I won't have enough money to do much and neither will Eddie it being near the end of the month, but you like a date once in a while. I'm not looking foward to this one very much though because I got into it against my better judgement. I think Eddie thinks he's going to have a good time though.

Cheap Afternoon

A couple Sundays back we went to one of those afternoon dances at this college. It didn't cost anything and we didn't have anything else to do and we had a ride up and back so we went. They held it in their gym. I knew we got there too early because there were a couple of girls still fooling with the victrola and the rest of them were standing around talking and watching the door when we came in. It's an embarrassing thing walking in like that. You can't walk in and start talking to the girls, Eddie woudn't do that anyway, and it's worse if they come over and start talking to you. They ask you a lot of dumb questions and you don't like to hurt their feelings by saying something smart. And they smile, always smiling until you would think that they were paralyzed.

These two came over to us after about ten minutes. There wasn't much we could do because we were wondering how we could get away without anybody noticing us and these two got to us before we could make a move. There was a tall one and a short one and naturally I got the short one. Eddie's taller than me and we have to make the best arrangements. Of course that arrangement wasn't very good either. The little one was a Social Science major and the big one was in Liberal Arts. They told us that and then they asked us what we were taking up and where we came from and how we were getting along. I could have said a lot of things. For one thing I was getting along like hell but I told her everything was allright and Eddie said about the same thing.

Play Cards ?

The whole thing bogged down pretty much till the tall one mentioned that she likes to play cards. Well, Eddie likes cards, you know that. He'd rather play cards than eat, I think. So he and the big girl started talking some more about cards and before long he asked her for a date. She said yes so I figured I'd better ask the little one and she said yes and

Band and Glee Club Performs At University Club of Pitt

After a very successful concert at St. Joseph's Hospital Nurses' Home on May 9th., the Villanova Band and Glee Club climaxed their concert season when they left the campus last Sunday morning for Pittsburgh. There they gave their final performance of the school year at the University Club of Pittsburgh.

The concert at St. Joseph's was given for the student nurses and the Sisters of the Hospital. After the performance, the nurses served refreshments to the Villanovans, followed by dancing in the recreation hall to the music of records. Despite a rather small auditorium, the audience enjoyed the performance and requested encores, which included "College Days."

To get an early start for Pittsburgh, the Band and Glee Club attended six-thirty Mass in a body on Sunday morning, and, immediately after breakfast, boarded buses for the long ride.

Stop at Seton Hill

Stopping over in Greensburg, Pa., they gave a concert at Seton Hill College, on Sunday evening. There, the baton-twirling act of Richard Boyle, Band-major, was a great success. After dinner, the group continued on to Pittsburgh.

The bandsmen and singers were free to explore the "Smoky City" all day Monday. They visited many points of interest in Pittsburgh, and many found the "high-water" mark on many buildings of special interest.

Finale of Season

Last night, the Band and Glee Club gave their finale at the University Club, bringing to a close an outstanding season for the musical groups of the College. After twelve successful concerts, the Band and Glee Club, which were under the personal direction of Rev. Ralph E. Handran, O.S.A., now lay aside their music for a well-earned rest.

The last concert of the year heard Miss Marguerite McFarland, of Immaculata College, perform a solo, Grieg's "Piano Concerto in A Minor." She and Martin Binder then teamed up for a duet, "Just Because You're You" and "Gypsy Love Song." Peter Gutwald's solo of "Cool Water" was, as usual, a great success. Many other numbers by the Band and Glee Club were warmly received.

Also of note is the announcement that the May 3rd. concert at the Villanova Field House was recorded, and that copies of these records are available simply by contacting Raymond Haddock, Room 426, Barracks. Already, many sets of records have been ordered. The set consists of five records.

DPE Frat Elects Officers Today; To Meet Tonight

Last Tuesday evening, Delta Pi Epsilon, the business fraternity, held nominations for office. Elections are to be held today between 10:00 A. M. and 2:00 P. M. in the Commerce and Finance basement.

Tonight, the results of the election will be announced, and the new officers will be presented to the members. This meeting, the last of the semester, will be held in Room 201, Commerce and Finance Building, at 7:00 P. M. At that time, the Senior members will receive keys and certificates.

It is expected that all members of the fraternity will be present for this the most important meeting of the year. It is being urged that all fraternity members who possibly can, vote in the elections, and add their active support to the new slate.

SANCTUARY SOCIETY HAS FINAL MEETING; OFFICERS ELECTED

The Sanctuary Society held its last meeting of the current scholastic year on Tuesday night, May 10, 1949. Father Thomas Purcell, O.S.A., Moderator of the Society, opened the meeting with a prayer. Emeric J. Michalik presided at the meeting.

The early part of the meeting was devoted to new business. Thursday, May 12, was designated as the annual Mass Day and all members were asked to attend the 7:00 Mass. The President then requested each member to be mindful of any duties assigned him during the remainder of the semester.

The main business of the meeting was next undertaken election of new officers for the scholastic year 1949-1950. The elections were conducted by George Guida, Robert Fitzpatrick, and Jos Shannon. Raymond Raclowski, Edward Leblanc, and Paul Tirrell were elected to fill the offices of President, Vice-President and Secretary respectively.

The retiring president then thanked the moderator and the members for their very generous cooperation during his two year tenure of office and congratulated the newly-elected officers.

Father Purcell likewise thanked all members for their untiring efforts in assisting at all the devotions conducted in the chapel during the year.

Refreshments were then served after which films of the Villanova-Kentucky and Villanova-Yale basketball playoffs were then shown.

A correction is to be made concerning the sanctuary society story of last week. It was noted that Augustinian rubrics were used in chapel services when actually they are the Roman rubrics.

Doctor H. S. Taylor explains science-religion trends and problems to Villanova Forum group. His lecture marked the end of the first successful forum series here.

Video Antennae Subject Of Talk To AIEE Tonight

Tonight at 8 o'clock in 215 Mendel, Herman Diesel, President of the Student Branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, at Villanova, will turn his office and duties over to Charles Rodden, Junior Electrical Engineer, newly-elected president. Rodden was elected in Thursday's elections, along with Michael Nowlan Vice-President Martin Mulkeen, Secretary, and James Wilkes, Treasurer.

Other retiring officers are Edward Szkaradnik, Vice-President, Robert Semelsberger, Secretary, and Edward Pfeiffer, Treasurer.

Tonight's change-over of officers will take place after the final business meeting which will begin at 7:30 P. M.

A feature of the evening will be a duel talk, given by Edward M. Noel and Matt Mandl, on the topic "Television Antennas." Television, being of great interest and importance to Electrical Engineers at this particular time, should prove to be one of the most interesting talks given to the society this year.

Mr. John B. Clothier, moderator of the society, in announcing the new officers expressed his desire and expectation for the new officers doing as good a job, if not better than last year's. He also said that the past year was one of the best years in the history of the society on this campus.

Wildcat Nine Has Bad Road Trip With 4 Loses

Jameson's Grand Slam Bright Spot in Dismal Journey

By TED FERNANDES

The Cats were downed in three consecutive baseball games last week, the first of which was 9-0 whitewashing by the Nittany Lions of Penn State. They then moved on to the heart of New England and were stopped by a Boston College rally in the eight inning, the scoreboard at the finish reading 9-7, in favor of the Eagles. From Chestnut Hill and the Bean City the Cats moved to Worcester, Mass., to tangle with the Crusaders of Holy Cross. This fray was based upon the Bay Staters three run splurge in the fourth. The story at the end of the ninth told of a 7-2 victory for the Cross.

The Nittany Lions proved too much for the Villanova Baseballers last Tuesday by throwing a wrench in Cat machinery and running up a 9-0 score. In this unfortunate event, not one Wienertman passed first base. State's star twirler, Cy Miller, turned on the juice allowing but four hits and holding the Cats to a shut out. Larry Algeldinger hit away safely for two singles, Shy Raiken and Red Wright netted one apiece. In the initial inning, Dick Wertz, Penn State's first sacker when the loop after hitting a single, to score. In the second inning State tacked on four more runs and the third stanza was another four run inning for State. Villanova showed two pitchers on the mound, Workhorse Moroney and a converted catcher Red Wright. Moroney struck out one State batter and allowed four bases on balls. Wright whiffed three and allowed two men a free trip to first.

More Trouble At Boston

On to Boston and into more trouble, the Eagles of Boston College, an unbeaten diamond crew refused to be dropped into the beaten class. The men from Chestnut Hill in Newton, Mass., gave it their all and with a capable pitching staff managed to nip the Cats 9-7. Moroney took the assignment on the mound for the Pennsylvanians and allowed six hits against a Boston pitching combo of Levinson and Shelcock which allowed 12 safe hits. Larry Algeldinger, Mickey Frinzl, Bob Jones and Tom Clavin all managed to get two hits from the victors, while Shy Raiken and John Weglicki settled for one apiece. The Bostonians started the scoring in the third by netting four runs. Then they added another in the fifth. In the sixth chapter the Cats snared four and Boston pushed across two. In the eighth both teams hit away and scored two apiece. Boston now has a victory string of 10 straight wins against no defeats which proves their material.

Lose to Holy Cross, 7-2

Facing another Massachusetts squad, the purple Crusaders of Holy Cross, the Cats again bowed by a 7-2 margin. The Villanovans again out-hit their opponents but failed to bring home all but two men. Red Wright got the nod from Coach Wienert and gave up ten hits, striking out five men. Holy Cross took to the front in the second inning with one run and advanced it to four in the fourth set up. In the fifth and sixth the Crusaders netted 2 and 1 runs respectively. Mickey Frinzi hit 3 for 4 with Kline, Raiken, Morris and Jamison getting two apiece.

Edged by Providence

The Weinertmen brought their New England tour to a close last Sunday with the second game of the home series with Providence College. In this clash the Cats blew a three run lead to lose in the eighth, 8-7.

High point in what turned out to be a very dismal day was catcher Jack ameson's grand slam home run in the fifth. Prior to Jameson's four run outburst the game had been deadlocked at two all, the Friars having picked up lone tallys in the first and fourth while the Cats' two came in the first half of the fourth.

Providence scored single runs in the sixth and seventh and the Mainliners added another in the eighth before the Friars rallied for the game-winning runs in the last half of the eighth frame.

The Friars big-inning was purely charity as they scored their first three runs as a result of two wild pitches and an error while the last was garnered by Owen Beatty, second baseman, who stole home.

The batter for the Wildcats was John Maroney, who was later relieved by Red Wright, and Jack Jameson. Providence used three pitchers, Keenan, Higgins and Foley.

Play Here Tomorrow

The Cats' next opponents are Seton Hall whom they will play tomorrow afternoon at home. This will be one of the last chances to see the team in action as there is only one more home game, with Loyola, on the 28th.

Besides Loyola, the remaining opposition for the Weinertmen will be provided by Georgetown on the 20th, Navy on the 21st, and Pennsylvania on the 25th.

Marty Panczer clears bar at six, two to win the high jump. Against Maryland the Wildcats took eight firsts but were edged by one point.

McKENNA WINS HIS THIRD

Jim McKenna, who tripled against Maryland last Saturday, shown winning the 220 in a blazing 23 flat. Also shown are the Terps' Bill Alexion and third place Tom Irish being encouraged by onlooker George Scanlon.

Jim McKenna Triples In 100, 220, Quarter; Ross Again Wins Mile and Two Mile, Thompson takes Half

By BILL COONEY

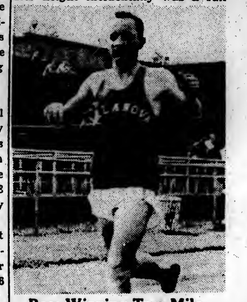
The Villanova cindermen lost a real heartbreaker last Saturday when they were shaded by the University of Maryland by a one point margin, 63½-62½. The Wildcat's loss came in spite of eight first places to the Terps six victories.

Three of the home team's wins came as a result of the efforts of Jim McKenna. He started his big afternoon with a 9.9 hundred and then went on to take the quarter in 50.2. The Queens Express wound up his day with a 22 flat 220 that featured a finish the likes of which most people never see. It looked like the rest of the field was running backwards. Both sprint results were the same since Maryland's Bill Alexion was runner-up twice and Tom Irish placed third in both events.

The quarter provided plenty of thrills as Jack Holmes came roaring down the stretch to take second ahead of Maryland's Matthews who was running wide trying to pass McKenna.

Ross Doubles

Browning Ross repeated his performances of the past two weeks by scoring a double victory in the mile and two-mile. Trailing Brownie in the mile was George Thompson who returned to action for the first time since he was spiked in the Penn Relays. The time was 4:25.6.



The two-mile looked as if it might be close as Ross was trailed for 7¾ laps by Cramer of Maryland. When Cramer looked like he might be a threat in the stretch Brownie turned it on and he faded. The time here was 10:8.

Thompson Hits 1:59

George Thompson came back in the half and proved that his two weeks' vacation must have done him a lot of good for he took off and left the rest of the pack ten yards behind. He ran a very smooth race leaving no doubt as to who was the master of the race. George's clocking was 1:59.

Panczer Wins High Jump

Marty Panczer won the high jump for the Cats with a leap of 6'2". This was the lanky soph's second victory and best performance of the year. His height incidentally was a full four inches over any Army (whom the team meets this Saturday) man's jump in the Heptagonal games held on the same day.

Bill Allen came through with an 11'6" jump to win the pole vault and put five more points in the Villanova bag. Joe McNulty also scored when he tied with the visitors' Butler for third.

The one point loss was enough to make strong men weep but the way it came was worst of all. The Cats had an eight point lead with one event to go. All they needed was a third and the Terps could not have possibly won. Maryland swept the event however and that was all.

Meet Army and Fordham

Next week the squad winds up its dual and triangular campaign with a three way meet with Fordham and the newly-crowned Ivy League champs, Army. Fordham is not too strong, but Army is almost invincible. It seems as though every position is filled five or six deep to the Academy's opponents. Ross will face Thompson, James Thompson that is, who just set a new Heptagonal two-mile record of 9:27.1. McKenna will meet his second old IC4A nemises, John Hammack in the 440. Fans remember that last winter Hammack was second to Frank Fox in the IC4A 600. McKenna was third and will be looking for a win to more or less square the account after his close defeat by Fox last week.

1949 Wildcat Football Schedule Is Released

Play 9 Games; 3 New Teams on Agenda

By Harry Range

The official release of the 1949 football schedule by publicity director Gene Ruane found the Wildcats playing six games, three home contests, and three new opponents on the agenda.

The first game for the Cats will be the completion of a home and home series with Texas A & M. on September 16 down in the Lone Star State. In '48 Ralph Pasquariello and Bob Polidor went wild as the Blue and White trouced the Aggies 34-14 in the homecoming game at Franklin Field.

Meet Penn State

From Texas the team will travel to State College to face the Nittany Lions of Penn State. This game is taking the place of the Army clash and should be a high point on the schedule as the Lions finished '48 with a 6-1-1 record highlighted by their win over Penn.

Third on the schedule is Detroit at the Motor City. When the Mainliners visited the Titans last year they emerged victorious in a 26-6 tussle.

The homecoming game for the Cats will find St. Mary's of California as the opposition on October 7 at Shibe Park. St. Mary's is also a newcomer on the schedule and will provide the entertainment in the first of two home night games.

Last newcomer to the Mainliners schedule are the cowboys from Tulsa. They move into Shibe Park on October 14 for the second night contest of the season.

Duquesne at Pittsburgh

The pigskin parade then swings west to Pittsburgh for an October 22 clash with the Duquesne Dukes. In '48 the Wildcats had a field day as the won 48-0 at Villanova stadium.

From Pittsburgh the Leonardmen will move to Boston for the annual tilt with Boston College. This is due to be about the toughest game on the schedule with the Cats out to avenge the 19-13 setback handed them last season.

The traditional game with Georgetown will be played at the Capital City this year on November 4. It is a Friday night game and should find hundreds of Villanovans making the trip south to follow their team which is due to be one of the top in the country.

After a week's rest the Cats will close, the regular season with a Saturday afternoon game at Shibe Park with University of North Carolina.

Wildcat Linkmen Triumph In Final Match of Season

By Neal Fahy

Villanova's informal golf team finished its second post-war season last Friday afternoon with a rousing victory over LaSalle College's linksmen. The matches were held on the St. David's course in Wayne, and the final tallies showed the 'Cats out on top by a 6 to 3 score.

Again, Don Weiland led the way for the Wildcats as he carded a blistering 76 to easily take his man. The long-hitting Junior from Phoenixville who has brothers playing on the golf teams of Syracuse, Bucknell, and William and Mary, is entered in the Philadelphia Inquired tournament which opens tomorrow at Whitemarsh C. C.

Trayer Loses

Number tow man on the Villanova squad, John Trayer, lost his second match in six outings this season by the slim margin of one hole. Playing with John Moran who was also downed, this pair dropped the best ball contest 2 and 1. However, all of the other Lynx linksmen came through with flying colors to give Villanova a decisive victory.

Little Joey Crossin down 1 at the turn, came through on the last nine to win 3 and 2. His partner Bill Huber had an easy time taking his man and wound up winning 5 and 4. Huber played by far, his best round of the season. Joe Hohenlightner led all the way winning 3 and 2. Paired with Weiland, Joe did his share in winning best ball.

Much credit should be given to the men who play Villanova's only minor sport. Not only did they win a good share of their matches, but also displayed tremendous spirit out on the various golf courses this past season. In particular, Bob Powers, who served in the capacity of manager and coach and even filled in as a player, is to be commended for his patient and generous work.

A Last Look At Our Graduating Athletes

Last week, this column began a three-issue series which has as its purpose a desire to give the Senior athletes of Villanova a final tribute for the fine work they have done since they entered the Main Line campus. In this second installment we have another great group of fellows who have brought honor and glory to the Blue and White.

Four years ago, Bill Doherty, came to Villanova, and upon his arrival he immediately set himself to the task of becoming one of the greatest all-around athletes to don the colors. In his Freshman year,

Bill was a standout on the gridiron, became a star on the basketball squad, and in the Spring went on to win a varsity letter in baseball.

His football talent outshone his feats in other sports, and it was in the Fall sport that Doherty concentrated his efforts. In the '48 campaign he became the offensive and defensive star of the Oliver eleven. His final task in the field of sport was to return to baseball where he copped a first-string position on this years' nine.

John Sheahan, who completed his course last February, was another of the unsung heroes of the Villanova football squad. Never to be heard from, off the field, John was a pass-catcher with more than average ability. His acrobatic snares went a long way in helping the Wildcats to victory and his 6'02", 196-pound frame was an ample target for 'Cat passers.

John came to Villanova as a Marine trainee from Tarrytown (N. Y.) High. Last summer, he spent his time earning a commission in the Marines.

Syl Yanelli, another February graduate from the Commerce and Finance school, came to Villanova after a stretch in the U. S. Army, where he had little time for football. However, once he hit his stride, Syl was as rough and tough as any center in the business.

Lady Luck took her toll on the 5'-11" middle-man in '46. and Yanelli was forced out of action with a serious injury in the early days of the season. The St. Thomas More luminary came back strong the following year, and again displayed a fine brand of ball in his final two years.

Whenever the name of Bob Polidor is mentioned fans spontaneously think of that 100-yard run against Miami three years ago. The record-making jaunt will, no doubt, remain in the minds of Villanova fans indefinitely but there was more to the brilliant career of the diminutive halfback. In 1947 he was voted as the most valuable man on the 'Cat eleven and won honors throughout the nation for his fleet-footedness.

His talents were not confined to the helmet and pad sport either. While not carrying the leather, Bob ran the "100' for the track team and patroled the outfield for the Weinertmen.

Lou Ferry, in this writer's opinion, stood head and shoulders above every other tackle in the East. His speed was puzzling to opposing backs who looked upon him as just another big tackle. It took them but a few plays to realize that this 235-pounder was of the highest calibre.

Ferry came to Villanova in 1945 from St. James, of Chester, High School, and snatched a first string tackle slot which he never relinquished. For his fine play, Lou was named captain of the 1948 edition of the Mainliners, at the close of the past season.

A center par excellance, Milt Komarnicki gave Villanova a defensive backing which made most coaches give a second look. His ability to diagnose the opposition's plays was but one of his capabilities. A vicious tackler, Milt was the backbone of the 'Cat forward wall.

In 1944, as a star for Southern High in Philly, Komarnicki won All-City honors, and is still remembered for two touchdowns he scored in high school from his defensive center spot.

SWIM CLUB ENDS SEASON WITH WATER POLO; INDIVIDUALS

Spence Wins Fast 100 — Stabile Takes 50

Last Wednesday night, the Swimming Club brought its regular season to a close with the Individual Championships. The club was fortunate in having Jack Lumsden, coach of Malvern's swimming team, as the official starter and timer.

As Lumsden called for the starters in the 50-yard freestyle, up stepped Joe Gallen, Howie Eissler Diaz Mora, Ed Connolly and Tom Flynn. The gun barked, there were five splashes, and when it was all over Connolly had won with Flynn close behind.

Up for the 50-yard breaststroke were Joe O'Brien, Dick Ferry, Gene Eagen, Jerry Stabile, and Tom Cullen. It was this event that furnished a double winner since there were two heats. In the final, Joe O'Brien lost a tough one to Jerry Stabile.

Dick Spence was the next winner on the program, dashing for a win over Ed Zerbe in a very fast 100-yard heat.

All fine words and praise should go to Charlie Snow for his excellent performance in the long 200-yard freestyle. He was out in front all the way, although second-place Ed Zerbe allowed him no time for loafing.

The first-place breast stroke medal went to Joe Mullin, a consistent first-placer who was pushed all the way by Roger Hanafin.

The relays were good, and the medal-collecting medly relay consisted of Dick Ferry, Roger Hanafin, and Tom Flynn. Winners of the ever-so-close freestyle relay were Alberto Gorbea, track-man George Thompson, Bill Rath, and sprint winner Dick Spence.

As the water settled in the pool and settled in puddles on the walk, the aqua-men prepared for a grueling water polo game. When the starting signal was given and the ball was dropped in the water Eagan, Gallen, Moran, and Flynn raced Rath, Cella Connolly, and Eissler. There was some sharp passing and near-drownings as the two teams weaved the ball from man to man and from goal to goal, and when Bill Elrich said the time had officially run out, Eagen, Gallen, Moran, and Flynn were winners by a 4-1 count.

Buckey Coleman, track, pole vaulter . . . One of the leading pole vaulters in the East for the past two years, Buck hails from Collingdale, Pennsylvania. Buck, who, unknown to many has the Christian name of George, set the school mark for the pole vault at 13 feet, 6 inches last season in a duel meet with Fordham.

Buck hit his peak in '48 with a win in every duel meet as well as ties for second in the Penn Relays and in the IC4A Indoor Championships. In his high school days at Collingdale he was one of the top pole vaulters in the Philadelphia district.

During the war he continued the sport of being high in the air only then it was as an ensign in Naval Aviation. Buck now holds a reserve commission of lieutenant j.g. Having graduated in January he continued to run the drugstore he owns in Collingdale but is now slated to take over as high school coach. Buckey has always been one of the most popular men at Villanova and had the honor of escorting the queen of last year's Junior Prom.

Austin, Bks. 1 and 4 Lead I. M. Softball League

By Mondschein Inc., & Hucsarits

Bks. 1 & 4 and Austin tied for top spot in the softball league, while Alumni suffered its first loss as a result of last week's activity. No games were played on Tuesday because of inclement weathr, and the contest between Austin and Bks. 2 & 3 was postponed on Wednesday because of wet grounds.

In Monday's games, Alumni gained its second victory with a close 6-4 win over Fedigan. The latter drew first blood with a three-run uprising in the third inning, featured by a home run off the bat of Jim Kerin. Alumni came back in the top of the fourth to score five runs and take a lead it never relinquished. Bill Scharle registered his second win of the campaign, striking out six while walking two. Watson was the loser being tagged for eight hits including two apiece by Fitzmeyer and Doyle.

Austin Ties for First

Austin also won its second, squeezing by the Doms, 7-6. The game was called at the sixth because of rain. The Doms staged a desperate last-inning rally that fell one run short of tying the game. Dallago, of Austin, led his team's ten-hit attack on losing pitcher J. J. Thompson with two hits and a walk in three trips to the plate. Speath had two hits for the Doms to lead its offensive against the winning hurler, Al Dallago.

On Wednesday, Alumni lost its first, falling before the slants of Lefty Mondschein and his mates from Bks. 1 & 4. The Bks., with some heads up base running and aided by a few mental lapses in the Alumni infield, scored five runs in the second frame on only two sinbles. These runs were enough to win, but the Bks. added two more later in the game. One of these was a home run by Paul McGinley in the fifth. The same player hit a triple in the seventh, but was out trying to stretch it into another homer, on a fine throw from Bob Oels to Moore. All of Alumni's runs came as a result of two tremendous home runs by catcher Jim Moore. Each roundtripper came with Bob Suarez on base. Mondschein effectively handcuffed the rest of Alumni's hitters. Bill Scharle suffered his first defeat of the season as he was tagged for eight hits, while walking two and striking out one. Mondschein gave out three free passes and struck out two.

Doms Upset Mended

On Thursday, the Doms put on another last-inning rally to tie up the game, and went on to win in extra innings over Mendel, 8-7. Held in check by losing pitcher Rubin for five innings, the Doms came back late in the contest to gain its second triumph in three starts.

The winning run came with one out in the eighth when DiJo's single scored Constantino who had doubled to start the inning. Mendel was limited to five hits by J. J. Thompson but all were timely blows. Ronce's double was the only extra base knock. For the Doms, Heigl hit for the circuit and Borgers had 3 for 3.

In the other game played, Good Counsel scored seven runs in the last two innings to eke out a 10-9 win over Fedigan. Neither team had won a game, going into the contest. Fedigan took an early lead, but Good Counsel tied it up with a big five-run rally in the sixth. Two runs, in the bottom of the seventh, gave them the win after Fedigan had gone ahead in its half. O'Donnell, of the winners had 3 for 4, to lead their attack, while Petit was Fedigan's big gun with 3 for 3. Obst was the winning hurler and Brennan was charged with the defeat.

Engineers Inspect Cruiser

Last week, the U. S. Navy played host to more than seventy engineering students from the college recently, when an inspection tour was conducted through the engineering plant of the ultra-modern light-cruiser USS Worcester.

The group touring the cruiser one of the latest additions to the "world's largest navy," was shown the latest developments in marine equipment and armament which were incorporated into the Worcester to make her one of the most modern ships in the fleet. Boilers firerooms, engine room and steering house were inspected and the students were impressed by the modern power units and accurate steering equipment.

Following a pattern, the tour is part of the field instruction which the engineers receive supplementary to their class work.

The upshot of all of this was that he lifted some of their tax burdens and cut down their working day to twenty hours. Nevertheless, the tradition was continued. The peasant composers still continued to write "operations" because they were so painful. The word was latter shortened to the form in which we now find it, Opera.

through the party and visits to Santa Claus, Villanova men helped the orphans at St. John's, plans have been formed so that the good works and charity that has been begun will continue after this class has graduated. The work that has been done was made much easier because of the gratitude that has been shown by the boys for everything they have received.

The final program in a series of radio broadcasts sponsored by the Bussolari Society over WVIL was presented Wednesday evening May 4th. The "Chinese Crisis" was discussed by Jean Ledwith and Marion Gibson of Rosemont with Villanovans LaRoy Kendall and Roger Hanafin.

Miss Ledwith has been chosen by members of the Rosemont International Relations Club to attend the summer sessions of the United Nations at Lake Success. The crux of the argument concerned two questions: 1) Shall the United States Government continue to aid and support the Chiang Kai-Shek regime? 2) Should our government discontinue all financial aid to China with the probable result that the Communists will overrun the entire country?

Members of the Bussolari Society attended a conference sponsored by the World Affairs Council of Philadelphia at the U. of Penna., May 6th. An impressive array of speakers presented their opinions on aspects of the theme: "Regionalism and the Atlantic Pact." Principal speakers were: Harold Stassen, President of U. of P., Walter Lippman, noted news analyst and foreign affairs expert; Belgian Ambassador Van Kleffens, and Doctors Konne, of Smith College, and Holborne, of Yale.

Debate Heavily

Despite three hours of fervent debate, delegates at Beaver College's model Security Council conference failed to agree on a solution to the "German Crisis." France, represented by Lehigh and Ursinus Colleges, presented five amendments to the "London" recommendations, jointly agreed to by the United States, Britain, and the Benelux countries on the disposition of Germany.

Constant haggling on minor issues interspersed with adverse comments from the Russian delegation, prevented the Council from considering all of the amendments. Although no significant conclusions were reached, members of the group were impressed with the scope of the problem. Villanova cooperated with Bryn Mawr College to represent the views of China. Delegates were Alice Mitchell and Leela Kirpalani, of Bryn Mawr, together with LaRoy Kendall and Frank Walsh, of Villanova.

I've got this cousin of mine studying to be a nurse down at Fitzgerald-Mercy and we play cards everytime we get together. It doesn't work with girls. They always fool around and get mad and they never draw trump and—well, it's no good. I didn't say anything to Eddie, though. I don't want to spoil his week-end.

Capt. McCormack, Cmdr. Nienstedt Succeeds Capt. Thomas, Col. Roose

Upon the completion of this semester the Naval Science Department will effect many changes among its faculty and personnel, Capt. T. C. Thomas, USN, will be succeeded by Capt J. R. McCormack, USN, while Lt. Col. A. J. Roose, USMC, will be relieved by Cmdr. D. A. Nienstedt, USN. Lt Cmdr. H. G. Carlson will leave Villanova as will Chief E. C. Simmons and M/Sgt. George Hule.

Capt. Thomas, Professor of Naval Science, and Commander of the Naval Unit at Villanova, has served for three and a half years in this capacity here. His administration covered the transition from the war-time V-12 training to the present NROTC unit. It sought the end of those wartime courses and the supplementing of an energetic Reserve Midshipmen program. Through those years he has become well known and liked among the faculty of the school. Capt. Thomas has been assigned to the Office of Naval Research in Pasadena, California.

His replacement, Capt. McCormack, comes from duty aboard the USS Thuban. He served as Captain on the AKA. He will begin his new duties in June well ahead of the new semester.

Lt. Col. Roose, Associate Professor of Naval Science, and Executive Officer, is one of the few

SOPHS READY FIELD HOUSE FOR BENEFIT "LAST FLING" DANCE

Tomorrow night in the Field House, the Sophomore Class will conduct what will be the final social event of the school year. Appropriately named the "Last Fling," the dance will benefit the orphan boys at St John's Orphanage in Philadelphia.

The decorations will, of course, have something to do with the name of the dance which is, after all, fitting. A pile of burning books in the center of the floor will . . . but maybe we shouldn't spoil the surprise.

This much we are allowed to let out: Bill Breninghouse has done it again. That is, he has written a skit which went over so well on WVLL (the campus station), that several thespians have volunteered to put it on while the Villanovans take a breath of air. It is titled "The Trudge of Eternity".

Tickets are still on sale for the phenomenally low price of only $1.20 per couple. (It doesn't look like you could lose much anyway.) By the way, those posters around the campus were made by the fellows from St John's who are as earnest in their attempts to make this dance a success as the Sophs. And why not, after all it will go to their Christmas party fund for next year.

Refreshments will be served as usual in the famous "Blue Room" of the Field House. Tom Grady, chairman for the dance, will give a verbal guarantee with every ticket that you will have a good time, or at least that is what we are led to believe.

Sympathy

The staff of the VILLANOVAN extends its sympathy and that of the student body to John F. Boyle on the death of his mother and to the family of Edward Fineran who died in a Naval air accident. Mass was said for the happy repose of the souls of the deceased in the College Chapel.

At that time, Judge McGranery will receive an honorary degree of Doctor of Laws and Dr. Joseph J. Toland, Chief of Staff of Nazareth Hospital, Philadelphia, will receive the honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters. Secretary of Defense Louis A. Johnson will receive an honorary degree of Doctor of Laws on Saturday morning, June 4th, during the Commodore John Barry Hall dedication ceremonies.

More than 250 Seniors will receive their degrees during the two-day commencement exercises which will begin on Sunday morning, June 5th., with the Baccalaureate service. The service will take place in the Field House, the academic procession forming at 9:30 A. M. in front of the Commerce and Finance building. The service which will include Mass, Sermon and Holy Communion will begin at 10:00 A. M. Breakfast will then be served in the college dining room, after the recessional.

Graduation at 2:30 P. M.

Monday afternoon, at 2:00 P. M. the academic procession will again form in front of the Commerce and Finance building and proceed to the Field House for the graduation ceremonies. Degrees will be conferred upon the Seniors and the honorary designates, and the Hon. James P. McGranery will address the commencement group.

Judge McGranery, upon graduation from Temple Law School, in 1928, became active in politics, and, in 1936, was elected to the 75th U. S. Congress from the 2nd. District of Pennsylvania on the Democratic ticket. He was subsequently re-elected to the 76th, 77th and the 78th Congresses. Thereafter Judge McGranery resigned from Congress in 1943 to accept appointment by

Schreiber Tops With 4 Awards At Final Convocation

Yesterday afternoon, at 2:00 P. M., in the Field House, Very Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O. S. A., President of the College, presented merit awards to more than 250 students who participated actively in extra-curricula activities and were approved by Moderators, the Dean of the College, the Dean of Men, and the Chaplain. It was the first time such awards had been made since before the war.

Recipient of the greatest number of merit awards was Leo Schreiber, a Sophomore civil engineer, who earned four awards. Schreiber received awards for his work in the Glee Club, on the staff of Station WVLL, the Orientation Committee, and Intramurals. Several students received three merit awards each.

Father McGuire addressed the student body, stressing the importance of extra-curricula activities in college education.

The Martin McLaughlin Memorial Medal will not be awarded this year since it must be presented to a Senior, and the first presentation of the medal will not be made until 1952.

"Cleo Was A Lady" Another Turf And Tinsel Success

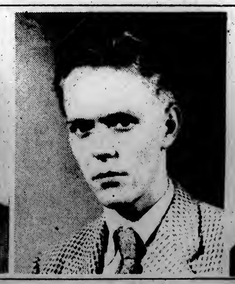
Last week, the Turf and Tinsel production of "Cleo Was a Lady" enjoyed the most successful run of any such production in years. The show which closed Saturday night after four public performances packed the Field House to capacity the last two nights.

Martin Binder, Dick Lauman, John Kelly, Bob Sabol headed the huge musical-comedy cast which was co-directed by George Noake and Bob Whelan. The play was written by a student, Bill Breninghouse, a Sophomore, and the fine music and clever lyrics were done by Bob Whelan, Athletic Secretary.

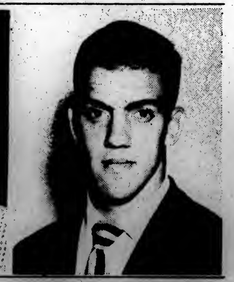
The first scene of the second act which features the "Whip Song" sequence and "The Saga of Sheba," sung by Jack Kelly, made the biggest hits with the audience, although many other sequences ran a close second. Marty Binder's rendition of "Journey's End," one of the memorable songs from the show, was also received with great approval.

Dance routines by the chorus line were executed with great precision, the finale being particularly effective. The most startling feature was a shadow-dance act done by Gene Cullen and Joe Brogan, with George Reinhart, singing "Memphis Blues" in the background.

Acc'tants To Dine, Honor Professor



Tomorrow night, the Accounting Honor Society will hold its second annual dinner at the Conestoga Mill, in Bryn Mawr, at 6:30 P. M. The guest of honor will be Prof. Leo H. Schaefer, for 25 years a Faculty member in the Commerce and Finance school.



Chairman Joseph Buckley announced that more than one hundred aspiring accountants are expected to attend, and several practicing public accountants, well-known in the Philadelphia accounting circles will be guests.

Professor Schaefer was one of the first men to teach in the Commerce and Finance School when it was first organized. Previously, he studied at Northwestern University and taught at the University of Montana. Other guests from the faculty will include Rev. George J. McLaughlin, O. S. A., and Messrs. Conal Byrne, Edwin Kaschenbach, and Henry McCaffrey.

The Accounting Honor Society held its last meeting of the year last Wednesday afternoon under the direction of Mr. Joseph Linsalata, Moderator, to plan the dinner, and stress the importance of active cooperation from the members next year.

Marshall, Schuster, Patrick Elected As Students Go To The Polls In Alumni

JUNIORS

"We are particularly pleased with the large vote of the Juniors which is evidence of your keen interest in class activities. I am confident that I am speaking for the other candidates when I assure you that we shall strive to continue our efforts for a bigger and better Villanova." This was the statement made by Mike Marshall to the members of the Class of '50 last Thursday after his election to the Presidency of that class.

SOPHS

The street in front of Alumni gym became open territory for electioneering last Thursday, as the Class of '51 roused up approximately one-half of its membership to vote for class officers. These elections, though not as spirited as the others, proved to be an interesting contest. When first returns were made, early in the afternoon, balloting for many officers was close, and this stirred much last-minute voting.

FROSH

Much has been said by many, including this newspaper, berating the Freshman Class for its lack of spirit. The Villanovan now commends this Class whose election drew the largest number to the polls and showed that the Freshmen really have the spirit so necessary for their future activities.

Political signs colored the campus, motorcades drove past, blazing the names of candidates, and loud-speakers filled the air with party

Graduation Day

Graduation day is rapidly approaching, and as it nears every senior is filled with mixed emotions. He is sad for he will soon be saying goodbye to all the friends that he has made during his years at Villanova, fellows with whom he worked, played and studied. It isn't easy to say these goodbye's, so, even the most hardboiled senior will choke up and his eyes will moisten when he reflects upon his college days.

But mixed with these feelings of sorrow will be those of joy, for the graduate realizes that he has successfully passed another milestone on the road of life. He is proud, and justly so, having achieved something that has required a lot of hard work and many sacrifices, that now he bears the mark of a college gentlemen.

We here at Villanova have an added advantage. Not only are we to be college graduates, but we are to be Catholic college graduates. We have been well versed in science, literature and history, and in addition we have been taught the fundamentals of our religion. Our religion is based upon two words, the two which seem to have lost their meaning in the world of today, love and faith.

The world today is being threatened by the Godless philosophy of the materialistic evolutionists. Man is more and more becoming interested in worldly development and less and less of God. The laborer is struggling against the capitalists, the white is opposed to the black, the Gentile is intolerant of the Jew. Each forgets that he was created equal by the same God. Each has forgotten the divine commandment, "Love thy neighbor—". A world that ignores this precept, one that denies the existence of God, one that places material happiness ahead of spiritual well-being is doomed for unhappiness, and will ultimately end in complete chaos.

This is the world as it is today, groping in the darkness of ignorance and disbelief. It is in a direful need of men who can carry the torch of truth, men who can light the way back to the order which was ordained by God. These men, because of the difficulty of their task, must be men of sterling character, well-educated, the men who are unafraid to stand for what is right and, above all, these men must have hearts that are filled with a love for Christ.

Let us remember this after we leave the college, for we will be watched. We are college men. We are supposed to be leaders. By living up to our faith, doing good deeds, receiving the sacraments frequently, being charitable to others we will be a credit to ourselves, our families and Villanova. Let us always keep in mind the slogan of the Christophers, "You Can Change the World."

Summer Villanovations

During the summer vacation Villanova's students will depart for their homes. Some of them will work, others will go to resorts for a real vacation, while still others will do nothing but loaf in the old home town. No matter how you spend your summer, the members of the Villanovan staff wish that you enjoy yourselves, have fun, and above all, hope to see you again in the Fall.

The staff also wishes to extend their congratulations to all those fellows who will be married and to those who will become engaged. We hope that all those men to be married enjoy happy and prosperous lives.

By TOM GALLOWAY

Soon summer will melt the bonds of study, and we will be free to fulfill the dreams of Fall, Winter, and Spring. We will be free to roam the country, relax in the sand, earn a hot-rod, arch the foot on a brass rail, challenge the cool green waters of the Atlantic, fight fatigue in a mountain lodge, wait for a vibration on the end of your favorite deep-sea rod, and ride a lazy cloud into next semester. Soon the powers of Deans, rules of the classrooms, precepts of the dormitories, and laws of the College will relax and turn yellow in your mental diary of memories.

Take it With You

You can take it with you! You can take your text books and all the practical applications of the rules contained. You can take the phonograph records of the lectures, and advice of your school days along with you and replay them occasionally when perplexed with the problems of the strange world you visit. You cannot afford to leave behind the armor issued you. It is patented by the Catholic Church and is issued to students in all Catholic institutions. It is completely sin-proof. It is cross-woven with an understanding of Religion, and reniforced with Faith. Too many Catholic college students are ashamed to pull down their visors and raise their shields to ward off the cold points of temptation.

Don't Bury Your Treasure

We have learned by hard study and attention to the advice of our professors and spiritual directors a fortune in the shining gems of sanctity. Many of us do not realize the value of these gems. Some of us bury them, and when we realize their value many years from now, we will go in search of them, but will find few, if any. But, if we carry these gems, we will find that their brilliance will reflect everything of value in this world or the next. Their radiance will burn into our minds, like radium, and leave there a permanent cure for any ills of the soul. We can give these gems away to those who want them and still have an ever increasing supply of them. But if we hide them, or discard them in our ignorance, we will accomplish nothing and we will cheat the world, and perhaps, under some circumstances, deprive some of our dearest acquaintances, of what might have been theirs hereafter.

Carry your jewels with you, night and day. Hand them out to those who are "poor in spirit". Give them to those who seem to be in need of them. Yours will increase with every one you hand to those who have not had the means to obtain them as you have.

Many a man has gone to his rest
Leaving behind no name,
With truth in his soul, love in his breast
Has found, above, his fame.

The man who will live as he learned
Will have the eternity he's earned.

And Then Tomorrow

By BILL BRENINGHOUSE

Once again the school year draws to a close, and the young eager students will soon be off for summer fun or jobs. This is always the time when people look back on the events of the past years. Since only old men and has-beens have any right to look into the past, this column will devote its space to the future. This poor, but hopeful, writer would like to offer a few prognostications for the next academic year. All in all, it looks like things will be better for some people, worse for others, and unchanged for still others.

It looks like the enrollment will be the biggest in history. Of this great number of students there will be twenty-percent freshman, ten-percent sophs, five-percent juniors, and one-percent seniors. The remaining percent will not know what they are, and there will be no one who could possibly tell them. Some have been wallowing around for years without the slightest indication as to when they will be released.

Up in the Physics lab, some of the world's greatest physicists-to-be will discover a new radio-active element which they will dub Balonium. Chem. majors will be responsible for a revolutionary process which will make mystery balls taste like food. On or about next March 15th., the C. and F. School will announce a new plan in the form of a booklet, "How To Make Money On The Government" or "Twenty Years For Twenty Dollars." Pre-meds will find themselves in trouble for flavoring the clam chowder with formaldehyde.

Among the engineers, the C. E.'s will finally get the campus surveyed. After much concentrated effort, the E. E.'s will announce that they have finally made contact with civilization by the use of Tom Mix telephones. Mechanical engineers will all flunk out and Chem Engineers will all give up.

The Education students will depose the faculty in November, and take over the teaching duties. Arts students will spend their time wondering what they are doing here, while four or five will die of boredom.

In sports, Villanova will be tops. The football team will provide thrills aplenty, and end up one of the best in the nation. The basketball team will be outstanding. If the NCAA tournament is held in Philadelphia, exams will be moved up a few weeks so that all loyal rooters will be able to say that they studied for exams in Convention Hall. Tracksters will run all opposition into the cinders, and the baseball team will come into its own with a stellar nine.

The five-inch gun in Commodore John Barry Hall will go off some dreary Tuesday afternoon when a freshman midshipman will wonder if it is loaded. Somebody will fall into the pool by the Chem. Engineering building, and he will be hailed as a campus-wide hero.

There will be many big events during the year. The Junior Prom will have Franky Foedick and His Filthy Five playing dreamy music. Belle masque will have the biggest year in its History. WVIL will change its name to WVIL-AM-FM-TV. On page four of the VILLANOVAN will appear a weekly feature which will be called "College Girls And Other Intellectual Curiosities," the LYNX will offer

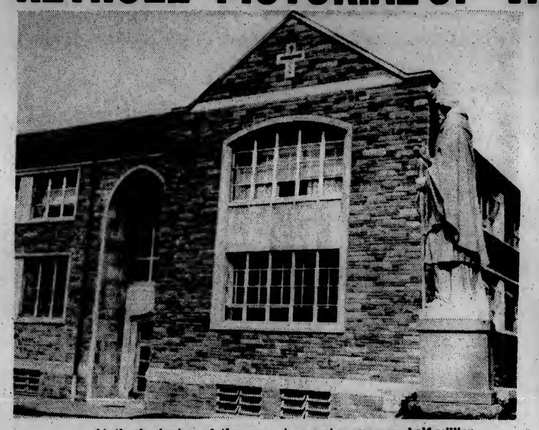
DON'T QUIT

When things go wrong as they sometimes will,
When the road you're trudging seems all uphill,
When the funds are low and the debts are high,
And you want to smile, but have to sigh,
When care is pressing you down a bit—
Rest if you must, but don't you quit.

Life is queer with its twists and turns,
As every one of us sometimes learns;
And many a fellow turns about
When he might have won, had he stuck it out.
Don't give up, though the pace seems slow—
You may succeed with another blow.



Often the goal is nearer than
It seems to a faint and faltering man;
Often the struggler has given up
When he might have captured the victor's cup;
And he learned too late when the night came down,
How close he was to the golden crown.

Success is failure turned inside out—
The silver tint of the clouds of doubt,
And you never can tell how close you are,
It may be near when it seems afar;
So stick to the fight when you're hardest hit—
It's when things seem worst that you mustn't quit.

KEYHOLE PICTORIAL OF VILLANOVA'S 48'-49' YEAR

At the beginning of the present semester our new half-million dollar library was opened. Having a book capacity of 400,000 books, it is one of the most modern and beautiful buildings on the campus. Dedication of the library took place April 22 during the Easter vacation.

The religious highlight of the year of course was the annual retreat held between semesters. Father John J. Coffery, OSA, who is Master of Professed Clerics in St. Mary's Hall was Retreat Master ofr the more than 2000 students who made the retreat successful.

NOT A BAD YEAR

By BOB CARROLL

I asked Wally the other day what kind of year he had and he said it wasn't so bad. But what was the wrong time to ask him. He's worried about the exams just like myself and Leo and Eddie and the rest of us. It happens every year. You talk yourself along and you don't do this and you don't do that and the exams come along and you worry. Yu get your marks and they're always a little worse than the year before. You feel like you're going down before you ever had a crack at anything. And you figure there goes a bad year.

Eddie said you always have to wait a while before you know how you made out. Not just with exams but with everything he said. Like the football season last year. We went to a couple of games last year, Eddie, Leo and myself, and afterwards we drank a little beer. Well, sometime maybe you weren't with the right girl or something went wrong and so you drank a little more beer and you started singing and then you got alittle tight. Somebody would drive you home and you'd go to bed thinking ho wbad off you were and you'd wake up the next morning feeling pretty punk.

All Figures

Eddie said it all figures. You tell your wife about it a couple years later and about the boys and th ecollege and it all fits. Wally's engaged and he'll tell you. He says you like to talk about the bad days, and the good ones never were as good as you think.

I remember the night Wally got engaged. I guess about two mopths ago. We were playing pinochle that afternoon in the Pie Shop with Eddie and Leo but Wally never said anything. And then that night we come to the dance out here and there was the ring and the girl. Wally's only a Junior like the rest of us and I thought he'd wait till nevt year before he'd pull something like that. He was some guy too, running around and all. Then you think well maybe now's he's a little older and you're going to see that happen more often.

All Works Out

Eddie said it all works out. Wally gets engaged, maybe Eddie makes a little money and they both wish they were the other buy. Maybe a year o rtwo later you look back and say everything was fine.

It wasn't such a bad year. That's some library up there at the other end of the campus and those other two buildings. And we had a couple of good ball clubs. I did have a few bad times with the cards though, and that gets you down once in a while. But all in all it wasn't such a bad year, outside of the exams.

Another important addition to the college was the Chemical Engineering building which was one of the three begun in 1947. This building having the latest laboratory equipment gives the college one of the most complete chemical engineering units in the country.

Social affairs highlighted the year as they do every year with Junior Week activities leading the parade with one of the most successful Proms In years with Tony Pastor providing the music. Informals were very well received especially during the Fall Semester.

Aviation Cadet Training Open To June Graduates

June Graduates of Villanova College who are selected can begin aviation Cadet Training this summer or Fall and just one year later begin a real career as a pilot and an officer in the U. S. Air Force, Major Dean E. Hess, Aviation Cadet Procurement Officer announced today.

"The Air Force is particularly interested in obtaining qualified college graduates for training as pilots and Officers," explained Major Hess. "An adequate background is becoming increasingly important to an officers career in an air force that must deal with the complex problems of Atomic Energy, Supersonic Flight, and Guided Missiles."

"For those students who remain in college to complete their academic education, the Air Force is making a special effort to see that those who qualify and are selected are placed in aviation cadet classes of their choice. For this reason, places are being reserved for June graduates in the Summer and Fall classes."

Major Hess is visiting the campus on Monday, June 23rd., from 8:30 A. M. to 4:30 P. M., with an air force interviewing team. The team, which will be headquartered at 102 Mendel Hall will interview students interest in a career as a pilot and an officer in the air force. It also is prepared to give preliminary examinations to prospective applicants.

College students can qualify for Aviation Cadet Training now, said the officer, and—if selected—they can enter classes as soon as they finish schooling. The classes begin every six weeks.

To be eligible, men must be between the ages of 20 and 26½, with high physical and moral qualifications, and must have at least two years of college or the ability to pass an equivalent examination. Either married or single men may apply. After qualifying, applicants must pass an examining board and then be selected.

Aviation cadets receive 12 months of thorough training combining the finest flight instruction, academic work, and leadership training. Food, clothing, housing, medical and dental care, and athletic and recreational facilities are provided. A $10,000 insurance policy also is provided, with all premiums paid by the government while the cadet is in training.

Graduates receive the silver wings of a pilot and reserve commissions as Second Lieutenants in the U. S. Air Force. After 30-day vacations with pay, the young officers are given flying assignments.

Outstanding graduates receive regular commissions immediately. Other graduates with reserve commissions have good opportunity to earn regular commissions while on the three-year tour of active duty.

Spanish Club Holds Final Meeting

The Spanish Club bid adios to its activities for this year on Thursday, May 12th., at 4:00 o'clock in the C & P Auditorium. At that time, the final meeting considered reports of the standing committees and held elections for next year's officers.

Cervantes Day was a success in all respects, reported Eugene Shuchart, treasurer of the club, and the large group will be able to start the next school year on a sound financial basis.

As a result of the elections, the next order of business, John Roesgen was elected President for the coming year. His fellow officers as named by the members are: Vice-Pres., Noel Cassidy, Secretary, Louis Martine, and Treasurer, Leon Kazmiercsak.

Retiring President Anthony Gulotta then thanked the retiring fellow-officers and members of the club who aided him in the successful completion of this year, and expressed his hope that such cooperation will be continued in support of all future activities of the Spanish Club.

Cindermen 2nd To Army As Meet Records Fall

Thompson Breaks 2-Mile Record; Ross Doubles Again, Sets Mile Mark, Panczner Stars

By BILL COONEY

The mighty juggernaut that is the Army track team overwhelmed Villanova and Fordham last Saturday at West Point. The Black Knights rolled up 121⅙ points to the Wildcats 44½, and the Rams seven.

Villanova's speedsters gave a good account of themselves, however, in spite of the lopsided score, for out of the five new meet records set, they set two and shared in establishing another.

Thompson Sets Mark

George Thompson took over Browning Ross' two-mile duties for the day and turned in one of the finest exhibitions of running seen all season. Thompson was matched against Army's Jim Thompson (no relation), newly crowned Heptagonal champ and record holder. The two men stuck together as if they were twins for most of the route. Then on the backstretch of the last lap, George started sprinting with a powerful kick and pulled away from Jim who trailed him over by about eight yards. As if dethroning a champion were not enough, Thompson (G.), also set a new meet record with his 9:36.1.

Browning Ross did as he has done in every meet this season by scoring a double win. This time he moved down from the two-mile and mile combo to run the mile and the half-mile. The transition apparently didn't cramp his style, for he not only ran a 1:56.8 half but accounted for another meet record by virtue of his 4:21.1 clocking in the mile. In setting this new mark he lowered the old one by almost a full eight seconds.

Marty Panczner went to town and soared 6'1¼" in the high jump but was forced to share honors with Kulpa and Bayard of Army. The height was also a new meet record and was a inch and a quarter over the old standard. Panczner has proved that he can do six feet and better consistently this season and should be a valuable asset to the team in future open competition.

Villanova's other win came when Jim McKenna won the 220 in 22.3. The Cats scored twice in this event as Tom Irish took third. Irish was also third in the hundred, followed by team-mate Jack Holmes.

Hammack and McKenna in Close One

McKenna also took second to Army's Jack Hammack in the 440. In a nip and tuck battle around the one turn quarter, neither man could gain an advantage until Hammack put on a drive at the finish to beat McKenna. The time was 48.6 also a new meet record showing the fast pace of the event.

Joe Semple also shared the same fate as McKenna for he too featured in a record-breaking event. Rawers of Army heaved the javelin 193'10" to win. Semple's 187'4" second place also bettered the ten-year-old record of 185'10". Semple also placed second in the shot and third in the discus.

This meet was the last of the duel and triangular contest series. This coming Saturday the team participates in the IC4A Championships at New York's Randall's Island. The Wildcats official season will come to a close on June fourth when they complete in the New York A. C. games.

Sports Editor

With the end of the scholastic year and the last issue of the campus' leading weekly newspaper, your reporter is confronted with scores of people, incidents, games, records, and other sports talk that he would like to mention. Due to lack of space and forgetfulness we are bound to overlook something and somebody for which we'll apologize sincerely in advance.

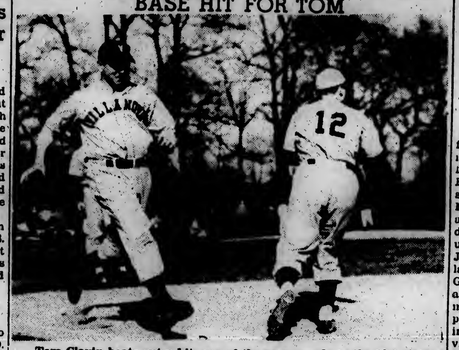
Pigskin Parade

The football team got off to a roaring start with a 34-14 win over the Texas Aggies that saw Bob Polidor and Ralph Pasquariello running wild. The following week saw the Cats fall to an Army team that played their best game of its season. After that, with the exception of the 18-13 loss to B. C., the season was smooth sailing for the Mainliners. Highlights were the San Francisco contest where the Cats scored 33 points in the last quarter to upset the Dons, 46-13, and Pete D'Alonzo's hitting pay dirt as the gun barked; the Duquesne slaughter in which Joe Rogers and George Guida went for two apiece; and finally the bid to the Harbor Bowl game at San Diego on New Year's Day. January 1st saw the Mainliners as one of the first teams in the nation having topped counted Nevada, 27-7. And then the team's trip home and stop-over at Green River, Wyoming, in the cowboy country.

The announcement then came that Coach Jordan Olivar had been signed by Loyola University and the Wildcats had a new coach in the person of Jim Leonard. Larry Kirchline was recently added to the coaching staff to replace Jerry Neri who left with Olivar for California.

Board Beat

The Blue and White harriers were also prominent on the sports pages during the fall with Browning Ross and company winning many laurels. Brownie placed third in both the NCAA and IC4A meets against the top competition in the country. In duel meets it was always Ross followed by team-mate George Thompson, a very dependable distance man and a consistant point scorer.



The indoor season found Villanova's great trackman George Guida running his last time for the Blue and White. And George added another honor to his world-famous career by breaking the world's record for the 500 yard run in the Burhmeyer 500 at the Garden. He and Jim McKenna then went to Baltimore to place one, two in the 600. The winter of '49 also found Villanova's sprint medley team of Tom Irish, Jack Holmes, Joe McCreary, and Jim McKenna taking the National A. A. U. Sprint Medley Relay Championship.

Court Capers

While the trackmen were pounding the boards of Madison Square Garden and the pigskin luggers were finishing the season at San Diego, the Wildcat basketball team had started its way to the greatest season in the school's history. When the last ball had been shot the standings showed Villanova with a 23-3 standing including two games in the NCAA tournament. The highlights of the court season are almost too numerous to mention but there are some things that will always stand out in the minds of Wildcat followers. Paul Arizin's 85 points in one game stood out as the leading individual accomplishment of the season. After much controversy the record was finally recognized by the papers, the NCAA and everyone else, Paul was given the credit he deserved. The season went on and the Cats rolled up twelve straight until they hit a rough western trip and lost three out of four. But after that it was smooth sailing and the season's final showed the Wildcat's as the leading team in District II of the NCAA. The team went down to the last game, however, before the invitation was received and it was only by a sensational showing of the reserves in the Georgetown game that brought victory to Villanova. Tom Sabol, ace backboard man had been hurt against St. Bonaventure and the Cats went up to the Garden to play mighty Kentucky in the first game of the Tournamen with only four of

Wildcat Nine Beats Seton Hall; Whip Georgetown; Loses To Navy

Tom Clavin beats out a hit, one of the many made in the 12-5 victory over Seton Hall last Wednesday.

Win Over Pirates Ends Jerseyites' Year Long Winning Streak.

By TED FERNANDEZ

The wildcat baseball squad defeated Seton Hall and Georgetown last week and losing to a powerful Navy nine. The Cats blasted Seton Hall at Villanova field with a 12-5 score. The Hallers arrived on the Mainline campus with 22 victories and a reputation of being quite a dangerous ball club. This was the upset of the year for the New Jerseyites who had a victory string last year marred only by the Cats. Georgetown fell victim to Wright and Chojnacki who squeezed out a meager 12-11 margin. This tilt was packed with action in the final inning which turned the story to victory for the Villanovans and bitter defeat for the Moyas. Navy turned on the current at home to blank the Cats 9-0. Middie football hero Bill Hawkins pitched the Sailors to victory allowing five hits.

John Moroney hurled the Cats to victory over Seton Hall last Wednesday giving up only five hits. The Hallers made error after error while the Villanovans romped around the bases. The Cats scored five runs in the first, four in the second and one in the third, sixth and eighth. Seton Hall netted two in the first, one in the second and two in the fourth. Ken Oliver went to the mound for the Pirates giving up eleven runs.

Edge Georgetown

The Villanovans traveled to Washington, D. C., to squeeze out the Hoyes in the final inning by one point the final tally reading 12-11. This contest was the slugfest of the year as 27 balls were tagged "base hit." The Wildcat pitching service sent for Wright in the eighth inning as Stan Chojnacki was retired from the mound. Don Kline, Mainline third baseman was the big gun for the visitors getting five hits. Teammate Frank Comerford chipped in with three. Georgetown used four pitchers with Tommy Flynn being charged with the loss, and Red Wright getting credit for the victory. The Hoyas outhit the Cats but failed to bring their men home in the crucial moments. Tom Moskai and Frank Corley of Georgetown blasted three hits apiece sharing top hitting honors for the Hoyas. Frank Comerford of Villanova tagged home plate twice in this eventful affair while Kline score four times.

Drubbed by Navy

Navy's baseball team defeated the Cats, 9-0 as Bill Hawkins pitched a five hitter. Hawkins who also starred on the Middies football team, struck out 12 and walked four of the Cats. Only three Wienertmen reached second. Paddy Corrigan was the big wheel of the Navy attack with four hits in five trips. One was a two-run homer. Navy got off to a quick start in the first when Gene Saylor walked, advanced on Corrigan's single, stole third and then came home when the catcher threw wild. The Middies made two more in the second on two hits and an error. Larry Aigeldinger netted two hits for the Cats but failed to reach third base. The Midshipmen have a powerful infield as well as a pitching staff and hitters.

Alumni Takes Two; Wins IM Softball

By Mondschein Inc. & Kluesarits

Alumni Hall came through with two one-run victories in the last week of formal competition in the softball league and clinched the title for the curtailed season. Good Counsel was instrumental in Alumni's triumph as they knocked off Austin and Bks. 1&4 in their games, to asure Alumni of undisputed possession of the top spot.

In Monday's games, Alumni got to the offerings of Mendel's Manny Rubin for seven timely blows, resulting in three runs, and then stayed off a last-inning rally to win 3-2.

Bill Scharle, Alumni's ace, was also touched for seven hits including two doubles, but tightened in the pinches to record his third triumph.

Meanwhile, Good Counsel took advantage of four walks in a row, combined with some timely hitting to score six runs in the third inning against Trayor and Dallago of Austin. These runs were enough to win as Obst kept the loser in check the rest of the way. The loss was the first for Austin.

Doms Shut Out Bks. 14-4

On Tuesday, Bks. 1&4 suffered its first loss, losing to the Doms and the fine shut-out hurling of J. J. Thompson. Lefty Mondachein yielded only three hits, but they came at the wrong time, because the Doms scored runs in the third and fourth innings to win its third.

Fedigan had little trouble in subduing Bks. 2&3 by a 9-5 count on Tuesday. Big Bill Gerold's home run, with two on, was the big blow which climaxed the attack on Nugent, of the Bks. Phil Brennan won his first game of the season.

Alumni Clinches Title

A triple by John McDermott, scoring Bill Scharle, who had doubled, broke up a fine pitching duel in the sixth inning and gave Alumni a 2-1 win over the Doms on Wednesday. Bill Scharle pitched the finest game of the league season as he limited the losers to two scratch singles. Thompson was the losing hurler, giving up five hits.

Austin teed off early and often on the pitches of Brennan, winning to the tune of 10-2 over Fedigan. Dallago coasted to his second win behind the steady twelve-hit assault of his mates, featured by a round tripper by Loughlin in the second inning.

Bks. 1&4 suffered its second consecutive defeat on Thursday, in a 15-12 slugfest with Good Counsel. The game was called in the last half of the sixth by umpire Bob Mundy because of darkness. Les Obst was the winning pitcher while Paul McGinley, the loser. Plunkett of the Bks. hit a home run in the third inning. Mendel, behind Rubin, registered a 9-4 win over the winless Bks. 2&3 combine in the other contest.

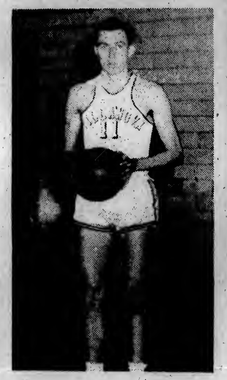
THREE BASEBALL CAREERS FINISH

As the summer approaches and the collegiate baseball season draws to a close, three of the members of the current edition of the Villanova nine will have played their last game for their Alma Mater.

Stan Chojnacki, Norma Kline and Comerford all began their careers as Freshmen just four years ago. Since that time all have played sterling ball and their names will be remembered by many for a long time to come.

Chojnacki, a product of Camden High School, has clinched more mound wins than any other Villanova history. Kline, a capable, hard-hitting third baseman, rapped out three hits in his first appearance in a Blue-White uniform and has been consistent throughout all four campaigns. The tall, affable Comerford has done his share, too. During the past two seasons he has been captain of the Wienertmen and his aid to the team has been tremendous.

A Tribute To George Guida



"The finest gentleman in track." These words spoken by any of the cinder and board fraternity refer to only one man, George Guida. In a sport that considers liberal use of elbows and spikes almost a necessary element to success this compliment to the pride of Villanova is made doubly flattering. George is not dubbed this merely because he runs a clean race, far from it. His ability to shrug off a new record or title with a tribute to his opposition, or to be first in line to shake the hand of the man that bent him are parts of it, too. His modesty is a legend. His admonitions to VILLANOVAN writers to give some lesser light a chance at the expense of his own publicity is one of the favorite stories in the sports department.

His talents are not all in the athletic line, however. This year he served as president of the Senior class. This was the second time his classmates chose him to guide their destinies, this time, incidentally, it was by unanimous choice. This, plus his fine work in the Inter-Racial Society has earned him the respect of his fellows both in and out of athletic circles.

The story that best represents George is his fight to get on the Olympic team. Shortly after the first meet in 1948 he suffered a pulled muscle and was forced to lay off running. This hurt him badly for in the IC4A 440 he came in sixth in a race which he had won the year before. He took 5th in the NCAA meet to just barely qualify for the Olympic trials. He was third in these and thus earned his berth. The strain of this competition told, however, and in the finals of the Olympics he was sixth. Because of this he was so sure that he would be a dertiment to the 1600 meter relay team that he gave his place to another man. This was in spite of everyone's advice that he just had a bad day and would come around. So sure was he that better men were around that he gave up a chance to run on a first place Olympic relay. This gesture shows us the real picture of George Guida, student, athlete, and Christian gentleman.

In this election which drew approximately 50% of the class to the polls, Marshall received more votes than both of his opponents.

For Vice- Pres., John Crossin was elected with over a hundred vote majority. Ray Raclawski was named Secretary, and Harry Postupack, Treasurer, with not so large, but just as effective margins over their opponents.

In the elections for representatives to the Student Council, Emeric Rochford was the unopposed candidate from the Science School. William Leighton, Engineering, Larry O'Brien, Arts, and Ray Waldron, C & F, were the men selected to complete the representation of the Class of '50 to that body.

George Schuster insured his victory in the Presidential campaign by securing a margin of 54 votes. Not so safe were Richard Spence and Daniel Walsh who won the Vice-Presidency and the Secretaryship respectively by only 34 votes each. Larry Gallen completed the slate of officers by drawing two more votes than all his opposition combined to become Treasurer.

The Student Council elections ended in victories for Paul Davis, Eng., Jack Gibbons, C & F, Harry Range, Ed., and Chris O'Keefe, Arts.

President Schuster also issued a statement of thanks to the members of his Class through this paper for their support. "We have a lot of work to be done if we are to make our Junior year a successful one," declared the re-elected President, 'but with the support you have given us in these elections I am sure we can, and I know we will do our best for the Class of '51."

promises to make the campaigns of this class overshadow all others held during the election week, and in fact, those of recent years.

As a result of the balloting, the Collegiate Party made an almost clean sweep, placing in office three out of four of its candidates. In a close race, Jack Patrick, the candidate of this party, won the Presidency by a margin of only ten votes. Thomas Cullen, a member of another party, took the Vice Presidency by forty votes. These were the only close contests in the Class as Jim Gallagher and Kevin McCrane landslided the remaining posts of Secretary and Treasurer into the fold of the Collegiates.

In a statement to this paper, Patrick, the newly elected President, expressed his thanks to all the members of the Freshman Class for the spirit shown during the elections. Against the best in the nation Villanova shone in defeat with Paul Arizin scoring 30 points, the highest scored by any player in the tourney and with the team hitting for 72, more than had been scored against Kaintuk in many a moon. The Severancemen then went on to easily win over Yale and Tony Lavelli in the second game at the Garden. It was a great season and with none of the squad graduating we can look forward to another like it next winter.

Fr. Caffrey Conducts One Day Retreat Thursday

Mass, Talks, Holy Hour Scheduled

Rev. Henry A. Caffrey, O.S.A., will conduct a Day of Recollection, the annual Fall Retreat Day at the opening of the school year. The one day Retreat will be held in the Field House this week, Thursday, October 6.

Fr. Caffrey will not come to Villanova for the Retreat, rather he will come back to Villanova. It was just five years ago, that Father gave the annual Retreat at the end of the first semester of that year.

Prior of Monastery

Before that, Father Caffrey was a professor of Religion and of English in the day school of the College. While here as a professor he was also the Prior of the Monastery for a while.

Coming from Mother of Good Council Novitiate, New Hamburg, N. Y., Fr. Caffrey is expected to give a very fine retreat, due to the fact that he knows exactly what kind of gentlemen he is going to speak to, having taught their "brother students" but five years ago.

The Retreat exercises will begin at 9:00 o'clock with the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass, which will be followed by a short Conference. At eleven o'clock and again at two o'clock Caffrey will address his retreatants, closing the two o'clock conference with a Holy Hour terminating at half past three.

Confessions will be heard after the nine and two o'clock Conferences by attendant Fathers.

The entire Retreat, Mass, conferences, Holy Hour, and Confessions will be held in the Field House. There will be no classes Thursday, the day of the Retreat. All Catholic students must attend this Retreat.; attendance cards will be passed out at the door.

Belle Air Lists Dates For Pix

Arrangements have been made for the Zamsky Studio to complete all photographing of the Senior Class to include those who did not have their yearbook portraits taken last May. This will be the last opportunity for Seniors to be photographed and they are urged to report to the Belle Air office for appointment designations.

The Zamsky Studio will not take any additional photographs after October 15, 1949. Appointments for pictures are available from 9.30 A. M. to 3:30 P. M. each day until October 15th. Seniors are further reminded that their portraits will not appear in the 1950 edition of the yearbook, if they are not completed by the above date. In conjunction with senior portraits, the respective Senior Class History forms must be completed and returned to the Belle Air office not later than October 15, 1949.

Registration for membership on the Belle Air Staff will be held on Wednesday and Friday, October 5th and 7th respectively from the hours of 1:00 P. M. to b:00 P. M. There are opportunities in all departments which include, Photography, Sports, Copy and Business. All students interested may apply for membership at this time.

Friday, October 7th., the day after the Rereat, is the First Friday of the month. Masses in the College Chapel will be 6.00, 6:45, 7:30, 8:00, 9:00, and 12:00.

Exposition of the Blessed Sacrament in the Chapel will last all day.

COUNCIL CONVENES IN INITIAL SESSION

Tuesday evening, September 20, the Student Council held its first meeting of the Second Semester. The men elected by the council to lead the representatives were Brian McLarnon, President; Larry O'Brian, Vice-President, and Emeric Rochford who holds the dual responsibility of Treasurer and Secretary.

President Brian McLarnon called the early meeting in order that plans could be made for the annual Student Council Informal Dance that was held September 30. An Election Committee was appointed immediately in order that several re-elections could be arranged as soon as possible.

Orientation Topic

Besides the dance arrangements the important topic of discussion was Freshmen orientation. Rev. John Tuohy, O.S.A., and Rev. Dante Girolami, O.S.A., both addressed the Council, asking that some definite plans of action be established in regards to rules and regulations for Frosh and penalties to be imposed for infractions of such. At that time it was decided that the Sophomores in the orientation committee would meet on the following evening to outline a policy.

Mike Nowlan, representing the Engineering groups, renewed a plea for the return of the Owl Hop, long one of the traditional informal dances at Villanova in the pre-war days. The Social Affairs committee was then advised to take the matter under consideration and report to the Council as soon as possible.

Again it is urged that all those students interested in Student Government and who may have something on their mind should attempt to attend these meetings which will be held Bi-weekly, on Monday evenings at 7:30 P. M.

New Registration Set-up Speeds Record Enrollment

Register More Than 600 in Frosh Class

This fall saw the Villanova Faculty and Administration welcome the largest enrollment of students in the history of the school. Over twenty-five hundred students were processed in the specially outfitted Field House during the week before school began. Some 700 new freshmen were added to the college's roster.

Unlike last years when registration was conducted by years in the different offices and classrooms of Mendel Hall, registration was this year conducted in the Field House. Desks and tables representing all the offices and schools of the college were set up on the floor. This greatly facilitated the process of registering for courses, chapel, rooms and so forth. All the routine connected with coming back to school or beginning school took place in the one building.

A day was set aside for each of the three schools at Villanova and a fourth day for those with irregular courses that needed special attention. Freshmen were held up for the price of their dinks before they even got near the door and all in all as Rev. John McDonnell, O.S.A., Registrar, said, "the whole thing went very well."

DEDICATE SCHOOL YEAR

Mass Opens School Year; Welcome By President

The 1949-50 scholastic year, the 108th at Villanova, was officially opened on Wednesday, September 21 with Solemn High Mass in the Field House. The Mass was celebrated by Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., President of the College, and attended by the entire student body. The Deacon and Subdeacon of the Mass, respectively, were Rev. Edward McKee, O.S.A., Vice-President, and Rev. Thomas Purcell, O.S.A., Assistant Chaplain.

In an address to the students, Fr. McGuire stressed the need for hard work during the present semester. He also spoke of the spiritual heritage of the College and welcomed the freshmen to the "Villanova Family".

The responses at Mass were sung by the Seminary choir accompanied by Fr. Handran at the console of the New organ.

WVIL To Make Debut Oct. 10

Station WVIL will make its broadcasting debut on Monday, October 10th., according to the latest announcement from campus station's staff last week. Following a meeting Thursday, 7:30 P. M., in the station's headquarters, plans will be made for that opening.

In another release from Program Manager Breninghouse and Production Manager Keenley, who jointly control the station, it was announced that the world series will be broadcast over a loud speaker system from the station building.

The "Voice of Villanova College" was last year hampered pending the completion of its new quarters and as a result was not opened until late in the year. However this year all is in readiness.

NROTC Swears In Largest Group As Class Of '53

With the swearing in of some 120 new freshman into the ranks of the Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps here at Villanova, the Unit began the new academic year with the largest enrollment since the program's beginning.

Designed to take the place of the closing V-12 program at the close of the war, the NROTC will this year see the graduation of the first class to begin under its command.

The large group of freshmen brought the total enrollment of the unit to two hundred and seventy students. This was enough to add one more company to their Battalion formation.

36 In Regular Program

Of the 120 students that entered this fall, 36 were under the scholarship or "Regular" program. These students will receive tuition, books, subsistence and three summer training cruises between now and when they receive their commissions at graduation in four years. They qualified for the program last year after passing aptitude test, physical exam interviews, and state-selection boards, during which time they competed with thousands of young men throughout the country.

The other 85 students have signed contracts (from which they get their application) to study navy courses participate in all the activities except the cruises (they get one after Junior year) and finally are commissioned upon graduation. They must also pass physical examinations and officer qualification exams, but they must supply the financial means for college. However they receive a small amount for subsistence during their Junior and Senior years.

Freshmen Meet The "White Hats"

Blue dinks, name buttons, and rolled-up cuffs seemed to predominate on campus as the annual orientation program for Freshmen get into full swing. Judging from the evident cooperation of the newest members of the student body, Orientation Committee members feel assured of a successful program, and forecast its early termination.

Actually, orientation began on Wednesday, Sept. 14th, when Freshmen received their "regs" during registration. The official opening, though, took place the following Tuesday, when a meeting of the Class was called in the C&F Auditorium and the frosh were addressed by members of the faculty, and student leaders.

The program of the day included talks by Rev. John Tuohy, O.S.A., Dean of Freshmen, Rev. John Dunne, O.S.A., Intra-murals Moderator, Rev. Edward Dwyer, O.S.A., College Dean, and Bryan McLarnon, Chairman of the Student Council. Following a rally, other addresses were given by Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., President, Rev. Edwin Grimes, O.S.A., Chaplain, Rev. George McLaughlin, O.S.A., Dean of Student Activities, and Roland Marshall, President of the Senior Class.

On the following day, classes began and with them the biggest task of the Orientation Committee, that of aiding and directing the Frosh, and making them feel welcome as additions to the student body. Larry O'Brien, Chairman of the Orientation Committee, announced several innovations in the program which he believed will increase its effectiveness. A system of fines has been inaugurated by which violators of the Freshman rules will have their matriculation cards turned in to Fr. Tuohy.

In a bulletin issued to Freshman by the Orientation Committee, further rules were outlined, and provisions made for second offenders to be tried by the Student Council court, and third offenders to have their matric cards revoked for admission into athletic events until the end of the orientation period. O'Brien added that he hoped that with these new rules, and with the continuation of the present spirit of the Freshmen, there will be no need to continue orientation longer than the first of next month.

Captain James McCormick, USN, swears in a few of the men who will study here under the Reserve Officer training program. These men belong to the largest ROTC class to ever matriculate here since the program was initiated.

The Change

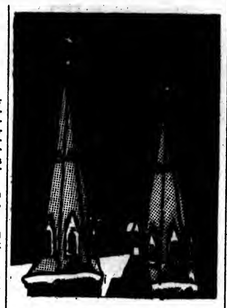
Already two weeks have passed since the opening day of school and the routine of classes and assignments has settled upon the campus, but we would like belatedly to welcome the Freshmen on behalf of the editors and staff of the VILLANOVAN.

It must be remembered that college is a very important step along the path of life for anyone, but its importance can be measured only in what the individual can learn about his chosen field and what he can learn about living.

In the four years spent at college the average student undergoes a metamorphosis which sees him change from a starry-eye high school kid to a youth ready to take his place with the best in his profession, and with an intelligent outlook on life. The change doesn't come easy. There are four long years during which the student learns to mix work and play to the proper consistency. Mistakes are made, but he really learns from the mistakes he made at college. He realizes that it is foolhardy to make errors when he is preparing for the thing which will mean his bread and butter for the remainder of his life.

Remember, too, Freshmen, that when things get rough there is a lot of comfort to be had just for the asking. Stop at the Chapel any time during the course of a day, and spend a quiet few minutes with Our Lord. Here's a tip, though, don't wait for the rough times to come along before you visit. Rough times have a strange habit of not showing up at all if you have the good habit of stopping at the Chapel for a bit of meditation.

Line Cutting



By now most resident students should be aware of the problem which has arisen in regard to the cafeteria lines—morning, noon and night. Because the schedules are becoming more compact, residents are crowding to the cafeteria at the same hours every day.

Yes, the lines are long but the reason for the long wait in those same lines is the result of line-cutting. It is frustrating to stand in the chow line and not move from the same spot for more than 10 minutes in some instances. If the majority of those men cutting into the lines would only stop to think instead of being frightened by the length of the lines the average wait in line could be cut by 15 minutes.

This may sound like the same old story, but these cafeteria lines are here to stay, so the time to make them easier on the nerves is right now before matters get worse.

The appeal has been made more than once that the practice of "line-cutting" stop, but it has been to no avail. Selfish motives seem to carry a long way. We could again appeal to the individual to help make mealtimes easier for himself and others but it seems so hopeless that we are prone to suggest another remedy.

Apparently what is needed is a proctor to watch the lines, just as the Navy had a man on duty to police the chow lines. At any rate, we hope the residents will give a little thought to working out the difficulty like intelligent adults do.

By JAMES J. GRIFFIN

Here we are into the Fall already, and rushing headlong towards the winter and spring. Some of us are on the last lap of our school life, others have a couple more trips around the seasons to face, but for all of us life is looming up in the not too far future—life, with all its complexities and reponsibilities, with all its challenges and opportunities.

It seems to me that Fall is the natural time to stop and ponder on the passage of time, because now the rapidity of that passage seems most obvious, and, perhaps more important, because the Fall is the time to plot the ways and means of making the most of what time we have left.

Check Up

And, since it is a natural time to pause, why not make use of that pause to check our compass reading, and find out just where we are headed—or whether we are headed anywhere at all. Odds are that because of the whirl of opening days we haven't had a free moment through the entire month of September. Before that, we were busy working all summer and spending the week ends at the shore, and still before that we were cramming for spring exams. Probably a good many of us haven't experienced a good pause since the retreat last year. Any good navigator will warn you to check your bearings at least once every watch.

There is one other good reason for choosing now as the time for our check stop: this is October, not only the month of brisk winds and yellow leaves, but also the month of the Rosary, the month when the Church asks us to show special devotion to Our Lady by means of this gift of hers to us. Coincident with this need of ours for a pause comes a special request for pauses of a special type, and of just such a type as we actually need . . . So why not fill our own need and the Church's request with one and the same effort, for what better way can be found to spend a few quiet moments than in conversation with Mary, and what better way to string the stops together than with decades of beads?

Inventory

So, let's try to make sure that when this month ends we will be able to look back and see more than lab reports and quiz returns, more than football scores and informal dances. Let's not finish our inventory this month with thirty straight days of consistent fluctuation between phlegmatic stretches at the card table and feverish hours at the books. Let us have our records punctuated with short commas of space, spaces of thoughtful prayer —helpful equilibrants in this life, and indispensible coin for the next.

SYMPATHY

The staff of the Villanovan and the student body extend sympathy to Richard Bonner and Robert Roach on the death of their mothers. Mass was said in the College Chapel for the repose of their souls.

FOR LOVE OR MONEY

By BILL BRENINGHOUSE

Classes had begun anew and Oscar Twomp, bubbling with energy, was entering the fray resolved to make this the year of years. He had started off admirably for tonight he had a date with the sweetest little thing this side of South Philly. It was at a ten dance that he met her, this vision of loveliness. She giggled when he accidentally poured the contents of a coke bottle down the back of her dress and from then on it was love, romance and ecstasy.

The preparations for this date were lavish. All day he had worked on a garbage truck for which he had received a brisk new five-dollar bill. After hailing out his laundry, much to the joy of his roommate, and getting his flowing locks shorn, he still had two and a half rocks with which to splurge. Waldo Chomplumper, however, discovered the fact that Oscar was solvent and demanded the eighty cents he had loaned Oscar, which left our hero with a greasy old one dollar bill and fourteen nickels.

Shaken

Shaken but still enthusiastic, Oscar soaked for an hour or two in the shower. Perhaps he should have soaked longer, but he wasn't afraid as long as he had plenty of Mum. Then, carefully, he selected the outfit he would wear. His gray suit, his best suit, his only suit, was a little shiny but if they went to the movies he would be sitting down. No sense in shining those shoes, there's no more finish on them. He was still in the first week on that white shirt and his roommate was always good for a flashy tie. Thus adorned he strolled over to a neighboring girl's school to meet the love of his life. As he walked through the dew-laden knee-high grass he recounted his fortune. One dollar and ten cents would get them into the local movie, forty cents carfare, and after the show a couple of cokes.

As Oscar sat waiting in the dormitory reception room he wondered if he could rent the place out to a local mortician. Before this thought made any headway, down the stairs came the love of his life, making her grand entrance. Though she had made this same grand entrance a great many times, somehow there was one stair less than she had counted upon. She got up gracefully from the floor and extended a lily white hand to Oscar, and they headed for the door.

On Their Way

Once outside, the lovely thing looked into Oscar's bloodshot eyes and asked, "What kind of a new convertible do you have?"

Not wishing to reveal the true nature of his circumstances he told her that his car was getting repaired.

"Oh, then we're taking a cab", chirped she, as if there was no other alternative.

Oscar got out of this by explaining that there were no cabs available at the time. Then he said those fateful words, "We're taking a bus."

This was too much for our little lady. A bus? How horrible! What would people think? Oh how could Oscar be so cruel? And what else did he have planned?

The local movies? Cokes? My goodness, this is awful. Why when she goes out, she goes out in style: convertible, dinner, theater, cocktails. What is all this nonsense about bus, movies, and cokes? Why a girl of her standing has a reputation to think about. Some other time, Oscar.

By this time she had stopped waving her arms, sobbing, and pulling her hair out, Oscar was seated at a local institution watching the latest event in the world of sports. In no time he had a group of very sympathetic listeners to his sad tale, so many in fact that he still had a buck-fifty when he left the place.

Editorial Comments

By FRANK GOBES

I have never really felt a genuine sadness about the season of autumn. Maybe a tinge of sorrow at the passing of summer but the crisp light of fall upon its greens and swan-song-beauty of the turning trees has always seemed to lend a keen zest to the weather and a rebirth of incentive toward our daily work.

Rebirth! Not a dying of nature but a change. It is a rebirth of our winter activities. The time slip covers come off the furniture; Mom puts up the winter curtains; Dad begins to look forward to the indoor events that warm the heart during a bleak season.

But whatever Fall means in the aesthetic sense, for you and me it means classes, books, the smell of powdered chalk and all the work and enjoyment that a new school year brings.

Fall is the time when we earn the grades that are ours in February and June. The habits of study or a lack of them, formed now, will determine our degree of success then. From the past should come the experiences that led to past victories and defeats. These should lay the foundations for this new year. And when the program for our daily enterprises has been mapped it should involve these three activities primarily: study, prayer, and recreation. The first strengthened by the last two.

Our campus radio station, which last year faced many obstacles after being housed in its new quarters, promises to open shortly with a larger staff and improved equipment that will guarantee top entertainment. One of the big things on the planning boards is the project to broadcast Villanova's basketball games from the Palestra. Now, there is a thing to look forward to!

With the NROTC reaching its fourth year, having replaced the V-12 program that many years ago, the Midshipmen on camps, this fall have the largest ranks since their inception. Under the command of a new captain and Executive Officer, the Battalion (of three companies this year) plans among other events to strut it's stuff when the Wildcat footballers charge North Carolina State at Franklin Field, in November.

By the way, if you happen to have some time to yourself in the room or on one of local transportation conveyances be sure to beg, borrow or steal (on second thought, maybe the latter isn't appropriate), a copy of Seven Storey Mountain.

Syncopatter

by Mayer & Taten

Death, t axes, and SYNCOPATTER, all inevitable. so to those among you who were wishfully thinking that Bruce and I might have a horrible accident during the summer, resign yourselves, brothers. The fact is, so many of our friends took the big plunge this past summer (it must have been the heat) that we're looking forward to some new readers among the brides, bless their little hearts.

Trends

The summer saw the beginning of several significant trends in popular music. First and foremost, I am happy to report that Bop has lost a lot of ground and seems to be on the way out. I think that nothing could be more indicative of this than the terrific stand Louis Armstrong and his All-Stars made at Bop City in New York. Up until recently, the pace was thought of as the stronghold of that gaudy music with the drab future, but with Duke Ellington following ol' Satchmo in, there may yet be hope Now, if they would only change the name they'll even find a few music lovers among their patrons.

You may also have noticed the drop in the number of Bob records played by the various disc jockeys during the summer months. The change was very apparent in New York and according to sources from other cities the trend seems to be quite wide-spread.

Too Much

Locally, much to our regret, we find the disc jockeys still a little too susceptible to song pluggers. They seem to take a fiendish pleasure in playing a good song into an early grave. I've heard Frankie Lane do "Lucky Old Sun" so many times I'm in the market for a pair of sun glasses, not to mention the complex I'm developing over Patty Andrews when she gives out with "I Can Dream, Can't I." I feel so sorry for the poor kid. Now, here's Bruce.

If any of you poor, misguided subscribers have managed to survive this far you had better stop reading now and quit while you're still ahead. For the benefit of our new readers (aforementioned brides, creditors, freshmen, illiterates and Rosemont girls) I wish to point out in the beginning that this column has a unique style all its own . . . miserable. Some few of you may have been misled by the title so that you are laboring under the misapprehension that we will concern ourselves with the machinations of dixieland and bebop. This is merely a subterfuge. My cohort and I shall also discuss the pro and con of the finer things in life such as women and the best method of mashing a boiled potato. Should this not suffice we shall also be available for consultations concerning who is running in the forth at Chez Vous. Amen.

Research

I have done some exhaustive research this summer and have come up with some discoveries aside from the fact that it's fun to go out with girls. They may be briefly stated as follows: bop has finally come of age and dixieland in the true sense of the word is to be heard no more except on records made prior to this period. Needless to say you will be exposed to more detailed explanations of the above at a later date so I shall expound but briefly (this means that I can't think of too much to say at the present). As Ro said, we shall exempt the local disc jockeys from consideration insofar as their tastes are abdominable for the most part and their primary concern is turning a fast buck by means of playing anything the song pluggers and publishers put on wax.

Two sounds are missing from the musical scene, one good the other bad. The bad resolves itself into the conspicuous absence of good dixieland from the airways, while the good is the corresponding lack of poor bop that was cluttering the kilocycles. Bop has come a long way inthe past few months. The frantic, screaming and tinny noises that many took as characteristic bop has now passed from its first experimental stage and has now become an accepted form of music. This of necessity means the sifting of the true artists who are endeavoring to make a contribution to jazz from the numerous hangers-on, uninspired technicians, and those who were impressed by it as a new fad and thus a means for the extroverts to assert themselves. Fortunately, bop has now progressed almost completely out of this stage, and can now settle down in security to put forth the truly good music of which it is capable.

That does it for this week; don't eat too much and remember to be nice to the fellows in the white hats, after all some of them have sisters.

WHO DEALT?

By BOB CARROLL

I don't mean to say I don't like freshmen. As long as you're going to have four years at college you've got to start some place. There are a lot of fine boys getting out of high school nowadays, fine boys, and if they want to go to college why it's a wonderful thing. I just wish they wouldn't act like they do all the time.

Lost

What I don't like about freshmen is how they stand around and look. You'd think they'd never seen a place like this. You can see it in the classes. Maybe you're a senior and you missed, say, one of these freshman courses along the line so you schedule it and find you're the only one in this class of about eighty who isn't a freshman. Well, they know who you are. They'll sit close to you during class and watch you. They might ask you once in a while about the professor, but usually they just sit there and watch you and wait for you to say something. You might think you were deformed.

You see the same thing at the Pie Shop. All you've got to do is pull out a deck of cards and there they come standing around you while you shuffle. Well of course a lot of guys wouldn't mind that. You take some would just as soon have somebody watching them so they could tell them when they're doing something wrong. Well, Idon't like it. I am no E. Culberson, to begin with, and having somebody standing off there to the side I get feeling like I'm doing everything wrong. I like to play with a new deck and when everybody else is playing and nobody standing around. You learn after you're here a couple terms that you don't bother somebody holding say thirty-three spades or a six-no contract. The juniors and seniors know that, but these newcomers. Eating a sandwich and whispering to each other and watching.

Any How

Eddie said the other day he thinks these new freshmen look kind of young and they do a lot of cheering at the football games. Well I don't know, they're freshmen. You'd think they'd keep them someplace off the grounds til after say All Souls Day. The time you have left here in school you like it to be, well, you know.

Around The Town

By F. A. VARALLO

This, the first in a series of articles, is presented to acquaint the readers with current happenings in and around Billy's Penn's town. In succeeding weeks, it will be our aim to bring you a resume and brief criticism of the latest motion pictures, theatricals, musicals and other events of general interest.

Our column today is devoted to the cinema which this week offers a variety of entertainment for moviegoers. A special treat is in store for those who like musicals, especially the Al Jolson type, for the Aldine is presenting "Jolson Sings Again", a sequel to the "Jolson Story," which was received with great enthusiasm by the public and critics alike some time ago. The sequel opens where the "Story" left off and reviews his return to Broadway, his remarriage, loss of self-confidence when he realises he has become a "has-been" and his eventual return to the top of the ladder. Larry Parks gives an outstanding performance as the "Mammy" singer.

"Rope of Sand" at the Stanley is an action-filled desert drama, starring Burt Lancaster, Paul Henreid, Claude Rains and Corinne Calvert. The story which is centered in South Africa is a tale of greed, double-cross, and standard romance. What makes this film superior to the average Hollywood class B melodrama is its good direction, superior acting, alluring country and an atmosphere of mystery and foreboding. It is recommended for those who enjoy mystery thrillers.

Comedy is the keynote of "I Was a Male War Bride" at the Fox. Cary Grant and Ann Sheridan share the acting honors in this one. The story which takes place in Germany is a series of absurdly humorous situations which involve Cary, a French Captain, and Ann, a WAC lieutenant. Chances are you'll enjoy their antics as they try to circumvent Army red tape in order to get Grant aboard an American-bound ship as Ann's "war bride."

Seems as though war stories are trying to make a comeback in "Task Force," a picture about the U. S. Navy, at the Mastbaum. It is full of details about the development of aircraft carriers and the "reconversion" of sea pilots into air pilots. Gary Cooper portrays a navy man who starts out as a young flier in 1921 and after many setbacks winds up as a rear admiral. He is stationed aboard the ENTERPRISE at the time of the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor. Aside from Cooper's performance, the film has little to offer—it is entirely unrealistic in parts and is hampered throughout by a plot as old as movies themselves.

Turning now to the theatre, we find that the 1949 season has gotten off to alively start with "Touch and Go," an hilarious musical revue, at the Forrest. Presented by George Abbott, the revue features the sketches and lyrics of Jean and Walter Kerr, both members of the faculty at Washington's Catholic University. "Touch and Go" is a topical review which concerns itself with present day trends. In a succession of acts, it satirises modern art, the theatre, the radio, the cinema and war inspired literature. The revue, however, is not overly critical of these subjects. Instead, it portrays things that could happen in these fields that would be extremely funny—and then goes on to prove its point in mirth-provoking lampoons. The score has been borrowed from "Oklahoma", "Carousel", and other hits going back to "Sally" and even contains hits from Gounod and Wagner. In general, the overall revue pattern is fresh and attractive, has a warm sense of humor, moves at a lively pace, and has a cast of new faces, some of whoc will undoubtedly gain wide recognition. For a pleasant way to spend an evening, make it a point to see "Touch and Go" while it is in town.

THE FIFTH COLUMN

By JOE KENNEY and JACK APPLEGATE

Well, the summer holidays are memories of the past until next June rolls around. Vacations are fine if you know how to take them and when to stop, but who knows when to stop. With one complete week of classes under our belts, we can settle down to the serious business of recuperating. . . . Paul Begley while driving a truck picked up a city souvenir at one of the main intersections of Philly. It seems that he took a fancy to the guiding light on the fire box at 12th and Chestnut. Jack (Turf & Tinsel) Kelly spent a delightful few months tussling with a trig course . . . Frank Pitocchelli practiced his course in Sales by selling tickets to the Penn State game . . . Understand that Dick Lauman took a tour of Europe to look over the Russian situation and came back with a case of vodka . . . He carried it inside to avoid shelling out to the customs . . . Mike Nowlan picked up a little experience and a girl working at Phila. Electric . . . Harry Reckner lost a Crosley while chasing a member of the fair (you should pardon the expression) sex around New York.

Here and now let us throw out the welcome mat and extend an open palm to all the new faces on campus. Ah, those poor innocent Frosh . . . talked to one who thought Alumni Hall was a home for aged graduates . . . it takes them a little while to get used to college life but they catch on . . . one newcomer stopped in at Mendel Hall to have his roster changed because the afternoon classes conflicted with his daily siesta . . . Dick Torpey can't understand why he needs all those books, just because his brother Mickey, the senior, has only used two . . . "Elementary Pinochle" and "How to Duck a Bolo Ball".

Paul Dever put his engineering ability to good use while working for Turner Construction Company at Broad and Chestnut . . . What a place to study angles, hmmm . . .

ORCHIDS TO:—Jim Leonard for an outstanding job guiding our top-Eastern team to well-deserved recognition, and for being selected coach of the week by United Press.

Steve Romanik for being named player of the week by the Maxwell Club of Philadelphia.

All the fellows who traveled up to State to support a victorious team. The cheering was better than any spirit displayed in a good many years.

ONIONS TO:—The students who could have gone to Penn States but refused because they thought it was going to be another Army disaster.

Villanova took over State College not only on the gridiron but also the town. Dick (Rushing the season, with a felt hat) McMonigle trying to make time with a female frosh of two days mst more opposition than Romanik . . . Jim O'Brien lost no time in expounding his theory of "Why State collapsed to a superior Wildcat eleven" while strolling with a campus beauty. He couldn't unfderstand it when he was left talking to Jim O'Brien. How did he know she was the coach's daughter?? . . . The fraternity houses on the campus up there are out of this world. Everything is lit up from the outside but more so on the inside . . .

One day last week we went up to Norristown for our monthly check-up. While we were waiting for our shock treatments we stumbled across Jack Metzger guarded by two men in white. He gave us a few tips about this column. Being a renowned expert in his field and having helped write this column last year we gratefully appreciate the following.

Mendel Hall with the new tile wall looks like a glorified subway station and is twice as busy. We have more deans in Mendel Hall now than CBS has vice-presidents, and more departmental offices than the Pentagon.

The 1949 year book finally made its way into the hands of the students and some of us old timers were amazed at the resemblance Mr. Galen to Mr. Georgi—sure was a hot summer. The new set-up on lockers provides its bit of humor as we picture the cold winter days when all the C&F boys leave their coats in their Mendel Hall lockers and take off for class . . .

Chaplain's office will not punch your matric card but we hear that a few of the Business Ad students have devised the plan of running a dog sled between Mendel and C&F . . . It's the only solution since motor vehicles are taboo on campus . . . Constitutionality of the latest hat-shoes-coat-tie (but still no pants) memo will be tested by one Pete Raffa who claims that he has a contingent of Scotchmen from South Philly who intend to wear kilts to class . . . what distraction that ought to cause.

The Pigeons, Robert and Marie had a little squab on June 27th. Pop claims he still figures out the baby's formula on his slide rule . . . Only casualty of the Penn State game was John MacNamara who clunked his chin on the good earth at Beaver field, probably accounting for the "V" which was found nitched in the turf before the game.

Villanova Students Enter Seminaries During Summer

Ten Choose Lives As Religious

Ten Villanova College Students entered seminaries in different sections of the country during the past month. These men swell the number of men who have either graduated or attended the college and since joined the orders.

Received into the Augustinian Novitiate, at Staten Island, September 10th were Richard Sollinger, Arthur Smith, Edward Burton, Vincent Baldassano, George Egan and Phillip Barrett, who graduated with the class of '49.

John Stanley, also of the Class of '49, was received as a novice in the Trappist Abbey of Our Lady of Gethsemani, Gethsemani, Kentucky.

Daniel Ward and Gerald Connelly, Jr., both entered St. Charles Seminary at Overbrook. Robert O'Hara joined the Salvatorian Brothers at St. Nazaian, Wisconsin, while Raymond Booth began training at the Saint Bernard Seminary, Rochester, New York to become a secular Priest in the Diocese of Rochester.

Five of the Villanovans who entered the Augustinian Order last year are now studying at the seminary here after spending a year at the Novitiate at Staten Island.

Father Sullivan Dies Suddenly

Very Rev. Mortimer A. Sullivan, O.S.A., S.T.L., died suddenly on July 13th., at St. Nicholas Rectory, in Atlantic City, N. J. He was

Prior Provincial of the St. Thomas of Villanova Province of the Augustinian Order, which includes Augustinian schools, parishes and mission activities in the Eastern and Far Western sectors of the United States.

Fr. Sullivan was a familiar figure on the Villanova campus, making weekly visits in his capacity as Provincial. He was President of the Board of Trustees of the College. At one time, in 1925, he held the post of President of the College.

The late Prior was born in Lawrence, Massachusetts, January 7th., 1887. He came to Villanova College in 1900 and entered the Augustinian Order in 1904. Ordained in 1909, he served in several parishes and in the mission band. During World War I he saw service as a chaplain. Later, he became Provincial of the Province of St. Thomas of Villanova, in 1932, for six years, and again in 1944. Solemn Masses were celebrated for Fr. Sullivan at St. Nicholas', at Villanova, and at St. Mary's Lawrence. Interment was in Lawrence, Mass.

LETS WILL GIVE LAW.MED EXAMS

The Law School Admission Test will be offered four times and the Medical College Admission Test twice in the coming school year, according to the Educational Testing Service.

Candidates may take the LSAT at local centers throughout the country on Saturday, November 12; in 1950, February 25, April 29, and August 12, all Saturdays. MCAT will be held at more than 300 centers on Saturday, October 22, 1949 and on Monday, January 16, 1950. Law candidates from Villanova may take the tests at Princeton University.

Both tests are objective in type and are required for entrance by a number of law and medical schools throughout the country. Law candidates for admission to next year's freshman classes are advised to take either the November or February test where possible. Many medical colleges begin selecting freshman classes in the fall preceding their entrance, so candidates should take the October test.

Application forms and a Bulletin of Information which gives details of registration and administration as well as sample questions are available direct from Educational Testing Service, Box 592, Princeton, N. J.

MARINE TRAINEES RECEIVED PRAISE; PLC QUOTA RAISED

With commendations for the high calibre of men that went through the Platoon Leaders training program this past summer at Quantico, Va., Marine Headquarters in Washington honored the Villanova group by increasing their allotment for the coming summer.

The men, chosen from students at Villanova by Major Francis Dayton, U. S. M. C., received congratulations on their work and interest in a note to the Major. It has been announced however that, although the allotment was increased from eight to twenty, the group will be limited to fifteen in order to maintain the high grade of men.

The Platoon Leader Class offers a reserve commission of Second Lieutenant upon graduation from college and completion of two summer training periods, and limits their instruction to six weeks for each of the two periods. Training is conducted at the Marine Corps Schools at Quantico, Virginia.

Processing has already begun for next summer and several students have applied so far. Freshman and Sophomore students are alone eligible.

This summer Robert Mundy, Donald Griffin, John Sheahan and John McDermott completed the senior or second training period and were commissioned Second Lieutenants, United States Marine Corps Reserve.

Others at Quantico this summer were Seniors Flynn, Baech, McClancy, Schley, and Schultes. Juniors Doyle, Doyno, Dwyer, Gargiulo, Grozinsky, Hettick, Moran and Rioux.

Student Council Holds First Dance of Season

The first dance of the year was a rousing success as more than 300 couples crowded the Field House last Friday evening for the annual Student Council Informal Dance. The smooth rhythm of the Villanovans under the baton of "Red" Murphy kept the throng in a dancing mood all evening.

Working under the pressure of only 2 weeks preparation a committee of seven including Paul Davis, Robert Quinn, Ray Waldron, Paul Hemler, Bill Leighton, Mr. Sullivan, Tom Curran, and Jack Gibbons produced the social which the Student Council sponsors in order to obtain funds with which to work during the year. The dance was one of the cheapest priced per couple ever held at Villanova, the price being set at one dollar, tax included. The dancing continued from 9:00 P. M. till 1:00 A. M. Freshmen were allowed to attend stag as is the custom during the orientation period.

This year the net receipts will be applied to the purchase price of a television set which is to be installed in the lounge in the east wing of Austin Hall.

Sanctuary Society Inaugurates 107th Year; 110 Register

The Sanctuary Society inaugurated its 107th. year with a meeting held Tuesday evening, September 27th.. President Raymond Raclawski called the meeting to order, and immediately after the invocation by Moderator Rev. Thomas P. Purcell, O.S.A., registration of the members took place.

Principal on the agenda was the assignment of men for the various duties proper to the one-day retreat to be held this Thursday and for the services on the First Friday of this month.

After the regular business had been discussed Father Purcell introduced the Society's officers to more than 110 men present. The officers are Raymond Raclawski, President, Edgar LeBlanc, vice-President, Paul Tirrell, Secretary, and Dennis Connolly, Assistant Secretary.

In a welcoming address Father Purcell commended the Society for its hearty response to the call for volunteers to work during the retreat.

Belle Masque Meets To Plan Active Calendar

The Belle Masque dramatic society convened at its first meeting last week in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium. President Edward "Ted" Doyle welcomed all former and new members into the organization. He reiterated Belle Masque's purpose and gave a summary of its past accomplishments.

This season Belle Masque plans a variety of radio plays on the workshop idea. The club is also initiating an under-study arrangement which shall afford freshman members an opportunity to participate in most of its dramatic activity. George Fieo, a graduate member, was appointed Freshman Director. All members were told of the resumption of the club's monthly mass at which the entire membership attends in a body, a custom originated by this group last year. An annual banquet for club members and graduate members was also proposed.

One of the features announced during the meeting was the newly-designed club seal by Richard T. Zande. It was unanimously adopted as the authentic insignia for the organization and bears the latin inscription from Shakespeare's theatre—"All the world plays the Actor." Another announcement of interest was the authorization for the club to purchase foils and masks in order to form a Fencing Club. This club would operate as a function of Belle Masque and will include only members of the dramatic society.

Plans for the first production of its Fall Season were formulated, however, no formal announcement was made during the meeting. All members interested in working on the publicity committee for the Fall production were assembled at the close of the meeting by its chairman, John Bauman.

150'S PRACTICE; NEW SYSTEM AND NEW COACHES

With the pounding of diminutive, cleated shoes on the turf of the practice field, the 150 pound football team started its first workout this season. This year's prospective Kittens found that two changes had occurred in the lightweight setup, namely new coaches and a new system.

Coaches Frank Kane, Jack McConville, Ed Blazo, Tony Russo, and Dom Pendino greeted 60 candidates who have high hopes of improving on last year's 0 and 5 record. Cuts have ben made, but at this writing there is no definite word on who will play and who will not.

Line coaches Blazo and Russo have their problems as graduation has dpleted the forward wall. Returning are seven men: ends Gallo, Loughlin, and Kelly; tackles Doyle and Strohlein; guard O'Brien; and capable Bob Fitzmeyer, a three year veteran at the pivot post.

Pendino has nine hopefuls out for the quarterback slot, a key position, since the Kittens will introduce the "T" formation. Veterans Bill Lemmer and Wolffe are returning from last season's club. Other returnees for backfield positions are Battino Maher, Leighton, and McCoughan.

The squad is showing plenty of hustle and excellent spirit. There is capable coaching and the club is looking forward to a satisfying season. The Athletic Department has endowed the Kittens with new equipment and colorful game uniforms.

With a tough schedule, the 150's

Bernie Bradley New Line Coach

During the summer a change was made in the football coaching staff in the person of Bernie Bradley who replaced John McKenna as line coach.

A product of Roman Catholic High School in Philadelphia, Bradley played three years of varsity football at La Salle College and, after his graduation in 1935, was named head coach at La Salle High School.

In 1939, after four years at La Salle, Bernie joined Marty Brill at Loyola College in Los Angeles as an assistant. He took over the head coaching duties at Loyola in 1941 and his team won five games while dropping three. The following year Loyola discontinued the sport for the duration and Bradley returned to La Salle High where he coached until 1948.

Bradley, who resides in Philadelphia, is married and has one child.

Mainliners Gain Acclaim With Three Big Victories

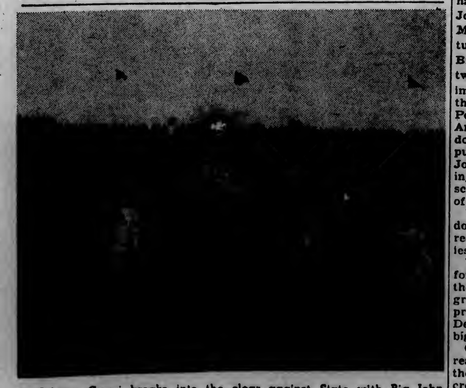
Hail the conquering Wildcats! From Spring Mill Road to Ithan Avenue students one and all are singing the praises of Big Jim Leonard and his rampaging Mainliners. And there is more than good reason for jubilation, too. The 'Cats have now gone through the first three games and have scored impressive wins over each adversary.

At the conclusion of the first third of the campaign the Villanova log looks something like this: Villanova 35-Texas A. & M. 0, Villanova 27-Penn State 6, Villanova 34-Detroit 7.

But what is more important is the fact that the Blue-White have passed that all-important second game "hump" without defeat. In previous years Army had taken the measure of the 'Cats on their second time out and this had served only to dishearten them.

Now things look rosy but casting an eye upon the remaining games of the schedule we see Boston's College's Eagles and determined Georgetown still to be played. Both teams are as unpredictable as a woman and the battles should be rough and tough.

A recap of the Wildcat's accomplishments over the past three weekends leaves us without words that can serve the purpose. While certain individuals stand above the rest, there is only one who can be termed "indispensible," Steve Romanik, the eagle-eyed passer who deserves a lions share of the credit. It was on his broad shoulders that Coach Leonard placed most of the burden. Steve, no doubt, has come through with more than the experts expected. He has tossed five touchdown passes and set up four others. He has directed the team in fine fashion, mixing the plays superbly.



Big Ralph Pasquariello, 225 pounds of explosives, has only begun to roll, while slippery Joe Rogers and speedster Johnny Geppi are the most consistent ground gainers of the eight halfbacks. In the Penn State battle Geppi carried nine times and whizzed his way over 97 yards of turf. Jim Caulfield has been the top performer in the defensive secondary, intercepting passes at the most opportune time.

Up front two sets of linemen have paved the way for the 13 TDs, and have held the opposition to but 13 points. George Pavalko, Ed Lanigan, Ted Oroski and Nick Liotta have been demon-like; while big John Sandusky, Jim Smith, Tony Morallo and Mike Kerwin have returned in a blaze of glory. Danny Brown was the big gun in the first two battles. His pass catching has improved, and the way he broke up the opposition's interference in the Penn State game is of the All-American variety. Al Schmid has done some neat snagging and his punting still rates with the best. Johnny Bogan, who filled in for the injured Brown in the Detroit game scored twice, his first catch being of the circus variety.

Yes, they are the standouts but don't underestimate the value of the rest. Each game brings new victories and new stars.

When the travelers drifted home for a two week stay last Saturday they were a tired and shopworn group of warriors. Battle scars were present on many. The Titans of Detroit were big and tough, but not big and tough enough.

Coach Leonard must now get ready to put his work on display for the first time before the hometown crowd who will journey to Shibe Park Friday night to see what makes the 1949 Wildcats growl. Watch out St. Mary's!

Intersectional Rivalry To Be Feature Of Homecoming

Villanova Powerhouse Seeks 4th Straight—St. Mary's Tries for 2nd in 4 Starts—Contest to Be Battle of T's

Under the arc lights of Shibe Park next Friday evening, the renowned Galloping Gaels of St. Mary's College, St. Mary's California, will take to the turf in an effort to put a halt to the Villanova three game string of victories.

A crowd upward of 25,000 is expected to witness the favored Wildcats play their first home game of the season. Kickoff is scheduled for 8:30 P. M.

Gaels Are Good

While St. Mary's record so far this season has not been overly impressive, the Gaels are not to be lightly regarded as their losses were suffered at the hands of powerhouse teams. Thus far, the Californians have lost to Oregon's Cotton Bowl team 24-7, were beaten by strong California's Rose Bowl squad 29-7, and just last Sunday up set Nevada 20-14, the club which lost to Villanova in the Harbor Bowl last New Year's Day.

St. Mary's uses the man-in-motion

AL BEASLEY
St. Mary's Tackle

T-formation system, as designed by Clark Shaughnessy and employed so effectively by the professional Chicago Bears, with Coach Verducci's own variations. Flankers, men-in-motion and spreads are interwoven into an offensive pattern that places emphasis on a passing game for success but does not neglect thrusts down the middle or rushes wide to either side of the line.

Halfbacks and fullbacks do an equal amount of running in the Verducci-T and control a ground game often veiled with deceptive movements. Dave Haffner has been a potent ground gainer from his fullback spot this season and is expected to give Wildcat Pasquariello a real duel. Halfbacks Will Sherman, Frank Cassara and Glen Bell will carry the ball on the ground. These Gael backs can be described as "hardrunning".

In the Verducci version of the T, the quarterback monopolizes the passing. This means veteran and cool Dick Jarvis will be trying for touchdowns with long and short throws. This tosser as a prepster once threw a 69-yard aerial for what is believed to be a national prep record. The Gael end receivers are fair, but Coach Verducci rates his halfback and fullback receivers as "exceptional."

Line Excellent

Leading a big, seasoned line are two blond behmoths, R. V. Johnson and Al Beasley. Johnson, a 235-lb. tackle made Catholic All-American last season and Beasley was a member of the '45 Saint Mary's "Whiz Kids" who played in the Sugar Bowl. Starting at ends will be Dan McGeehan from Philadelphia and Jim Pflueger who resides in Honolulu. Some will remember McGeehan when he played for LaSalle High. Pflueger (pronounced Fluger) is a husky 6.2, 200 j. and Junior. Starting at center for the Gaels will probably be aggressive John

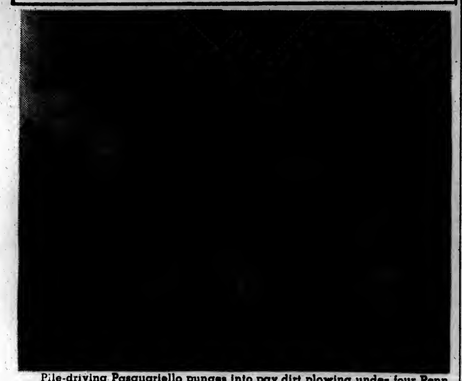
HARRIERS DOWNED BY CADETS IN SEASON'S DEZUT AT THE POINE

Paced by Dick Shea Army's cross country team defeated the harriers from Villanova 20-35 last Friday at West Point. In the meet, which was the opener for both squads, the Cadets placed men 2nd, 4th, 6th and 7th to sew up the scoring. George Thompson was first across for the Wildcats by virtue of his third place, while Browning Ross took fifth. Charlie McKee was in eighth position with sophomores Art Klepper and Bill Curran trailing him to round out the order.

Ross' showing, which comes as a surprise to some, especially in view of his great record against the Army, is due to a sore leg that had been bothering him all week. This is not meant as an apology either, for he really ran a fine race. Thompson too deserves a lot of credit for a well run race, even though he has not yet reached mid-season form.

Lack of Practice Tells

The performance of the whole team was commendable when one considrs that they had only nine days of practice, hardly enough to develop into top flight condition. This will be remedies by the time the next meet comes around, however, for not until October 22nd do the barriers run again. On that date the Blue and White will face Manhattan and N. Y. U. in a triangular affair in New York.



An interesting sidelight on the meet was that it was the last one against the Cadets for Ross, Thompson, and McKee. In past yars this contest used to take place on the same weekend as the football game with Army. In 1947, when the gridder's efforts to "Beat Army" failed in a rather bad way, it was above trio, then sophomors, who turned the trick and preventd a clean sweep of the days events. It is a stroke of extremely hard luck which held thm back in this their last meting. They should more than make up for it in the rest of the season to round out a great four years.

Sophs Score

A welcome note was provided by Art Klepper and Bill Curran. Both of these boys are sophs, and both did very well considering the lack of practice, etc. They have both shown great promise as point getters and should be a big factor in the final outcome of later meets.

The rest of the schedule reads as follows: Manhattan-N. Y. U. as mentioned above on the 22nd, Navy and Notre Dame at Annapolis on the 29th, Seton Hall at home, November 5th, IC-4A Championships at New York, Nov. 21st and finally the NCAA championships in Lansing, Michigan, on Nov. 26th.

Romank Picked As Maxwell M. V. P. | U. P. Names Leonard Coach of Week

By Harry Range, Sports Editor

As we sit down to write our first column of the year it's in the midst of seven ultra-enthusiastic Wildcat fans who have just finished listening to the home boys smash and pass on to their third straight. As Mel Allen would say, "How about that club!"

For an eleven that wasn't mentioned as even second rate by all but one of the pre-season prognosticators the lads in blue and white seem to be doing, shall we say, alright. Alright! That's the greatest understatement since one of the sports magazines said that Villanova might have a fair tam. Villanova is THE team in the East.

And who is responsible for the Wildcats coming in to the much deserved limelight. Lou've guessed it It's United Press' Coach of the Week, our own Jim Leonard.

Leonard took over the coaching reins last Spring minus thirteen letterman, including All-East Ed Berrang, and quarterbacks Andy Gordon and Billy Doherty. Not such a bright outlook for a coach in his first year, but look at the Mainliners now, Villanova was rated third and fifth respectively in two national polls last week and picked by Frank Leahy as the big gun in the East.

The win over Penn State will no doubt go down as the greatest single accomplishment of the season and the game that made Villanova. It would be interesting to note that it was only the third time in 63 years that Penn State had lost an opener at home, the last time being in 1931. Besides that it was the Nittany Lions first home setback since '46 when they dropped one to Michigan State. And this was Penn State that was rated tops in the East along with Army and Cornell.

Now for a tip of the new plastic helmet to Mrs. Romanik's fair-haired boy, Steve. All 20,000 spectators who filed out of New Beaver Field after the 27-7 "upset" agreed that Steve played the game of his life and was, in the greatest way, responsible for the Wildcat win. Not only did the fans think so, but also the Maxwell Club of Philadelphia, who picked him as the player of the week. Steven received the award yesterday.

More gridiron garlands for Jim Canfield who intercepted two passes and starred on defense. Ditto for Tom Clavin, who was in on more than half of the tackles.

Helping in no small way for the Wildcat win was John Geppi who rolled for 97 yards in 9 tries without losing an inch. Also Nick Liotta and Dan Brown, who were all over on offense and defense.

At this point we would like to say a few words about Big Ralph who is currenly leading the team in scoring with 24 points. The gigantic fullback blazed 67 yards into pay dirt against Detroit and if he keeps up that pace he's a sure bet for an "All" team. In last Wednesday's "New York World Telegram" he was picked as the leading fullback in the East.

While listening to the Detroit game in our smoke-filled dungeon, we were pleased to see the many nods of approval as Steve Romanik hit for five out of ten, two for TD's while Neil O'Boyle acored four for seven with one going all the way. Also many nods for Nick Liotta and Mike Kerwin.

The Titans of Detroit were the third club this season to take the field in all-white uniforms and St. Mary's will do same although the Gaels colors are red and blue.

Comment of Detroit sports writer at half-time interview, "The only mistake Detroit made tonight was booking Villanova".

A big crowd is expected to be on hand at Shibe Park this Friday to see the Gaels in their homecoming game. For those who did not travel to State College it will be their first chance to see this great club in action. The band has a surprise routine planned for half-time so be sure to stay around during intermission.

By this time you should have noticed the new feature of the VILLANOVAN "As the staff picks 'em". We had a conference with the Squire, last year's crystal ball gazer, and decided that we'll all stick our necks out this year.

That's all for now since we've just been called for a meeting of the Knight's of the Feel Table.

Cats Face Gaels On Friday Night

Bergamini of Chicago.

Arrive Thursday

The Gaels will enplane at the Oakland Airport for Philadelphia on Thursday morning and arrive here in the afternoon. A workout is planned for that evening at Shibe Park.

The visitors will wear white jerseys with red numerals, white pants and red helmets, while the 'Cats will be clad in their familiar navy blue jerseys and gold colored pants. This contest will be televised in both Philadelphia and New York.

Coach Jim Leonard is expected to start basically the same line up as in the Detroit game . . . In intersectional competition against Pacific Coast teams, Villanova has fared singularly well having trounced Loyola in '37, beaten San Francisco in '47 and '48 and crushed Nevada Jan. 1, 1949.

Freshman Member Sought by Intra-Mural Committee

Mondschein Inc. & Klucsarits

The Intramural Committee of Bill Klucsarits, Student moderator, and his two assistants, Ray and George Mondschein, met with Father Dunne, Faculty Moderator, last week to plan their program for the coming school year. Basketball will again be the major sport for the fall and winter, while touch football will be conducted on an informal basis.

Father Dunne has invited any freshman interested to see him about joining the Committee. Because of the increased enrollment and the large number of freshmen off campus, the Committee would like a member of the class of '53 to help in the coming program. Duties will be explained by Father Dunne and his assistants.

Equipment Distributed

Meanwhile, it has been announced that Alumni Gym is now ready for use. The floor has been refinished and other improvements made for the basketball race. Two basketballs have been placed in the gym for the convenience of the students. New footballs have als been distributed to all the halls on campus. Dayhops, who wish to toss the pigskin around, should call at the Chaplain's office, for them.

This column will be glad to print the results of any of the contests if the scores are turned into the VILLANOVAN office. However, there will be no formal champion declared, and no schedule issued by the Intramural office.

Tentative plans call for intramural basketball to make its bow on Oct. 18.

The Resident League will again be comprised of eight teams, who will play evening double-headers on Tuesdays and Thursdays. The teams in this league include: Alumni, Austin, Barracks 1&4, Barracks 2&3, Doms, Fedigan, Good Counsel and Mendel. An afternoon league for the freshmen and other dayhops has been planned, but the Committee expects more cooperation this year if this league is to become a reality. A meeting for interested parties will be announced in the near future.

Rules

The rules for participation in intramurals are the same as in previous years. No varsity athletes or men with athletic scholarships will be allowed to compete. Members of the 150 lb. team are barred until the completion of their season. Varsity athletes can participate in the Program by acting as officials in the contests.

150's Practice New System

are stressing offense. Last year's record of one touchdown proves that the club lacked scoring punch, but this season promises, a wide open game which will benefit the Kittens.

The schedule which faces the club is a severe test of their ability and fight. Their five opponents are among the top 150-lb. clubs in the nation. This year's opponents include the perennial 150-lb. champion Navy. Also, the Kittens face their keen rivals Penn and Princeton.

The coaches and squad are confident that there shall b a decided improvement in their season's efforts.

As The Staff Picks 'Em

This year the Villanovan Sports Staff is inaugurating a column in which the writers will try to select the winners of games in which Villanova football opponents are engaged.

To give the readers added information we will also make prognostications of several other important games around the nation.

It is our hope that Villanova fans will use this column for reference and thereby keep abreast with the football scene in general.

For obvious reasons Villanova games will not be included.

Yearbook Conducts Conference

The second annual Publications Conference for Catholic Schools was held at the College on on Saturday, Sept. 24th. Sponsored by the Belle Air, the College Yearbook, the conference was attended by two thousand students and faculty moderators. Its purpose was to present the student journalists with an opportunity to compare their publications and secure information from professionals in the field.

At 9 o'clock the conference was opened in the Field House by the Chairman, Ray MacWilliams of the Belle Air Staff, who introduced Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., President of the College. Fr. McGuire officially welcomed the delegates to the campus. The main address of the morning session was delivered by Rev. Edward Reilly, J.C.D., Superintendent of Schools in the Archdiocese of Philadelphia, who discussed the benefits of school publications.

At one o'clock the delegation had the opportunity to hear Dr. Patrick F. Scanlan, Managing Editor of the Brooklyn Tablet, speak on "The Apostolate of the Catholic Press".

A dance was held for the delegates in the Field House during the late afternoon and the conference was closed with Benediction in the Chapel.

Library's TV To Feature World Series This Week

How would you like to see the World Series? As part of a program designed to acquaint the students with many varied and rich resources and facilities at their disposal, the library has planned to use its television set during the World Series and thus make it possible for the students to view the ball games. The set owned by the library is a gift of the Very Reverend Edward J. Murtaugh, O.S.A. It is a Console combination television - radio - phonograph. The television screen is the largest indirect viewing screen available in a console model. Father Falvey is planning other television shows in the future.

The library should be the center of educational activity on the campus and television shows, music hours and literature discussions will form a part of its activity. The students are invited to use the book collection of the library to help them and to supplement their studies.

It might be added that life in a Trappist monastery will be the subject of a display on exhibit in the library.

Interracial Club Meets Tomorrow

The first meeting of the Interracial Society for this year will be held Wednesday, October 5 in Seminar Room 1 of the College Library at 1:20 P. M. New members and especially freshmen are invited to attend this meeting. You are requested to bring a copy of your roster. If unable to attend leave a copy of your roster at the Information Booth in Mendel Hall and indicate whether you are a day-hop or a resident.

Villanova's Interracial Society exists for the purpose of advancing the principles of tolerance and understanding among the races.

Sunday Dance At Field House

Sunday afternoon will see the first in a series of Student Council sponsored record hops scheduled for the Field House during the year. The dance will begin at 2:30 and continue through till 6:00. Girls from the neighboring Colleges have been extended an invitation to attend.

The informal dances proved quite popular last year with attendance being satisfactory. The dance is popularly priced at 50 cents, the proceeds to be assigned to a special student fund. This fund will be used to finance some of the student functions which may arise.

Band Concert Tonight

Tonight at 7:00 P. M. the Villanova Marching Band will give its first concert of the year in the Field House. Father Ralph Handran, O.S.A., Moderator, has scheduled this concert because of the complaints heard that there were not enough concerts given on the campus last year. Several more are planned for the remainder of the year.

The concert tonight will be in the line of a combined rally and concert with the popular fullback Tom Clavin taking over as Master of Ceremonies. All the school songs and many other numbers will be played by the band which is fast becoming known as one of the best of its kind.

The members of the band have spent many hours in practice readying themselves for the football games but this will be one of the few concerts to be rendered by the marching band. Everyone is welcome. Admission is free.

Accountants Meet

The Accounting Society of Villanova will hold its first meeting Wednesday afternoon at 2:00 P. M. in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium. At this time a president will be elected to fill the vacancy left by graduation. All accounting majors are urged to attend this important meeting.

Soph Cotillion Leads Way In Social Events

Dance to Be Held at Field House, Oct. 21, Music by Villanovans; Sophs to Entertain

Here it is . . .

. . . the scoop on the first major social event of the school year, that is, the Sophomore Cotillion. October 21st. is the date 9 to 1, the time; the Field House, the place; ticket price, $2.40. For the theme, it has been assured, that something spectacular has been arranged, but all the committee would tell this paper is that it suggests everyone attend the dance and find out for himself exactly what it will be.

These are the general details . . . At a meeting of the Sophomore Class last Wednesday in the C & F Aud, final plans were made for the dance, the first general activity of the Class of '52. Reports of two previous meetings of the Soph Steering Committee were made which contained preliminary plans made by that group in regard to the arrangements for the Cotillion.

At the meetings the Steering Committee appointed members to organize the various committee which would be needed. Committee members were assigned and

Doyle, Zande As Colonel And Jacobowsky In Belle Masque Play

Jest and Gesture of Rosemont Contributes Feminine Roles

Last week, the Belle Masque Dramatic Society formally announced the selection of its major fall production as "Jacobowsky and the Colonel." The play will be given in the Field House on the evenings of November 20th, 21st and 22nd, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday respectively.

Student tickets will sell for $.75 and general admission will be $1.00. "Jacobowsky and the Colonel" is Franz Werfel's delightful comedy, as adapted by S. N. Behrman, which had a lengthy run on Broadway starring Louis Calhern and Annabella. Its eighteen male roles and six female characters find themselves set in the turmoil of a Parisian occupation by the Nazis.

Featured in the major roles are: Edward "Ted" Doyle as the Colonel, Richard T. Zande, Jacobowsky, Pat Ziminsky, of Rosemont, as Marianne, Robert Resnick, the Tragic Gentleman and Jeanne Marie Guerin as Madame Bouffier. Other supporting roles include, Jack Kelly, Senator, John Rowe, Szabuniewicz, John Murphy, Air Raid Warden, John Gray, Chauffeur, Dick Lauman, Brigadier, William Breninghouse, Gestapo Man, and Al Scarcelli as Papa Clarion.

The play deals with the problems of a group of destitute people arranging their escape from the besieged city, and the two diametrically opposed personalities of Jacobowsky and the Colonel lend an air of subtle humor and excitement which will captivate all interested. Jacobowsky, a true defender of his country's doctrine meets ribald, debonair, provacative colonel during the latter's moments of frustration. As the play progresses, several interludes of AC and DC current humor are injected to make it a truly amusing state of affairs. Jacobowsky's practical instincts dominate the play inthe midst of the Colonel's carefree attitude, as he loves with abandon, and risks his life while seeking refuge from the Nazi forces.

In three acts with a total of six scenes the play is insulated with suspense and covered with engaging soliloquoy. All production calls have been sounded and full time rehearsals began last week.

Belle Masque hopes to provide its ardent campus supporters with the best type of acting and performances as it has maintained in the past. Many students remember its past major productions of "The Romancers" and "Cyrano de Bergerac," whose casts constitute some of the same persons to be found in "Jacobowsky and the Colonel."

The "Colonel" Cast At Work

At the first reading of the next Belle Masque production "Jacobowsky and the Colonel" are Father Krupa, Jack Rowe, Jean Marie Guerin, Ted Doyle, Pat Zaminsky, Ginny Sullivan and Dick Zande.

January Grads Urged To Register At Placement Office By October 14

Last week Mr. George Harris, of the Villanova Placement Office, made an important announcement concerning Seniors who will graduate this January. All these men who wish to seek employment through the Placement Office facilities should be registered in that office by October 14.

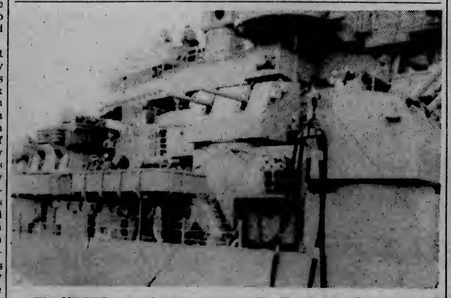
It is advised that all those interested pick up these registration forms from the office of Mr. Harris as soon as possible because they must not only be filled out but pictures and statements must be attached before they are returned.

Interviews for the positions that the Placement Office will handle, will begin about the first week of November. June graduates will not be expected to file applications till after January when the graduates of that month can be cleared. The June '50 deadline for registration will be sometime late in February.

ANCHORS AWEIGH FOR A SUMMER

This article is the first of a series of four that will cover the training period that the Midshipmen of the Villanova NROTC Unit attended this summer. — Editor's Note

Back in the waning days of last semester, while the major portion of Villanova's student body was anticipating a summer of relaxation and freedom from the wearing effects of the classroom, there were others to be seen preparing for two moths training in a shipboard classroom.



To many, the NROTC Unit at Villanova seems to consists wholly of a group of would-be sailors learning to march and crank around that big five-inch gun in the armory. Actually, these men are combining a college education and a preparation for the role of officers in either the U. S. Navy or Marine Corps. The weekly drills and classroom training are only one phase of the background necessary to the attainment of this end. College work is supplemented by three summers of training in a more practical atmosphere, with the Fleet. On the cruises the midshipmen put to use the lessons learned in class. The life is new to many in the program, and the experience gained certainly adds color to an ordinary college life.

Since the Navy has been a tradition of Villanova in recent years, the editors of this paper deemed it orthwhile to give the student an account of "what-goes'on" during a cruise. This article, we hope, will benefit those who have an interest and have not had the opportunity to swap sea-stories with one of our own aspiring salts.

This year, there were two major cruises, the Senior-Sophomore and the Junior. We will deal with the first in this and the following article, and the latter in the third and fourth of the series.

On the evening of Saturday, 4 June, the Senior - Sophomore group met in 30th St. Station and boarded a train for Hampton

The NROTC cruised this summer on the Navy's best destroyers and battleships. The usual candid snapshot bugs were aboard as evidenced above. Refueling at sea was only one of many operations undertaken.

Juniors Choose Josten Ring, Date For Dinner-Dance

Last Wednesday evening at their first meeting of the year the Juniors, class of '51, voted almost unanimously to sign a contract with the Josten Company for their class rings. They also donated a sum to the fund they raised last Spring at the dance for the St. John's Orphanage. Announcement was made that the dinner-dance of the class will be held at the Ben Franklin the 6th. of May.

After a reduction of price by Josten and the agreement to change the engraving of the cat on one side of the shank of the ring, the class was more than satisfied with the company's offer. This same concern was contracted last year to make the rings for the class of '50. However, the head of the wildcat on that ring was unacceptable and it wasn't till Josten proposed the new design that the class accepted. The contract is to be signed this week.

The charity dance last spring for the benefit of the boys at St. John's Orphanage raised $150. The sum is to go toward the Christmas entertainment of the boys this year, an idea that was conceived in the minds of several of the Juniors who took out the orphans last Christmas. In order to give the St. John's program an added impetus for the future the Juniors decided to contribute $50 out of their treasury.

Acting early this year, because of the difficulties encountered by other classes who waited too long, the Steering Committee began planning for the various events of Junior Week. The Junior dinner-dance is scheduled to take place at the Ben Franklin this time, setting the date as May 6th. Last year, the Adelphia Roof was the site of the Junior dinner-dance.

Accountants To Elect Officers

The first meeting of the Accounting Society will be held in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium on October 12th at 1 P. M. Election of officers will take place at that time and all Accounting majors are invited to attend.

Mr. J. J. Linsalata, Moderator of the Society successfully directed last year's activities will once again preside. There will be a well known speaker from the accounting field on hand to address the group. He will be the first of many important accounting figures who will speak during the course of the year.

This is the last call to pick up your copy of the 1949 Belle Air. After October 18, 1949, the Belle Air staff is no longer responsible for yearbook distribution. Failure to co-operate will result in forfeiture of your claim tto a yearbook, since this is the third circulation notice issued since classes resumed.

YOUR FUTURE

IN THIS DAY of tough competition among college graduates for the top jobs that American industry has to offer every student must prepare himself well for the struggle. Almost any student who can apply himself to his work can end a semester with very satisfactory marks, but when he has these high marks he is quite liable to settle back complacently. The attitude of this student is that now he owns a scholastic record that will stand up with the best and he should have no trouble in the job market.

What is wrong with the student's reasoning? He is right in thinking that he will need good grades in all subjects, but today more is demanded of the college graduate. Every application blank, every personnel manager asks the aspirant to list extra-curricular activities. We must not minimize the importance of extra-curricular activities when the time comes for job-hunting.

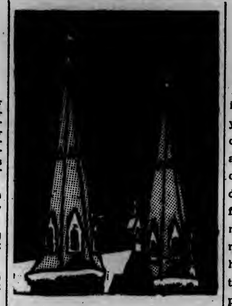
Why the stress of extra-curricular activities? . . . Employers want men with energy and diversified interests in the key positions. They want men who know what it is to work and play in some organization, men who will do that extra something for the success of a common goal or purpose.

On campus there are a multitude of organizations which one may join. There is bound to be at least one group which will appeal to the student. There are clubs organized for the mutual mental benefit of all the members. They afford an opportunity for men with mutual interests to meet and discuss these interests. These clubs help to broaden the student socially and intellectually.

Other organizations require a more tangible contribution by the members, where the talents of the members are brought into play in order to produce either a paper, magazine or play. We could go on and on, but the important decision is up to yourself. Shop around—find an organization in which you will fit.Believe us, there is at least one for every student.

What's My Name

When we returned to Villanova in September we found new signs inside and outside the buildings. These signs show where you might find the Dean, the Registrar, the Vice-President, the Dean of Freshmen, Mendel Hall, Barry Hall, Library, and many others.



One sign that met our eyes said "College Store" However, it seemed to be hanging in front of what we knew as the Pie Shop. What happened? Now, one of our traditions was meant for the deep six. For decades, "the place where Louie dwells" was known as the Pie Shop, and when you meet a grad he is sure to ask "How's the Pie Shop?"

What answer can we give him? One answer could be "What Pie Shop"? Let's keep this innocent little bit of informality, put the top hat away, and keep the traditional name "Pie Shop"

Autumn has once again surrounded the Villanova campus with a garland of multicolored hills which reflect the bright rays of the ever-lowering sun. On some of these clear days so common to the Pennsylvania autumn the only haze is that offered by the fragrant smoke of burning leaves which had already surrendered to the slight frosts.

For some reason or other we always seem to associate nostalgia with the beauty of autumn. Perhaps it brings to mind the fun of Spring and Summer which has gone just the way the beauty of Autumn will go.

You can't help but feel really satisfied with life when you get a load of that big fat harvest moon though.

What happened last week? School as usual with classes and homework, and threats of first quizzes which are due next week. And oh yes, we had a retreat, a good holiday from classes and a chance to get a week-night without studies. Also, a rare opportunity for Father Caffrey to test his oratorical powers, and for the rest of the clerical faculty to take a rest from the chores of classes and spend a "soft" afternoon hearing confessions.

Real Truth

And if that is what any of us are thinking about last week, it is (all except the part about hearing confessions being easy) just about the truth. The week was just another in the school year whose only individual characteristic was that it only consisted of four worthwhile days. In fact, if that is what any of us think the week was, it has not only done us much good, but has set us back a good deal. Any opportunity lost is a red mark in the deficit column, and any grace passed up is just another difficulty towards accepting the next one which comes our way.

Personally, we doubt whether any one actually does feel just that way about the retreat, but there may be a few who have had no thoughts at all about it since it ended at 4:30 P. M. last Thursday. And that, too, is a big mistake. So ask yourself now just whether you have thought at all about the retreat, and if your answer is positive, go one step further and find out just what you have done about it. Has it had any definite influence on any of your actions in the last five days? Have you managed to hold on to the decisions and resolutions that you made last week? Has it brought you any closer to Christ and Our Lady of Good Counsel?

Reason

If on the other hand, you find that the retreat has had no apparent effect on your spiritual life, find out why and do something about it before it slips from your mind. Stop in at the chapel and spend ten minutes, perhaps sliding over your October beads. Talk it over with Christ and His (and your own) Mother and when you discover the reason for your listlessness, act upon it right away. Otherwise, the retreat will be water under the dam, and just so much wasted time.

So let's go to work on this thing right away, and make it a good job. And it is really my sincere hope that everyone already is on the ball as far as living out the retreat is concerned and it is this column which is just the waste of time and the water over the dam.

COKE DANCE

By JAMES MULLIN

With no malice aforethought this, is dedicated to the two fuzzy faced youths who, resplendent in their dinks and name pins, eagerly read a notice on the Pie Shop wall concerning the advent of a local tea dance. To ye of much faith, in the future, I say, that a tea dance is a misnomer in its very title. For years now, this weary, thirsty reporter has wandered to the above mentioned social affairs in search of pleasant company, music, good cheer, and primarily for a cup of soothing, aromatic orange pekoe. For years the result has been the same; no tea at Tea Dances. Carbonated beverages abound as do soggy pretzels. Why not then call this a coke dance?

The answer is simple. Tradition has so throttled and dictated this type of affair that even the hostesses simply must wear a uniform. By uniform I refer to the "basic black" dress that almost every sweet young lady feels that she must sport or suffer the consequences of social banishment. A bit of advice to you of '53, look for a girl in another dress than one of black, and there you will find a spirit.

To continue, at this type of affair many make their debut into college social life, the cause behind the dance being to recruit social prospects of both genders, for the forthcoming social season. Proceed with caution, discard your mystery-ball stained shirt. Render yourself in your best haberdashery, since you are on show, much as the slaves were put on the block before being bridled for the remainder of their lives. A good appearance often brought a good price and comfortable home, but more often field labor. If you do not aspire to social servitude, neither a dresser nor a slob be.

Behavior is the only major point left before you set forth. Much has been written on this by far more learned and scarred than this humble typist, but the following is a result of many arduous hours of discomfort. Everybody acts disgustingly witty, sophisticated and bored. The reason is that nobody is particularly witty, sophisticated or bored, naturally. The logic behind the last is apparent to the feminine mind, therefore the masculine mind accepts it and does more than mere lip service in furthering it. Have stout heart, read the "New Yorker" and suffer through this hasard to normal relations as it will soon pass on, or my advice to you is, to pass on. In conclusion, if you are to enjoy yourself at a tea dance use the correct dentifrice, soap, shave lotion (if applicable in your case), and hair oil, dress sportily, yet correctly, enter into conversations readily, dance repeatedly and last, but not least, ignore this literary gem completely.

LEST YOU BE A VICTIM

Verily, I say unto you, marry not an engineer, for an engineer is a strange being possessed of many devils; yes, he speaketh eternally in parables which he calleth "formulae", and he wieldeth a big stick, which he calleth a "slide rule", and he hath but one Bible—a handbook.

He talketh away all stresses and strains and without an end on Thermodynamics. He showeth always a serious aspect and seemeth not to know how to smile; and he picketh his seat in the car by the springs therein and not by the damsel beside him; neither doth he know a waterfall except for specific heat and hydro-electric power.

Yes, he holdeth his damsel's hand, but only to measure the friction, and kisses but to test viscosity—for in his eyes shineth a far away look which is neither love nor longing, but a vain attempt to recall a formula.

Even as a young boy, he pulleth a girl's hair to test its elasticity, but as a man he discovers different devices; for he would count the vibrations of her heart strings and reckons her strength of materials; for he seeketh ever to pursue the scientific investigations and inscribe his passion in a formula; and his marriage is a simultaneous equation involving two unknowns and yielding diverse answers.

All mail for the VILLANOVAN may now be left in the Business Office. The editors of the paper urge that the students write to the paper about any complaints or suggestions they may have. All that is asked is that if you wish to have your letter published please sign your name although it may be withheld upon request.

Syncopatter

by Mayer & Taten

At long last I have proof incarnadine that our feeble journalistic efforts are being hastily scanned before being wrapped around a piece of limburger cheese (the theory being that one odor will overcome the other). We have received mail. Four Rosemont darlings wrote in to say that they resented being classified as illiterates. We "apoligize." We also received thirty-four letters from illiterates all highly incensed at being mentioned in the same paper as the aforementioned beauties. To these we are sending two carefully wrapped Immaculatans each and hope that they will forgive us.

Modern jazz, of which Bebop is a form, is far surpassing any previous efforts made heretofore in the jazz vein. Duke Ellington, who was playing progressive jazz before the term gained ascendency, has recently recorded what amounts to a symphony in jazz. Titled after the book by Ray Odley, "New World A-Coming" is a musical impression of what the author anticipates as the future. Slightly reminiscent of Stravinsky in spots, it is a tribute to what a contemporary musician of the jazz school can produce in the way of truly beautiful music.

The opening theme portrays the sense of satisfaction predominant in our present mode of living. It rapidly builds up to a driving, forceful, up-tempo symbolizing the constant striving for new horizons and a superior culture. A new movement now commences, one in which a deeper sense of values is carried by the brass as a background for the gaiety and flightiness of the woodwinds, all this with Ellington's regular band and interspersed with some inspired piano work. From this point on, the music constantly builds up toward emotional security as it passes through turmoil to gain the new world beyond. The closing orchestration is a thunderous appreciation of the new culture and finally a settling down and common acceptance of its wonders.

If this seems to be a description of a symphony it is perhaps not too far wrong, for it is a symphony in jazz to be classed along with "Concerto to End All Concertos", and too few others. This is the final product of what many have referred to in derision as the "Jazz Age".

Now here's Ro with the rest of the news on the jazz scene.

Ro Says

The lure of Tommy Dorsey at the Click was just too much for me last week. I tried to keep my head, but finally succumbed, so, hocking my next-to-last white shirt, and wearing the other. I set off on the old P&W for what proved to be "Some Expensive Evening"—from South Pacific, of course.

Seriously, the ole' sentimental gentleman was in fine form with a powerhouse brass section reminiscent of his old aggregation which featured Ziggy Elman and Chuck Peterson alternating on lead trumpet. Charlie Shavers was great with his high-flying horn on the fast numbers, and Tommy can still do wonders with the ballads. If anything, his tone was better than I have ever heard it.

Sterling Gent of Swing

Speaking of the maestro, he's looking more like the typical American businessman every day. Perhaps the "sterling gentleman of Swing" would be more appropriate these days if we are to judge by the iron grey that has progressed along way since it first appeared about his temples to give him that distinguished look.

No doubt the golden days of the Dorsey crew died with the immortal Bunny Berrigan and the departure of Frankie for greener pastures, but I'll gladly go out on a limb and say that Tommy can still produce good music equal to or better than any other band in the country today.

Bop Shows Evolution

It would seem that the process of evolution is beginning to show itself even in Bop, proving that there is some good in all things. We refer specifically to the latest products of the George Shearing combo — "September in the Rain", for instance. The solution to the problem was quite simple. Shearing merely did away with all the frantic noise so common to Gillespie, Parker, Ventura and the rest of the menagerie, and lets you recognize the tune. This is an unpardonable sin in Bop circles, no doubt, but a step in the right direction if Bop is to remain on the American scene. So till next week, adieu!

WHO DEALT?

By BOB CARROLL

I would've gotten up to the library to see a little more of the series than I did except for this schedule I got. Two to three Monday, Wednesday and Friday I have Theodicy and that knocks the middle right out of the ball game It's my own fault. I should've thought of that back at registration. You can see why you ought to do a little thinking when you first come around here so you don't get caught with somethink like that in your schedule.

Theodicy

This Theodicy is like Philosophy. Eddie and Leo and myself are taking it again and we ought to know what it's like as this is the second time around. We got the same professor again and he ought to know what we're like. Of course you don't get much chance to get a word in because he talks from one end of the class to the other and you can't let him know what you are like except from your marks. Leo likes to make the wisecrack and he has some time getting it out and across. He has to be very careful.

Series Game

Last week there we tried to get this professor to call off one of the classes so we could go up to the library and see the series. Well, we should've known ere before we started that it wouldn't work because they say he never called off a class since he's been here and that's a long time. After he came into the room this day everybody started saying out loud I like the Yanks in five or is Branca starting or long live Brooklyn or something smart like that. Well, it didn't work. He made like he didn't hear anything and then after awhile he said baseball has nothing to do with God and Leo said He's got two strikes on everybody which he didn't hear and that was all.

Library Television

It's been a good series though and a good year so far. Having that television set up at the library was some smart move. If they'd let you go up and turn that thing on for some of the good programs during the day they'd get a lot more students coming around regularly.

Around The Town

By F. A. VARALLO

This week's film fare, while far from outstanding, offers many hours of pleasant entertainment. "Top O' the Morning", currently playing at the Arcadia, brings us Bing Crosby in a chucklesome Irish fable. An enjoyable mixture of fairy tale, detective story and musical comedy, it nevertheless does not come up to its predecessor, "Going My Way". Bing's role is that of an American insurance investigator sent to the Emerald Isle when the Blarney Stone is found missing. There he meets Ann Blyth, the daughter of Barry Fitzgerald, a kindly but not-too-bright police officer. Crosby's appearance puts a crimp on Fitzgerald plans and a sparkle in Ann's eyes. Besides the traditional Irish songs, Bing croons two new ones, "You're in Love With Someone" and "Top O' the Morning".

If you enjoy the radio show "My Friend Irma" you won't be disappointed in the film version now at the Goldman. Irma is played on the screen by Marie Wilson, who also plays the character on the air on Monday nights and the screen play written by Cy Howard and Parke Levy is based on the radio series created by Howard. If you've never heard the program—Irma, a scatterbrained blonde, is forever doing the wrong thing although she means well. She also has a talent for misusing or mispronouncing words. The script, a random affair, makes no attempt at ordered comedy. Instead, it rambles from one lunatic situation to another. One drawback of the film is the long string of similar gags which grow quite tiresome.

Football

"Easy Living" at the Karlton, depicts the life of a professional football player. Victor Mature, Lucille Ball, Lisabeth Scott and Sonny Tufts share the acting honors in a film which is hampered by a rambling obscure script. Mature gives an excellent performance as a former college football player who turns professional, gains national recognition, and then is stricken with heart trouble and is told he can never play again. This picture, for all its gridiron background will prove disappointing to football fans who want to see action on the field.

Louisiana Story

A film which will appeal to a more limited number of moviegoers is "Louisiana Story" at the Trans-Lux Theater. Some will find it a welcome change from the current fast-moving melodrama while others will find it too slow and uneventful. The setting for the film is the picturesque swamp country of Louisiana; the cast is composed not of Hollywood stars, but of the natives of Little Pecan Island who merely repeat for the camera their own real-life activities in a wilderness backwater. Joseph Boudreaux, a type of Huckleberry Finn, has the leading role. High excitement stems from from two incidents—an oil gusher "blowing its top" and finally being conquered and a tense fight between the boy and an alligator, with the boy capturing and killing the animal. Mention should also be made of the musical score heard in "Louisiana Story". Written by Virgil Thomson and played by the Philadelphia Orchestra under Eugene Ormandy, this music does much to enhance this beautiful photographic account of a boy's life in the Louisiana bayous.

THE FIFTH COLUMN!

No matter where we go about the campus, in the most remote corners, we hear the typical conversation—women, sports and more women—most the other fellow's woman.

Last weekend was THE weekend all the boys, especially the Frosh, had been waiting for—the first home game . . . The recent Texas hurricane was news to all the nation but it was just a drizzle compared to Philadelphia's reception of the Gaels on Friday night . . . Everybody and his brother was there including GEORGE SZYMANSKI and his slimy stogey . . . Spare matric cards were as scarce as meat in Louie's hamburgers . . . BOB HAM (Porkie Pig's cousin) even shaved for the encounter . . . WALLY DIETRICH took time out from collecting box-tops in order to bring a cute little lass to the game. Even though he made her sell programs she still enjoyed it . . . Saw lover boy BILL HAHN under the stands gathering used pop bottles to help finance the excursion. Bill comes from Paoli . . . Baton-twirling LOU HAVENS almost caused a catastrophe in the band. He skyrocketed the object but it never came back. SID KREITZBERG who puffs a tuba almost choked to death . . . the motion picture "Tulsa" is a story of oil wells but just wait until the Wildcats usher in a gusher this Friday night . . . . .

The World Series broadcast by WVIL or, who put their foot through PROF. DOUGHERTY'S windshield, was a welcomed public service . . . LOUIE came out of the Pie-shoppe and was brooding through the masses. The Pie Shop was a bare as England's vaults before the U. S. began reimbursing their petty cash account . . . CHARLIE, the barber, looked longingly at all the fuzzy heads bending toward the amplifier . . . On the other side of the campus it was a different story, however. At the library, business was booming . . . Was the library being rededicated??? Another student convocation? Maybe MIKE MARSHALL was running for office again?? . . . No, the series was being televised!!!!!! A more delightful seminar was never held . . . AL HEVEY was standing watching the progress of the game without his feet on the ground . . . The place would have put sardine manufacturers to shame . . . in the midst of it all was J. J. THOMPSON selling tickets and acting as head usher . . . But we didn't need a ticket, we couldn't even get inside. We could hear the announcers voice dimly. Any attempt to see was in vain . . . with all the heads bobbing back and forth it looked like a set of ten pins teetering before a final fall . . . As each day's game ended the librarians could hear the patter of little feet coming down the stairs . . . just like the back stacks collapsing with the Harrisburg Special roaring through . . . . .

ORCHIDS TO:

Father Grimes and Father Caffery for a wonderful retreat.

Sister Scholastica, of Peekskill, N. Y., who sent the staff Miraculous medals. She never forgets the Villanovan boys at Christmas or Easter, either.

Students signing up for annual Operation St. John's.

Onions to:

Dayhops driving along the highway who won't pick up their fellow students.

Fellows who won't join extra-curricular activities even though nothing stops them.

Will wonders never cease? . . . Shock of the week was to see the name of "Villanova" in the Philadelphia papers so many times the past few days . . . we haven't hit the local presses so much since last year's gathering at the Ithan Ave. intersection, now known as BAUMAN'S CROSSING . . . This just show's ya' gotta spill blood, whether it's yours or somebody else's, to get publicity . . . . .

Belle Masque, dramatic society, is making plans for its next production, "Jacobowsky and The Colonel". At the tryouts FATHER KRUPA, moderator, asked TOM FLATLEY if he had any stage experience. "Sure" replied Tom, "I had may leg in a cast once". P. S.—He landed a part . . . . .

Delta Pi Epsilon, Financiers' Frat, held a meeting last week. They showed pictures of the Penn State game but couldn't find a screen. Improvising president JOHN WEGLICKI made a motion which was unanimously adopted. So, they used JOE (DADDY) BROGAN'S head. It was okay except that a freckle in the left frontal region was always being mistaken for the football . . . Has anybody seen BILL YEAGER? Understand he's still looking for the twenty-five cent window at the Atlantic City race track . . . JOHN (PUNCHY) CALLAHAN tried to sell some 3-in-1 oil to HARRY PAPAIAN during the rereat. Harry was the squeaky-shoe photographer . . . What is the Orientation Committee coming to? BILL CREAMER has stationed a "white-hat" at Rosemont. Evidently trying to catch some wandering Frosh . . . FRED (STREET SINGER) SEITZINGER is looking for games on Mendel field. If you find any, Fred, let us know . . . AL SCARCELLI and BRUNO URBETI are trying to rush CARL TUNIMAN into the Phi Kappa Pi. Carl is reluctant but there is a high price on his head . . . . .

In case the thought hasn't entered your minds, tomorrow is Columbus Day. Using his explorations as a pattern, BILL FLEMING led an expedition over to Rosemont to see what could be found. JOHN MURPHY went along as first mate and MIKE CREAMER was the navigator. We have it from a very reliable source that the boys established their headquarters in the Tea House. Take it easy fellows . . . let's not rush the hunting season.

Here's a little note of interest to all doughnut dunkers . . . Some chemists in St. Louis have perfected a new leavening agent (sodium acid pyrophosphate) which protects sinkers from moisture-caused sogginess. Now we can dunk till our hearts are content without the least fear of having the doughnuts disintegrate before our very eyes.

Tension is mounting among the campus Casanovas awaiting the initiation of this year's Sunday afternoon dances. It appears that the sheiks had already mapped out their methods of approach, when the bad news was posted. Now, after hours of negotiation, the Student Council has secured permission from Mr. Petrillo to play the records. So, sharpen yourselves up, borrow the four-bits and we'll see you on Sunday.

Student Council Appoints Committees For Peak Year

O'Brien Reports on Orientation Program

Brian McLarnon presided at the second meeting of the Student Council, on Monday evening, a week ago, in 215 Mendel. The primary purpose of the meeting was the appointment of the standard committees, although much in the way of new business was presented for discussion.

No decisions were reached concerning various topics but these were referred to committees which were instructed to act upon them and report to the Council at the next meeting. Some suggestions were that the band be seated higher in the stands at the home games in order that they could be heard by the Villanova section, and that the Villanovan Dance band situation be straightened out. It was reported by Larry O'Brien, chairman of the Orientation Committee, that orientation had proceeded as planned and that the climax day had been set.

Committees appointed were the Social Affairs Committee with Ray Waldron, Chairman, Paul Hemler and Ted Doyle; Ways and Means, with George Schuster, Chairman, Tom Curran, Jack Gibbons, Al Abreu and Larry O'Brien; the Fraternity and Society Committee with Bruce Taten, Chairman, Bill Fleming, Paul Davis, and Harry Range; and the Spirit Committee with Bill Leighton, Chairman, Sullivan, Larry O'Brien and Roland Marshall.

Classes Halt For Annual One Day Retreat

On Thursday, October 6th the annual one-day Fall retreat was held in the Field House.

Classes were suspended for the day in order that students might focus their attention on an even more important subject—peace of soul and happiness inthis world as well as in the next.

The retreat began officially with the celebration of Mass by Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O. S. A., President of the College. He reminded the students in his remarks after Mass that Rev. Henry A. Caffrey O.S.A., the Retreat Master, was eminently qualified to conduct the retreat. Father Caffrey has long been associated with Catholic youth in both the seminary and the college. He is at present time master of Augustinian novices at New Hamburg, N. Y.

Father Caffrey's many points of good advice were well received by an attentive student body. He especially emphasized that one must under-go self-humiliation by confessing his human sins if he is to achieve his state of happiness inthe next world. Furthermore, one must give proper priority to the needs of his soul.

Despite the competition of the World Series and the various bridge and pinochle games, there were a large number of men who went to confession in preparation for the First Friday.

Rev. Edwin T. Grimes O. S. A. College Chapiain, expressed gratification that the retreat was such a success. He expressed the hope that the retreat will be an important mile-stone on a Villanova man's road to eventual salvation.

Father Caffrey stated after the retreat, that he was very much impressed with the fine spirit of the Villanova men who made the retreat. It was, he said, a tribute to young Catholic manhood and to Villanova.

Illumination Topic AIEE Address

Charles Rodden, Chairman of the Villanova branch of the AIEE, has announced that Mr. Arthur Brainerd, Illumination Engineer at Philadelphia Electric Company, will speak to the society at their first formal meeting of the year on the evening of Tuesday, October 18th., at 8 P. M., in 215 Mendel.

Mr. Brainerd is President of the United States Committee of the I.C.I., and an authority on illumination engineering. His talk will cover modern illumination and its immediate need in industry. Rev. Thomas Burke, O.S.A., arranged for the speaker to come to Villanova.

75 E. E. Attend

The first informal meeting of the year was held last Wednesday afternoon, and was attended by over 75 electrical engineering students. Charles Rodden, chairman, opened the meeting by introducing the new officers, Michael Nowlan, Vice-Chairman, Martin Mulkeen, Secretary, and James Wilks, Treasurer.

BUSSOLARI CLUB TO MEET ROSEMONT; AIR RADIO SERIES

Plans for the first semester were discussed last Tuesday at the initial meeting of the Bussolari Society. A meeting with the Rosemont International Relations Club during the week of October 16th. will be the first in a series of joint discussions with nearby college groups.

Bi-monthly radio programs have been scheduled over WVIL. Members of the Villanova faculty and International Affairs Society will participate in the programs along with their counterparts in other regional colleges.

The tentative "United States Loan to Yugoslavia" will be debated on tomorrow evening's program which will be held in conjunction with Rosemont College. Temporary plans have been considered for a trip to Washington this fall.

The Bussolari Society will also participate in the activities of the World Affairs Council of Philadelphia and the federation of regional Catholic Colleges. Last semester the World Affairs Council sponsored three successful model Security Council meetings held respectively at Bryn Mawr, Swarthmore, and Beaver Colleges. Approximately twenty colleges were represented at the gatherings. The regional federation consists of the Catholic Colleges in the Philadelphia area: St. Joseph's, Chestnut Hill, La Salle, Manor College, Immaculata, Rosemont, and Villanova.

This semester members of the Inter-American Union will cooperate with the International Relations Clubs on the various campuses while considering the general topic, "Latin America". The first regional meeting will be held at St. Joseph College, October 28th. An informal dance will be held immediately following the lecture and discussion period.

A Joint Speaker's Bureau will be set up in conjunction with the Regional Forensic Commission. The purpose of the Bureau is "to provide opportunities for members of the various clubs to speak to parish groups on topics of national and international interest." Fourteen colleges will be represented at the Pan-American Conference culminating the first semester's activities. Attempts are also being made to secure radio and television time over station WFIL.

A meeting of the International Affairs Society will be held tonight at 7:30 P. M., in Room 215, Mendel. New members will be welcomed at this time. All students interested in participating in the activities of the club are urged to attend. The society would particularly like to encourage the foreign students on campus to participate in club activities.

Mr. Leo Donn, who guided the Bussolari Society last year, will act as moderator of the club. At the last meeting, Leroy Kendall was appointed publicity chairman for the group.

Representatives Named

Three men have been appointed by the Campus Merchandising Bureau to represent the Chesterfield cigarette people on campus. Chosen to promote the interests of the nationally-known cigarette at Villanova were Neal Fahy, Mike Marshall and Al Abreu. They began their duties immediately upon the opening of school last month.

Band Concert Night

Last Tuesday night the Field House was the scene of the first band concert-rally held this year. The marching band and glee club provided the musical background with Tom Clavin doing the M.C.ing. Many attended the hour and a half music-fest and a good time was had by all.

Come To The Field House

Calling all Freshmen! Also all Sophomores, Juniors, and Seniors. Do you have school spirit? . . . Do you want the football team to lose their game to Tulsa next Friday?

If your answers to the above questions in order are: Yes . . . Yes . . . and No, we have the answer to all your problems about how to use up your stored-up energy, and relieve the monotony of studying every night in the week. The Spirit Committee of the Student Council comes to the rescue of book-weary Villanovans, and has planned this respite in the form of a torchlight parade and pre-game rally next Thursday night.

Band music, plenty of cheers and school songs, and the guarantee of a good time will pull even the most erudite of the upperclassmen from their desks as the parade travels through the campus, picking up a following as it passes the residence halls. Official sanction for this event is assured since the Student Council itself has expended its most valuable asset, money, by buying torches to enlighten the affair so that those who feel they must bring their textbooks will be able to study between the first and second chorus of "V for Villanova".

A caution has been issued by the spirit committee for all the torch bearers to wear asbestos gloves, since the rally would defeat its own purpose if their hands were burned and bandaged, and they wouldn't be able to applaud during the game the following night.

The line of march has been mapped out as beginning at the C & F Aud., to Mendel Hall along the front road, and from there down the back road to the Field House. There, torches will have to be extinguished (Penna. Fire Laws, Sec. Y, art. 1001, pertaining to the Villanova Field House). The paraders will then enter, cheering, according to plan, and the main part of the rally will be held.
